Miraculous Recoveries as Two Liners Collide at 10,000 Feet

107 SURVIVE MID-AIR CRASH

NORTH SALEM, N.Y. (AP)—Two incoming airliners collided in gray autumn skies two miles above New York City's northern suburbs Saturday. One plane crashed and burned but the other stayed aloft, and the death toll was miraculously light.

Of 113 persons aboard the two aircraft state police said six were known dead.

The victims were on a propeller-driven Eastern Air Lines Constellation shuttle that went down after colliding with a Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 transcontinental jet about 50 miles north of New York.

Oscar Baake, regional director of the Federal Aviation Agency, surveyed the wreckage in a light snowfall that set in after the crash. He said of the death toll:

"That's unbelievable. All I can say is that it is fantastic that people walked away. This pilot must have done a wonderful job."

* * * *

THE jetliner's pilot, Capt. Thomas Carroll, 45, of Norwalk, Conn., declared:

"We saw the other aircraft just before we hit. We took evasive action."

Carroll failed to avoid collision. But his last-minute maneuver may have minimized the force of the sideswiping impact. Both planes were under the control of ground monitors at the time.

The jetliner reportedly was assigned to 11,000 feet altitude, while the Constellation was supposed to be at 10,000 feet. There was no immediate explanation of how they happened onto a collision course.

Pilots of both ships responded magnificently to the emergency, reminiscent of aviation's worst disaster, the collision of two airliners over New York in 1960 that claimed 134 lives.

* * * *

EASTERN pilot, Capt. C. White of Rye, N.H., en route from Boston to Newark, fought off a spin of his four-engined Constellation, alerted his passengers to their peril, then pancaked into an uninhabited hillside. The ship exploded in a burst of orange flame but most of the 54 persons aboard escaped with their lives.

"We've been hit by another plane and we're going to make a crash landing," White advised his passengers, giving them time to fasten their seat belts.

White was not listed among the survivors at any of the area hospitals.

An Eastern spokesman at Danbury said: "As far as we are concerned at this point, Capt. Charles White is missing."

The other pilot, Carroll, at the controls of a TWA jet flight from San Francisco, had 30 feet of his left wing ripped away and his brakes knocked out. But he made it to Kennedy Airport, after announcing over his intercom system:

"It's not as bad as it looks."

The TWA liner landed smoothly, using less than a third of the runway. The only injury among 58 persons

Waters, Reagan Trade Verbal Jabs at GOP Meeting

By BOB HOUSER
I, P-T Political Editor

Announced GOP gubernatorial candidate Laughlin E. Waters accused unannounced candidate Ronald Reagan of "political expediency and political dishonesty" Saturday for denying his candidacy when "the fact is, he is a candidate, has said so (privately) and has stated that if he were quoted publicly he would deny it."

"The unity didn't hold up very long," Reagan quipped, "I'll match my integrity with anyone in this room."

The room was the Biltmore Hotel ballroom in Los Angeles, filled with more than 400 members of the one-year-old California Republican League in weekend convention.

Reagan and Waters were among eight potential candidates at a CRL round table which featured individual speeches and then a session of questions from the audience.

* * * *

THE FORMER U.S. attorney's blast at Reagan was a pointed rejection of state GOP Chairman Dr. Gaylord Parkinson's party commandment against "speaking ill of any Republican." Parkinson had urged his code on CRL at the group's Saturday morning session.

Reagan replied that, obviously, when one goes as "far as I have, you have to operate on the basis that the answer will be yes. I have to assume that it will be (yes). I've said yes—on the basis of what I've learned so far, the answer is preordained. But I've also said I'd keep one foot back in case the sky starts to fall.

"I think it's pretty logical to say that if the press were told this, I'd have to deny I said it. I don't think this is being dishonest."

Waters, after the round table ended, told newsmen he is now satisfied that Reagan is a candidate and that he not only has drawn in the foot

Refinery Boiler Explodes

An explosion shattered a cracking unit hydrogen tank and hurled it skyward late Saturday at the Union Oil Co. refinery, 1650 W. Anaheim St., Wilmington.

Police said the tank, described as about the size of two automobiles, was ripped apart about 9:50 p.m. The blast which occurred in the south-central sector of the sprawling refinery was heard for miles.

Four Los Angeles fire units were dispatched to the scene but police said there were no reports of a fire and no injuries or damage except to the boiler.

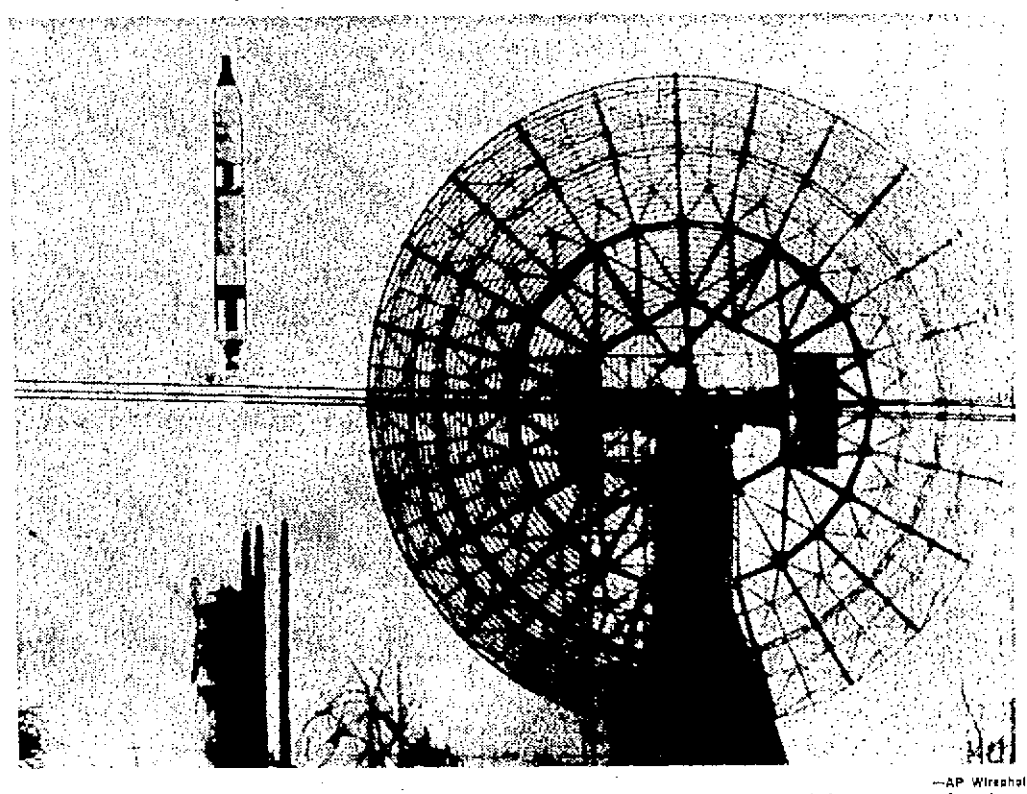

A valve that gave way was given as the cause of the explosion. The boiler was used in a cracking unit which breaks down crude oil in the process of manufacturing gasoline. All attachments in the field were shut down after the explosion to avoid the possibility of further blasts.

Mysterious Object Hits, Bounces Off Spaceship

HUGE TITAN 2 ROCKET IS 'CAPTURED' by giant tracking antenna as Gemini 7 two-week mission begins at Cape Kennedy Space Center in Florida in a near-perfect takeoff.

Officials Puzzled, No Damage Seen

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.
United Press International

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell soared toward new frontiers in space Saturday night, with nothing troubling them and a mysterious little incident to intrigue them.

Soon after a near-perfect takeoff from Cape Kennedy, a small object which apparently flew off the spacecraft bounced off Lovell's window on the right side of the spacecraft. Gemini officials had only a theory as to what it was—but it apparently posed no threat to the 14-or-15-day mission.

The astronauts flew on toward what space officials hope will be the highlight of the journey: a rendezvous with the Gemini 6 spaceship scheduled to head into the heavens on Dec. 13.

The "Spirit of 76," as the double space voyage has been called, was off to an auspicious start and more than making up for the disappointment of October when the last U. S. manned space effort was canceled because of the failure of an Agena target rocket.

Borman and Lovell, born just 11 days apart 37 years ago, leaped into space at 2:30 p.m. EST—

Space Dress Is So Far Very Formal

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 astronauts won't be able to savor the comfort of their spaceship cabin in their underwear until Monday morning.

Flight officials in preflight announcements got their signals crossed and reported erroneously that copilot James Lovell Jr. would take off his spacesuit Saturday.

On Monday, after Navy Cmdr. Lovell tries it out in his shortsleeved underwear for some 24 hours, Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman, the command pilot, will get a chance.

After that, during noncritical times, the two will take turns in the underwear dress.

Earlier, space officials decided caution was the better part of valor—and turned down a request from the astronauts to let them both strip off the new lightweight spacesuits at the same time.

Should there be a sudden loss of cabin pressure, an astronaut caught without his protective spacesuit on would be in grave trouble. But so far in Gemini flights, there has never been a loss in cabin pressure.

Besides comfort, the aim of the astronauts was to show their confidence in the Gemini spacecraft cabin integrity.

The new spacesuits are lighter, and more comfortable than the old ones. But the old ones are not out of the picture yet. They will be used on short flights and do offer better protection. Furthermore, any astronaut assigned to walk in space will need the heavier, more protective suit to shield him from the vacuum of space.

The human body, unprotected from the nearly complete vacuum of space, would literally explode.

The new spacesuit is a white nylon garment with two layers, and a soft hood that pulls down over the regular jet pilot crash helmet. The suit weighs 16 pounds, five pounds lighter than the old one. The helmet weighs three pounds.

Navy Capt. Walter Schirra Jr. and Air Force Major Thomas Stafford, who hope to pilot the Gemini 6 hunter spacecraft in pursuit of Gemini 7, Dec. 13, will wear the old suit. Their flight is scheduled for only 47 hours.

Flight Before Christmas

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Astronaut James Lovell used a line from a familiar poem about Santa Claus for punning purposes Wednesday night, reporting from space.

"We're still in the process of settling down for a long winter's flight."

A SOCIOLOGICAL TIME BOMB ON A SPUTTERING FUSE

Watts Riot Gave Compton Days and Nights of Terror

By SHERM WILLIAMS
Copyrighted 1965, Independent, Press-Telegram
(All Rights Reserved)

(First of Five Parts)

Alameda Street stretches Southward from Los Angeles like a fuse, dividing two worlds. Suddenly it plugs into the sociological time bomb that is the City of Compton, half-Negro, half-white.

In the cities north of Compton, the Caucasians to the east privately call Alameda "the asphalt curtain."

The Negroes to the west bitterly call it "The Alameda Wall."

It is the barrier between the white and black worlds and there is little gray to be found near it. It is one of the most dangerous streets in the United States because of the pent-up fury on its either side.

The fuse was ignited Wednesday night, Aug. 11, 1965, the start of the devastating Los Angeles riots. It burned southward throughout Watts, down through Willowbrook and into the heart of Compton.

Watts and Willowbrook were burned, battered and left bloodsoaked.

Negro frustration was vented in blind fury against the whites, raging in a firestorm in the ghetto that is Watts and superheating emotions down the Alameda fuse.

I, P-T SPECIAL REPORT

The battle cry of the riots was "Get Whitey." You look at the map. Compton is right there, a stone's throw from Watts and adjoining Willowbrook. Half of Compton's 77,170 residents are Negro.

The rest, man, are "Whitey."

In the final hours of Friday, Aug. 13, officials of Compton were forced to a terrifying conclusion.

The emotional firestorm of the Los Angeles riots—just blocks away—was roaring into their city. Compton, it appeared certain, would be devastated in a matter of hours and probably in the worst racial bloodbath ever seen in America.

The conclusion was not a product of hysteria. It was drawn from a maelstrom of adverse facts.

Emotions in the city were superheated. Rioters roamed the streets. Fire raged through stores within the heart of Compton.

Unlike Los Angeles, which had shrugged at the thought of a Negro revolt, Compton leaders had become aware of the danger five years earlier and had worked to offset the possibility.

Facts that Los Angeles and the State of California belatedly are trying to learn now through the McCone Commission and a host of other agencies, official and private, already were known to Compton leaders.

Valuable social document that it is, the McCone Commission report still adds up to a "let George do it" rakeover of the ashes of the Los Angeles riots when compared to the more intimate and much more revealing knowledge of what can cause—and what can prevent—a riot, learned by Compton civic leaders, Negro and Caucasian alike.

The McCone report is to be given to selected newsmen today with the agreement it will be kept under wraps until 3 p.m. Monday.

What Compton has learned is a matter of daily discussion in that city—where the immediacy of the

Suicide Try at 82 Fails to Give Him 'Even a Headache'

Eighty-two-year-old Vito Maniscalco lives alone, has no relatives and few friends.

He decided he "wanted to make room for the younger generation," and brought out the revolver he had bought in 1929 and never used.

Maniscalco fired one shot into the ceiling of his room "to see if it worked," then fired five shots at his head. The bullets grazed the right side of his head and Maniscalco fell to the floor, bleeding profusely.

Some neighbors, getting no answer at the retired coal miner's door Saturday, called Chicago police, who broke in and found Maniscalco unconscious.

At a nearby hospital, Maniscalco was treated and released. He later was charged with disorderly conduct. Police asked if he was sorry, and he said, "Sorry? Yes, sorry I caused so much trouble."

Asked how he felt, Maniscalco replied, "I haven't even got a headache."

Officers at first had thought he was set afire by a second man.

Hoffa Ally Safe

Anthony Provenzano, president of Teamsters Union Local 560 of Union City, N.J., since 1958, smashed two insurgent rank-and-file tickets Saturday, winning re-election by a 2-to-1 margin. He is an ally of Teamsters President James Hoffa.

Provenzano, still fighting a 1963 conviction for extortion, piled up a 5,231 to 2,631 plurality over George Phillips of the united ticket.

Provenzano

The second insurgent slate, also calling itself the united ticket, did not have a presidential candidate. The original candidate, Steve Harnos, withdrew in favor of Phillips. Former Harnos supporters nominated Anthony Castellito Jr., but the nomination failed to receive federal court approval.

The election was held in Seacaucus, N.J., under U.S. Labor Department supervision. A federal court directed the Labor Department to conduct the election because of charges of fraud in the 1962 election.

U.S. Sen. Fred Harris said Saturday in Oklahoma City that President Johnson should send his wife on a goodwill tour of South America to bolster U. S. relations with Latin-American nations.

The Oklahoma Democrat said Mrs. Johnson, upon her return, could give the President a "valuable firsthand assessment of the situation" there.

Johnsons' eldest daughaer

He suggested that the Johnsons' eldest daughter, Lynda, make the trip, too.

Harris, who returned last month from a private, three-week tour of Peru, Brazil, Argentina and Chile, said the United States needs to adopt a fresh approach in its relations with Latin America.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) said Saturday in Milwaukee, it appears Red China could be a nuclear threat within five to 10 years.

"It depends on what magnitude of a threat you are talking about," Seaborg said in an interview before a symposium of four leading scientists. The symposium was part of the weekend ceremonies dedicating an addition to the Cutler-Hammer Corp.

Seaborg

"It is obvious that Red China's nuclear weapons are at present elementary," Seaborg said.

he was keeping back but, to use another Reagan phrase about edging toward the edge of the porch, "has now fallen off the porch."

Reagan was given another uncomfortable moment when panelist Joseph C. Shell, who matches Reagan's hard-line conservation, was asked about a Reagan commitment to support Shell's candidacy.

Said Shell, "It was my belief I did have such a commitment but maybe we understand the language differently."

* * * *

WATERS also told the delegates that reports he received on Reagan's offer from Birch Society public relations director John Rousselot was to support or oppose Reagan — whichever would help him most—was "deadly serious."

Reagan charged Waters had "dredged up a hassle about a facetious remark I made in San Francisco." He restated his position that he would not solicit Birch Society support and invited CRL delegates to read his 500-word statement on the society.

Observers had surmised Reagan would get a bad time at the hands of the liberal-moderate CRL, but he didn't fare badly on applause.

Counting both introductory and postspeech applause, here's how the panelists scored: former San Francisco Mayor George Christopher, 46 seconds; Lieutenant Governor Candidate Robert H. Finch, 43; Waters, 42; Assembly Minority Leader Robert T. Monagan, 35; Reagan, 31; Former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, 24; Los Angeles County Supervisor Warren M. Dorn, 19, and Shell, 15. Christopher used part of this panel time to urge other candidates to get behind his candidacy as two statewide polls show him to be the one most likely to beat Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

* * * *

CHRISTOPHER told newsmen that a couple of the contending candidates already have indicated a willingness to go with his candidacy.

Speaking in a hotel hallway directly to Waters, Christopher said, "If my own candidacy (according the the polls) were jeopardizing the ticket, I would drop out." Waters, near the bottom in state polls, laughed and traded a couple of friendly quips with Christopher.

There was not much new in the panelists' eight-minute speeches.

Christopher stressed good administration techniques to attack state problems, warned against extremism and intimated his following among minorities and San Francisco election experience make him the man who could get the necessary 23% of the Democratic vote.

Dorn outlined his commitment to passage of a "decency amendment" to restore local control in dealing with sex offenses and "restore morality and decency to our community."

* * * *

FINCH urged positive, vigorous alternatives and warned strongly against giving way, for political gain, to "racists or those who pander to emotional or psychic aberrations."

Knight proposed meeting burgeoning state education costs by charging tuition at the University of California branches and providing for loans to students unable to pay the five-years-after-graduation deferral on repayment of the loan.

Monagan charged the state Democratic administration is "fiscally and morally bankrupt" and cautioned that the fate of 163 elective offices in 1966 hinge upon the kind of gubernatorial candidate the GOP selects.

* * * *

REAGAN decried GOP family feuding and urged unity in helping depict the true picture of California's current troubles as opposed to the opposite and rosy picture the Democrats submit. He credited former governors Earl Warren and Goodwin Knight for beginning the water program which the Democratic administration claims for its own.

Shell compared Gov. Brown to a "spendthrift grandson" who ravages the wealth of a family that has been amassed through several generations.

Waters accused Brown of lying in pushing for legislative pensions and then deserting the measure when the public registered its shock. He made a scarcely veiled reference to Reagan in telling the GOP it cannot afford "a political switch-hitter, or a tyro, or one who appeals only to a minority even within our own party."

At the Saturday-night banquet, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., delivered the main convention address. He strongly denounced "activist right-wing groups" — the "out groups" such as the Free Society Association, whose honorary chairman is Barry Goldwater.

McKeever Still in Coma, Condition 'Very Critical'

Mike McKeever, former University of Southern California football star, unknowingly is engaged in the grimmest battle of his 25-year-old life.

The identical twin brother of Marlin McKeever, Los Angeles Rams professional gridiron player, has been unconscious with severe brain damage since a predawn traffic accident Friday in Fountain Valley.

At Long Beach Memorial Hospital, where his pregnant wife, Judy, and brother, Marlin, remain close to his bedside, Mike late Saturday was close to death.

A trachentomy was performed to aid his breathing, but no surgery had yet been attempted to repair or minimize the injury to his brain. His condition was "unchanged —still very critical."

aboard was a stewardess who had a bloody nose.

Among passengers aboard the TWA plane was Bernard Donovan, superintendent of New York City schools, who said:

"Thank God, our pilots were expert and brought us in. I can tell you everybody on that plane applauded as we landed."

The two airliners collided at 4:28 p.m. EST, on a day when American technology was able to safely dispatch two astronauts into space, but was unable to bring two aircraft safely through the traffic pattern of New York's metropolitan airways.

Passengers aboard the two planes reported momentary hysteria but no real panic as the pilots maneuvered them in the chilling moments that followed the collision.

The crash was the third in less than a month involving airliners coming in for what appeared to be routine landings. An American Airlines Boeing 727 went down near Covington, Ky., Nov. 8 with a loss of 58 lives, and on Nov. 11, a United Airlines 727 went down while landing at Salt Lake City, Utah, with 43 killed.

BETTY Owens, 24, of Boston, emerged unscathed with her 14-months-old son from the EAL Constellation after its fiery pancake landing. She said:

"The pilot told us over the loudspeaker to get ready for a crash landing. We had a chance to get our seat belts fastened. Everybody did.

"I don't know how we got out. I was in the back of the plane and it just broke open and I got out. People outside were hollering for the people to get back from the plane."

Fred Trenner, of Danbury, Conn., aloft in a small plane in the area, saw the EAL flight crash and declared:

"There was a terrific burst of flame. It didn't appear as if anyone could get out alive."

"Everybody put their heads down and prayed," he said after emerging unhurt. "I guess they prayed. I prayed."

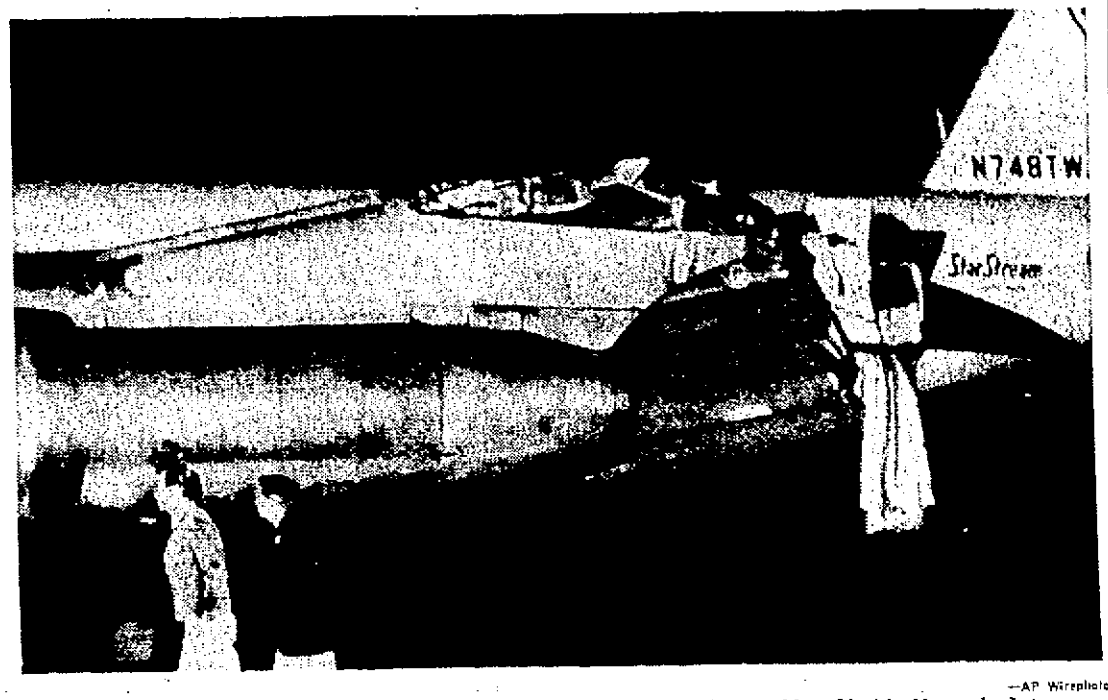

The EAL plane was a flight that left Boston at 3.30 p.m. and was due at Newark Airport at 4:45 p.m.

TWA's Flight 42 was nonstop out of San Francisco. It landed safely at Kennedy Airport at 4:40 p.m., ahead of its schedule.

'WE GOT HIT . . . HELP ME!'

2 in Fraternity Initiation Tell of Mid-Air Collision

MOUNT KISCO N.Y. (AP)—"We had a camera and I was going to take a picture out the window when all of a sudden out of this cloud comes this plane. A red and silver plane."

That was the way 20-year-old Bert Pietronski, a passenger on the downed Eastern Air lines plane, described Saturday's aerial sideswipe high over Danbury, Conn.

"Our pilot saw it first and he went up," said the Willington, N.J., college junior. "It was a movement like a draft and he hit us.

"I said to Jeff, 'We got hit by a plane!' and he said, 'We did?' And as soon as he said that the plane went into a kind of spinning dive."

Pietronski and Jeff Klein, both pledges at the Tau Kappa Delta Fraternity at Fairleigh Dickinson College, were aboard the plane as part of a fraternity initiation stunt.

They had been put aboard a plan to Boston with no money, and warned they would have to find a way back by Saturday night.

"Jeff was handcuffed to an attache case," Pieronski said. "It was part of the initiation. And he said 'Help me!' I loosened my seat belt and put my foot on it (the case), and he's a big guy and he jerked up and snapped it loose."

Another passenger, George Rhoads, 38, of Cranford, N.J., confirmed Pietronski's description.

"I can't tell you whether we took the dive first or hit the plane first," Rhoads said. "It knocked us out of control. He came at us from the right side underneath."

Both passengers said the pilot warned that the plane had been hit by another airliner, was out of control and would have to crashland.

"He flew us right into that hill," Rhoads said. "He pancaked it right into the hill. He was fighting it all the way down."

These three passengers escaped serious injury.

In the admitting room of the Danbury Hospital, several miles to the east in Connecticut, another survivor said of the collision:

"Suddenly it was real wild. Our plane went up and down and sideways and around. But we didn't feel hitting anything."

NORTH SALEM, N.Y. (UPI)—Even the terror of an in-flight collision and fiery crash cannot disturb the "cool" composure of some seasoned travelers, or halt their journeys for long.

New York State Policeman Lawrence K. Clare said that one woman stepped from the wreckage of the crashed Eastern Air Lines Constellation Saturday night, declared she had tickets for a theater performance in Manhattan that she had to make, and set off on foot down the mountain from the crash scene.

Writer Stabbed

Charles O. Stewart, 48, a reporter and assistant city editor for the Metro-East Journal in East St. Louis, Ill., was beaten and stabbed by three men after leaving a nightclub in nearby Brooklyn, Ill., early Saturday.

Brooklyn Police Chief Carl Patton, said he believed the attack was provoked by gambling articles written by Stewart.

Orbiters Eager for Rendezvous

right on schedule. Late Saturday night mission-control officials at Houston were saying that everything was running smoothly, both with the machine and with the men.

At 10:30 p.m. EST, Gemini 7 began its 6th orbit.

At Cape Kennedy, on launch pad 19 where the Gemini flights began, technicians were working in the evening and throughout the night to get the pad in shape for the ambitous rendezvous attempt by Gemini 6. The first stage of the Titan 2 missile, which is to blast astronauts Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford into the skies, was being erected during the night.

The Gemini 6 capsule, already thoroughly checked out, was to be put atop the second and first stages at noon, and the final checks then can begin for what would be a precedent-smashing "turnaround" on the launch pad.

* * * *

IF ALL goes well, Schirra and Stafford will pull their Gemini 6 spaceship within a few feet of Gemini 7 and Borman and Lovell on the fourth orbit a week from Monday.

After a stint of formation flying that would be of invaluable assistance to the future of the whole U. S. space program, Gemini 6 would come down on Thursday, Dec. 16. Borman and Lovell would land on Saturday morning, Dec. 18, in plenty of time to rejoin their families for a Christmas holiday that would be memorable for everyone involved.

The countdown for the launch Saturday of Gemini 7 was flawless. With minor problems, so were the initial orbits. There was trouble with the fuel cell, which crippled but did not stop the Gemini 5 flight of L. Gordon Cooper and Charles (Pete) Conrad. This was cleared out with a backup system installed since Cooper and Conrad carried out their trouble-plagued August flight that, up to the end of the Gemini 7 mission, held all space endurance records.

On top of this, Borman and Lovell had trouble with a system called the "Delta P"—a light indicating that something in the fuel cell was malfunctioning. After a series of tests, space officials decided that the trouble lay in the light itself, not the fuel cell.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, the two rookie astronauts astounded ground officials by reporting that some object—perhaps a strap, a piece of paper, or tape—apparently had come off the spacecraft and hit Lovell's window.

Mission Control was inclined to believe that it was a piece of metal from the strap that, at the start of the mission, holds the Gemini spaceship to the second stage of the booster. When there is a clean separation of the two, the metal would break off. If the break were not clean, a piece could have been left over and broken off when the Gemini's maneuvering thrusters were fired, popping it past Lovell's window.

* * * *

OTHERWISE, the flight proceeded smoothly. On the fifth orbit, as Gemini 7 sailed high above the Viet Nam battlefields, Command Pilot Borman was resting and Pilot Lovell was handling the controls.

The only mystery to date was the object that flew by the window.

Paul Haney, voice of the astronauts, said the report was "one of the bigger puzzlers" and "certainty was unusual and unexpected."

The incident occurred during the third orbit. It came after Borman and Lovell had fired maneuvering rockets to raise Gemini's low point in orbit. While reporting on this, they said something hit the window.

An incredulous ground communicator asked for details. The crew replied only that the object came from the rear of the spacecraft and bounced off Lovell's window. It apparently did no damage.

After reporting this, Borman and Lovell swept on en route to a record-breaking 206 orbits.

Flight Director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. told a news conference at 7:30 p.m. EST that Mission Control was pleased with the flight, and "I can't see anything at this time that would cause us any concern."

Space officials also reported that Borman and Lovell kept within 50 to 60 feet of their booster on the first orbit when they were practicing flying in formation with it.

* * * *

THE TWO astronauts saw their booster many times. They also reported seeing another object in space, the identity of which was not known, and a bunch of particles — "very, very, many small particles."

As for the astronauts themselves, Dr. Charles Berry, the chief flight physician, said their status "has been really excellent from the time that they were awakened this morning."

Borman and Lovell, the second generation of U.S. astronauts, were all business early in their flight. It wasn't until the third orbit that Borman described what it was like on his ride, and this was in answer to a question.

"It's great," he said.

* * * *

THE EARLY stages of the flight were devoted to a formation-flying maneuver with a burned-out section of the Titan booster, which they kept in sight for a considerable period, and several scientific experiments.

At 6:19 p.m. EST, Lovell took the control stick and, using the craft's small maneuvering jets, raised Gemini 7 into an orbit ranging from 138 to 204 miles above earth.

Purpose of the maneuver was to get the ship into an orbit high enough to guarantee a 14-day flight and to prepare Gemini 7 for the anticipated "rendezvous" arrival of Gemini 6.

To adjust the orbit, Lovell had to use slightly more fuel than originally planned. However, officials said, it was nothing to worry about.

Shortly after the flight started, Borman and Lovell reported another problem with the fuel cell, but solved this one by using a valve that had been installed in Gemini 7 as a result of the bad experience in the previous flight.

If all goes as planned, Borman and Lovell will come down in the western Atlantic at 8 a.m. EST two weeks from Saturday after almost doubling the space endurance record set last August by Gemini 5 astronauts L. Gordon Cooper and Charles (Pete) Conrad.

MARILYN Lovell is expecting her fourth child at some point during her husband's long stay in the heavens.

At her home in Seabrook, near here, Mrs. Lovell said she was thrilled to "have one launch off in the Lovell house."

"I'm speechless," she said. "When the launch went off, I felt I was part of Jim. This is the one challenge in life that he's been looking forward to."

The primary purpose of the mission is to test the effect of extended weightlessness on men in preparation for the flight in Project Apollo, the man-to-the-moon mission.

* * * *

THE ACTUAL moon journey will last a little more than eight days, from takeoff on earth to landing back here, including a brief visit on the moon.

Before their rendezvous attempt with Gemini 6, Borman and Lovell will spend their time carrying out a series of scientific experiments. Two of the most important will involve their own physical condition.

One is to enable scientists to find out what happens to the body's red blood cells in extended flight. The other involves what amount of calcium is lost from the body's bones during a prolonged period of weightless flight.

VOICES OF THE GEMINI

Chitchat and Data from Outer Space

United Press International

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, speaking from space:

In third orbit, after object hit windshield: "looked like a strap, or piece of paper or something of that nature . . . no, it looked like it came from behind, it came up and hit right in front of the right window and bounced off again."

Earlier in the flight, after spotting both familiar and unfamiliar objects: "bogey at 10 o'clock high."

And: "we have the booster in sight . . . a brilliant object . . . it's ahead of us about 2 o'clock (ahead and to the right) and slowly tumbling."

And: "very, very many small particles."

Discussing an instrument light that gave false indication of a malfunction in the power supply:

"The Delta P light . . . is still on."

Three minutes into the flight, overriding takeoff noise: "look good . . . looks good . . . looks good . . . "

Just after seven minutes of flight: "the booster is venting."

Lovell, jokingly pretending that this is just a rehearsal in a flight simulator: "that's the best sim we've had."

Over the Pacific, the coastal sentry Quebec tracking ship asked, "Any plans for your sleep period?"

"We're giving it consideration," came back a voice from space.

Copilot James Lovell, father of three, remembered his Christmas poetry.

"We're still in the process of settling down for a long winter's flight," he reported in a take-off on Clement Moore's "'Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Wife's Ex-Mate Shot by Doctor

By BILL HAZLETT

A Long Beach doctor shot and seriously wounded his wife's former husband Saturday after the man forced his way into the couple's home.

Nurses at Community Hospital said Doyle W. James, 39, of 11033 Carson Drive, Lynwood, was in serious condition following three hours of surgery for a gunshot wound in his abdomen. James, who was placed under intensive care, also was wounded in the left foot.

JAMES

Patrolman Bob Carabine said the shooting took place shortly after 2 p.m. at the home of Dr. Frank G. Philo, 48, at 7146 Mezzanine Way.

Homicide Sergeants Frank Welch and Bob Castillo made a preliminary investigation, and no charges were filed.

Mrs. Joan Philo, 34, told Officer Carabine she was in the living room of their home when she saw her former husband approach the house, then heard him pounding on the door demanding entrance.

* * * *

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE said she went to her husband, who was lying down watching television, and told him James was at the door. Dr. Philo told Officer Carabine he dressed, placed a .32-calibre automatic pistol in his pocket and went to the door.

The doctor said he asked James to leave, then ordered him to get away from the house. James, according to Dr. Philo, ignored the warnings and barged into the home, advancing on the couple.

Dr. Philo told police he pulled the pistol from his pocket and again ordered James to leave. When James continued to threaten, the doctor said, he fired "two or three warning shots" into the floor.

* * * *

DESPITE the shots, Dr. Philo said, James pressed his advance until the doctor shot him in the foot. The wound only enraged James, Dr. Philo said.

In his statement to investigating officers, Dr. Philo said he was afraid James would harm either him or his wife, so he fired another shot.

The slug struck James in the stomach and he crumpled to the floor.

Officer Carabine said Mrs. Philo told police her former husband had been harassing her for several months. She said he was arrested Oct. 2, 1965, on charges of disorderly conduct and drinking in public. Records show James was found guilty and fined $50 on Oct. 18, 1965.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Advance Tip on Saigon Blast

SAIGON (UPI) — American authorities were reported Saturday night to have received an advance tip from Vietnamese intelligence on the terrorist bombing of a U.S. military billet and dispensary that killed 10 persons and wounded more than 175 others early Saturday.

A Vietnamese police source said Vietnamese intelligence agents learned of the Communist plan to bomb the Metropole bachelor enlisted men's quarters and informed American authorities of the plot 10 days ago both verbally and by secret memorandum.

An American spokeseman denied the report, saying "we had no indication the billet would be bombed."

Plan to Topple Rhodesians

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—The 36-nation Organization of African Unity (OAU) drew up Saturday night a secret plan designed to topple the rebel Rhodesian regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Conference Chairman Kojo Botsio of Ghana announced a five-nation committee has been empowered to take "all possible means including the use of force to end the southern Rhodesia crisis." On the committee are Ghana, Egypt, Tanzania, Zambia and Kenya.

HHH Meets With VDC

MOFFETT FIELD, Dec. 4 (AP)—Vice President Hubert Humphrey met face to face behind closed doors Saturday with representatives of an anti-war group whose leaflets now are reaching U.S. troops in Viet Nam.

With newsmen barred at his request, Humphrey said he traded views and arguments for 20 minutes with six members of the Vietnam Day Committee, a group which has tried unsuccessfully to stop troop trains and march on Oakland army terminal, overseas sailing point for Viet Nam.

"They were very polite, they clearly expressed their point of view, but we did not agree," the vice president told newsmen after the meeting.

The meeting was hastily arranged only several hours before Humphrey left Moffett Field, near San Francisco, by jet for speaking engagements in Seattle.

Boy Friend Visits Lynda Bird

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—Lynda Bird Johnson, back from Mexico, got a tour of the central Texas hill country Saturday with a boy friend. The chauffeur: President Johnson.

The White House declined to identify Lynda's friend but natives who saw them on the highway described him as tall, dark and handsome.

This description happens to fit Hollywood actor George Hamilton, member of a millionaire Florida family.

GIs En Route to Bangkok

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI)—Two U.S. soldiers released a week ago after two years imprisonment by the Viet Cong will leave here today for Bangkok where they will report to American authorities.

An official source said Sgt. George Smith of Chester, W. Va., and Spec. 4 Claude McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn., would be accompanied by an Australian diplomat on an Air France flight to the Thailand capital.

Teachers Supported

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)— The Newark Teachers Union (NTU) whose members defied a court order and struck the city's public-school system Thursday, received support Saturday from the nationwide American Federation of Teachers.

The executive council of the 115,000-member federation, meeting in Chicago, unanimously passed a resolution calling for a "bona fide collective bargaining agent election." The NTU is the local unit of the federation.

IN ANOTHER development Saturday, the superintendent of schools in Elizabeth, John E. Dwyer, confirmed that he had provided the Newark system with a list of substitute teachers "as a courtesy."

The president of the Elizabeth Teachers Union, Gerald Williamson, objected to what he termed "the Elizabeth board of education's compliance with the strikebreaking efforts of the Newark board of education."

WHEN WATTS RIOT RAGED

Compton Was a Time Bomb

problem is as urgent as is the Los Angeles City Hall distant from Watts.

Compton, 13th largest city in Los Angeles County, is part of the intestinal knot of suburban communities which huddle on the underbelly of Los Angeles. It is the only integrated community within the immediate area of the Los Angeles riots.

Watts, part of Los Angeles, and Willowbrook, a densely populated but unincorporated county area abutting Compton were under mob rule on Friday the 13th of August.

There were compelling reasons to believe a spark might be enough to explode the sociological time-bomb that was Compton. This was no spark. Mass hysteria directed in blowtorch fury and at point-blank range pressured blue flame at the frustrations in Compton. The city heaved in agony.

No one took the time to chalk up the facts on the board, but if they had, the situation would have appeared even more futile.

On the bad side:

1 — Some of Compton's Negroes live in dirt-poor poverty, owning little, daring to hope for little more and resenting their plight in an opulent society with a blind fury born of collective frustration. Their few contacts with Caucasians are unpleasant and often, into the raw wounds of their frustration is rubbed the salt of gratuitous denigration.

They would have, in their own minds, little, if anything, to lose by rioting and a chance of gain—if only to register their frustration.

2 — Even among the Negroes in Compton who have found their place under the sun—who have jobs, hopes for the future and a chance of maintaining personal dignity—not all was well. The burden of being a Negro is occasionally infuriating, often frustrating. "Even the white liberals put us down," says one Negro intellectual. "They speak often and eloquently about our rights and integration, but when we move into their neighborhood, they move out."

3—Caucasians in Compton had watched Negroes move into the city with growing alarm. Gradually, what some termed a "black tide" had moved across the city until now more Negroes than whites lived there. The change frightened off some investors. Compton business, some said, was stagnating because of the influx. Many whites had moved out of the city. Many of those who remained were bitter. Their way of life, they were convinced, had been disrupted.

On the good side:

1 — For more than five years, conscious attempts had been made to discuss Compton's problems openly and to broaden the middle ground in which Negroes and Caucasians gained understanding of each other. The program was aimed at melting the bigotry of either side.

2 — The Compton Police Department was integrated, as were the schools and many business houses in the city. Two Negroes served effectively on the City Council and a Negro city clerk recently had been elected. Compton Negroes, unlike their counterparts in Los Angeles, could find a ready audience for their problems.

3—Compton Negro leaders were determined to try to keep the city from becoming a Negro ghetto. They worked earnestly with Caucasians to encourage whites to stay in the city.

Compton had one notable plus factor lacking in Los Angeles: communications between Negroes and whites.

It also had a chilling fact missing in the Los Angeles riot area.

* * * *

THE BATTLE cry of the rioters, screamed frenetically into television microphones in South Los Angeles, Watts and Willowbrook was "Get Whitey." No Caucasians, though, could be found in Watts or Willowbrook. In Compton, though, it was different.

Whitey was there.

Los Angeles, the city they said couldn't blow up in racial rebellion was in massive explosion.

Compton, long recognized as a sociological time bomb, belched raw emotion.

* * * *

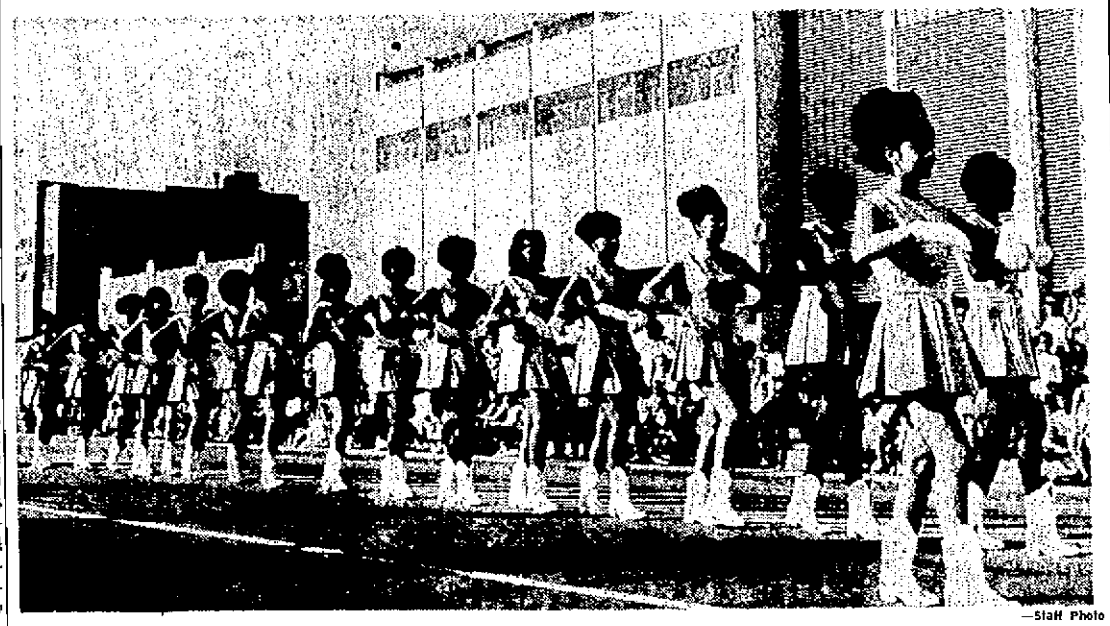

GLASS crashed in store windows. Fire sirens wailed in the night. Terrified, most residents locked themselves in their homes. Some had fled. Many businesses had been abandoned. Evidences of panic and the fury of mob hysteria were everywhere.

If the Negro community in Compton joined the revolt, Acting Police Chief Arthur Thomas knew, the city was doomed.

He told his feelings to other officials who agreed and asked hopelessly, "What can 96 policemen do against 40,000 persons?"

The answer was obvious.

Santa Kept Rendezvous With Kids, His Chutist Aide One With Death

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UPI)—A crowd of 5,000 persons, mostly children, expectantly watched an airplance circle over the Northtowne Shopping Center Saturday.

The plane was carrying Santa Claus and his helper from the North Pole. Santa was to land with a bagful of toys in an open circle in the parking lot.

Whoops, screams and waves went up from the excited youngsters as the plane's door opened and Santa's helper appeared. He waved to the throng below and jumped from the plane.

As planned, Santa's helper released a smoke bomb tied to his body. All the kids could see was a small white cloud heading earthward.

A louder roar went up when Santa stepped to the plane's door and jumped. Santa was clearly visible as his parachute opened and he floated down to land amid the crowd. He waved and went into his Christmas shack.

At about the same time, the crushed body of Connie O'Rourke, 40, who played the role of Santa's helper, was found in the backyard of Dr. C. V. McIntosh, three blocks west and one block south of the shopping center.

Authorities said O'Rourke's chute failed to open when the rip cord became entangled in the smoke bomb rigging. He fell 1,000 feet while struggling to free the jam, they said.

Bill Fleming, 29, who was the parachuting "Santa Claus", could not believe it happened.

"Connie was a professional's professional. He had almost 1,000 jumps to his credit, he was experienced and safe. He's done this type of Santa Claus thing many times," Fleming said.

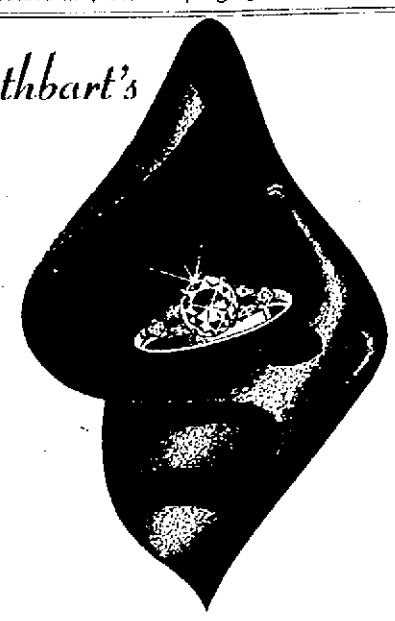

The crowd at the shopping center was unaware of the tragedy.

Home Burgled

A prowler forced open a sliding glass door Saturday to invade the home of Douglas D. McFarlin, at 5659 Corso di Napoli. Police said the thief took a pair of binoculars, a radio, camera, pellet gun and clothing valued at $535.

A 60-year-old Long Beach woman was killed Saturday night in a two-car pileup at 14th Street and Pacific Avenue at 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Mildred A. Rehn of 1723 E. Wardlow Road was dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital.

She was the second person to die in a Long Beach traffic accident Saturday and the 53rd to die thus far in 1965.

* * * *

TWO SEAMEN from the USS Princeton were treated at the same hospital for minor injuries resulting from the collision.

Patrolman Larry Ondrick said the driver of the other car, Michael D. Bland, 19, was jailed on suspicion of manslaughter after he admitted failing to halt for a stop sign and driving at an excessive speed. He said he speeded up in an attempt to avoid striking Mrs. Rehn's auto.

Donald L. Crammer, 19, who was riding with Bland, was released to Navy authorities, Ondrick said.

Police said Mrs. Rehn, alone in her car, was northbound on Pacific when Bland's eastbound car slammed into her vehicle.

* * * *

EARLIER SATURDAY, a Harbor City man was killed when his auto hit a bus on Terminal Island and a Downey woman was critically injured when her car was hit by a train in Downey.

A headon collision late Friday night in Downey killed one man and injured two others.

Manuel B. Betancourt, 42, of 1223 255th St., Harbor City, was thrown from his car and killed when his auto slammed into a Terminal Island Transit Co. bus at 3:30 a.m.

* * * *

DOWNEY POLICE said an auto being driven by Helen Joan Shipley, 43, of 9308 Dalewood Avenue, stalled on the Southern Pacific tracks at Downey Avenue and was hit by a diesel switch-engine.

The victim underwent surgery at Downey Community Hospital following the 9:30 a.m. accident and was reported in critical condition late Saturday night.

The head-on collision occurred on Telegraph Road east of the Rio Hondo in Downey and Wilfred Aubit, 31, of Huntington Park, was pronounced dead on arrival at Downey Community Hospital shortly after 11 p.m. Friday. Police said Aubit's car swerved across the center line and crashed into a car driven by William Merle Evans, 41, of Pico Rivera. Evans suffered minor injuries, as did Edward Lawrence Cassidy, 26, of 8286 Telegraph Road, Downey, driver of a third car which was involved in the accident moments later.

Slain Oil Tycoon's Ex Weds

Mrs. Sara Bartholomae, of Newport Beach, former wife of the late multimillionaire oilman William A. Bartholomae, was married Saturday in Avalon Harbor to Ernie L. Launder, a Whittier businessman.

The new Mrs. Launder, 47, received a $5.5-million divorce settlement in 1962 from the oil tycoon. Bartholomae, 70, was stabbed to death by his sister-in-law Jan. 5, 1964, at his palatial Newport Beach Home.

The wedding took place at noon aboard the late oilman's 97-foot yacht, Sea Diamond. A Thanksgiving Day ceremony had been planned. No reason was given for the postponement.

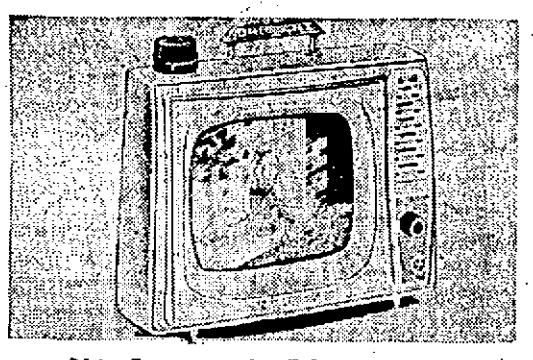

It was the bride's third marriage, Launder's second.

Haste Urged in Tidelands Development

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — World crude oil production from offshore installations now exceeds four million barrels a day.

This is equivalent to about 16% of total world production outside Communist bloc nations.

"The future undoubtedly will see this percentage substantially increased," Dr. Charles F. Jones, president of the Humble Oil & Refining Co., said this week.

He said about one-sixth of the world's proven oil reserves lie offshore.

Jones made his status report on offshore oil production trends at a New York City industrial seminar.

He suggested that oil and other industries intensify planning and research aimed at developing mineral resources lying beyond the continental shelf. Delay, he said, could mean possible loss of such resources to faster moving foreign countries and to foreign industry.

* * * *

THE RECENTLY ratified treaty of the international convention on the continental shelf grants the right to develop resources beyond the shelf "to those nations who first develop the technology to exploit them."

"We may be facing an international underwater treasure hunt with the winner's share going to the country with the best sea science," said Jones, holder of a doctor of philosophy degree in chemistry.

"Considering the social and economic potential of the ocean, this country's industry cannot afford to remain becalmed by indifference.

Humble, the domestic operator for the Standard Oil Co., completed its first offshore oil discovery in 1948 off the Louisiana coast. Since then Humble has pushed its explorations to a record water depth of 632 feet.

JONES SAID explorations at this and greater depths will require devevelopment of new concepts that will challenge the imagination and creativity of businessmen.

"We are already drilling in deeper water than human beings can really effectively operate," he said. "The recent Sealab experiment will help tell us some of the things we must know, but there is much more to be learned."

Jones said ocean explorations offer many potential benefits in addition to possible discovery of oil and gas.

Humble's offshore explorations for oil led to the 1958 discovery of major sulphur deposits under 45 feet of water six miles from the Louisiana coast. The sulphur was found in the caprock of a salt dome 1,700 feet below the floor of the Gulf of Mexico. Much oil has been produced from such geological formations along the Louisiana and Texas coast, both onshore and offshore.

* * * *

JONES SAID industries should become more interested in the potential wealth that lies within ocean waters and below ocean floors with an objective of exploring "anywhere in any ocean in the world."

Such potentials, he said, include phosphorite and manganese.

A California scientist has estimated there is 1½ billion tons of phosphorite, a key component in fertilizers, from 200 to 1,000 feet off the Pacific coast.

"As an example of the potential value of metals on the sea floor, there are some concentrations of manganese modules on the bottom that may be worth up to $10 million a square mile," Jones said.

"At present, the United States imports almost all of the manganese used in steel."

Prison Ban on Beards Upheld

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that federal prisoners can legally be required to shave off beards.

The court said clean shaves provide for smarter appearance, better sanitation and frustrate any attempt to use a beard in an escape plot.

Meet to Discuss Use of A-Energy for Oil

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Use of nuclear energy in petroleum exploration and a report from a member of President Johnson's new public land law review commission will be top agenda items when oil and gas conservationists meet here Monday.

Members of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, a weighty, but powerless body which includes state regulatory officials and leaders of the petroleum industry, started registrations today for their annual meeting, which will last through Wednesday.

Attendants from 33 states is expected to exceed 700, including the governors of at least five states.

H. Byron Mock of Salt Lake City, Utah, vice chairman of the New Review Commission, will address the public lands committee of the Interstate group on Monday.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Johnson appointed Mock two months ago. The review commission will look into all laws affecting public lands. There has been some indication Mock and other commission members may broaden their studies to delve into oil imports and examine the industry's 27.5% depletion tax allowance.

Mock's appearance will be one of the first chances oil industry leaders have had to hear a member of the review commission. The body's actions will be of great interest to the industry.

Three representatives of the U.S. Bureau of Mines will appear at another Monday committee session to talk about "Project Gasbuggy," which will experiment with the use of nuclear explosions for the first time in search for gas or oil deposits.

The Atomic Energy Commission and El Paso Natural Gas Co. tentatively plan to carry out the Gasbuggy experiment next fall near Farmington, N.M.

De Gaulle Has Women Vote in Test Today

PARIS (UPI)—If President Charles de Gaulle wins re-election today he will have to take a bow and say "merci, mesdames."

Once again, the 75-year-old French leader will have carried the day thanks largely to the solid support of woman voters. A majority of French women have voted for De Gaulle since World War II.

Women outnumber men substantially in France. The interior ministry says that of the 28 million registered voters Sunday 15.5 will be women and 12.5 men.

The traditional feminine backing for De Gaulle has prompted his political opponents to turn all their charm on the women voters with promises of a better life for them if they help them get elected.

But De Gaulle seems to have a good start on his rivals, even the handsome leftist Francois Mitterand, 49, and Catholic moderate Jean Lecanuet, 45.

* * * *

MILLIONS OF women remember it was De Gaulle who first gave French women the right to vote in 1945 while the din of battle still echoed across Europe.

Until then, women had no equal political rights in a country which produced the 1791 Declaration of the Rights of Man. Pre-war governments, including the Communist-backed Popular Front cabinet of 1936, paid scant attention to women's demands for political and social equality, though in most other European democracies women were given the right to vote right after World War I.

Men were scarce and pampered in France after World War I in which 1.5 million Frenchmen were killed and 4.5 million mained. Men took precedence everywhere and an inferior political and social condition for women was an accepted fact of life in France.

The net result of De Gaulle's decision to let women vote and be elected has been steady support for him among female voters. Only the small Catholic Popular Republican (MRP) Party can claim the same large proportion of woman voters in its ranks as the Gaullist Union for the New Republic (UNR)—52%.

The proportion of woman voters is much lower among leftist parties.

* * * *

GAULLIST officials claim De Gaulle made a big hit with the women again this fall when he pushed through parliament legislation scrapping most of the humiliating subordination of French women to their husbands.

The law, which goes into effect Feb. 1, 1966, will for the first time permit French wives to do things their American, British or German counterparts have long been allowed to do. They will be free to open their own bank accounts, open shops without the prior consent of their husbands or seek prompt legal protection against a husband's wasteful spending of joint property.

De Gaulle's main political adversary, leftist Mitterand, seems to have gained points with French women when he entered the presidential campaign proposing to do away with legislation banning the sale of contraceptives in France. The government realized the danger and ordered the health mnistry to produce an early report on the subject which so far has been taboo in France.

Peace Corps Entry Test Slated Monday

Peace Corps placement tests will be given Monday at 3 p.m. in room 2 of the Long Beach Post Office, Third Street and Long Beach Boulevard.

The test measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language, not education or achievement. The placement test takes about an hour and a half. An optional achievement test for applicants who have studied French or Spanish requires another hour.

SEEMINGLY IMPOSSIBLE SUCCESSES RECALLED

French President's Re-election Seen Almost Certain

By LARRY ALLISON
I. P-T Staff Writer

(While a resident correspondent in West Germany, Mr. Allison had numerous opportunities to observe the French political process.)

Charles de Gaulle, although his re-election today is almost a certainty, has been trimmed down to size somewhat in the past week. His countrymen, long deprived of any real variety in their political diet, responded immediately when their president's five weak opponents got their first chance at free time on French TV. The public opinion polls showed a sharp dfop in De Gaulle's popularity with the voters, from 66% to 51%.

More than ever, the old general seemed to have become a political figure of heroic stature—bigger than life, but less than colossal.

BUT IS THIS an accurate appraisal? If nothing else, the world ought to have learned by now to judge De Gaulle not from the happenings of the moment, but from a longer-range point of view. History may prove not only that De Gaulle was right in his major proposals, but also that everything he fought for—and against—was best for France, for Europe, and possibly for the world.

At the moment, history seems to be leaving the 75-year-old French president behind. He seems almost an anachronism—an obstructionist doomed to replacement by younger and more progressive leaders; battling pointlessly against the eager growth of the Common Market; opposing a NATO alliance that is supported strongly by all 15 members except France, and striving fruitlessly to hold back West Germany and Great Britain in their roles in Europe's destiny.

All his campaigns seem to be losing ones. De Gaulle easily can be made to appear a Quixotic character, incredibly detached from reality.

* * * *

BUT IT MUST be remembered that this was his first public image when he appointed himself leader of the Free French in World War II—and yet he emerged eventually triumphant, the very symbol of a liberated France. Again in 1962, his clash with some of his country's top generals on the Algerian crisis seemed at first suicidal for both him and France—yet both emerged unscathed, relieved of a crippling war that was leading nowhere.

Aside from his current image, is he in fact losing his various campaigns? The truth is, he may get exactly what he wants—a lessening of U.S. influence in Europe, a Common Market in which France is indisputably the leader; a NATO structure reformed to fit modern conditions rather than those of the era for which it was designed; and reduced influence for Germany and Britain.

* * * *

DE GAULLE has dragged his heels in the Common Market simply because he does not want France to be lost in any headlong rush toward formation of a United States of Europe. His motives were selfish, to be sure. But what other country should play the dominant role in such a transformation? Germany, although industrially more powerful than France, is hopelessly at a disadvantage so long as it remains divided—half of its territory in the hands of potential blackmailers behind the Iron Curtain. Great Britain, on the other hand, suffers from endless economic difficulties, its Labor government is operating from a position of numerical weakness, and its tradition in affairs of the Continent is too much one of separation—not involvement.

Now, with all the Common Market countries helplessly looking toward Paris for word when they can resume progress, De Gaulle is beginning to hint that he may relent and permit Britain to approach the market's bargaining table. This is merely the first clue that his opposition is not necessarily permanent.

As for NATO, De Gaulle is at least partly right in demanding changes. His challenge admittedly has sent a scare through Washington and other Western capitals. But at the same time, it has renewed other members' determination to salvage the alliance, and this is bound to have some constructive results. And though De Gaulle is slow to admit it publicly, he, too, knows the value of NATO's protection should grievous danger ever arise.

PERHAPS he is right, also, in opposing nuclear responsibility in the hands of West Germany. His unequivocal stand is embarrassing to Washington and is an agonizing turn of events for Bonn. But everyone, Bonn included, knows that the timing is not right for divided Germany to gain any real access to nuclear arms. Even a compromise along these lines makes for sticky going in efforts to shape a nuclear non-proliferation agreement.

Finally, De Gaulle has been ridiculed for what seems to be an attempt to keep Western Europe a collection of small and ineffectual states—to prevent formation of a political federation that could become a great world power. But are his tactics purely negative?

* * * *

IT SEEMS far more likely that De Gaulle, who never has lacked in foresight, actually visualizes some sort of European federation. For him, it probably is a simple matter of waiting for the right circumstances. France for seven years has weathered De Gaulle's first project—the strengthening of its governmental structure; it now has its own nuclear force, however small and impractical that force may be; it is trying on its own to reach a detente with the Soviet Union; West Germany and Britain have had to alter their ambitions at the whim of the French leader; the United States is being forced to reduce its European military presence, at least in France.

Now, with these feats either accomplished or in the works, why shouldn't De Gaulle permit a gradual movement toward a European federation, maintaining at least some semblance of national identities?

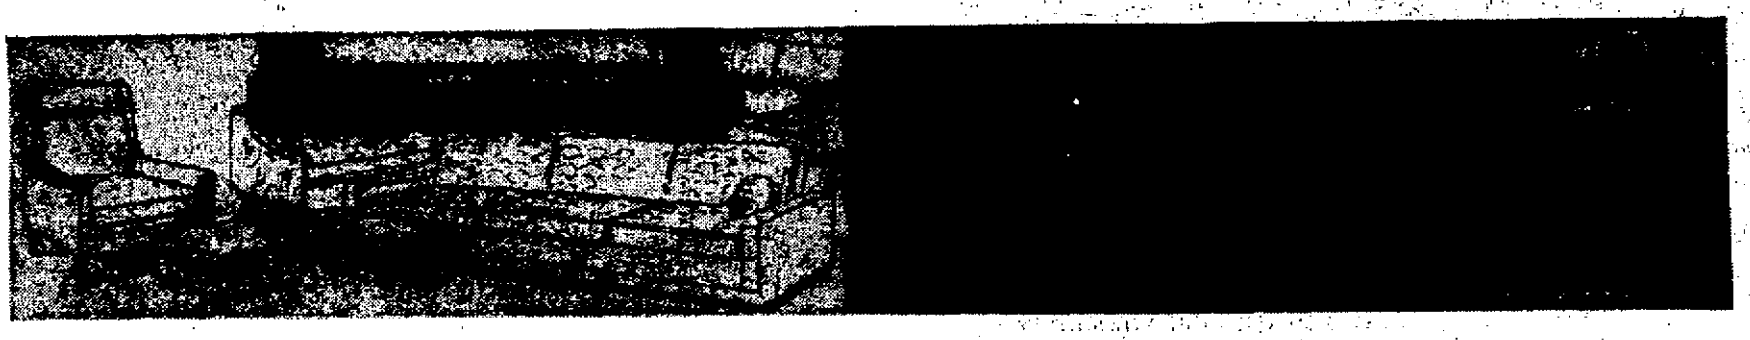

In this light, De Gaulle seems less puzzling, and the views of his political opponents are less dramatically in conflict with his. All of De Gaulle's past negativism and obstructionism suddenly takes on a positive hue, because, after all, if Europe ever does unite and realize its tremendous potential, the logical capital for such a federation—politically, militarily, economically and even geographically — might be none other than Paris.

TRIPLE FIRST

Three generations of the same family, by no coincidence, joined at Long Beach last week to participate in a special occasion—the first ride in a jetliner by James S. Douglas Jr., four-year-old grandson of Donald W. Douglas. The boy's father, right, is president of Dowalco, a Santa Monica manufacturing concern. The three Douglases were passengers on a twin-jet DC9 during a demonstration and test flight from the Douglas plant here.

HOMEMADE

Radar Identifies Thrush 3 Mi. Away

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Glen Schaefer uses radar to identify a thrush at three miles.

Dr. Schaefer, a theoretical physicist born in Kitchener, Ont., built his personal radar at a cost of $560, utilizing army surplus equipment. It is on a farm, sunk partly below ground level to eliminate echoes from nearby trees and buildings.

"The blip which appears on my radar screen is of little use for identification purposes," he says. "But electrical impulses collected by the radar set from a bird in flight can be put through other electronic apparatus to show a very much magnified image.

"BY COMPARING this image with slow motion film taken of birds in normal flight, the species can be identified by its wing-beat pattern and other factors.

"I have no difficulty following a duck at five miles, and I can identify individual members of the thrush family quite easily. All the radar experts said it was not possible to get the wing-beat pattern by radar, but I have proved them wrong."

The aviation ministry is inquiring to see if this system might help with the problem of flocks that are a threat to jet aircraft at airfields. Defense researchers see a possible application in identifying missiles or satellites.

Restrict Imports

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The government has widened restrictions on imports of goods originating in Kenya, Uganda and elsewhere in an effort to correct unfavorable trade balance. The banned goods include cheese, ice cream, coffee, toilet soap, readymade garments and gin.

Indian Tribesmen Kidnap 255

NEW DELHI (AP) — Naga tribesmen fighting the Indian Army in northeast India in a campaign for an independent Nagaland kidnaped 255 persons in September-October, Foreign Minister Swaran Singh told parliament. The Nagas were once noted as headhunters.

Longest Suspension Span in Europe Nearly Ready

LISBON, Portugal, (AP) — Europe's longest suspension bridge is taking on a finished look. The 150-foot center section was put into place this week, leaving about 300 feet of side spans to be filled before the 3,323-foot bridge is complete.

It will cross the mouth of the Tagus River, linking Portugal's industrial north and agricultural south. Four traffic lanes will handle 6,000 vehicles an hour. A dozen ferries will be retired. Later the government plans to add a double-track railway to end a 180-mile detour around the estuary.

Total cost is $75 million. A contract with U.S. Steel was signed in 1962, incorporating a $55 million loan from the Export-Import Bank to be amortized in 20 years.

It's expected the bridge will be operating for Prime Minister Antonio Salazar's 77th birthday in April. It may be named for him.

Wilson Alumni Choir in Naples Event

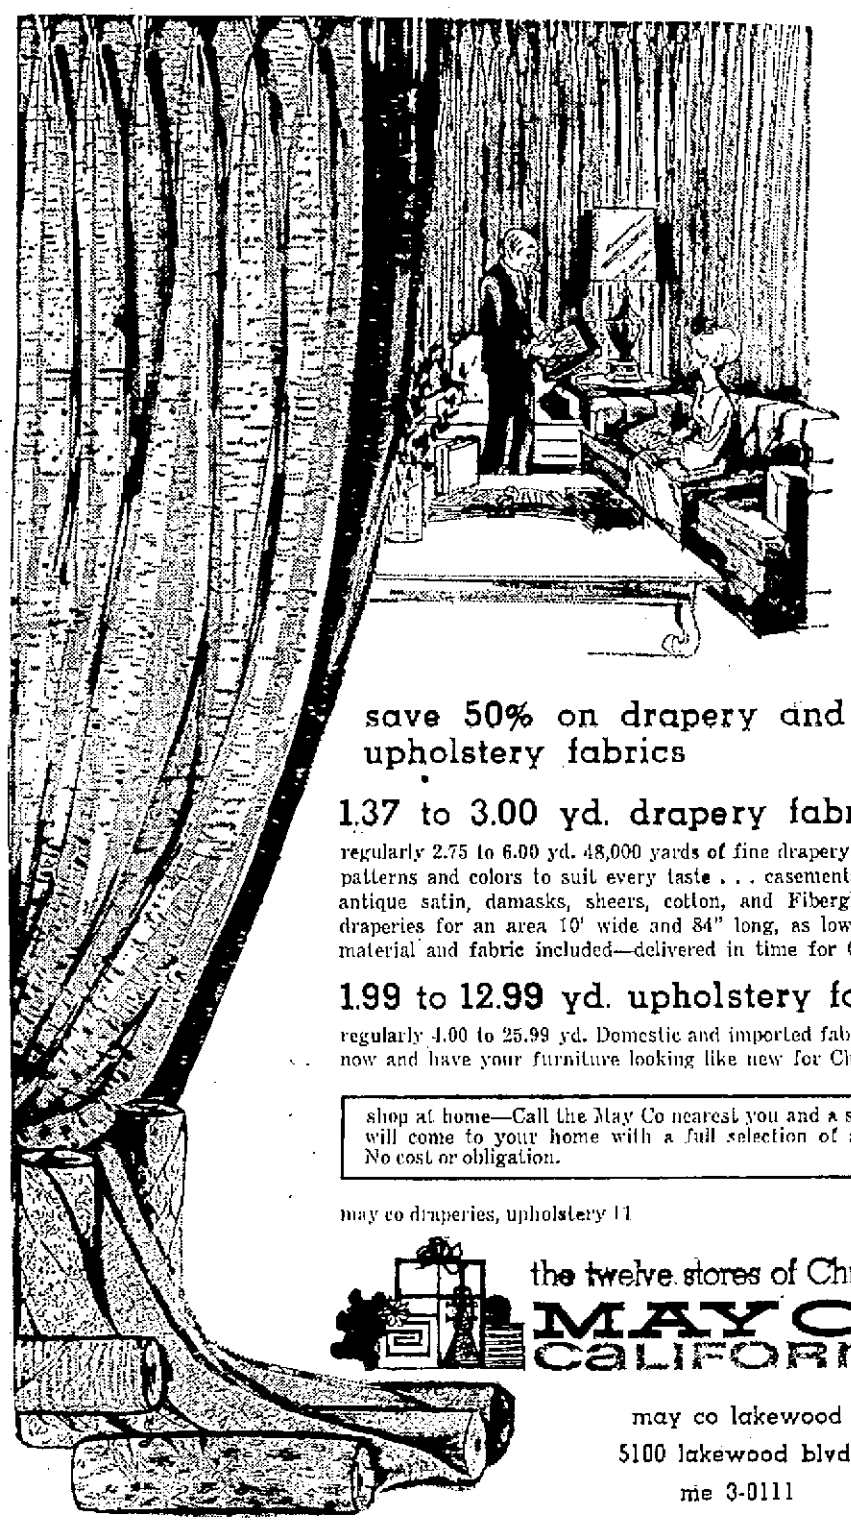

Marking its 20th year as a participant in the Naples Caroling Parade, Wilson High Alumni Choir, made up of over 60 voices will join the festive "Christmas Afloat" on Dec. 18 and 19.

The choir was one of the first to appear in the traditional Naples Christmas Pageant when it was started 20 years ago. Phillip Ellithorpe and Robert Pachen direct the group.

This year floats for choirs are being especially designed by Mark McClure and his committee.

Other caroling groups appearing include: Dominguez High School Choir, Rancho Alamitos High School Choir, Wassail Singers, Savanna High, Sunset Singers, Artesia High Choir and Belmont Choraleers.

PROJECT CAMELOT STORY REVEALED

How Secret Pentagon Program Was Shot Down

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — It started as an idea in an obscure Pentagon office.

The idea: To study some five foreign countries to see if any patterns could be found that would help in predicting insurrection against incumbent governments and subsequent communist takeovers. Conversely, to see if there was any thing that might be done to foster constructive change in such countries to give them more order and stability.

It soon had a name: Project Camelot.

It soon had a name: Project Camelot.

But before it even got past the planning stage, Project Camelot was shot down in flames.

Why? It came to light in Cile. An allegedly communist newspaper, El Siglo (The Century), played it big and in a light calculated to embarass Uncle Sam.

It was an Army project, but the U.S. ambassador to Chile did not know about it. He complained to the State Departments.

The Chileans didn't like the idea, either, and the result was cancellation of Project Camelot.

* * * *

THE WHOLE story—or as much as can be told now—is spread out in hitherto secret testimony published by a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee headed by Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla.

Fascell's group last July and August questioned Lt. Gen. William W. Dick Jr., director of the Army Research and Development Department, officials of the private university group they contracted with to perform the study, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The committee also made some recommendations, including "a focal point for the clearance of all foreign policy-related research in the behavioral sciences."

* * * *

THE COMMITTEE complained of interdepartmental rivalry and Fascell said during the hearings:

"I am more than distressed, of course, that (the U.S. ambassador to Chile's) wires and comments were leaked to U.S. Press . . . it seems clear that a steady stream of leaked material from State Department sources) was directed at cancellation of "Project Camelot."

Rusk commented, "The indication that there was a leak is fairly strong."

Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., told Rusk "I am amazed to find that there was this great lack of coordination here in our own country with regard to this project."

Rusk said, "To be very frank, sir, I think this was a horse that got out before we realized that somebody ought to be thinking about the barn door. I needn't kid the committee . . .

"I would say this could have been handled better . . . I was not sufficiently aware of it . . ."

* * * *

BUT DICK testified that his State Department counterparts were repeatedly briefed on the development of Project Camelot.

The planning was contracted out to the Special Operations Research Office (SORO) of the American University in Washington.

Dr. Theodore Vallance, who was in charge of it for SORO, said that before it ever got around to selecting actual countries to be studied, a colleague who was going to Chile anyway offered to make some inquiries in the academic community there about how it would be received.

Vallance said while there, he encountered, according to his later report, generally favorable attitudes toward the idea of this kind of research.

"He also, perhaps inevitably, managed to get his thoughts into the ears of some people who were skeptical and this led to a chain of communications which apparently got into the hands of people who were involved in the communist movement in Chile. This led to its appearing in the local newspapers. This then kicked up all the fuss."

Several committee members said in spite of the blowup, they favor the idea of Project Camelot.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., said "I think the kind of research that has been projected, even the Camelot research, is very useful. . . . (even though) it may have gotten off on the wrong foot."

* * * *

JUST WHAT kind of information was the army after? Dick said:

"We are trying to train our people how to do their job amongst these people if and when we are assigned a mission."

When it comes down to the brass tacks of actually helping to fight insurgency in a critical situation, he said, "we cannot know too much about the social pattern and stresses within the foreign country . . .

"I cannot deny that there was an embarrassing incident in Chile due to the ambassador's not having been informed of certain things under way there. I would point out, however, that this is a deficiency in performance, not in planning . . ."

At any rate, Dick summed up, "Camelot as it was conceived up to the moment of cancellation is totally dead."

Fascell commented, "I think the Project Camelot is dead. I don't think the purpose, the scope and the ambitions for the research are dead."

Dick: "They are not, definitely not."

Voters Free to Sign at Libraries

By DON BRACKENBURY
I.-P.-T. Los Angeles Bureau

The second "voter registration night" will be held Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. at public libraries throughout Los Angeles County, including 18 in the Long Beach area.

Deputy registrars of voters, in most cases volunteers from the League of Women Voters, will staff the one-night registration centers.

A similar registration night was observed Nov. 1, and another is scheduled for early January.

Deadline for registering to vote in the June 7 primary election is not until April 14, but County Registrar of Voters Benjamin S. Hite urged all persons who are not registered to take advantage of the library registration centers.

* * * *

COUNTY librarian William S. Geller said registration in no way will interfere with regular library service. County libraries and numerous city libraries, including Long Beach, are participating.

The local-area libraries where voters may register Monday night are as follows:

Long Beach — Alamitos Branch, 1836 E. Third St.; Bay Shore Branch, 195 Bay Shore Ave.; Brewitt Branch, 4063 E. Anaheim St.; Burnett Branch, 560 E. Hill St.; Bret Harte Branch, 1595 W. Willow St.; Dana Branch, 3680 Atlantic Ave.; Los Altos Branch, 5614 Britton Drive; North Long Beach Branch, 5571 Orange Ave., and Ruth Bach Branch, 4055 Bellflower Blvd.

Lakewood—Iacoboni County Library, 5100 Clark Ave.

La Mirada — La Mirada County Library, 15030 Luitweiler Ave.

Lomita—Lomita County Library, 24648 Narbonne Ave.

Carson—Carson County Library, 22102 S. Main St.

Torrance — Torrance Main Library, 1345 Post Ave.; North Torrance County Library, 3604 W. Artesia Blvd.; Isabel Henderson County Library, 4805 Emerald St.; El Retiro County Library, 126 Vista del Parque, and Walter County Library, 3815 W. 242nd St.

* * * *

AFTER JAN. 1, Los Angeles County fire stations in the unincorporated area and in contract cities will be open on a daily basis for voter registration.

Hite said county firemen currently are undergoing training as deputy registrars. They will staff the fire station registration centers during their standby time.

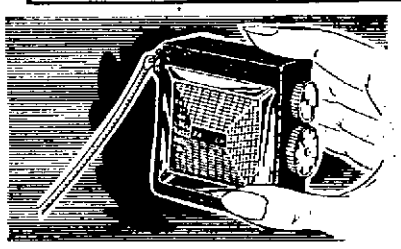

Dredge for Red China

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP)—A suction hopper dredge for Red China — called the "Golden Seahorse" — was launched this week at a shipyard in Schiedam, near Rotterdam, which has been building ships for China since 1902. It follows a freighter launched there earlier this year, and the Chinese charge d' affaires said the launchings showed Dutch-Chinese relations were still improving.

ROUND TAKEOFF

Circular Runway Tested

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's 1970, you're sitting in a jetliner, and it starts rolling around the runway.

That's right — AROUND the runway, in a 360-degree circle until it reaches takeoff speed and lifts off.

Impossible? Don't bet on it. The Navy has completed successful takeoff and landing tests on a revolutionary circular runway. The experiments showed enough promise to excite aviation circles on its possible adaption to civilian air travel.

* * * *

THE CIRCULAR runway is just what the name implies. Think of a wheel with spokes. The outer rim is the runway. The spokes are taxiways. The hub is the airport control tower.

There is no such airport anywhere in the world, but pilots of the Naval Weapons Evaluation Facility used a General Motors automobile proving track near Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., for the test. The pilots actually landed and took off using a piston-engine Douglas Skyraider, a Douglas Skyhawk jet and a C54—military version of the four-engine DC4 commercial transport.

The circular runway would have to be banked —as is the GM track—to overcome centrifugal force. Obviously, pilots would have to learn new techniques, particularly in landing, because they'd literally be lining up with the runway with one wing low.

* * * *

BUT THE advantages of the circular runway are numerous, such as:

—Theoretically there would never be an overshoot or undershoot because a circle is endless.

—The circular concept requires a much smaller overall area than the conventional airport (about one-third less for a major terminal facility).

—Traffic control would be simplified and more efficient with the control tower parked in the center of the circle.

—The terminal building itself also would be in the center, lending itself to shorter walking and baggage-delivery distances.

—The circular runway allows unlimited flexibility in planning approach and landing corridors.

—At larger circular airports, as many as five or six takeoff or landing operations could be conducted simultaneously provided there was no wind factor, and the design in general appears to be wed to high density traffic.

* * * *

THE CIRCULAR runway was patent by a late Navy pilot, Lt. Cmdr. James R. Conrey, who devised the concept in 1960 after encountering difficulties in landing at Lincoln, Neb., in a severe cross-wind. He figured the circular runway would allow him to land into the wind regardless of its direction.

Conrey won Navy approval to test his brainchild but before the tests could be run he was killed in a crash at sea in 1963. The Navy took over his idea and conducted the experiments last May. The results were disclosed by the Commerce Department information clearing house last week.

Champagne a 'People's Drink?'

BONN (AP)—German sparkling wine isn't a luxury any more, the industry contends, but a people's drink. The argument is being pressed by chairman Diether Hummel of the Union of German Champagne Cellars in opposition to a West Government plan to increase the tax from 1 to 1½ marks (25 to 37½ cents) per bottle.

Quake in Asia

MOSCOW (AP) — A mild earthquake struck Soviet Tadzhikistan in central Asia Saturday, Tass reported from Dushanbe. The official Soviet news agency said the quake was the 12th in the Tadzhik Republic thi syear.

NEXT YEAR IN WEST GERMANY

One Day of Rest for Every Two on job

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—West German workers will have one day off for every two days on the job next year, even as the government calls on them to work longer.

Hard work, once a proverbial characteristic of this nation, has ceased to be a principal aspect of the affluent German "economic wonderland."

Chancellor Ludwig Erhard has expressed deep concern about the long-range effects of this change in attitude, especially for the future of a country chronically ailing from a labor shortage.

He fears that more leisure will spell the end of the boom that has become a sort of national institution. "There is no other way out," he told parliament. "Either we trim our demands or we must work harder."

* * * *

HE SUGGESTED THAT the present 40-hour work week be extended by at least one hour. His urgings were displayed by all newspapers. Almost at the same time, the press carried compilations that Germans will average 128 days off in 1966, including national and religious holidays, weekends and a paid vacation averaging 19 work days.

Erhard himself reported a positive response from the public to his proposal. But trade union and press reaction ranged from skepticism to outright condemnation.

The Metal Workers' Union, with 2 million members, said the appeal was an "unheard of provocation of all working people." It charged that Erhard was trying to incite public opinion against labor.

* * * *

AN EDITORIAL in the usually pro-government Die Welt reflected a typical line of newspaper comment:

"Erhard is harvesting what his government has planted, a mentality based on the motto 'Everybody caring for himself and the state caring for all.'

"If consumption is proclaimed as the ultimate goal, then one must not be surprised when a consumers' society emerges which is exclusively dedicated to enjoying life."

A private German polling institute found that 62% of all Germans were willing to work longer hours if this would insure a continued boom. But there was a hitch.

* * * *

LABOR representatives pointed out that wage agreements permit extension of the work week by up to eight hours—provided the extra hours draw overtime pay which is 50% higher.

Thus, most German employers rely on more automation and on continued recruitment of foreign labor rather than greater readiness by their countrymen to work harder.

"The saying once made the round in Europe that there would be fewer wars if Germans would work less hard," quipped a Frankfurt contractor. "If that is right, we are likely to face a long period of peace."

A Frankfurt mail order house was mindful of the German love of leisure when it looked for women to help in the pre-Christmas sales rush.

Large ads promised a special lottery among all housewives and girls willing to work for a couple of months. The jackpots are 12 vacations in Spain, all expenses included.

Hospital Expansion to Open Variety of Jobs

The opening of Memorial West early next year will provide job opportunities in a variety of fields, according to Betty J. Greer, director of personnel at Memorial Hospital of Long Beach, 2801 Atlantic Ave.

Miss Greer said the hospital will be accepting applications during December and hiring will begin in January.

Positions to be filled include registered nurses, licensed vocational nurses, experienced nurse aides, experienced orderlies, maids, janitors, food service workers, clerks for the department of nursing and other specialized skills such as medical transcriber, plumber, etc.

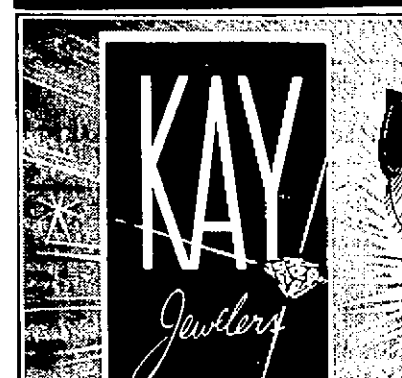

Memorial West will provide a new concept of hospitalization for Southern Californians, one that will reduce the cost of hospital care.

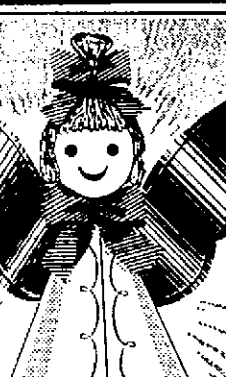

The Memorial West project actually consists of two parts. First of these is an attached, expanded 30,000-square-foot rehabilitation medicine facility. The second part of the $2,500,000 expansion will be Memorial West itself, an 86-bed advanced care unit designed to speed the recovery of patients not acutely ill so that they may return to their normal daily activities with a shorter period of hospitalization and at less cost.

THEY GET A BIG KICK OUT OF IT

Yank Airmen With Yen for Old Rolls-Royces Rate 'Lordship' Attention by British Citizens

By THOMAS A. REEDY

ALCONBURY, England (AP) — They call them "their lordships."

They're about as well known as anyone in these parts of England where anything different is appreciated so long as it's orderly.

Their lordships — two American airmen — accept the attention modestly but down deep get a big kick out of it all.

"You've got no idea how you feel when a pedestrian steps back out of your path, or a policeman waves you on, or a car pulling out from a side road sees you and stops respectfully," says Staff Sgt. Kenneth K. Godden.

"He's right," echoes Airman Duard Estep. "You feel like you're floatin' on air."

Their lordships are airmen at the big Alconbury base which houses the U.S. Air Force's 10th Tactical Wing. What makes them different is how they get around when on the ground.

Each owns a somewhat antiquated Rolls-Royce.

THEY DRIVE their fabulous-looking old giants around the countryside, down into Huntingdon, and a bit further south to the university town of Cambridge. The glistening monsters can be seen often parked at roadside pubs. Inside their lordships probably are hoisting a pint of English beer and taking the locals on at darts.

Godden, 32, is a camera repair expert in the tactical wing and has been in the U.S. Air Force for 10 years. Born in Eastbourne, Sussex, he followed his parents to San Francisco, met a girl there, married her, and became Americanized in most ways. Except his taste for motor cars.

Transferred to England, Sgt. Godden looked around the Alconbury area, pondered how to house his wife Evelyn and their three children and how to transport them around. He went out first and bought a 1927 Rolls-Royce Phantom Shooting Brake, which Americans would call a station wagon. It's bigger than a truck and can hold a family much larger than the Goddens contemplate.

"Then I advertised for a garage with a house around it," Godden said, with a big grin. "I found a farm where they had a barn big enough for the car and we were settled in."

The sergeant paid 170 pounds ($475) for his 38-year-old Rolls.

ESTEP was learning to be a mortician when he was drafted. The Rolls probably will see service in funeral processions and has the low key quietude to fit.

This is Estep's second Rolls. He swapped the first one in for the racier-looking Sedanca model and altogether has 400 pounds invested.

FAMED FOR THEIR ROLLS

Lawyer Gives Congress Blame for Growth of Executive Power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Washington lawyer-writer suggested Saturday that Congress is to blame for the growth of executive branch power and influence.

"A major reason why the executive has been able in recent years to gather power at the expense of Congress is the superior ability of its agencies to develop effective liaison with and 'service' the greater public," Edward De Grazia wrote in one of three studies made public today by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

De Grazia said that "largely as a result of this bureaucratic-public contact, the impression has been steadily gaining ground that congressmen can no longer satisfactorily represent the people's interest."

Therefore, he said, to "regain full status and function as the representative of the people's interests, the congressman will have to offer more efficient services to his constituents than he is able to do now."

College Tuition Fees by 1967 Seen for State, UC Systems

By ROBERT WILCOX

I-P-T Education Editor

One of the state's most powerful legislators in education declared Saturday that tuition should be charged for the first time in the state colleges and University of California system.

However, Charles B. Garrigus, D-Reedley, chairman of the Assembly Education Committee, said that some other arrangement should be made for students who couldn't afford to pay.

Garrigus' remarks led some political observers to forecast that tuition in the college systems is no farther away than 1967. They excepted 1966 because it is an election year.

The legislator's comments came at the end of a two-day hearing at Long Beach State College of an assembly education subcommittee of which he also is chairman.

GARRIGUS SAID that two main conclusions came out of the session.

"We must definitely and unavoidably have a re-evaluation as to how higher education can be adequately financed," he said.

"Secondly, a student who can afford $200 to $400 (per year) tuition should pay."

Then, the assemblyman added, some way should be found to take care of those qualified students who can not afford it.

Most lines taken at the hearing had either been drawn previously or were predictable.

AGAINST TUITION were both higher education systems—UC and the state colleges—the junior colleges, faculty groups, the influential California Teachers Association and the California Federation of Teachers union.

Their arguments ranged from the philosophical ("We cannot afford to waste these human resources") to state college Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke's flat statement that he felt the state would be able to afford the increasing cost of higher education.

Tuition is nothing more than a "tax" on students and parents, declared Dr. Willard Spalding, director of the State Coordinating Council of Higher Education, an advisory body to the governor and legislature which is fast-rising in influence.

SPALDING DID NOT directly oppose the tuition "tax," but said that it should be used only as a "last resource."

Leading the tuition advocates was Alan Post, state legislative analyst, who pointed out that California already is deeply in debt and estimated that the debt will increase by $90 million a year for the next four years.

At the same time, he said, higher education will more than triple in cost to $1.25 billion a year by 1980.

Post was seconded by some assemblymen, the State Chamber of Commerce and two statewide taxpayers organizations.

In testimony it was variously stated:

—The present no-tuition policy actually "subsidizes" the wealthier students, as, for instance, only 4% of the state college students come from families who earn less than $4,000 a year.

—However, the tuition would have to include the junior colleges or else they would be flooded with "free" students after the 4-year schools started to charge.

—Part of the tuition receipts could go into scholarships for low-income students—or a sliding tuition scale, ranging, perhaps, from nothing, could be set up.

—A complete lend-and-pay-back-later plan depending on future earnings, as proposed by subcommittee member John Collier, R-South Pasadena, could be established.

Saturday's testimony was highlighted by the California Teachers Association's opinion that if students are charged for their college education, then convicts should be required to pay back their state-supported stay in the penitentiary.

The smaller, rival California Federation of Teachers union not only opposed tuition but urged abolishment of the present "incidental" student fees of $220 per year at UC and $76 at the state colleges.

ROBBER CLOBBERED

Cleaver, Real Gun Foil Store Holdup

By ART VINSEL

This is the story of a man and the trouble he's seen just trying to rob a little neighborhood market in Los Angeles.

At least that, say Firestone sheriff's deputies, is what he was apparently trying to do about 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Deputies said James E. Morris, 34, of 2420 Lewis St., Long Beach, walked into the Miya Maket, a chrome-finish plastic cap pistol half-concealed under his coat and declared: "This is a holdup, mister!"

Market owner Mas Miyasaki, 54, 5-feet, 6-inches tall, glanced up at the 6-foot, 2-inch Morris. So did his tiny wife, Ann. So did customer William Reddick.

* * * *

MRS. MIYASAKI reached under the counter for a .32-caliber revolver and handed it to her husband.

Morris stared at the weapon. It was the real thing.

A running account of the ensuing moments is furnished by Deputy Richard Anderson.

"The suspect ran to the rear of the store, chased by Miyasaki and Reddick, where he picked up a meat cleaver.

"Reddick wrestled him to the floor and Miyasaki hit him over the head with the revolver, which went off.

"Morris, disarmed, leaped up and ran out of the store. Miyasaki caught up with him and knocked him to the sidewalk.

* * * *

"MORRIS, his head streaming blood, jumped up again. Miyasaki fired two shots into the air—then grabbed the suspect and they began wrestling.

"Miyasaki hit him with the gun again — twice. Then he held him, pending the arrival of officers."

The groaning suspect was then taken to Oak Park Hospital for a badly needed patching up — then transferred to the prison ward of Los Angeles General Hospital for treatment of multiple lacerations, a fractured jaw, a concussion and booking on suspicion of attempted armed robbery.

As for Miyasaki? It was back to business as usual at the Miya Market.

To Address Clergy

Dr. Edgar Palarea, cardiologist, will be guest speaker in the monthly "religion and health" series for ministers Thursday in Memorial Hospital from 8:30 a.m. to noon.

Tax Deadline Friday; Penalties After That

Property owners face a deadline this week at county and city tax collction offices.

First-installment bills will incur delinquency penalties unless paid or postmarked no later than Friday.

Long Beach adds 8% to the unpaid amount overdue. The county penalty is 6%.

Deadline for payment of second-installment bills is April 10, after which the city levies 3% more and the county repeats its 6% assessment.

Payments on city bills were running ahead of last year's rate by dollar volume but slightly lower in percentage comparison.

The latest count by Treasurer-Collector William M. Ramsell showed $1,592,415.74 collected against a total current levy of $12,261,326.26. On the corresponding date last year the collections were $1,581,364.39 from a levy of $10,618,636.59.

Drug Would Aid Planning of Births

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Discussion of a new medication aimed at making the rhythm system of birth-control more accurate brought conservative but hopeful reaction Saturday from theologians, physicians and priests at an international symposium sponsored by the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

The experimental drug called clomiphene citrate is not a contraceptive but causes ovulation in women to occur at the same time every month. Thus the rhythm method, which requires abstinence between man and wife during the 12-day ovulation period, can be more accurately followed. The Catholic Church does not oppose the rhythm method but forbids the use of contraceptives.

Representatives of the Catholic Church at the symposium agreed that if the chemical is found to be both safe and effective, there will be no moral question involved in its use.

* * * *

THE Rev. John J. O'Sullivan, S.T.D., said that as long as there is no suppression of ovulation, there doesn't seem to be any moral problem. Father O'Sullivan teaches at St. Paul Seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John C. Knott said there is no moral issue involved except that the pill be pronounced safe. Msgr. Knott is director of the Family Life Bureau, National Catholic Welfare Conference, a sponsor of the symposium. The other sponsor is the National Federation of Catholic Physicians' Guilds.

Clomiphene citrate has been approved for testing by the Federal Food and Drug Administration but is not available to the general public.

Dr. John Boutselis, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Ohio State University, has conducted research on the drug for several years.

* * * *

HE presented a paper on the findings to date. Dr. Boutselis said research shows the drug does not affect ovulation except to regulate it. It does not interrupt the normal functions, he said.

The old method of rhythm involves the use of either the calendar or the thermometer to determine when ovulation will occur. The use of the thermometer means a daily temperature reading. A sharp increase for most women indicates ovulation.

Pope in Historic Interfaith Rites

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Setting an example for similar services throughout the world, Pope Paul VI prayed Saturday night with non-Catholic Christians in the first interfaith service ever attended by a Catholic pontiff.

Pope Paul called the non-Catholic observers of the Vatican Ecumenical Council, seated near him, "brothers, brothers and friends in Christ." He declared the work of the Vatican Ecumenical Council, now about to close, had produced hope that the problem of Christianity unity "can be solved—if not today, tomorrow. Slowly, gradually, loyally, generously . . ."

He warned against haste in attempting to reunite all the churches of Christianity. He said the Roman Catholic Church was "neither insensitive nor haughty" and was ready and willing to ask forgiveness for "some errors."

* * * *

THE POPE praised the work of the council in bringing Catholics and other Christians closer together in understanding. He expressed sorrow that soon the council fathers and the non-Catholic observers would return homeward.

"Your departure produces around us a loneliness which we did not know before the council started and which now saddens us," he said. "We wish we could have you with us always."

The Pope joined with the council fathers and the observers in prayer after the council earlier in the day approved broader Roman Catholic contacts with all mankind.

AS THE council rushed toward its conclusion next Wednesday, the last controversies of the 3-year-old Assembly faded into the background and a spirit of harmony came to the fore.

Pope Paul and the 2,300 council bishops went to the Basilica of St. Paul Outside the Walls, the church where Pope John XXIII announced plans for the council in January 1959. There they joined in prayer with Protestant, Orthodox and Anglican observers to the council.

Spellman in Nuclear Argument

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York led a last-minute campaign Saturday to block the Ecumenical Council's condemnation of nuclear stockpiling.

With nine other archbishops, three of whom also are American, Cardinal Spellman circulated a letter saying such condemnation "will certainly hurt the cause of freedom in the world."

Lawrence Joseph Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore joined in circulating the letter, but later changed his mind and voted for the condemnation. He explained that he had joined the campaign hurriedly and had not had time to read the circular.

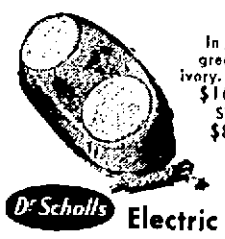

* * * *

"THE posession of nuclear arms has preserved freedom for a very large portion of the world," the letter said and urged the bishops to vote down the condemnation which some U.S. prelates felt was an attack on American nuclear policy.

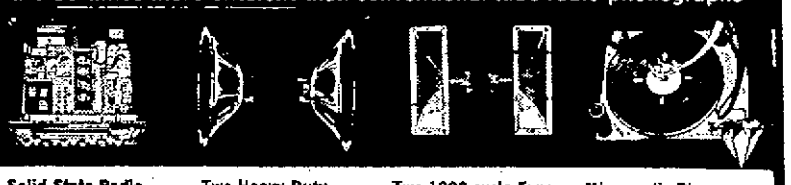

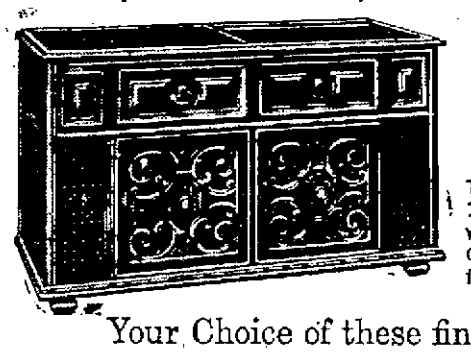

The letter was circulated Saturday shortly before the council voted on the statement. Results of the vote were not announced, but council sources doubted that the lobbying campaign was sufficient to defeat the measure which appeared to have the support of most prelates.

The statement does not mention the United States by name. It condemns in general terms the concept of nuclear threats to prevent wars.

ASTRO-SONIC*
solid-state STEREO
Revolutionary ASTRO-SONIC Solid-State Components are 10 times more efficient than conventional tube radio-phonographs

Solid-State Radio-Amplifier Chassis | Two Heavy-Duty 15' Bass Woofers | Two 1000 cycle Exponential Treble Horns | Micromatic Player—Diamond Stylus
Thrilling performance—from Stereo FM and Monaural FM/AM Radio, or records—you must hear to appreciate: 40-Watts undistorted music power; high-efficiency Magnavox woofers with 20 ounce magnet weight give pure bass tones—no distortion; Magnavox horns have equivalent acoustical efficiency of 20 treble cone speakers.

The Barcelona—model 1-RP656 in authentic, old-world Mediterranean styling. On concealed swivel casters for easy moving.
Your Choice of these fine furniture styles
ASTRO-SONIC . . . surpasses all other achievements in the re-creation of music!
And, the fine-furniture cabinets are as functional as they are beautiful. The advanced acoustical systems project sound from both cabinet sides and front to extend thrilling stereo separation to the very width of your room! Because the exclusive Micromatic Player banishes discernible record and stylus wear, the Diamond Stylus is guaranteed 10 years—under normal use—against excessive wear! Upon return, if inspection reveals distortion-creating wear, we will replace it without charge (labor not included). Records can last a lifetime!

The Bordeaux—model 1-RP657 in French Provincial fine furniture.

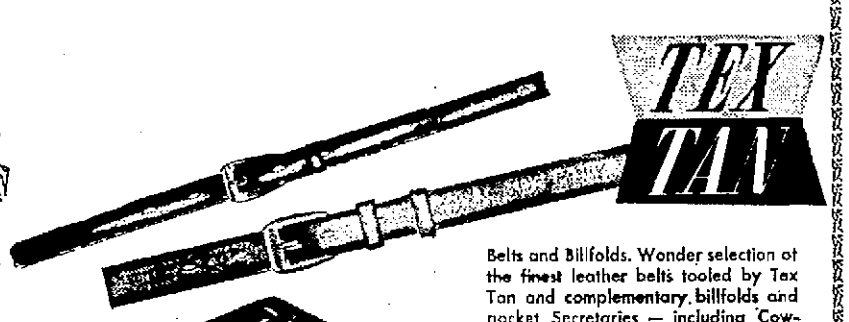

The Kronborg—model 1-RP664, with beautifully proportioned Danish Modern cabinet.
Once you've heard ASTRO SONIC you'll know why tube sets are obsolete. Other Solid-State Consoles from $139.50.

MOST SPECTACULAR

Apollo Escape System Test Set

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP)—The final—and perhaps most spectacular—test of the escape system for Apollo astronauts is scheduled here Wednesday.

A two-stage Little Joe II, one of this country's most powerful solid propellant rockets, is to hurl an Apollo space capsule to an altitude of about 15 miles. Such a space capsule will house three astronauts during the first lunar trip.

If all goes well, a rocket on a tower atop the capsule will ignite during a simulated emergency and whisk the moonship away. The escape rocket is designed to do its job before an explosion of the giant Saturn V moon rocket could engulf the space capsule.

Wednesday's test is designed as the final qualification of the launch escape system. Subsequent firings early next year will see the Apollo moonship launched aboard Saturn II boosters from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

* * * *

IT WILL BE the sixth escape system test at White Sands, in a series dating back to May of 1963, and the first test in which an actual Apollo moonship has been used. In previous tests, three of which involved Little Joe II, mockup capsules called boiler plates were used.

The firing also will present the usually reliable Little Joe II, economical imitation of the Saturn moonrocket, a chance to redeem itself.

Little Joe was to boost a boiler plate to an altitude of about 35 miles in a test last May but broke up shortly after launch and never even approached the desired test altitude.

The escape system rocket dramatically proved itself on that occasion, however, igniting automatically and pulling the boiler plate clear.

Cal. Personal Income Record

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Personal income of Californians has topped $60 billion a year for the first time, Gov. Brown said Saturday.

Brown said this indicates "that our economy is still growing and still very strong."

Department of Finance economists estimate the annual income rate at $60.3 billion on the basis of third quarter returns, Brown said.

Brown said the record figure represented an increase of $3.9 billion or 6.9% over the 1964 level and $1.3 billion or 2.2% over the revised 1965 second quarter estimate.

"I am especially gratified at the gains in employment in the aerospace industries, although substantial gains were noted for almost all industries with the exception of construction," Brown said after reading the department's quarterly report.

Mystere Jets Sold to South Africa

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa's air force plans to buy small French-made Mystere jet transport planes in undisclosed numbers, for training and transportation of important personnel, the newspaper Die Beeld reported. They carry eight passengers. The Air Force now uses French mirage fighter-bombers.

BIRMINGHAM BOOSTS VIET FIGHTERS' MORALE

City Adopts 1st Infantry Division--The Big Red One

By JAMES SPOTSWOOD

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) —"What can we as patriotic Americans do to boost the morale of American fighting men in Viet Nam and offset the draft card burnings, the marches and other anti-Viet Nam demonstration?"

City fathers of this steel metropolis asked themselves this question and came up with this answer: Officially adopt the 1st Infantry Division—The Big Red One—which is in the thick of the fighting.

The idea caught on and the Army liked it so well it sent the No. 1 enlisted man in the division—Sgt. Major William O. Wooldridge—to Birmingham to accept the adoption officially.

How well did it work?

* * * *

THE PROUD city fathers reflected on these expressions of recognition for the sergeant major today:

—Seventy thousand persons attending the Auburn-Alabama football game stood and applauded wildly while Wooldridge, a striking figure in his blue uniform resplendent with gold stripes, walked the length of the football field to salute the Stars and Stripes.

—A shy Avondale School sixth grader looked up at the big sergeant when he visited her school and asked: "What can we do for the Big Red One?" It was a question repeated a thousand times.

—More than 705 persons including Gov. George Wallace turned out for the adoption ceremonies.

* * * *

BIRMINGHAM'S official and civic leaders had watched the demonstrations with mounting indignation while many Alabama families received telegrams reporting the deaths of sons, husbands and fathers fighting in far-away Southeast Asia.

One platoon leader from Birmingham who died on a search and destroy mission had written his young wife:

"I know I am working for the protection of our country—you and the boys. I'm willing to sacrifice towards that end. What is wrong with America today? Can't they see?"

Birmingham's response was community-wide. The quickly formed Adoption Steering Committee included among its members Crawford Johnson III, president of the Birmingham Area Chamber of Commerce; Donald Stafford, president of the Birmingham Labor Council (AFL-CIO), and Dr. John Nixon, president of the Alabama Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people, who is a local dentist.

* * * *

PLANNERS HAD a major break. Maj. Gen. William A. Cunningham, commander of the Fourth Army Corps with headquarters here, was a former Big Red One chief of staff. He also was a West Point classmate of Maj. Gen. Jonathon O. Seaman, commander of the First. Together, they cut a lot of red tape.

Adoption planners flew the sergeant's wife and three of his five children — the others couldn't leave school —to share the reception for Wooldridge.

"I thought I would be met at the airport by one or two officials and that would be it," Wooldridge said later. "I was overwhelmed."

Instead a crowd of several hundred cheered. City Council President M. E. Wiggins and County Commission President Cooper Green headed dignitaries greeting him.

Dianna Foster and Laurie Thompson of Brownie Troop 552 presented roses to Mrs. Wooldridge and letters of encouragement to the sergeant. Yes, everybody was there.

* * * *

THE PROUD professional soldier had to get one thing straight as he accepted with appreciation the adoption of the Army's oldest division, which he served in World War II and most of his 25 years in service:

"We're the best equipped and armed Army in the world and we eat well," he assured his audience. "We have a kill ratio of better than 10 to 1 against the Viet Cong. When they stand and fight, we whip them."

Seaman sent a tape-recorded message for the First which said, in part, "We, of the First Infantry Division, are greatly honored and deeply touched, for both our military and our civic action efforts here in the Republic of Viet Nam has left its mark on the heart of every man who wears our shoulder patch, The Big Red One."

Mrs. Wooldridge said before she returned to Junction City, Kan., that she would like to live here when the sergeant retired. And Wooldridge shouted as he hurried aboard an airliner for his return to war in Viet Nam, "I'm coming back."

Birgingham will wait for the Wooldridges.

ODD TITLES

Kiss Setter and Mud Man 'In'

By JACK VANDENBERG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you're a "Squeak, Rattle and Leak Man," a "Kiss Setter," or a "Mud Man," chances are you're in. But if you're a "Beachcomber," "Sheet Music Plugger" or a "Rumble Seat Assembler," you're out.

That's the word from the Labor Department, which has just issued a new "Dictionary of Occupational Titles" which contains descriptions of 36,000 modern occupations.

The two-volume dictionary lists and describes what a worker does in each job, how he does it and the level of skill required to perform the job efficiently.

* * * *

MOST OF the 6,000 new occupations have technical titles such as "Nuclear Medical Technician," "Gamma Facilities Operator," and "Radiation Monitor."

But the new titles also include some picturesque job descriptions, like that "Squeak, Rattle and Leak Man." Motorists who have been annoyed by irritating noises in their cars probably have used the services of a "Squeak, Rattle and Leak" man and never known it.

He is an auto mechanic who specializes in taking a car out for a test run to determine the origin of a squeak, a leak or a rattle.

A "kiss setter"? He's the man who shapes candy kisses by hand. And the "mud man" reclaims rubber particles from sludge in the rubber industry.

* * * *

SOME OF THE other more colorful job descriptions in the new dictionary include:

Bug Duster: A man who follows after a coal digging machine in a mine and shovels up the dust and chunks left behind.

Pulpit Man: A person who stands on a high platform to operate the controls of a rolling mill in the iron and steel industry.

Cat Doctor: A repairman for catapillar tractors in the logging business.

Pillar Robber: A person who removes the pillars of salt, coal or ore left as supports in a mine during production mining.

Broke Man: A person who removes wastes from papermaking machinery.

* * * *

WHILE MODERN technology brought these titles to the nation's vocabulary, some others were dropped from the dictionary as obsolete. Beachcomber, which since has taken on a new meaning was among the victims of changing occupations.

Ghoulish Vandals Strike

Sunnyside Cemetery foreman Jack Lakin surveys more than $500 damage done early Saturday by vandals who tipped over 50 to 75 gravestones, scattered trash and flowers and bent water pipes at the cemetery at 1095 E. Willow St. Running water from faucets which were turned on caused some graves to sink. Police said vandals entered through unlocked gate.

STILL FACE PRISON

3 Klansmen Freed on $10,000 Bonds

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Three Ku Klux Klansmen, convicted in an unusual civil rights case in the death of a white woman, were freed on $10,000 appeal bond each Saturday and returned to their homes.

Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 22, of Fairfield, and Eugene Thomas, 42, and William Orville Eaton, 41, both of Bessemer, were convicted by an all-white jury Friday on federal charges of conspiring to violate civil rights in connection with the slaying of Viola Liuzzo, a 39-year-old Detroit housewife.

* * * *

THEY WERE sentenced to 10 years in prison under an 1870 law written to protect Negro slaves freed in the Civil War.

Their attorney, former FBI agent and Birmingham Mayor Art Hanes, had bonds approved by U.S. Commissioner Tim Morris in Montgomery.

The convictions of the three Klansmen and that of another Alabaman in the nightriding slaying of a Negro, came within a 24-hour period unmatched in recent Alabama history of civil rights or related crimes.

Hubert Damon Strange, 25, remained in an Anniston, Ala., jail cell in lieu of a $10,000 bond on a 10-year sentence in a state court for the slaying of Negro laborer Willie Brewster.

Strange was one of three men charged in the July shooting and was convicted by an all-male white jury that took 20 ballots before finding him guilty of second-degree murder.

Lewis Blevins, 26, and Johnny Ira Defries, 25, face trials early next year in the same case.

Gov. George Wallace challenged a report that the convictions were the only ones involving civil rights crimes in recent Alabama history. Wallace said, as a circuit court judge in 1955 he presided over the trial of a white man who drew a life sentence for the shotgun slaying of a Negro in Eufaula, Ala.

Wallace said the foreman of the jury was Al Lingo, then an Eufaula businessman and recently retired head of the Alabama Public Safety Department.

Dr. John Nixon, president of the Alabama National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, also praised the court actions but said he was still "a little skeptical" about Alabama justice.

He questioned, in the light of maximum sentences, "if this is a genuine effort to give justice in Alabama courts, or is it a device to circumvent pending (federal) legislation?"

Judge Halts Southern Rail Strike

ATLANTA (UPI)—Railroad attorneys got a federal judge out of bed before dawn Saturday to halt a strike that threatened to shut down the 10,400-mile Southern Railway in a dispute over the little red caboose.

The walkout, called late Friday night by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, curtailed some passenger service on the line that serves major cities from Washington to New Orleans.

Union spokesmen said it was triggered because the railroad was operating some trains without cabooses and because the equipment in the cabooses that were being used was in poor condition.

They accused the railroad of refusing to arbitrate the dispute.

But L. G. Tolleson, assistant vice president in charge of Southern's labor relations in Washington, countered that the trainmen had called an illegal walkout and that union officials had demanded cabooses be "fitted out in much fancier style than has been customary" when "the trainmen they represent style have any use for cabooses anymore."

* * * *

SOUTHERN spokesmen in Washington said the strike caused it to cancel out two passenger trains. It cancelled six other trains bound for points in the South but revoked the cancellation after Federal Judge J. Robert Elliott signed a temporary restraining order against the union.

The two trains Southern referred to apparently were stopped en route from Washington to Atlanta and the several hundred passengers were transferred to buses, an employe in Spencer said.

Elliott was awakened by attorneys about 3:30 a.m. at his home in Columbus, Ga., and signed the order about 6:30 a.m., some eight hours after the strike had been called and pickets were thrown up at such major Southern Railway points as Washington, Atlanta, Charlotte, N.C., Memphis and Nashville, Tenn., Richmond, Va., Spartanburg, S.C., and Asheville, N.C.

Elliott set a hearing on the restraining order for Jan. 13 at Columbus.

Santa Claus Arrives With (Ho! Ho!) Thud

LOMPOC (UPI) — If Santa Claus wants to return to his conventional reindeer-drawn sleigh, the residents of Lompoc can sympathize with him.

A crowd of 500 persons watched Saturday as Santa made a forced landing on top of two cars when his helicopter developed trouble.

Neither Santa or the pilot was injured, but damage to one of the cars was described by officers as extensive.

The pilot of the helicopter — which was supposed to drop Santa on the roof of a shopping center — refused to comment on the nature of the craft's trouble.

Santa, undaunted, hauled his toy sack out of the downed craft, walked onto the roof of a car, and with a hearty "Ho, Ho, Ho . . . Whew!" started dispensing his gifts.

Thieves Raid Store for Cigarette Haul

Burglars showed a complete disregard for the surgeon general's report on smoking in their raid Saturday on Lucky's Market at 2120 Pacific Ave.

Officer J. D. Holbert said the thieves, forced a rear door, took 12 cases of cigarettes valued at $1,190.

Men's Night in Dress Shop

COLCHESTER, England (UPI)—A dress shop here will close its doors to all women customers for one evening just before Christmas. The shop owners hope to attract modest men wanting gifts for wives and girl friends.

RIGHTS COMMISSION SAYS

Voting Aid for Southern Negroes Is Still Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Rights Commission said Saturday night that "in many areas of the South there is full compliance with the Voting Rights Act of 1965," but still there is a need for more federal registrars.

The commission, in a report to Congress and the President on implementation of the new law, said federal registrars should be named in all counties covered under the act where state procedures are inadequate to register all Negroes who apply, or where literacy tests still are being used.

* * * *

IN a briefing on the report, Staff Director William Taylor estimated that registrars may be required in as many as 32 more counties. The attorney general already has sent registrars into 32 counties.

Taylor estimated that some 200,000 additional Negroes have been registered in the South since the act took effect, about a quarter by federal registrars.

"In most areas tests and devices which have been used in the past to deny Negroes the right to vote have been effectively suspended," the report said. "Several problems remain, however, including the continued use of literacy tests in some counties and delays in areas with limited numbers of registration days."

Although progress has been made, the commission said, there has been a drop in registrations in some areas after the first surge, and registration is only a preliminary step.

The final test, the report said, is whether Negroes vote in elections next year in large numbers, and it added, "Resistance to Negro voting can be anticipated."

Intimidation is a factor in slowing registration in some areas, it said.

The commission made four recommendations:

—Appointment of federal registrars in all counties covered by the act where literacy tests still are being used or no adequate effort is being made to register Negroes who apply.

—An information program by the Civil Service Commission which supervises the registrars, to notify all unregistered persons of the qualifications required to register and when and where they may register.

—Creation of a federal program to encourage registration by informing people of registration requirements and educating them to a better understanding of the rights and duties of citizenship.

—Effective preparation by federal officials for invoking all possible enforcement procedures during elections, including appointment of poll watchers.

"In counties with examiners (federal registrars) and in counties where state registration officials are allowing Negroes to register freely, there has been a sharp decline in the high initial rate of Negro registration," the report said, adding:

"This suggests that there will be limited Negro exercise of the franchise unless affirmative steps are taken to inform citizens, heretofore excluded from voting, of registration and voting procedures and the importance of participating in all elections."

The commission said Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach moved slowly in designating counties for federal registrars in the first weeks of the new law, acting only where there was strong evidence of "intentional and flagrant violation of the act."

"His more recent actions suggest that he will certify the need for examiners whenever applicants cannot register on the day they attempt to do so," the commission said.

Malaysia Smashes Red Underground

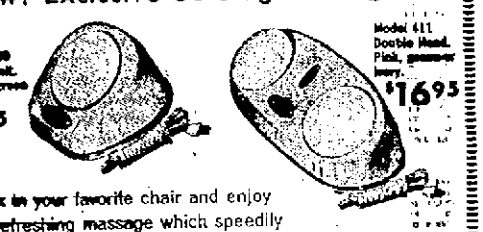

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP)—Police smashed a Communist underground organization this week that covered three districts in Sarawak, a government spokesman announced Saturday.

The discovery was made following the arrest of 15 suspects, including five women. A large cache of Communist documents also was uncovered, the spokesman added.

POP-OUT SATELLITES
Twin OVI satellites pop out from their double pod to go their separate ways into orbit, carrying scientific space experiments with them in this artist's conception of the twin space shot scheduled for Jan. 20 at Vandenberg Air Force Base.

TWO-IN-ONE

Obsolete Missile to Be Employed in Space Shot

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

An obsolete Atlas missile will be used by the Air Force to fire a unique two-in-one space shot Jan. 20 at Vandenberg Air Force Base.

The old Atlas, retired from the Strategic Air Command inventory, has been modified for its role in boosting into space two scientific satellites at one time.

Also aboard in the economical launch will be a scientific passenger pod riding on the side of the Atlas. The pod contains experiments not designed to reach orbit.

* * * *

THE TWIN OVI-4 and OVI-5 satellites will study optical radiation in space, thermal coating characteristics and the effect of a zero-gravity environment on photosynthetic organisms and small vascular plants.

The OVI satellites were built by General Dynamics Convair of San Diego for the Air Force's Office of Aerospace Research under the Aerospace Research Support Program.

After their ejection from the booster, the satellites will use self-contained propulsion systems for boosting themselves into orbit.

The OVI-4 will attain a circular orbit or 480 nautical miles, while the OVI-5 is designed for a circular orbit of 550 miles. Both satellites will be placed into retrograde, or east-to-west, orbit.

Visiting Dentist Dies in Skin Dive Mishap

An Atherton, Calif., dentist died off Santa Barbara Island Saturday while skin diving.

The Coast Guard identified the dead man as 51-year-old Dr. August J. Kaferata. Kaferata was dead on arrival at the Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance at 11 a.m. after being airlifted from the deck of a charter boat.

Hospital attendants said an autopsy would be conducted to determine the exact cause of death.

Dr. Kaferata, the father of 3, was one of the 17 passengers aboard the 50-foot Holly B, a Norm's Landing Charter vessel, from San Pedro. Harlan E. Bowles, 59, owner-operator of the Holly B, said Kaferata and a friend were diving in 30 feet of water off the east coast of the island about 10 a.m. when the dentist disappeared.

A few minutes later, Kaferata surfaced, after apparently dropping his weight belt. He was pulled aboard the boat, where attempts were made to revive him while a Coast Guard helicopter was summoned. The copter made a pickup and rushed Kaferata to the hospital.

Teens Visit Symposium

Students representing six Long Beach-area high schools were among more than 600 teen-agers participating in the Third Annual March of Dimes Teen Medical Symposium Saturday at the Los Angeles Trade-Technical College.

Sponsored by the Los Angeles County March of Dimes, the event featured work of the Birth Defects Treatment Center at Orthopaedic Hospital, which is supported by all of the organization's Southern California chapters.

The center's March of Dimes coordinator, Dr. Oliver Nichols, reported on the "team approach" method utilized in overcoming birth defects, and on increasing success in cases of children born with open spines—once considered hopeless for treatment.

Sam Zackheim, principal of Compton's Centennial High School, served as symposium master of ceremonies, and actor Paul Peterson, national chairman for the 1966 March of Dimes campaign to be conducted in January, headed the list of TV and film personalities on hand.

Long Beach chapter guests from Progress School and from Jordan, Lakewood, Millikan, Poly and Wilson High Schools attended, along with little Tina Tidwell of La Mirada, the county's poster child.

Lectures Slated

Formerly scheduled on Tuesdays at the Alamitos Branch Library, a weekly World Affairs discussion group conducted by Long Beach City College will be held Mondays from 1-4 p.m. in the Eixby Park Social Hall, beginning this week.

Other admission-free programs announced by the LBCC forums office:

MONDAY

The Literature of Ideas — John Robert Clarke, "Is Joy Your Avocation? . . . A Story of Kahlil Gibran," 7:30 p.m., Rogers Junior High School auditorium.

WEDNESDAY

Spotlight the World — Dr. Giles T. Brown, "Prospects for Latin America" (illustrated), 7:30 p.m., Boyd High School auditorium.

Physical Fitness for Busy People—Joe T. Hicks, "Canadian Air Force Exercises" (lecture-demonstration), 7:30 p.m., Hill Junior High School gymnasium.

Appeal to Test Reversal in Murder Case

The state attorney general's office will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court a decision by the State Supreme Court which overruled the first-degree murder convictions of two Los Angeles men.

Last October the state's high court, on the basis of the Dorado decision, nullified the convictions and death sentences of Ronald H. Polk, 26, and George A. Gregg, 25, who were found guilty Jan. 9, 1963, of slaying a Norwalk sailor.

The appeal would test a technical legal point in the timing of the decision March 31, 1964, in which the Supreme Court first upheld the men's conviction, with the date of the Dorado decision, June 22, 1964.

VICTIMS OF DOWNPOUR

Neighborly Present for Needy Tijuana

What can you make with 600 pounds of beans, 400 pounds of potatoes and 35 cases of canned milk?

You can make life easier for some 1,000 families of Tijuana, B.C., whose homes were destroyed by torrential rains and flooding two weeks ago.

And that's just what a loosely-knit organization of Long Beach area residents is doing this weekend.

A caravan of cars and trucks left Saturday for the border city to deliver foodstuffs and more than $100 in cash donations to families who lost their homes.

"Everyone has been so wonderful," declared Mrs. D. B. Gomez, an organizer of the drive. "We are just loaded!"

Mrs. Gomez and her coworkers said response from the public after their story was published in The Independent and Press-Telegram has been overwhelming.

Several Los Angeles County labor unions donated cash and a number of markets gave food for the flood-stricken families. An auto rental agency is charging the group for mileage alone on a truck to transport the mercy supplies, instead of taking its usual use fee.

Mrs. Gomez said she was able to buy 600 pounds of beans at a discount and when the dealer learned how they would be used, he tossed in 400 pounds of potatoes.

$1.2 Million Paid to Raisin Growers

FRESNO (UPI)—The Raisin Administrative Committee has mailed checks representing the ninth payment for the 1964-65 surplus raisin pool, the committee announced Saturday.

The payments, totaling $1.2 million, went to 2,832 raisin growers and three cooperative associations. They were in the amount of $18 per ton on each grower's deliveries of Thompson raisins for the season through July 31, bringing the cumulative payments to a total of $183 a ton.

New Texas Wells

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Texas drillers completed 108 oil wells and 73 gas wells this week, the Texas railroad commission reported Saturday.

New Church Leader

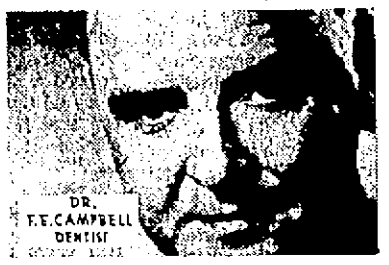

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Dr. James A. Moak of Lexington, Ky., was installed Saturday as president of the Conference of State and Area Secretaries and Board Chairmen of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

WEEK IN REVIEW

Bombing of Billet Shatters Viet Fighting Lull

Combined Wire Services

A pre-Christmas lull in the fighting in Viet Nam was shattered early Saturday when Viet Cong terrorists set off an explosion at an American billet in Saigon. There were some 170 American, Vietnamese and New Zealand casualties, including at least 11 dead.

The terrorists also tried to toss a bomb into another American billet—the International—just a short distance from the blasted and heavily damaged Metropole enlisted men's quarters. This attempt was about 30 minutes after the first bomb went off and it was reported that the military guards at the International shot the Viet Cong terrorist dead on the spot.

* * * *

IN OTHER war developments:

"We have stopped losing the war," said Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara as he concluded a 30-hour visit of inspection to South Viet Nam.

But, he added, the size and intensity of recent Viet Cong assaults "expressed a determination to carry on the conflict which can lead to only one conclusion—it will be a long war."

* * * *

THEY CAME OUT of communist captivity after two years and announced that they would campagin to get American troops out of Viet Nam.

"The United States has nothing to gain from the war in Viet Nam Nam, for the Viet Cong are the people," they told a news conference in neutral Cambodia.

It sounded strange for they were American soldiers themselves, Sgt. George E. Smith of Chester, W. Va., and Spec. 5 Claude D. McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn.

An agent of the Viet Cong who accompanied them to Cambodia said they had been released "because of the popular movement in the United States against President Johson's policies."

Smith and McClure were two of four Americans captured Nov. 24, 1963 when the Viet Cong overran their U.S. Special Forces camp 25 miles from Saigon.

One of the others, Sgt. Kenneth M. Roraback, also of Chester, W. Va., was executed last September. The fourth, Sgt. Isaac Camacho of El Paso, Tex., escaped in August.

Why had Smith and McClure changed their minds about fighting the Viet Cong? Although they denied it, the betting was that they had been brainwashed by their captors.

* * * *

ON THE RACIAL front, the apostles of violence in segregation received setbacks in two Alabama courtrooms.

An all white jury in Montgomery convicted three Ku Klux Klansmen on a federal charge of conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo of Detroit; shot to death last March.

The three — Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 22; Eugene Thomas, 42, and William O. Eaton, 41, Alabamans all—were sentenced to 10 years in prison under an 1877 law.

Previously, Wilkins had been acquited on a state charge of murder in the death of Mrs. Liuzzo, a civil rights worker who was shot in her auto in the aftermath of the Selma demonstration march.

Earlier in the week, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference had already announced a rally to protest the predicted acquital of Hubert Damon Strange of killing a Negro.

But the all white jury in Anniston upset the plan by convicting the 23-year-old filling station attendant of second degree murder in the shotgun death of William Brewster, 38. Strange, too, got 10 years.

Since 1960, by count of the Southern Regional Council, there have been 34 "civil rights murders" in the South. Until last week, only one person had been sent to jail in connection with them.

THE FIRST person off plane for some reason," Olazabal Dalgado, 74. She carried a battered purse and a big doll. There were others who carried much less.

"I was afraid that I might not be allowed on the the plane for some reason," one woman told newsmen, "so I did not bring anything with me."

Thus began the great airlift of refugees from Cuba to the United States.

The first plane carried 75 refugees to Miami, 51 of them women and children, ranging in age from a 6-month-old girl to the 74-year-old Mrs. Dalgado.

Within 2½ hours of their arrival, some of the refugees were released to the care of relatives and sponsors around the country.

Only 19 of the 75 were sceduled to remain in the Miami area, where 90,000 other Cuban exiles have settled. And strong sentiment exists against accepting any more.

The refugees had to leave almost all their belongings behind in order to board the escape plane. Many were bitter. "In Cuba, communism and slavery are synonymous," said one man.

Eventually, it is expected that 3,000 to 4,000 refugees a month will be airlifted out of Castro's Cuba until all those who wish to leave are accommodated.

And how many is that?

"Three million people want to leave Cuba," said one of last week's arrivals.

BRITAIN TOOK a cautious step to maintain a foothold of possible force in defiant Rhodesia. British Prime Minister Harold Wilson dispatched Royal Air Force units to nearby Zambia to take action if Rhodesia should seek to interfere with a power station in the Zambia colony.

Both sides have been sparring warily as a result of Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence which has racial overtones and may stir up trouble in the troubled continent of Africa.

JOHN V. LINDSAY was only the mayor-elect of New York City but already found himself in the middle of the biennial quarrel between the city and its subway workers.

The contract between the transit workers union and the transit authority expires at the end of the year and the TWU's irascible Mike Quill wanted Lindsay in on negotiations for a new pact.

Lindsay, who will not be sworn in as mayor until Jan. 1, wired the TWU that he would be glad to help negotiate "when it is evident that both parties are prepared to engage in good-faith collective bargaining."

Whereupon Quill, who has never called a subway strike in 30 years as head of the TWU, threatened to call one on Dec. 15—"just in time for the Christmas shopping rush. Let Mr. Lindsay get out of that one."

INFLATION returned to the nation's economic vocabulary this week when living costs rose to an all-time high.

President Johnson took immediate steps at his Texas ranch to reassure the American business community. He predicted that the economy would boom to new heights next year and that the upward trend would be stabilized.

Icarus Heading Toward the Earth

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—About this rumor that a hunk of space rock big as the moon is rushing this way, and will bump us in a couple of years:

It just isn't true—not in all respects, at least. There really is a big rock out there, it really is headed this way, and it is confidently expected to arrive in the earth's neighborhood on June 15, 1968.

But it is nowhere as big as the moon and, unless astronomers have unaccountably miscalculated, it will come no closer than 4 million miles.

This is a near-miss by space distance standards. But, say the astronomers, it is a near-miss fraught more with interest than with doom.

* * * *

THE ROCK is little old Icarus, one of thousands of asteroids or minor planets in orbit around the sun. It is only about three-fifths of a mile across, compared to the moon's 2,160-mile diameter.

Still, if Icarus should hit the earth—a most unlikely event, mind you—the effect would be as though a million or so one-megaton H-bombs had exploded at the point of impact.

The rumor that an errant moon was on collision course with the earth was first reported in Philadelphia. It may not have spread much.

But some amateur astronomers called the United Press International bureau in Philadelphia to ask what on earth, or in the cosmos, was going on. Just what triggered their alarm was not apparent. It may have been a misreading of an article in an astronomical magazine.

* * * *

ANYWAY, to get back to innocent little Icarus: It was discovered in 1949, and astronomers with their big telescopes were able to keep it in view long enough to plot its orbit around the sun and the relationship of that orbit with the earth's.

Asteroids range in size from considerably less than a mile to about 500 miles in diameter. They may be chunks of matter which failed for some reason to join up into planets when the solar system was created 5 billion years ago. Or they may be fragments of a subsequent catastrophic collision between a couple of planets.

Some few conceivably are the heads of big comets which for some reason lost their tails.

Most asteroids travel in paths lying between the solar orbits of Mars and Jupiter. Only about 1,650 asteroids have been spotted, but astronomers believe they number in the scores of thousands.

* * * *

COULD ICARUS conceivably get off course, as astronomers have plotted it, and smash into our planet? In calculating Icarus' 1968 fly-past of the earth, astronomers took into account the orbit-perturbing influences of all the other planets—except tiny Pluto out at the edge of the solar system.

Pluto's influence may be too feeble to count. But, as astronomer Robert S. Richardson has pointed out, it would take only a slight change in course to put Icarus and the earth at the same point in space at the same time. This would be disastrous for both.

The chance of this happening, according to Richardson, "is extremely small." But it is "not so small that it can be totally ignored."

These spectators rate special invitations which permitted them to watch takeoff from within the space center. Thousands of others watched from vantage points along Florida's coast.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

ALCOHOLICS Anonymous is holding a public meeting at 2 p.m. today at the Municipal Auditorium and this prompted a grateful beneficiary of this program for the drinking sick to drop by my desk to relate his experiences.

Frank H., like many others who through the AA have escaped entrapment, wants to spread the word, not just among alcoholics, but among those who may have relatives or friends who can benefit as he did.

He points out that alcoholism is the third greatest killer in the country—running behind heart disease and cancer—and hence anything that can be done to control this disease is a matter of immense public importance.

Frank H. made his first contact with AA through something that happened on his 19th wedding anniversary. As is the case with many alcoholics, he didn't know he was one. On that day, when he failed to come home as promised, and was expressing his remorse afterwards, his wife gently suggested he might try Alcoholics Anonymous.

Frank H. is a successful Long Beach business man. Among recovered alcoholics are any number of prominent and successful people. One of the speakers at today's meeting will be a judge, identified only as Dick H. Alcoholism strikes all kinds; Alcoholics Anonymous has been found to be the way out by all kinds.

THE only requirement for membership in AA is a desire to stop drinking—a desire born out of a realization that in one's particular case, drinking is disaster.

AA has no dues, is not allied with any sect or political group. It is a fellowship of men and women who share their experience, strength and hope to solve a common problem.

It's the spirit of mutual helpfulness that makes this a remarkable organization. People with a problem can call AA and a "recovered" person will talk with them. They feel that personal recovery depends on AA unity.

At the meeting today, or from any member of AA, a person can obtain a questionnaire containing 20 pertinent questions about your experience with drink. The questions were prepared by Johns Hopkins University; one affirmative answer indicates the tested person may be an alcoholic; two that he probably is, three that he definitely is.

Samples: Do you lose time from work due to drinking? Do you crave a drink at a definite time daily? Do you ever drink alone? Do you drink to build up confidence?

The results of the quiz can be a shocker to people who have no idea they're in trouble. That's the point — the alcoholic is the last person to know he is.

IN ANSWER to my inquiries, Frank H. said he serves drinks to friends in his home, never objects to anybody else drinking, is not an advocate of prohibition.

AA is concerned only with personal recovery of people who turn to it for help. It does not engage in research, medical treatment, education or propaganda.

Frank H. recognizes that most of the people he knows can drink without a problem. He wants those who can't to know about AA. I can think of no other reason he came to tell me of his experiences with the suggestion that something would be said about it in this column.

I was impressed. Among my acquaintances over the years were people with this tragic problem. I agreed with Frank that if a word about the AA program here might help people like them, it ought to be said. And I close this little report with a final word of warning to those who think it's not a matter of concern to them or those they care for. It's the third biggest killer.

WHILE MRS. FRANK BORMAN bows her head and tightly grasps hand of one of her two sons, the boys, Frederick, 14, left, and Edwin, 12, gaze skyward as the rocket carrying their father, astronaut Frank Borman, roars into space at Cape Kennedy.

SOFT LANDING: James Lovell, 10, son of Astronaut and Mrs. James A. Lovell, drops from a tree perch to a bed of pine needles in the yard of family home at El Lago, near Houston, Tex. Playmate Jim Wilcox, 11, watches the flight.

SCAG Does Help Retain Home Rule

A HUE AND CRY is being raised by rightwing groups in Long Beach and the state against the newly-formed voluntary Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG).

The issue will come to a precise point here Tuesday when anti-SCAG factions will ask the City Council to withdraw from SCAG.

The Southern California Association of Governments is designed, in the words of Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, "to deal voluntarily with numerous common problems at the local level and without giving up any home rule powers."

The organization is visualized as encompassing the county governments of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura and Imperial counties as well as the local governments of the 142 cities in those counties.

MEMBERSHIP is voluntary. Any government may withdraw at will. SCAG cannot legislate, levy taxes, issue bonds or exercise power of eminent domain. In short it is not a government. It is two things: a research organization and a forumn for discussion of common area-wide problems. It can recommend courses of action. It cannot impose or enforce ideas or actions.

Representation on SCAG's general assembly and executive committee will be elected officials from the governments joining. Expenses will be shared on a pro-rata basis among the member governments.

With this background in mind, it is amazing to learn that SCAG is being attacked by the right-wing groups as a plot of the federal government and numerous national associations of local, state and federal officials to take over local city government.

It is charged that SCAG is a first step toward Metropolitan (Metro) government and that ultimately it is part of a communistic or socialistic plot headed toward world domination.

A book, pamphlet and news letter have been provided our editors by an opponent of SCAG with an explanation that these documents provide a proper background for opposition.

THE THREE documents, bearing the imprint of local area bookstores which handle much John Birch Society and other right-wing publications, do not mention SCAG. Instead they attack a whole series of organizations and the individuals who support them as part of a vast Communist-tainted conspiracy to do away with local government through imposition of Metro government.

The attacks are centered around a building at 1313 E. 60th St., Chicago, which houses some 23 national associations such as the National Municipal League, International City Managers' Association, Conference of Chief Justices, Governors' Conference and groups dealing with such things as building, planning, public works, public welfare, assessing, mental health.

One of the books, "Terrible 1313 Revisited" by Jo Hindman of Inglewood, points out that overt leaders of Metro (that is, the supporters of these associations) are not identified as "card-carrying Communists" but that "Metro's hidden leaders quite possibly could be." It then refers the reader to a list of some 200 persons "behind Metro," a list which contains such names as Barry Goldwater, Herbert Hoover, George Christopher, Republican candidate for California governor, Anthony Celebrezze, George Gallup, Norris Poulson, Robert Wagner and numerous mayors and city and state officials.

THE IMPLICATION behind providing this material as a reason for not supporting SCAG is that SCAG is designed to foster Metro government.

Nothing could be further from the truth. SCAG is specifically designed to prevent the spread of regional forms of government at the expense of local control.

The vast problems facing the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area won't go away. The public will and is demanding solution of such things as air and water pollution, transportation, flood control, urban sprawl, etc. No individual city can deal with these problems. If the cities work cooperatively, they may be able to solve them. If not, some higher form of government will. SCAG, as Mayor Yorty said, can provide a voluntary way to solve the problems without losing home rule.

We are for that.

Stuck With It

Dividing California into two states would be worse than changing the name of Arkansas. It just wouldn't work.

Let's face it. We are stuck with the greatest state in the Union. About all that will happen to the proposal made by Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, who revived the two-state idea, is that he will get his name in the paper a few times.

California has everything from the best to the worst. People long have referred to portions of this state as Southern California and Northern California. But if things came to a showdown, they would fight for all of California—and continue to be mighty proud of it.

Through It All

EDITOR:

Your recent editorial about Marine Corps boot camp had to be written by a former Marine who had been through it all. Otherwise he wouldn't have known what it was all about.

Thanks for explaining our situation in your paper. Those of us in the corps know that when this country calls on us to perform in combat, we are expected to be successful. Boot camp is the key to that success.

Critical of Policy

EDITOR:

I am dismayed at the position taken by the United States against the government of Rhodesia, an anti-Communist friend.

The position taken by Rhodesia, that of independence, is not the concern of the United States, but only of Rhodesia and Great Britain.

At a time when we are fighting the Communists in Asia, we also become entangled into fighting our allies. The Communists are endeavoring to conquer the world and involve us in their strategy to obtain their goal. They are clever and we are acting very stupid and naive.

This is just another example of United States involvement in the United Nations, which guides our foreign policy. The United States doesn't have any solid foreign policy, only that of the United Nations.

We are again using double standards. As a crusader for civil rights and liberty, where were the United States and the United Nations in 1956 during the Hungarian uprising; the infamous Berlin Wall which has been a scene of death for scores of fugitives from Communist tyranny?

If we are going to belong to a world organization, let us use it to our advantage as has the other nations. Let us stop condemning our friends and aiding our enemies. Let us stand for our principles of liberty and justice, not for some, but for all.

Appeals to Long Beach

EDITOR:

Having read George Robeson's recent "Nightcap" column, it brings to mind when our son started at Long Beach State College and was asked to join a fraternity.

My husband and I tried to discourage him, but when we found out that one had to maintain a better than average grade to belong, we decided it would be good. He joined a fraternity, and we found that the older members would take turns coming to our home to teach him how to study. We became acquainted with these fine gentlemen; and as they did not have a meeting place, our home, like those of other parents, was open to them. Their parties and meetings were enjoyed by us, because we knew our son was associating with boys and girls of whom we could be proud.

I joined the Mothers Club and found they were of the same caliber. We, the mothers helped raise money so that the boys could buy a home, but alas, where were they welcome? Many of these boys lived many miles from school and the dorms were overflowing.

So, I too, agree—why doesn't Long Beach make room for our college students, who now number 20,000 strong at Long Beach State, not even counting City College.

The merchants of Long Beach should help: clothing, cars, food, gasoline and many things are bought by these young people in your town, and their parents buy there also.

The raid on that particular night was an outrage.

Scott Raps Goldwater, Platform

BOB HOUSER

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania came west over the weekend to commend the new California Republican League (CRL), a sanctuary for moderate Republicans who felt uneasy in the state's volunteer GOP groups which turned abruptly right about three years ago.

CRL objectives, said Scott, "are what I always thought was the central direction of the Republican Party." He suggested that the GOP "resume its normal centrist Trend and take back what was ours until Lyndon Johnson preempted it last year."

The way, he said, is to offer candidates and programs "responsive to the late-20th Century aspirations of the American people." The future of California, for example, can't be met, he said, by adherence to past concepts or to the idea that all federal programs are socialism.

ACCEPTABLE and realizable alternatives to the Democratic Party and following the central ground is not me-tooism, said Scott. To parrot this accusation is to fall prey to the flying cliche, he said. To support the Democratic administration when it's right is not me-tooism. In the law of average, the other fellow is apt to be right a fair amount of the time. "It's honesty to say so. If you're free to praise when they're right, there's more credence to your case when you say you believe they are wrong."

Johnson, when he was Senate majority leader "spent many hours metooing Eisenhower, and I thought it was great."

The John Birch Society — Educational or political organization?

"I DON'T think it's political," said Sen. Scott; "It's a virus. It defames or praises according to its own warped ideology. To profess to be anti-Communist doesn't make you all right, as the ghost of Adolf Hitler will remind you. I don't know of any crowd that's more anti-Communist than the Republican Party.

"The Birch Society has no place in the American political system. I don't think you can be a good Republican and a good John Bircher at the same time."

On Barry Goldwater: Scott said he feels th sentiment in the Republican Party today "is more than 80% against the viewpoint espoused by our 1964 candidate and as perpetrated in the more horrid sections of our 1964 platform.

"The Goldwater candidacy and that platform cost us 13 Senate seats in 1964 and 38 in the House."

Scott said he feels Californians will react in the 1966 elections as most other Americans, realizing that in our own best interests the country needs a strong two-party system. "The whole government is flashing red lights and tilt signs with Lyndon Johnson in control of all three branches. This can only lead to arrogance, and recklessness in the preparation of legislation and ruthlessness in its enforcement."

Demonstrators Turn to 'Grass Roots' Tactics

CAPITAL CHATTER

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sponsors of last week's anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations have begun shifting their pressure from the executive to Congress.

Participants in the march have been urged to get busy in their home areas to organize campaigns directed at their representatives and senators.

Demonstrators were given "what to do next" leaflets as the march neared its conclusion. Among other things, the broadsides urged the participants to visit their congressmen, "preferably as part of a delegation," and urge the solons to hold Viet Nam hearings in their districts.

THE SHEETS also urged that those opposed to the Viet Nam conflict actively locate and back congressional candidates who would campaign "in support of a peaceful settlement in Viet Nam."

Such a grass roots campaign probably would have its greatest effect in New York, since a "voice poll" conducted of the crowd at the Washington Monument grounds indicated that most of its members were from the Empire State. Responses from the Upper Midwest and West Coast states were almost negligible.

DIPLOMATS have long been famous for their enigmatic behavior and statements. Like the Delphic oracle, they can often say nothing in the most impressive way.

For instance, the other day one of these reporters was chatting with a diplomat who had served a long stretch in Moscow. The subject of the controversial Penkovsky papers came up. Those are the asserted papers of a Russian colonel who was spying for the West. Considerable doubt exists as to whether the papers were in fact written by the colonel. At all events, the diplomat was asked whether he thought Penkovsky had written the papers. After long thought, the diplomat replied: "Well, they are like what Penkovsky would have written if he had written them." Take it from there!

SPEAKING OF the Penkovsky papers we were chatting about them with a man who early in the Kennedy administration had access to the very top top secrets. We asked him whether he had known about Penkovsky. "Not by name," he replied, "but I knew we had someone high up working for us over there (Moscow)."

"But," he added, "I can tell you one thing. The reports I saw from him at that time were not like the published papers. His reports were not nearly as well organized or clean cut as the published papers make them appear."

Fire Hazard to State Crime Files Could Give Convicts 'Last Laugh'

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO—Convicts are getting the last laugh on the state.

Newspaper accounts have filtered into state prisons how a goof-up has placed in peril of fire or flooding all 2.7 million files on California criminals.

The files are stored on open stacks in folders on library-type desks in a $16,000-a-month rented building in Sacramento.

"Clever officials turned off the sprinkler system so no one would accidentally trigger a flood, but now they're violating the fire code. Somebody gimme a match," says a column in the San Quentin Prison News.

While convicts snickered, the state hastily announced it was moving all the criminal files to a new building in a few months. Meanwhile, state officials must fret whether they personally will wind up in the criminal files—for violating the municipal fire code due to the disconnected sprinkler system.

AND AS IF troubles with convicts and law men weren't enough, there's also an Indian Historical Society uprising in the works.

The society wants California history books changed, contending present textbooks are inaccurate in stating that Indians received paternal care at the old California missions.

The society asserts that some Indians were held at the California Missions against their will in serf-like bondage. The State Curriculum Commission is looking into the controversy.

Law men and the State Curriculum Commission aren't the only ones taking their lumps these days. There also are the legislators.

The furor over pensions for redistricted lawmakers well may have killed any chance for boosting the $500-a-month-pay of legislators.

JAMES McCAULEY

THE LEGISLATORS had tried valliantly for two years to build public confidence in the legislative process —the type of public acceptance that would create a climate for more pay.

But in one blow—give-away pensions for redistricted legislators—the legislature may have destroyed that public confidence.

The Constitutional Revision Commission had planned to submit five state constitutional amendments to the 1966 legislature. One of them would have allowed lawmakers to set their own pay.

Until the pension uproar, there was an excellent possibility the electorate would approve the constitutional changes. Persons close to the commission now concede that the whole reform program may have been undermined.

L. A. C. SAYS

When Radicals Use Party Labels

THE TWO-PARTY system in this country is being weakened by the wide publicity given when some radicals take over control of some party unit and thereby weaken the effectiveness of the party as a whole. Latest episode in Long Beach was Young Republicans electing as their president a 32-year-old man who had been charged with being active in militant groups such as California Rangers. For a short time he was a member of the Birch Society, but apparently thought it too conservative for him.

THIS ACTION by the Young Republicans was taken by less than a score of its members. His resignation has been called for. It is charged he is anti-Semitic and generally a danger to the moderation of the great majority of people who look upon themselves as Republicans. It is one more blemish on the party that must be carried in its fight for sound government.

However, it should be recognized that the Democratic Party has even more blemishes on its record. It should be understood that the great majority of Ku Klux Klan members are in the Southern states where 80% of the people are registered as Democrats. The largest per capita Democratic votes come from this area where the greatest violation of civil rights is found.

THE MOST powerful organization of the Democratic Party in California is the California Democratic Council, CDC, which has long been the greatest supporter of the governor and members of his party. Since 1960 that group has advocated abolition of the loyalty oath and the Un-American Activities Committee of Congress. In general, it has been about as far left as any group in the state. But this year its president went too far in supporting the anti-Viet Nam demonstrations—so the governor demanded its president's resignation. But the organization refused to take such action.

These are the burdens both parties carry. It is evident one is as heavy as the other. But the Republicans get the greatest publicity as these radical groups—made up of very few members—use the party label for their activities. There are just too many separate organizations using one of the two party labels. It is time for both parties to purge their statewide organizations of groups that do not properly reflect the fundamental principles on which the state and national parties are based.

THIS DOES NOT mean any local or fringe group should be denied the right to debate and propose changes in the party. But it should mean those that go against the principles of the party—as set out in their state and national conventions—should be denied the right of using the party label. If that is not done it means the end of the two-party system as we have known it over the years. If the CDC adopts programs in opposition to principles of the Democratic Party it should be denied use of the term "Democratic." If the Young Republicans elect men to their offices who have records of racial hatreds or armed militants they should be denied use of the term "Republican." It is time to eliminate these groups as members of the national party organizations.—L.A.C.

France Is Troubled by Memories

(Editor's note: Based upon his recent trip to France, Drew Pearson diagnoses the political situation there, as the French people vote today on the reelection of President de Gaulle.)

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—What is troubling France today is memory—either too much or not enough.

De Gaulle remembers how Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower failed to consult him regarding the Normandy landing until the day before it started; but he doesn't remember that without that landing he would not be where he is today.

De Gaulle recently told a member of his staff: "If there is another war, French troops would be commanded by an American. I should command those troops."

What De Gaulle doesn't remember is that aside from a brief period when he was a tank commander in World War II, he hasn't commanded troops since 1916 and war has changed a lot in 50 years. But he's pulling France out of the carefully built-up machinery of NATO so a Frenchman can command French troops.

WHAT DE GAULLE also doesn't remember is that when a Frenchman did command those troops, France was pushed into the sea.

He doesn't remember how Winston Churchill picked him from a crowded hotel lobby in Bordeaux when the Nazi armies were only a few hours away and when Frenchmen were taking to small boats to cross the channel; and how Churchill took him, De Gaulle, back to London to groom him as the savior of France.

Especially De Gaulle doesn't remember how France and Britain pulled at cross purposes before Hitler struck and how, if they had cooperated, Hitler couldn't have successfully struck.

De Gaulle doesn't remember how in March 1936 the British cabinet debated all day as Hitler marched into the Rhineland. He doesn't remember that Hitler's troops had two sets of marching orders, one to advance, the other to retreat—if there was any resistance. A show of resistance would have tipped the scales, might have prevented World War II. But the British cabinet debated, the French government waited.

AT THE END of one day it was too late. Hitler had taken the Rhineland and the Ruhr, had the iron and steel of France and World War II was certain.

The Old Man of France, according to his friends, has an elephant's memory. He remembers how Eisenhower sent Gen. Omar Bradley the night before the Normandy landing to tell De Gaulle belatedly that the Allies were about to retake his country.

But De Gaulle doesn't remember how Bradley later delayed the American entry into Paris for one day so De Gaulle could march at the head of Allied troops. And he doesn't remember how President Truman deliberately made a place for France at the Potsdam Conference and gave France a zone of occupation in Germany though France had done no fighting for three years.

De Gaulle also does not remember that the best way to insure American non-cooperation is to alienate American public opinion; and that once American opinion starts swinging isolationist and anti-French, it is difficult to reverse the trend.

TODAY American opinion is strong for NATO, sold on the protection of France, reconciled to keeping American troops in Europe. But it was not always so.

The Old Man of France remembers the lonely days in London which he spent trying to keep together the scattered, defeated remnants of the French Republic. Those were bitter days. He was completely dependent on the United States and Britain, and he vows to make France so independent that never again will it be in this humiliating position. What he wants is to take advantage of our missiles yet have his own missiles too.

It will be interesting to see how much support the French people give him at the polls today.

Johnson Seen Concerned Over Inflation Factors

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Thanks to rapid advances in the technology of interpreting White House statements, it is now possible to state with some assurance that President Johnson is quite worried about the possibility of inflation. The key fact is that the White House "Lone Star Branch" says he is not.

In th new technology this fact is "cranked in," as we bureaucrats say, to an assortment of other data. There is, for example, the fact that President Johnson released aluminum from the stockpile to cause a roll-back in an announced price increase. This is identifiable as a fact because Mr. Johnson declined to admit this was his purpose in turning the metal loose.

IN THE SAME "universe" of data, as we social scientists say, are a roll-back in copper prices, a road block in the path of a bread price increase, a "routine extraordinary" meeting of the President with his economic managers, his personal intervention to obtain a steel wage settlement within shooting distance of anti-inflationary guidelines, and his sturdy announcement on Thursday that we can have our prosperity and eat it too "at prices subject to change without notice" — while mounting a bigger war in Viet Nam.

All that the President has to fear, of course, is an inflationary psychology. This pathological phenomenon has sources in the neurotic behavior of the cost of living index, which reached a new high in October with the help of an accelerating rate of rise: in the misguided zeal of the Viet Cong, obliging us to spend more money on weapons and men: in the curious wish of business men to maintain profit margins: in the insatiable appetite of the working class as manifested at super-market check-out counters.

FREDERIC COLLINS

THERE IS an auxiliary source in the perfectly normal desire of Mr. Johnson to make everyone happy in a large economy size society "costing only pennies more," and another in his normal worry that a few more fractional points on the index might be bad political news in 1966 and perhaps even 1968. You can't blame the head of the house for thinking about such things.

Perhaps it was because he recognized the factor of neuroticism in the inflationary psychology that Mr. Johnson pursued for so long the kindly course of permissiveness rather than discipline. He would have looked like a cross-patch indeed if he had stomped on the wage increases in the automobile and construction industries earlier in this administration, or in the aluminum industry last spring, or on what an uncertified private accountant might have regarded as automobile price increases early this fall.

BESIDES, there was that blessed consensus, firm, symmetrical, a handsome thing to behold, a shelter under which business men were sleeping like babes in the same bed with a Democratic president and the labor unions. It was so quiet around the house! If one of the sleepers stirred he could always make himself drop off again by counting profits, or fringe benefits, or votes.

It would obviously serve little purpose to wake everybody up just because somebody is running off with the parlor furniture, and President Johnson is not one to be at a loss for a better way of dealing with the situation. Obviously, one better way is to make a statement that no one is running away with the parlor furtniture.

And if that doesn't work, there is always "voluntary cooperation," which means that if anyone is caught running away with parlor furniture he claims is his, the president refurnishes the parlor out of the strategic stockpile of what-nots and credendas, and thus takes all the fun and profit out of the caper.

CREWMEN SEE 'OLD 86 PROOF' SWING ASHORE

BUT IT'S NO LONGER THE SAME FOR MOOCHERS

'A Whisky Boat's in Port'

By DICK EMERY

SAN PEDRO—Not all streets along the waterfront are big, shining boulevards.

There are side streets where sunshine never seems to drive away the shadows. And there is old Beacon Street, gone to ruin in a three-block stretch.

In those dreary streets, men loaf who have known better times, times when they could walk into a bar and name a brand—and even pay for the drink.

Now, it's mooch it or stay dry. They sit on steps of a skid-row mission. They doze across locked doorways.

Every week or so, however, an event happens which sends an electric rumor through the listless ones.

"There's a whisky boat in again!"

* * * *

THEN THE weary ones stand up and stretch and they limp along the shabby side streets to the harbor's edge. They watch a freighter moving in.

"Old 86 Proof," one says.

The eyes glow, watching that ship. They glow, and then they dull again. The ship ties up at a berth across the channel. Even from so far away, the watching men can see uniformed guards patrolling the wharf.

"Not a drop for us," says a watcher. And the weary ones limp back along the dirty streets to the mission steps.

The ship opens her hatches, and load after load of cases of whisky are hoisted out and lowered to the wharf. Longshoremen trundle the loads into a warehouse and stack the cases 15 feet high.

Armed guards keep watch. There are guards everywhere. The old days of dropped cases, of leakages which cheered the waterfront shadows—those days are no more.

There aren't really any more "whisky boats" in the old-days' meaning of "whisky boat." Such a a ship was a chartered vessel full of nothing but whisky, like the British Prince which brought over an all-time record cargo of 290,000 cases back in 1957. That's 3,480,000 bottles of Scotch!

* * * *

CARGOES OF Scotch come into this port now, every few days, along with other cargo on big freighters. The Scotch averages 35,000 cases per ship in early months of the year, but picks up to 50,000 by fall, when buyers are stocking shelves for the holidays.

Facts about the flood of Scotch were summarized by the public relations department of the Port of Los Angeles. The port's spokesman noted that in 12 months, ships brought in 20,165 tons of distilled spirits. Tons—not bottles, or even barrels!

"Mostly Scotch, with a wee bit of gin," he said.

Even in their dreams of bygone prosperity and high living, the side-street weary ones cannot imagine such an ocean of alcohol.

"The distilled spirits," the spokesman said, "averaged 50 cases to the ton."

Fifty cases of 12 fifths each, or 600 bottles times 20,165 tons—why, put it all down and the resulting hangover if laid end to end would reach from the 400-block of Beacon Street where the weary ones sit, all the way back to Scotland by way of the moon!

"WE ARE going to join with other city groups in making the welcome for the USS Long Beach one of the outstanding events in the city's history," Wade said. The nuclear-powered missile cruiser is expected to tie up here for the first time sometime in March.

The board of directors includes Frank Fisher, president of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard Employes Association; Art Moore, president of the Fleet Reserve Association; Al Warhurst, president of the U.S. Naval Weapons Station Employes Association; Radell Moore, president of the Long Beach Postal Employes Association.

Also Buddy Gilman of Douglas Aircraft Co. and president of the 11th District Navy League; Bill Koester of Sears Roebuck Co.; and Robert McNulty, president of Diamond Cab Co.

U.S. Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, was present at the election meeting and complimented the IMBA on its outstanding work for the Navy.

Rep. Hosmer is captain in the Naval Reserve and has just concluded a duty tour with the 7th Fleet.

New Warehouse

Ground will be broken at 3 p.m. Monday for a new Mayflower Van Lines Co. warehouse at 3701 Industry Ave., Lakewood. Company and city officials will take part in the ceremony.

Bus Passenger Revenue Drops

Passenger revenue of Long Beach Public Transportation Co. decreased 2.1% last fiscal year, but the firm was able to continue replacing obsolete vehicles with the aid of the annual city subsidy.

An operating deficit of $61,909 was converted into $332,541 net income after the city's payment of $394,450. The subsidy came from a special tax levy authorized by a voter - approved charter amendment.

Revenue from passengers dwindled from the previous years' $1,942,969 to $1,901,749, according to an annual report just released by City Auditor Murray T. Courson.

* * * *

THE DECLINE was a continuation of a general trend. However, company officials noted the passenger loss is beginning to level off. It also is far below the rate of decline under the previous ownership.

Charter revenue moved up from $95,678 to $118,896, and advertising income gained from $23,197 to $36,864. Thus the 1964-65 total revenue was off only $4,335 from the previous year's figure of $2,061,844.

At the end of the fiscal year the company had taken delivery on 62 new buses, and 16 others were recently acquired. The purchase of 18 more will complete the replacement of the obsolete fleet taken over by the new company in September, 1963, from its predecessor, Long Beach Motor Bus Co. Only 15 of the vehicles acquired at that time were of modern design and vintage.

A major reason for the operating deficit, a company spokesman pointed out, is that the rapid replacement of buses has increased the accounting charge for depreciation.

NEW MASTER

H. Douglas Lemons will be installed Worshipful Master of Bixby Knolls Masonic Lodge 699 at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Masonic Temple, 3610 Locust Ave.

Meet Set on Civil Defense

More than 100 civil defense officials will meet Friday in Long Beach for an all-day series of discussions of disaster recovery activities.

The bi-monthly conference of the Southern California Civil Defense and Disaster Association will convene at 9:30 a.m. in the Edgewater Inn.

Among the speakers will be Col. Melville I. Stark, Riverside County CD director, who will head a discussion of emergency resources management, and Adam Wiley, radiological defense coordinator of the Los Angeles County Air Pollution Control District, who will tell plans to cope with day-to-day peacetime radiation problems.

Presiding will be Elmer Kell, Beverly Hills CD director and president of the association. Sessions are open to the public.

Vet Service Office

COMPTON—The Compton branch of the Los Angeles County Veterans Service Office, 212 S. Acacia St., will be open Wednesday of each week from 9 to 5 p.m., according to Arthur H. Tyron, county service office.

John C. Shaffer, veterans claims officer, will assist veterans in filing claims for benefits.

Building Is Slowed by Rains

I-P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Heavy rains during November apparently slowed construction, and the month's building volume totaled only $29.4 million in the area served by the county's Building and Safety Division.

County Engineer John A. Lambie reported the month's figure brought 1965 building volume in the unincorporated area and the 30 cities served by the division to $376,040,274.

During the same period of 1964, the total was $455,420,373, Lambie said.

* * * *

THE record high for any November was the $45.1-million volume recorded in 1962. Last November, the total was $30.5 million.

Lambie reported 1,968 building permits totaling $22.6 million were issued by the division for construction in the unincorporated area. In the 30 cities served by the division, there were 815 permits issued for $6.6 million.

Because the engineering department is changing its data processing system no breakdown of figures for the cities is available this month.

U.S. Junior C-C Award to L.B. Unit

The Long Beach Junior Chamber won the award for updating and modernizing the 130-page Long Beach Traffic Ordinance. The new traffic ordinance went into effect Dec. 5, 1964.

The award states: "Whereby, in examining the community and designing action project to alleviate needs found by analysis of that examination, this Chapter did give its membership and the public an increased awareness of the local problems and did thereby contribute to the over-all growth and development of the community."

Avalon Men View L.A.'s 'Gate' to Isle

Avalon city officials had a preview of the $1-million sea and air facility that will serve Catalina Island on a Saturday tour of the "Gateway to Catalina" terminal under construction in San Pedro.

They also were the first to make use of the amphibian-aircraft ramp at the facility, under construction beneath the Vincent Thomas Bridge, when they arrived at noon from the island.

Greeted by Charles Stilwell, operator of the steamship Catalina, were Mayor Fred Hochberg, Vice Mayor Herbert Wegmann, Councilmen James Burke and Bert Guthrie, City Manager Cal Conrad and Don Haney, editor of the Catalina newspaper.

* * * *

THE PREVIEW flight was piloted by Bob Hanley, president of Catalina Seaplanes Inc., which will share the facilities with the steamship operators.

Stilwell said it was expected the facility would be ready for use by Feb. 15, but the Catalina will not begin its summer season schedule of runs from the terminal until May.

The facility is being constructed by the Port of Los Angeles to replace the present terminal building in Wilmington, which has been condemned.

New Congregations Planned by Lutherans

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The American Lutheran Church announced Saturday it has voted to start 62 new congregations.

The church's Board of American Missions estimated cost of the 1966 program, including capital fund loans to new congregations, at $8,033,000. Loan funds for the new churches will average $125,000.

ACTOR HEADS JUDGES

Boat Parade Dec. 18

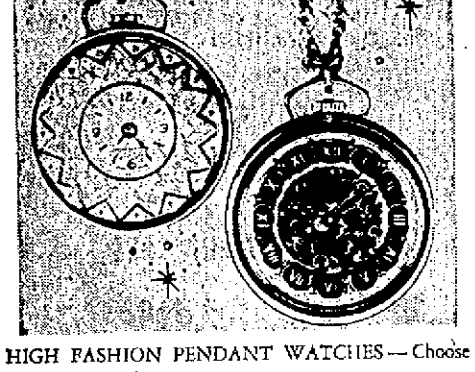

Actor Preston Foster, a motion-picture and television waterfront character, will head a panel of judges at the third annual "Christmas Afloat" parade of lighted boats in Los Angeles Harbor Dec. 18.

An officer in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve and featured player of the TV series "Waterfront," Foster will judge the parade along with George D. Watson, president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, Los Angeles; Capt. Roger M. Dudley, USCG; Col. Mark F. Brennan, commanding officer of Ft. MacArthur; Maj. Lawrence H. Shutte, commander of the 670th Radar Station, USAF; Capt. M. H. Lytle, commander Naval Station, Long Beach, and Dr. John R. Goode.

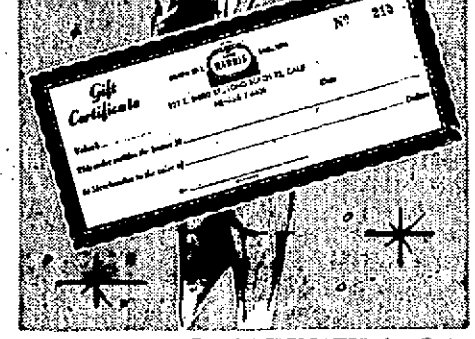

There will be three classes of judging: individually decorated boats, group decorated boats and boats entered by communities.

Route of the parade, which begins at 7 p.m., will be from the East Basin, near the Matson Terminal in the Wilmington district, down the Main Channel along the San Pedro waterfront to the Outer Harbor at Cabrillo Beach, returning to the Main Channel and disbanding near the Vincent Thomas Bridge.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Blue Chip Stocks Down as Market Remains Dull

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue chip stocks continued to drift lower last week while a handful of secondary shares and special situations captured most of the buying interest.

Prices started off on the wrong foot with a 1.23 drop in the Dow-Jones industrial average on Monday and followed up with another 0.22 deficit on Tuesday. A modest 0.89 gain was wrung out Wednesday but a 3.01 drop on Thursday further swelled the loss on the week. A special hand from autos and a few other issues boosted the indicator 1.51 in the final session.

Wall Streeters generally ignored the incoming news this week and seemed to concentrate more on finding special situations in the list. While this hunt-and-buy method produced several interesting highlights it left the over-all list with a dull tone.

* * * *

HOWEVER, THE majority of analysts feel the present situation is more or less normal for this time of year—the tax season—and that tax selling and switching may keep the list churning for awhile. Some of the experts said they would not be surprised to see some further backtracking in view of the large gains run up since June.

Once the tax season is over and things get back to a condition resembling a normal market, the experts see a brisk year-end rally. Forecasts of a 1,000 breakthrough for the Dow-Jones industrial average are still being maintained and some of the chartists have found encouragement for their beliefs in the recent bullish action of the rail barometer.

Dow-Jones industrials slid 2.06 on the week to 946.10. Rails, however, jumped 1.37 to finish at a new peak of 243.70. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index slipped 0.76 to 91.27.

* * * *

TRADING TOTALED 45,136,880 shares compared with 28,373,660 shares in the four sessions a week before and 23,239,632 shares in the same week last year.

This was the broadest weekly market on record with 1553 issues traded. There were 716 losers in the list, 112 at new 1965 lows, and 608 gainers, 280 at new highs.

Fairchild-Hiller topped the active list with a gain of 4¼ at 21 on 767,300 shares. Pan American World Airways took second place with a gain of 3¾ at 47⅛ on 648,400 shares.

Electrical & Musical Instruments placed third with a gain of ¼ at 5 on 632,400 shares. The company said this week it expects its first fiscal half profits to approximate the year ago level. Sperry Rand advanced 1⅛ to 195⅛ on 577,200 shares in fourth spot. Sperry this week introduced a new system as its first entry into the super computer field.

* * * *

SCM CORP. was also active. It jumped 4 points after the directors declared a 10-cent cash payment, its first since 1959, and a 2½% stock dividend.

General Dynamics climbed 6½ points in active dealings. On Friday the Defense Department announced plans to go ahead with production of the F111 Air Force reconnaisance plane. General Dynamics will do the work on the contract for which $12 million has been authorized for initial development.

Autos were soft with General Motors down 1¼, Ford 1 and American Motors ¾. Chrysler tacked on ⅛. Steels were mostly fractions lower. Chemicals were also easier with Union Carbide down 1½ and Eastman Kodak and Du Pont off fractions.

* * * *

ELECTRONICS were heavily sold this week with most of the downward pressure apparently stemming from profit-taking. IBM sank 29 points after it said it expects that its profit gain from 1964 may narrow in the present quarter.

Motorola tumbled 9½, Beckman 7⅛, Admiral 4¾, Zenith 3¾ and RCA 2⅛, the last despite a dividend boost on Friday. Texas Instruments added 3⅛ and Honeywell rose 3¼. Fairchild Camera was a standout with a king-sized gain of 12¾.

Profit-taking was also seen in a few sessions in the airlines but the group finished mostly higher. Delta was ahead 5¾, United 7⅛, Western 4⅝ and National 4. KLM Royal Dutch shed 3 and Northwest eased 1¾.

North American Aviation and Boeing sold off, losing 3 and 1¾ respectively but United Aircraft jumped 7¾, Douglas 3⅜ and Grumman 3⅝.

* * * *

SCOVILLE MFG. rose 4 points on a dividend boost and plans for a 2-for-1 stock split. American Broadcasting soared 9⅝ after it announced it was holding merger talks with International Telephone. International Telephone tacked on ⅛.

Pennzoil sprinted 5 points and United Gas advanced 2 to 40¼ after Pennzoil said it was considering extending its original offer to acquire 1 million United Gas shares at $41 each to more than 4 million shares or about 38% of the total outstanding.

Buckingham rose 3⅛ on a dividend increase and proposed a 2-for-1 stock split. Paramount Pictures shed 1⅞ on news its third quarter profits had dropped sharply. Kennecott Copper advanced 5⅜. Kennecott said this week it will open a lead mine in Missouri.

Teen-age Girl Dies Following Drinking Party

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sheriff's deputies said a 16-year-old girl was found dead in her home Saturday after a teen-age drinking party.

The victim was Mary Frances Andrzejewski of Marchmont Riviera, a Sacramento suburb.

Deputies booked four teen-age boys on charges of lewd and lascivious conduct. They said the girl lost consciousness during a party at the home of a 17-year-old boy, whose parents were away.

The boys took the girl to her home, where her body was found by a younger sister.

Santo Domingo U.S. Troops Cut to 6,800

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — American armed strength in the Dominican Republic has been reduced to about 6,800 men from a midyear peak of about 25,000, a U.S. military spokesman reported Saturday.

This is the minimum level at which U.S. armed forces will be kept in this country—unless an emergency arises—until the Inter-American Peace Force is evacuated. The total strength of the OAS peace force now is about 8,000.

We've got a word of advice for all you dish slaves.

Be a dish master.

You don't have to put your hands in hot, soapy water three times a day. Or spend all that time, either. Not if you've got a new Dishmaster Imperial, you don't.

Dishmaster is ideal for husbands who hate to do dishes. And for wives who haven't been able to get their husbands to do dishes. It's quick. Simple. And very clean.

Don't be a dish slave. Be a dish master. Buy a Dishmaster at any of the leading hardware, plumbing, appliance or department stores listed below. It'll fit any sink. And for best results, be sure to pick up a bottle of Dishmaster concentrated detergent.

Just push the button for suds.

Release it for rinse.

And rack the dish to drain.

LOS ALTOS GROUP

Y's Men Expect to Raise $25,000 From Yule Trees

The Y's Men of the Los Altos YMCA Men's Club are making their annual pilgrimage to their Christmas Tree lot at Atherton Street and Bellflower Boulevard Dec. 4.

If all goes as expected, end of the Christmas tree season will see the Y's Men close their books on another $25,000 gross — the amount raised last year.

While this has the jingle-jingle bell sound of commercialism—and fund raising is a big activity of the Los Altos Y's Men — the goals are about as far from commerialism at Christmas that you can get.

The money raised goes to keep the more than 3,000 youngsters in more than 200 youth groups at the Los Altos Y functioning in a wide variety of activities throughout the year.

(Christmas tree sales are not the only fund-raising activities of the Y which has 6000 members. Other activities include an annual carnival ($3000) and pancake breakfast ($1200-$1500); membership enrollment ($100,000 over the past five years.)

• • • •

A STABLE GROUP, the Y's Men is composed of about 60 members. It was established five years ago and has been led by Don Berger, Bruce Kerr, Leon Forman, Leon Smith and at present, Ken McKee. They meet the first and third Saturdays of each month for a 7:30 breakfast, and carry out a highly intensive program of service to youth, to the Y and the community.

Its youth activity program — one of largest in the nation — works with boys and girls from the first grade (Indian Guides) through high school age. A college youth program now is in the making.

Among other activities, the men drive buses and are camp counselors; provide officials or sporting activities; arrange recognition programs for outstanding boy and girl members each month; help sponsor students at various conferences in other cities and countries, sponsor and host youth from other areas; support scholarships for students whose college careers are YMCA service-directed.

• • • •

THE GROUP pledged $36,500 and this year will make the final $9,000 payment on the outdoor swimming pool at the Y. It provides leadership and manpower for the membership campaign to the Y, organized in 1958.

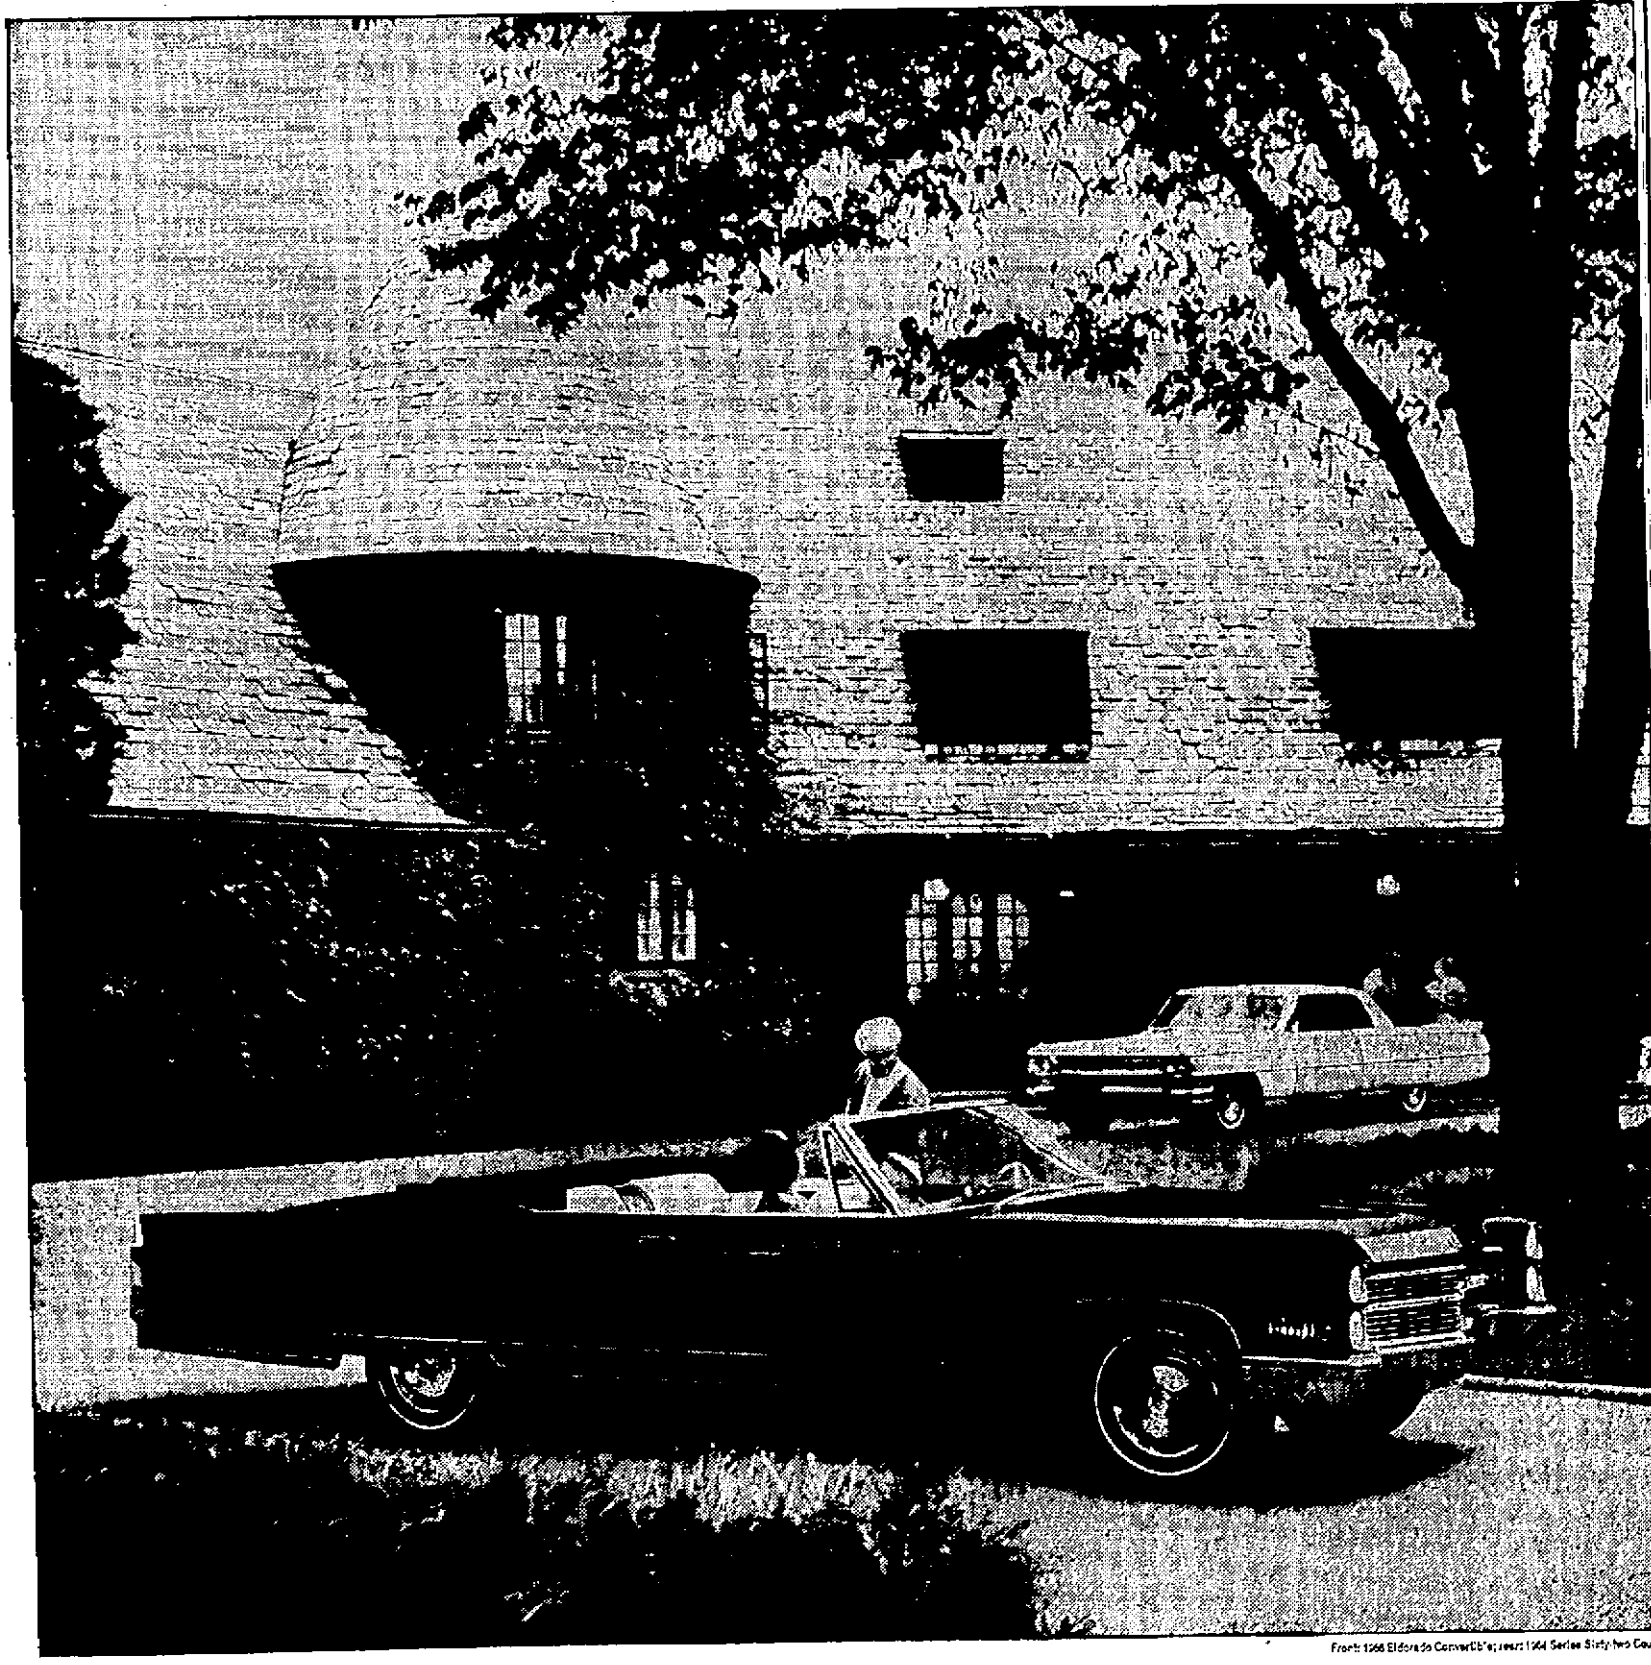

Its community service program includes recognition for local athletes who have performed in the best interests of the greater Long Beach community and participation in community programs.

VOLS FLAG DOWN BRUINS, 37-34

Prothro Rips Refs, You All

By JEROME HALL
I. P-T Staff Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—It was homecoming day for a favorite son here Saturday and it was, in the vernacular of the territory, plum distasteful for the coach of the Rose Bowl-bound UCLA football team.

Touchdowns were stacked high along the levee of the Mississippi River that flows near Memphis Memorial Stadium as the University of Tennessee Volunteers applied a 37-34 defeat to the record of the team that soon will carry the West Coast banner against national champion Michigan State.

The Volunteers, who averaged six pass completions a game in compiling a season record of 8-1-1 that earned a place in the Bluebonnet Bowl, ripped the Pacific Coast champions apart with aerial stuff in this one.

Tennessee's sophomore substitute quarterback Dewey Warren completed 19 passes for 274 yards in a back-and-forth battle that had the crowd of 44,495 standing, shouting and waving their arms through much of the final quarter as the teams traded leads. In Tennessee the fans are accustomed to 10 points a game, not 10 touchdowns.

The Volunteers tallied the deciding touchdown on a fourth-down line prod by Warren with 39 seconds remaining.

To call it "plum distasteful" to Prothro is a gross understatement. After the game he lashed out at the officiating, "I'm embarrassed I'm a Southerner," said Prothro, a high school hero in Memphis before he became a college hero at Duke.

"I was proud before today, but I'm not sure anymore." He admitted his team did not have one of its better days. "We have played a lot better, but not in this type situation," he blurted.

"The pro All-Stars couldn't have won out there today. The officials gave Tennessee three extra time outs in that last drive. They (Tennessee) threw a lateral (which UCLA recovered) and the officials called it an incomplete pass. I won't single out any one play (for poor officiating) because I could be here all night," said the coach who seldom in his long career has criticised game officials. "The Southern officials were determined to win it and they did."

Prothro, who usually speaks softly and slowly in a drawl, shouted and snarled along the sideline as the Volunteers drove the length of the field in the waning seconds to recapture the lead that UCLA had moments before recaptured with some spectacular passing and running.

Prothro charged onto the field on a 20-yard pass interference penalty against his team that was the key play of the drive and was, even by Southern viewpoint, questionable.

And, as the game ended, there were some punches thrown by players from both sides in front of the UCLA bench. UCLA assistant coach John Cooper, another Memphis native, was knocked down in the melee.

It was a match of the nation's fifth-ranked team, UCLA, against the nation's seventh-ranked team which is headed for a match against Tulsa two weeks hence in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Tennessee was supposed to possess one of the two or three best defenses in the nation, having allowed but one touchdown a game on the average. But the Bruins ran for 233 yards and passed for 130 in tallying five times.

Bruin sophomore quarterback Gary Beban completed eight of 15 for the 130 yards and he got another 84 running. He broke the UCLA one-year total offense record. He scored three touchdowns, one of them on a beautiful broken-field run of 36 yards, but the Bruins couldn't come up with the so-called long bomb that they used to pull out the game against USC.

The only long pass connection of the day, a 65-yarder from Beban to end Kurt Altenberg, was watered down by an official's falling flag on a clipping penalty.

So the Bruins take a 7 wins, 2 loss, 1 tie record against the monsters from Michigan State New Year's Day. The Bruins learned two things here this day—they can run against a strong ground defense and (2), they have serious problems stopping a hot passer when he has hot receivers.

Tennessee had both as the sub QB, Warren, threw while he was falling down and his targets caught the ball either standing up or falling down.

If the Volunteers play this way against Tulsa, the NCAA passing record smashers, on Dec. 18, it will be a game worth watching.

UCLA got the game's first touchdown and it was deceptively easy. When the Tennessee runner fumbled away

S.F. Prunes Vikings With 2nd-Half Rally

Mistakes Cripple LB, 40-20

By GARY RAUSCH
I. P-T Staff Writer

SAN JOSE — City College of San Francisco converted a half-dozen Long Beach City College mistakes into a 40-20 victory Saturday in the third Prune Bowl.

Before a crowd of 4,500 in Spartan Stadium, the Rams poured across 28 points in the second half to nullify a 20-point Viking second quarter and two eight-point LBCC leads.

The boys from North Beach swept all the awards and the Vikings treked home without even a wrinkled prune to show for their efforts.

HALFBACK O.J. Simpson scored three touchdowns and gained only 81 yards rushing, far below his 136-a-game average, but was named "Back of Game by the press."

Actually no vote was taken nor were ballots distributed. Teammate Mike Taylor, a 258-pound tackle, was tabbed the games top lineman—a worthy choice—but Simpson's award was a railroad job.

Soprtwriters, by vocal acclaim, unanimously felt LBCC's all-America quarterback Greg Barton was the best back on the field.

The flat-topped Millikan High graduate saved his best for last. He completed 20 of 36 passes for a school-record 271 yards and three touchdowns.

His favorite receiver, Ron Drake, bowed out as a Viking with an equally impressive afternoon. Drake caught 10 passes for 105 yards.

* * * *

HOWEVER, Long Beach mistakes proved costly. Six of Barton's passes were dropped, two in the end zone. The Vikes lost three fumbles and were docked 92 yards in penalties, the costliest coming from the defense.

Still LBCC had standout performances from linebackers Don Sam, Steve Swanson and Reggie Fielder, the latter playing nearly 60 minutes, plus the offensive line of John Lolliffe, Fielder, Rich Van Winkle, Doug McKenzie, Clark Wright and Rick Bartnett.

The pass protection for Barton was exceptional with the

THAT TAKES CARE OF BIG TEN

UCLA Blitzes Illinois

By DAVE LEWIS

With little Mike Warren supplying the vital offensive spark, UCLA's national basketball champions came charging from behind for the second straight night to defeat Illinois, 97-79, Saturday before 12,265 fans in Pauley Pavilion.

Warren, the 5-10 sophomore whiz from South Bend, definitely established himself as a worthy successor to Walt Hazzard and Gail Goodrich of UCLA's two title teams as he led the Bruins with 28 points.

Pattern of the game pretty much followed that of Friday night's 92-66 win over another Big Ten foe, Ohio State.

However, for a time it appeared that Dec. 4 would become an infamous date in UCLA basketball history before the Bruins shook off their half shooting jitters to turn back the Illini for their second official victory of the season.

* * * *

IT WAS just a year ago on the same date that Illinois defeated UCLA, 110-83, in the season's opener before the Bruins rebounded to win their second consecutive NCAA crown.

Illinois was on the verge of knocking the Bruins out of it at one point in the first half with a fast break that consistently threaded UCLA's full - court press. The Illini pulled out to a 12-point margin at 45-33 with two minutes left in the half.

Just when things looked darkest the Bruins exploded with one of their patented rallies. They scored eight straight points in the last 1:42 to cut the count to 45-41 at intermission.

Warren led off the rally with an eight-foot jumper, Randy Judd followed with another eight-footer, Mike Lynn dropped in two free throws and Don Saffer capped the surge with a 20-footer just 10 seconds before the buzzer.

UCLA quickly tied the score as the second half got under way and finally forged into its first lead at 51-50 on Don McIntosh's tip-in. The Bruins were now picking up steam and less than two minutes later they lengthened their lead to five on back-to-back 15-foot jump shots by Warren.

In the preliminary game, 7-1½ Lew Alcindor was the big noise for the UCLA Frosh once again as he scored 27 points, grabbed 28 rebounds and blocked five shots in leading the Brubabes to a 94-64 victory over Pierce JC.

49ers, Cold at Foul Line, Hand San Diego 66-64 Win

By DOUG IVES

Long Beach State overcame an 11-point deficit midway in the second half, then couldn't stand prosperity and handed San Diego a 66-64 victory in the first game of a double-header at Los Angeles State Saturday night.

The 49ers missed seven of their last eight free throw attempts, which won't win any close games, and also couldn't get their run-run offense going against the slow-motion San Diegans.

"We had every chance to win and couldn't," moaned coach Dick Perry, whose club now is 1-1 without the aid of star guard Carl Washington, the wheelhorse in the team's fast break. Washington has a sprained ankle.

Trailing 48-37 with 11:28 left, the 49ers outscored the overrated Toreros 14-3 in three minutes to gain a 51-51 standoff, then shot out by 57-53 on a tip by John Broeske, Chuck Hagen's long jumper and John Chambers' 15-footer.

* * * *

THE FINAL 6½ minutes was all frustration, however. Pat Holmes, who helped spark the second-half rally, missed three free throws; Hagen, the best player on the court with 22 points, failed on two foul tries; and reserve George Seeley made only 1 of 3.

On five occasions the 49ers went to the line with the bonus situation in effect — that is, if you make the first shot, you get the second. Four times they failed, and once Seeley hit one.

Ironically, San Diego won with accuracy from the line, sinking 4 of 5 in the last two minutes, including two by sub center Dan Wightman with 19 seconds left that made the score 66-62. Chambers scored at 0:12, but LBSC never again touched the ball.

Six players fouled out, three on each side. A bad pass by Chambers with 27 seconds remaining kept the 49ers from a chance at the tying basket.

Twogood Sees Bright Spots as Trojans Bow

By AL LARSON
I. P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS — Basketball's scoring tempo has picked up considerably since USC and St. Louis University last met. The Billikens played the Trojans in 1932 and won that lone meeting, 32-20.

Saturday night the Bills shook off the Trojans' second half comeback to score a 77-72 victory before 7,630 fans at Kiel Auditorium.

The defeat marked USC's second intersectional setback in as many nights, but coach Forrest Twogood saw several bright spots.

"It's mighty tough winning on the road, but I think I've got a pretty good line on our kids after these two games," said Twogood, who saw his Trojans bow to Butler, 77-75, Friday night.

"Maggard (Mike) has got to play," continued Twogood. "He came off the bench and did a fine job (12 points and eight rebounds before fouling out) and Bill Westphal gave us the good shot the second half.

"Block (John) was in foul trouble the first half (with four), but helped up late in the game during our big spurt and looked good. I know I'll have to let Harvey (Dillon) play. He'll make a lot of mistakes as a sophomore, but he'll be a great one. The battle for the other guard spot will be between Doug Bolcom and John Bacon."

The Bills threatened to run away the first half, dashing to a 14-point lead, 43-29, and led at intermission, 46-34. However, after his boys had

Stadium on the 'Half Shell'

Personal opinions, of others:

"Dear Hank: The Board of Directors of this organization, representing some 250 leaders in the construction industry, has gone on record favoring the earliest possible completion of Long Beach's 'half shell' municipal stadium.

"This action was NOT motivated by any expectation of personal gain from the construction work involved, but rather because the directors feel that Long Beach needs and deserves an outdoor sports facility worthy of its rank as California's fifth largest city and the second largest metropolis in Los Angeles County.

"The time has come for Long Beach to 'grow up', not alone in its skyline but in its community thinking. Civic 'myopia' has too long obscured its vision in respect to need for an adequate stadium.

"It may be fashionable to serve oysters on the 'half shell', but something more is needed to satisfy the appetites of the sports fans who constitute a large and important segment of the population in the Greater Long Beach area." (signed) Jack Horner, manager, Builders' Exchange of Long Beach, Inc., 1423 Walnut Ave.

(Comment: With the powerful Builders' Exchange now on record also as backing the vital Veterans Stadium improvement drive, isn't it just about time the City itself moves into the picture immediately? Many people other than myself think so!)

A GENTLEMAN whose son is an athlete and therefore wishes to remain anonymous elaborates on a well-taken point by our Doug Ives about the insanity of college all-Coast selections.

"Have you noticed the really far-out choice that UPI gave us the other day? This was the nomination of USC's Tim Rossovich as all-Coast defensive end. Tim started the first game against Minnesota at defensive end and played so poorly that he was replaced by Jim Walker for the balance of the season. The only other time that I recall him getting into a game except to kick, was for a few minutes at OFFENSIVE end against Wyoming when the score had mounted beyond recognition.

"How can he have been an 'all-Coast' choice when he didn't even play a whole game all year? This is especially bad because it is a fairly local deal, not a nationwide thing like the all-American where no one sees the players anyway. Also, it is picked at the end of the year, not after the third game like some A-A teams.

"I could make some other remarks such as the fact that Jeff Smith who made all-Coast linebacker was not even the second-best backer on his own team, but why bother?

"All-star teams are meaningless, perhaps, but not to the kids involved."

(Comment: The issue of "all-something" teams has been a source of irritation to this department for years. We previously commented on a non-existent Long Beach State player named to an all-star team, the fact that USC's Mike Garrett was placed on a magazine's pre-season DEFENSIVE club, and that 15 years ago an USC player was given honorable mention status after one game's play and following his death while in service . . . something the "selectors" couldn't know when the team was picked in OCTOBER! Suffice to say when the pros draft they pay little attention to college "all-star" outfits.)

AN OPEN LETTER from Howard Hillman, formerly of Long Beach, who has headed the Academy of Sports Editors for five years:

"The method of selecting the new baseball commissioner leaves much to be desired and is against the best interests of baseball and the general public. A baseball commissioner was not selected, but rather an executive director.

"It appears that the new commissioner will be under too much control from the baseball club owners. Why General Eckert? His background is impressive when one looks at his three stars—by no means an easy achievement. However, specific qualifications are needed for the specific office of the baseball commissioner.

"We must honestly ask ourselves whether there exist other men more qualified. I think so. Among the qualified is William A. Shea, a man who has won the editorial support from many of you (sports editors). If we wanted a general, what about Gen. James Gavin who has proven his love and support for sports, not to mention his exceptional administrative ability.

"Many qualified men exist for the position, but why General Eckert? The answer seems simple enough. General Eckert would more likely yield to the influence of the club owners who chose him.

"YOU, the editorialists, should have aroused the fans to prevent the baseball club owners from trying to get away with a secret meeting that named the new commissioner before his name was placed in nomination before the conscience of the American public."

(Comment: We, the editorialists, had no knowledge of a secret meeting. Certainly, Gen. Eckert's appointment as baseball's No. 1 man came as a surprise to most of us. My selection would have been Joe Cronin, American League president and a former baseball star. But the owners didn't ask me to vote. In the meantime, let's give Gen. Eckert a chance. After all, he may change the balk rule to the liking of Walter Alston.)

22 FOR RUSSELL

Duke, Michigan, St. Joseph's Romp

Combined Wire Services

Nationally-rated basketball teams had little trouble Saturday in routing their collegiate foes as Duke, Michigan, St. Joseph's, BYU, Minnesota and Iowa waltzed to easy victories.

Stocky Bob Verga poured in 22 points, mostly on driving lay-ins to pace the slow-starting Blue Devils to an 83-68 win over Clemson.

Cazzie Russell (22), John Clawson (22) and Craig Dill (21) led well-balanced Michigan over Bowling Green, 108-70.

Seventh-rated Minnesota spurted in the final three minutes to thwart Iowa State, 80-69, as Paul Presthus scored 20 and Lou Hudson added 18 for the Gophers.

* * * *

IT TOOK an all-around performance by Iowa's George Peeples to shatter Evansville's 35-game win streak, but the Hawkeyes raced to an 80-73 win over the NCAA small college division national champs.

Peeples scored 29 and had 24 rebounds to overshadow Larry Humes' 27 points for the Aces.

Dick Snyder scored a career high 40 and Dave Schellhase collected 35 to propel Davidson and Purdue to easy victories.

Davidson humbled Bucknell, 90-48, and Purdue outlasted Detroit, 82-75.

* * * *

WISCONSIN used superior height to overpower Notre Dame, 97-79, but Villanova's scoring ace, Bill Melchionni didn't fare as well and Providence tamed the Wildcats, 69-59.

High-scoring Oklahoma City and BYU continued to win, but the Southwest team had trouble with St. Bonaventure before taking a 79-71 verdict. BYU romped past Houston, 111-85.

Dave Milam's two free throws with 22 seconds gave Northwestern a 62-60 win over Ohio U.; Arkansas thumped Missouri, 75-62; Western Michigan upset Michigan State, 85-82 and Texas broke open a see-saw affair with Mississippi, to win, 80-71.

Former NBA great, Bob Cousy, now in his second year of college coaching, was rewarded with a 107-85 win over Dartmouth by his Boston College team.

St. Joseph's (Pa.), regarded by many as the top team in the nation, rambled to a 100-74 win over Fairfield, and Oklahoma held off a torrid Indiana rally to nip the favorites, 83-82.

Falcons End Year Unbeaten

By BRUCE YOUNG
I.-P-T Staff Writer

BAKERSFIELD — The 18th Shrine Potato Bowl game is over and all intelligent guessers say the final score of Saturday night's tussle was Cerritos 41, Boise, Ida., 12.

But that is only an intelligent guess.

The game was played in fog so thick that the field was not visible from the stands at Bakersfield College's Memorial Stadium and maximum visiblity on the field was two yards.

Some 12,180 fans, however, were there for the start, but only a handful of spectators, who could do nothing but listen to the description by the public address announcer, were left at the conclusion.

* * * *

CERRITOS College took advantage of the pea-soup blanket to complete its first undefeated season. The rout kept the Falcons, who finished with a 10-0 record, in the running for the national championship.

Freshman Dan Laskowski took individual running honors as the 168-pound bullet scored two touchdowns on spectacular 92 and 59-yard runs in which he got lost in the fog and suddenly reappeared in the end zone.

Second string quarterback Reid Braden shared the spotlight as the former Mayfair High star tossed three touchdown passes. He also threw two conversion passes.

FIRST QUARTER

Boise took the opening kickoff and marched to its 34 before Jim Evenson fumbled and linebacker Jeff Lancaster recovered for Cerritos with 13:30 remaining.

Jerry Davis marched the Metropolitan Conference champions to paydirt in seven plays, capping the drive with a 25-yard pass to end Bob Biggs in the end-zone.

SECOND QUARTER

The Falcons took over on their own 16 before fumbling the ball over to Boise on the 45. But Cerritos regained the ball two plays later when Gary Bernstein picked off Bill Ingram's pass on his 31.

Four plays later the Falcons moved to the 41 and then 167-pound speedster Dan Laskowski turned right end and outraced the secondary to the end zone.

Danny Scott's conversion was wide and Cerritos opened its advantage to 13-0, which it took into the dressing room at halftime.

THIRD QUARTER

Cerritos wasted little time in the second half as Laskowski ran the opening kickoff back 92 yards for a touchdown. The conversion attempt failed and the score jumped to 19-0.

Braden took over at quarterback and marched the winners 85 yards in 9 plays. Braden, from the Boise 28, somehow saw Scott all alone in the end zone and hit the freshman sensation to give Cerritos a 25-0 advantage.

FOURTH QUARTER

The fourth quarter turned into a wild scoring fiasco as both teams tallied at will on the dumbfounded defenses which could barely see across the line of scrimmage.

No Seal Bark, Blades Embark on 'Win' Skein

By RICH ROBERTS

San Francisco's Seals might have a justified complaint, but the Blades couldn't be happier about Saturday night's 3-0 victory at the L.A. Sports Arena.

Brilliant goal keeping by Ed Johnston and scores by rookie Bill Orban, Warren Hynes and Cliff Pennington lifted the Blades from last place in the Western Hockey League into a tie for fourth with the Seals to the cheers of 6,518.

Johnston, who gave the Seals only one goal up north Friday night in his first start since arriving on short-term loan from the Boston Bruins, took credit for the Blades' first shutout of the season. It was the third time the Seals had been blanked.

Hockey Talk...Pg C-6

* * * *

JOHNSTON had to make 31 saves but was on top of the puck every time San Francisco turned on the pressure.

The Seals played the last period under protest when general manager Bud Poile, seated next to the I. P-T reporter in the press box, disputed a rule interpretation by referee Barry Balance. The rule book proved Poile right.

"He blew it," Poile charged, adding that he knew the protest "won't be allowed. I never heard of it in hockey anyway."

The protest arose after the Blades' second goal near the end of the second period. Hynes took a long lead pass from Camille Bedard, had the jump on defenseman John Gravel, faked goalie Jack McCartan to the ice and dumped it into the net at the last instance.

* * * *

WHEN LINESMAN Jay Evans skated toward the net to retrieve the puck, McCartan complained that Hynes had been offsides and inadvertently bumped the official down, drawing an immediate 10-minute misconduct penalty and automatic $25 fine. Evans was cut above the right ankle. But WHL rule book states (Rule 32, Sec. D) that the time must be served by a player who was on the ice to be designated by the guilty team.

Instead, Balance designated forward Gerry Brisson, usurping the Seals' privilege. Poile announced the protest as the second period got under way, the Blades leading 2-0.

* * * *

JOHNSTON recalled three shutouts with Boston last season — two against Montreal and one against Toronto.

"My best save tonight was on a screen shot by Gravel from the point in the second period," he said. "I just did get my glove up to deflect it. Otherwise, the club played real well in front of me."

He also agreed that the only Seal goal in the 2-1 win Friday night was a fluke. A shot by Jean-Marc Picard bounced off George Swarbrick's chest and into the net.

The Blades' first goal Saturday was scored by Orban late in the first period. He nudged a dying shot by Ray LaRose through McCartan's legs.

The final goal came from Pennington, an off-balance shot from an angle around defense man Larry McNabb.

The Blades now take their longest rest since the season opened. Their next game will be at home Friday night aaginst the Hershey Bears of the American League.

* * * *

BLUE LINES: Since the Blades got Johnston, Seal general manager Bud Poile is wondering just who has the working agreement with the Boston Bruins. Supposedly, it's the Seals, but when the Bruins had to send Johnston somewhere to get in shape after his knee injury, apparently they figured the Blades needed help most . . . or Blade coach Lynn Patrick held more influence . . . Winner Willie O'Ree was back for tool action after missing four games, but defenseman Jake Hendrickson missed both the Friday and Saturday games with his puck-struck ankle . . . Rookie Bobby Schmautz christened twice at San Francisco Friday, four stitches in the head and three in the elbow.

stood around the first half, Twogood informed them, "don't take any prisoners," indicating that unless they got tougher and knocked the opposition around in return they might as well pack their bags.

Maggard and Ron Alleman provided the backboard push and the Trojans whittled away until they finally edged ahead, 60-59, on Maggard's basket with 6:49 remaining.

Bob Cole, a high-bounding 6-1 junior from St. Louis, slipped in a pair of free throws to put the Bills back on top.

Bolcom's free throw tied the game, 61-61, with 5:52 to go but then the proverbial roof caved in. St. Louis outscored USC during the next four minutes, 16-7, to kill the invader's rally.

However, that was only one of several give-aways by Long Beach.

Hagen made 8 of 14 from the field, far outshining San Diego star Cliff Ashford, who didn't look like a star at all.

Los Angeles State rallied in the second half to beat Chapman 66-59 in the night-cap. Joe Barnes scored 21 and Charley Thomas 18 for the host Diablos.

Poly, Millikan Triumph

Defending CIF champion Poly and fellow Moore Leaguer Millikan both pushed their season records to 2-0 with easy triumphs Saturday night in non-league contests.

St. Anthony, the only other L.B. school with a game, bowed to Burroughs, 62-42, despite an 18 point performance by center Kirby Gordon. The Saints are 0-2.

Poly, which has won 24 in succession, scored over 100 points against Chaffey for the fourth time in three years while winning, 107-59. Trent Gaines, an all-CIF guard, paced the Rabbits with 30 points. Forwards Chuck Moore and Shawn Johnson each added 17.

Millikan used a crushing defense and a good offense to blast visiting Edgewood, 63-38. Forward Bob Davis paced the Rams with 15 points.

Webfoots End 9-Game Drought

SEATTLE (AP) — Nick Jones' field goal from the key with only five seconds left brought Oregon a 63-61 basketball victory Saturday night over Washington and ended a nine-game drought for the Webfoots.

The lead had changed hands 13 times in the second half when Bob Johnson pulled Washington into a 61-61 tie with a goal from the side as the game entered its final minute.

Oregon went into a fast-moving ball controll game to bleed seconds off the clock until Jones was in the clear for his winning basket.

Inside Straight

WYNN

The AFL's a Wynner

By RICH ROBERTS

"A football player is a standard commodity. They're so big, they're so fast, they've had so much experience and coaching. So the question is: Do teams have as many good players in the American Football League as they do in the National Football League? I say, on the San Diego Chargers, definitely yes."

As turncoats go, Jerry Wynn isn't a bad fellow.

It's just that such rash statements about the "other" pro football league don't sound like the Jerry Wynn we used to know. Only a year ago he was an objective journalist reporting the Sunday struggles of the Rams for the I, P-T.

Now he's spreading the glory of the Chargers far and wide, and you wouldn't know it was the same guy. He even thinks the Chargers could beat the Rams.

Come to think of it, the rest of San Diego does, too . . . not to mention a sizeable portion of the sports populace up this way.

"This is more or less a matter of prejudice," Jerry says. "You want your team in your town to be the best and to root for the best team in the best league. I was the same way.

"When the AFL scored a lot of points they said —and I was one of them—'Well, they don't have good defense.' And now that we're playing strong defense they say, 'Well, they don't have quarterbacks'."

WYNN THINKS it's about time that the two leagues end their petty bickering, sit down and settle their differences, especially in the acquisition of talent which has thrown the bonus system completely out of hand.

"I think all reasonable people in both leagues would like to see this. It's just a question of how do you do it. I'm not going to knock the NFL or (commissioner) Pete Rozelle, because they're the ones with the most power and they don't want the power to get out—only on their terms.

"Actually, though, it's been kind of childish and impractical. These owners of the teams, in both leagues, are outstanding businessmen. And yet the way they're throwing away money is ridiculous."

Fat television contracts, of course, have given both leagues a lot of extra money to throw around.

"All pro football needs television—not just the AFL," says Wynn. "Sure, the NFL existed without it for years, but the great upsurge in pro football is tied to the fact that now it's brought right into the living room. We're up 25% in AFL attendance this year."

THE AFL IS ABOUT to emerge from a transitional period into full bloom as a pro football league, Wynn figures. For years, the league was regarded as strictly offensive—particularly to Rozelle, perhaps—because most of the coaches thought offense.

Also, Wynn concedes, "It was held against the AFL that most of our quarterbacks were retreads or castoffs—Blanda, Parilli and Dawson and so on. But they're fine quarterbacks, and if we want to argue the point, well, Y. A. Tittle and Frank Ryan and Earl Morrall—these are all castoff quarterbacks, too.

"What we're going through now in the AFL is a cycle of young quarterbacks. John Hadl, strictly an AFL product, has taken our quarterback job . . . Joe Namath in New York, Don Trull in Houston, Pete Beathard in Kansas City.

"Now these quarterbacks are young and it's going to take them a couple of years before they have the experience and poise of the Blandas and Parillis, and in the meantime the defense has come along."

IF THE AFL IS MATURING, then, so is San Diego, Wynn feels.

"It's somewhat on the lines of Long Beach in being prosperous and wanting to get ahead but not sure of how to do it. And now with this vote for a $27 million stadium there's been a tremendous upsurge in sports.

"We have a city delegation down in Florida working on a major league baseball team. They've broken ground for a new sports arena, so we'll have Western League hockey, and they're going after an NBA franchise. In a great part, the Chargers are responsible for this."

Charger owner Barron Hilton agreed to keep the club in San Diego for at least 10 years—if the stadium bond issue passed.

"It hadn't been decided," Wynn says, "but we probably would have gone to Dodger Stadium or Anaheim. Pro football today can't exist with a poor stadium. The press did a great job of spelling this out, like, 'We're not building this stadium for Barron Hilton or the Chargers. We're building it for San Diego'."

When the bond issue passed by a 72% majority, Wynn says, "Everybody was flabbergasted."

ALTHOUGH JOHN HADL may not live to see it, Wynn thinks that someday the Chargers will play the Rams—or rather, that the NFL will permit the Rams to play the Chargers.

"It's not in their league policy yet. But even if we played them today we don't start with any deficit. We have more experience. The Chargers' average experience is 3¾ years and we have six first stringers in the sixth year with the team. The Rams have two.

"Also, we have Lance Alworth, who's the best end in football . . . Paul Lowe, the best running back . . . Keith Lincoln, probably the best all-'round player. And our offensive line is as good or better than any in pro football.

"We have good football players. Just because we're in the American Football League doesn't mean that our players are inferior."

H-HOUR IN WESTERN CONFERENCE

Tab Colts Over Bears

By Associated Press

It will be H-hour in the National Football League's Western Conference today.

H stands for George Halas' hot and hard-nosed Chicago Bears and the hurting and home-team Baltimore Colts, which meet in the key game.

Should Baltimore win and Green Bay lose to Minnesota, then the Colts will repeat as conference champions.

But if Baltimore loses and Green Bay wins, then the Colts will be just one-half game ahead of the Packers and 1½ in front of the Bears with two games remaining.

One of these two games has Green Bay at Baltimore Dec. 12.

Other games today feature the mad scramble for second place in the Eastern Conference.

Washington is at Cleveland, which has clinched the eastern crown; Pittsburgh is at New York; the Rams play at St. Louis; Dallas meets the Eagles in San Francisco.

New York, St. Louis and Washington are tied for second with 5-6 records while Dallas and Philadelphia are one game back.

IN THE American League, Buffalo plays at Houston and Denver is at Oakland in the only games.

The Colts, who handed Chicago its only loss in the last eight games Nov. 7, are 4½-point favorites to win again.

However, they are not as healthly as they were Nov. 7. Linebacker Don Shinnick was lost for the season in the first Bear game, which the Colts won 26-21 after leading 17-0, and quarterback Johnny Unitas has been bothered by a bad back ever since.

Defensive end Ordell Braase, who missed one game and was in for only two plays in the 24-24 tie with Detroit on Thanksgiving Day, again is a doubtful starter.

THE CHAMPION Browns won't be lacking for incentive since it will be their last appearance before the home folks this season, and their great fullback, Jimmy Brown, is nearing another record.

Jimmy has 19 touchdowns and needs only two more to break the season mark of 20 set last year by Baltimore's Lenny Moore.

Rams Seek to DampenCard Playoff Hope

By AL LARSON
I, P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS —For a team that's lost five of its last six games, the St. Louis Cardinals have displayed remarkable buoyancy in the Eastern Conference standings.

The Cardinals, of course, will have to change their ways today when they meet the Rams if they expect to return to sunny Florida for another date in the Playoff Bowl.

LARSON'S LOSER
Rams 27, St. Louis 21

Today's televised contest from Busch Stadium begins at 11:05 a.m.

With three weeks remaining in the 1965 campaign Cleveland already has the Eastern Division locked up, but if the big red can regroup and hang defeats on Los Angeles, Dallas and the Browns, it would assure St. Louis of second place and the accompanying trip Jan. 9.

DUE PRIMARILY to a conspiracy of failure among the teams below them, the Cards have sunk no deeper than a three-way tie for second spot.

The Rams have no such worries about playoff dates, and despite a season of frustration, they can point with pride to one significant achievement: they have the finest record in the NFL in defending against the running game.

Channel 2, 11 a.m.

The Rams have held enemy rushers to an average of 3.3 yards a run, lowest in the league. Each week they have been steadily cutting down the figure, culminating in last week's 21-10 victory over Green Bay when they held the onetime power-packed Packers to 22 yards rushing — three yards minus in the second half.

ST. LOUIS backs Bill Triplett and Willis Crenshaw will find little daylight running against Davis Jones, Merlin Olsen, Lamar Lundy and Rosey Grier, consequently quarterback Charley Johnson will come out throwing.

As their promising 4-1 start has deteriorated to its current sad state of 5-6, the Cards have had to emphasize the pass and now lead the NFL in this department. Johnson and his back-up man Buddy Humphrey have thrown 357 times, four more than Bill Munson and Roman Gabriel.

This is the first regular-season meeting between the transplanted Cards and Rams since 1960, when St. Louis won 43-21 behind the aerial work of Johnny Roach and receiving of Sonny Randle and David Crow. For the first 61 seasons in the league, the Cards set up shop in Chicago. The club moved to the banks of the Mississippi in 1960.

The Rams, 2½-point underdogs, have dedicated the game to end Marlin McKeever, who is remaining at his brother's side in Long Beach.

Namath Wrecked by Chargers, 38-7

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —John Hadl won a personal duel with New York's Joe Namath by throwing three touchdown passes Saturday as the San Diego Chargers smashed the Jets 38-7.

The win placed the Chargers one victory away from their third consecutive American Football League Western Division title, while New York is tied for second with Houston in the East.

Hadl, unfavorably compared with the rookie flash after several mediocre performancecs, hit for 13 of 19 passes, including scoring throws of 25 yards to Keith Lincoln and 46 and 36 yards to Lance Alworth.

Namath, retaining his poise although strongly rushed, hit 18 of 34 passes including a 21-yard scoring toss to Don Maynard. Three of his passes were intercepted, however, and he lost the ball once on a fumble.

San Diego broke the game open in the second quarter, scoring 17 points—all set up by New York mistakes.

Lincoln capped a 61-yard drive by plunging one yard for the Chargers' first score after a Jets' field goal attempt was blocked. Lincoln scored minutes later on Hadl's first scoring pass which was set up by Ken Graham's first interception of the day.

NAMATH fumbled the next time New York got the ball; Earl Faison pounced on it and Herb Travenio booted a 36-yard field goal to give the Chargers a 17-0 halftime lead.

Graham intercepted his second pass of the game and dashed 51 yards down the sideline on the first scrimmage play after the half to give the Chargers a 24-0 lead.

Morgan St. Wins Blossom Classic

MIAMI (AP) — Russell Jolivet led Morgan State to a surprising 36-7 victory over Florida A&M in the 33rd annual Orange Blossom Football Classic Saturday night.

Scoring in every period, the powerful Bears from Baltimore, Md., made their 1965 record 9-0 and took home what is billed as the national Negro college football championship.

Miscues Help Lions Defeat Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)— Penn State capitalized on its own mistakes and Maryland's too Saturday to score a 19-7 football victory in a game which shared national television time with the Gemini space shot from Cape Kennedy.

The Nittany Lions turned a pass interception into a touchdown in the first quarter. Fullback Dave McNaughton smashed through the Maryland line on three successive five-yard carries after Dick Gingrich had intercepted and returned the ball to the Maryland 15.

Michigan State Players Champs in Studies, Too

CHICAGO (UPI)—National champion Michigan State placed four men on the Big Ten's annual all-academic football team, it was announced Saturday.

Players must have a B grade average or better for eligibility to the academic team. Spartan quarterback Steve Juday was the leading selection, named by 34 of the 35 electors.

Other Michigan State players on the team were end Jim Proebstle, tackle Don Bierowicz and halfback Don Japinga.

Others on the first team were end John Wright and fullback Jim Grabowski, Illinois, tackle Ken Ramsey and guard Mike Beinor, Northwestern, center Ray Pryor and guard Bill Ridder, Ohio State, and halfback Gordon Teter, Purdue.

TOUCHY WIN: PRINCETON OVER VASSAR

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP) — The boys beat the girls 30-18 Saturday in an enthusiastic game of two-hand touch "almost anywhere" football.

The boys, from Cannon Club of Princeton, overcame countless distractions and a few innovations in the rules to defeat Vassar College's Noyes House lasses in their first get-together

Vassar sophomore Caroline Pfrommer skirted the Cannon Club line for two touchdowns, but the girls couldn't handle Cannon's Foster Flint, who flipped five touchdown passes for the winners.

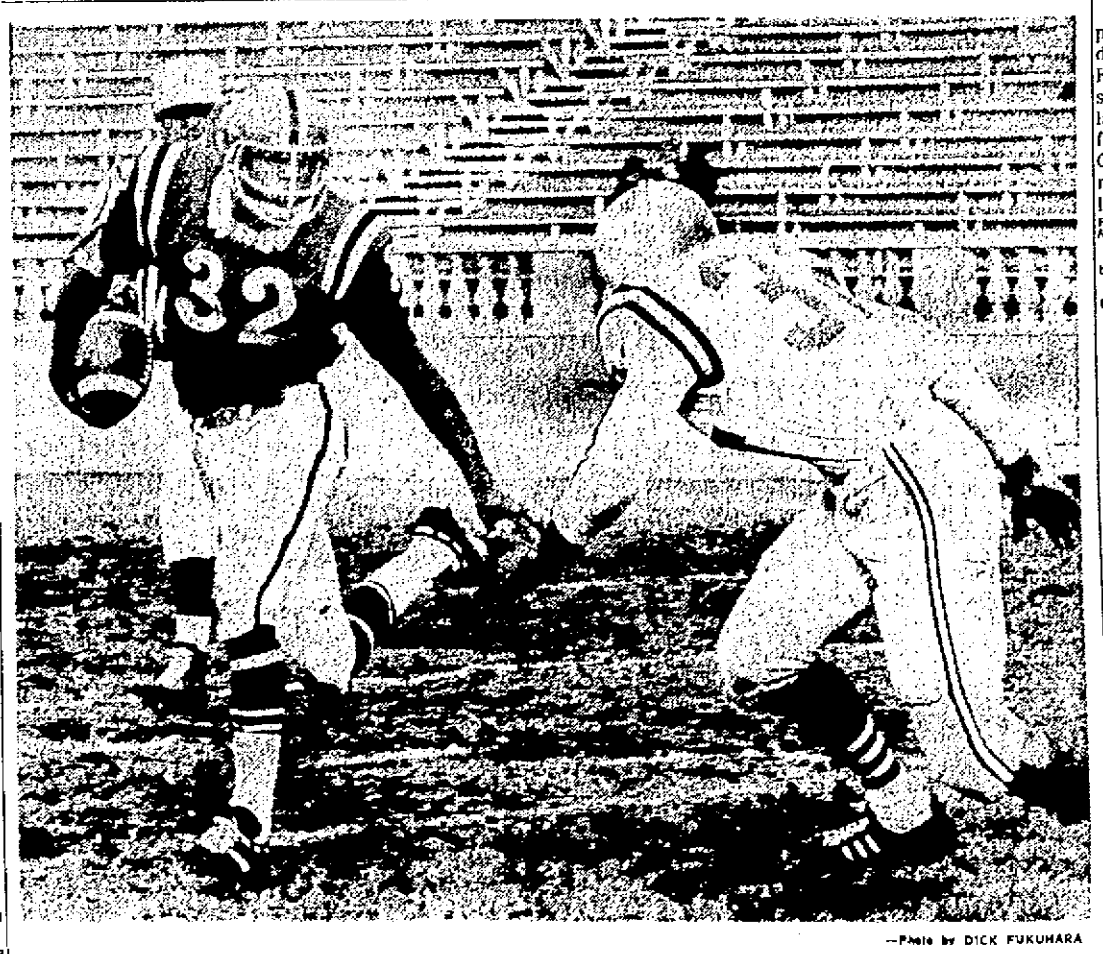

Sooner String Snapped

NORMAN (AP) — Little Charles Durkee kicked a 35-yard field goal in the final two minutes Saturday to give Oklahoma State a 17-16 victory over traditional rival Oklahoma and end 19 years of football frustration for the Cowboys.

Durkee's field goal gave the Cowboys their first victory over the Sooners since 1945 and nullified a brilliant effort by Oklahoma's Ron Shotts.

Cassius Has The Potential

There are many reasons why boxing fans have taken such a dislike to Cassius Clay—his brash attitude and his affiliation with the Black Muslims among other things—but one should not deny that he may well be the greatest heavyweight fighter of all time.

Veteran boxing men are now slowly and begrudgingly beginning to admit that Cassius "at least" has the potential to become the greatest.

After he beat former champion Patterson so convincingly a few days ago, Harry Marxson, Madison Square Garden's veteran boxing director, admitted that "Clay would be able to hold his own with the great heavyweights of any era . . . all the way back to John L. Sullivan and including Dempsey and Louis."

As Marxson conceded, "Clay is the fastest big man in ring history, can punch from any position and has remarkable reflexes. I can't rate him yet with Louis for power, but he has everything else and perhaps in time he may even show us consistent power punching."

And as we pointed out in a pre-fight column, ex-champ Jersey Joe Walcott, who refereed Clay's second fight with Liston, is the authority who first said that Cassius "could beat Dempsey, Louis, Charles, Marciano and a guy named Walcott. He's too big, punches too fast and hard and moves much too quickly for any of the old-timers."

WALCOTT DISMISSED ALL THE OTHER champions in the past, too, except possibly Gene Tunney, the conqueror of Jack Dempsey.

In fact, Tunney is the one man veteran observers keep going back to as the one who possibly might have made the best showing against a man of Clay's size and speed.

Tunney was perhaps the cleverest of all the heavyweights and, much like Clay, was under-rated because of his unpopularity. The boxing world never took to him because he had beaten the idol of the times—Dempsey.

Gene is remembered as a boxer, but his record shows 41 knockout victories in 76 bouts . . . and most people forget that he quite likely would have knocked out Dempsey in their second fight if it had been scheduled for 15 rounds instead of 10.

While the fight is recalled as "The Battle of the Long Count" when Gene was given a 14-second count following a knockdown in the seventh round after Jack refused to go to a neutral corner, Tunney came back to floor Dempsey and had the Manassa Mauler virtually out on his feet at the final bell.

THE ONE THING THAT STANDS against Tunney in comparison "on paper" to Clay in size. Gene 6 feet ½ inch and 190 pounds. Cassius is almost 6-3 now, weighed a solid 210 for Patterson and with maturity should be able to carry around 220 in another two or three years without losing any of his quickness.

Most of the heavyweight champions were not as big as many people picture them.

Jim Corbett, who defeated John L. Sullivan in the first title bout under the Marquis of Queensbury Rules, weighed only 180 pounds. Sullivan himself stood only 5-10½ and weighed 190. Bob Fitzsimmons, who ultimately beat Corbett, was only 167.

Many think of the legendary Jack Johnson as being a giant of a man, but he stood only a quarter of an inch over 6 feet and weighed 195 in his prime. Also, he was not the tremendous puncher present-day fans may have been led to believe by some historians. He rarely ended a bout early, gradually wore down opponents.

Dempsey was 189 in his best days; Max Schmeling, 185; Jim Braddock, 192; Charles, 182; Walcott, 194, while Rocky Marciano was only 5-11 and 184.

WHEN CLAY DEFEATED LISTON twice, he beat one of the bigger heavyweights who ever held the title. Sonny is 6-1 and his best fighting weight is around 210-212.

Max Baer was 6-2½ and 220 and Primo Carnera, of course, 6-6 and 260, but neither have been rated among the greats because of their shortcomings.

Joe Louis stood 6-1½, weighed 195 early in his career, 206 at the peak and around 212 at the end.

Outside of Tunny, the men most popularly mentioned in connection with "whipping" Clay are Dempsey, Louis and Marciano.

Here is how Cassius might be compared with them:

MARCIANO—Rocky had more heart and determination than ring ability and would have had great difficulty reaching a man as quick as Clay with his short arms. Cassius could move around at long range with his tremendous reach advantage and pepper him with left jabs; possibly winning via a TKO after cutting him. Marciano was a notorious "bleeder" who cut easily. Almost lost title couple of times that way.

DEMPSEY—JACK'S GREATEST victories were over slow-moving, standup fighters like Jess Willard. Tommy Gibbons, only 5-9½ and 172 pounds and one of the more clever fighters of his era, carried him 15 rounds in their famous fight at Shelby, Montana. And Tunney beat him twice with a style similar in many ways to Clay's.

LOUIS — Joe, one of our all-time favorite sports figures, had the power to take out a man quicker than any other heavyweight, but unorthodox styles confused him. Tommy Farr, Arturo Godoy and later Walcott all went 15 rounds with him, Jersey Joe almost winning the decision in their first fight. And the speedy Billy Conn had Joe beaten for 12 rounds, then refused to listen to instructions to "stay away" and went out to slug with him in the 13th, promptly was knocked out. Most fans forget that the Brown Bomber lacked great speed and that he was knocked down several times during his career. But he made up for his shortcomings with his great punching power once he got into range.

Whether we like it or not, it must be conceded that Clay's size, speed and style would have been vital factors against any of the past champions. And he hasn't reached his peak yet!

SKATING EXHIBITION SET MONDAY

Members of the Arctic Blades Figure Skating Club will skate exhibitions Monday night at the Iceland Arena in Paramount as a preliminary to the forthcoming Pacific Coast championships.

Included on the program, which will be without admission charge, will be Johnny Moore, the 1966 Southwest Pacific senior men's champion, and Julie Holmes, '65 national ladies novice champion.

Other champions of the program will be Ken Shelley, Sharon Davisson, Richard Battenschlag, along with several runners-up in the recent Southwest Pacific championships, at which the Arctic Blades won the total-points team trophy.

COOL CHAMPION

added beef of Elwood Stewart and John Kafka in the same backfield.

CCSF broke the scoring ice with 4:22 elapsed, moving 65 yards in 11 plays. The Rams went to the air only 15 times all day but their seven completions were worth their weight in gold.

An 18-yard toss from Bob Lee to Reeves Moses got the first Ram march going and Lee capped it with a 21-yarder to Ron Fassler. The Rams flooded a deep zone and Fassler went the last 12 yards untouched.

Long Beach had planned to shot the works on its passing game and started with a bang on its next series. Barton hit Rich Croson (14 yards) and Jim Cross (20) and then Croson again (21) to reach the Ram 12.

* * * *

BARTON went to Cross for the TD, the freshman taking the ball on the 1 and, with Eural Smothers draped around him, diving for the goalline.

The Vikings scored twice more in the period, the next tally coming on a 20-yard Barton to Drake combination with 9:47 remaining. Al Nichols set up the go-ahead tally (14-6) with a 39-yard gallop with a screen pass.

An exchange of fumbles deep in Viking territory in the final two minutes gave CCSF possession on the 13. Simpson took a pitchout, sped around right end, shook off a good tackle by Mike Battle and scored standing up.

Long Beach made it 20-12 at intermission when Barton guided a 65-yard drive that consumed nine plays—six of them passes.

* * * *

IT WAS the Vikes' most perfectly executed drive of the entire season. Virtually every pass was a sideline shot that saw Barton milking the clock for 60 seconds.

Barton never saw the TD toss. He was laid low after unloading in the direction of Battle, sliding along the end line. Battle made the 17-yard grab with 22 seconds to go.

Simpson scored from eight yards out on a power sweep and Long Beach had the ball for only six plays in the third period.

The final 15 minutes were futile for the Vikings.

Bill Gianquinto lost seven yards on third down but LBCC was offsides and instead of fourth-and-13, the Rams were third-and-1 from their own 35.

* * * *

SEVEN PLAYS and a 31-yard pass later, O.J. dove over from the 2 to get CCSF the lead for keeps (26-20).

Swanson caused a fumble and Larry Schakel recovered to get the Vikes in gear minutes later. Barton hit Drake for 12 yards and what would have been a first down on the Ram 33, but holding was detected and when Larry Dixon punted three plays later, it was fourth-and-47 from the Vike 18.

A piling-on penalty and a 19-yard, fourth down rollout pass from Lee to Moses for the TD kicked the score to 32-20 with 1:44 left.

Only 20 seconds later, disaster struck again as Smothers smothered a Barton screen pass and sped 42 yards to paydirt. Lee's PAT pass to Moses upped the final count to 40-20.

Prothro: 'Ashamed I'm Southerner'

the opening kickoff the Bruins were just 34 yards from the goal.

The Bruins got the TD in eight whacks on the ground and the Volunteer defense that was second strongest in the nation this season looked bendable.

Fullback Paul Horgan got the touchdown on a half-yard plunge.

When the Vols were forced to punt as soon as they got the ball again, the Bruins began another goalward march. From their own 32 they smashed through the Vol linebackers until they had a third down and one on the Tennessee 39. It seemed the place for Horgan or halfback Mel Farr to crack the ground defenses for the first down but the decision was made, presumably by Beban, to try for a touchdown pass.

* * * *

BEBAN THREW a step too long to end Kurt Altenberg and the Bruins were forced to punt.

It proved to be a bad mistake. Tennessee took over the ball and kept it most of the rest of the half and instead of a two-touchdown lead, the Bruins found themselves staring at a scoreboard that read 20-7 for the home team.

Reserve quarterback Dewey Warren, filling in for the injured regular, mixed his calls well as he completed 9 of 13 passes—7 in a row— in putting together drives measuring 65, 59 and 51 yards.

* * * *

THE TOUCHDOWNS were by halfback Hal Wantland on a 19-yard pass from Warren, by Warren on a 1-yard plunge and by Wantland on a 26-yard pass from Warren.

One might suspect the Bruins had a mint julep or two during the halftime intermission, for it was a hopped-up bunch that took the field for the second half.

In a span of 35 seconds at the outset of the third period the Bruins scored two touchdowns and regained the lead, with the help of Kurt Zimmerman's conversions.

The Uclans took the second half kickoff 86 yards in eight plays as Beban, who had completed but one pass in the first half, a six-yarder, took to the air.

With sideline passes and Farr's bursts through the middle the West Coast team moved to the Tennessee 36. From there Beban took it all the way in one play on a fine run, utilizing three blockers to the maximum.

* * * *

THEN, on Tennessee's first scrimmage play of the second half there was a fumble on a plunge into the line and safetyman Tim McAteer grabbed it in midair and galloped 35 yards to a touchdown that put the Bruins back in the lead.

UCLA got a third touchdown in the third period on a 75-yard drive that ended with Beban sneak-plunging the final half yard and Zimmerman made it 28-20 with his placement.

On the second play of the fourth period Tennessee scored on a seven-yard run by Walt Chadwick and, trailing by the margin of a missed conversion kick, the Vols tried for a two-point conversion. Warren's pass fell incomplete and the Vols were down by two.

Midway through the final period Dave Leake, the Vol placement specialist, sent a 20-yarder through the uprights that added three points to the scoreboard and seemingly gave the home team victory, 29-28.

* * * *

BUT IT WAS far from over. There were still nine minutes to play and several scoring threats to be accomplished.

The Bruins scored with 3½ minutes left by going 74 yards in six plays, the big gainer a 65-yarder thrown by Beban to Altenberg that went all the way on a picture play, but was partially cancelled on a clipping penalty and the Bruins were given the ball on the 21.

Beban ran three times and passed once on the scoring drive. He ran over the goal line from the four for a 34-29 UCLA lead and the try for two extra points was not good.

Tennessee promptly marched the length of the field for the winning touchdown and there was southern comfort all over the stadium.

ROCKETING TRIALS WINNER

Suleo's Rocket, with jockey Charlie Smith peering over to make sure he has plenty of margin, hits finish line nearly a half-length in front of favored Miss Gold Angel in second division of Los Alamitos Futurity Trials Saturday. Suleo's Rocket had the fastest qualifying time of the 24 contestants. A length back is Vandy Jay Reed.

By DON HARDIN

There'll be a lot of figuring and head scratching during the coming week by quarter horse followers as they try to determine who will win the $160,100 Los Alamitos Futurity next Saturday.

Three trials were run Saturday to find the fastest 10 of 24 two-year-olds to contest the rich Futurity. The winner in each of the 350-yard sprints was timed in 17.9, which is traveling fast in any league and the swiftest three times posted in any race.

Go Rebel Go, off at 14-1 on the board, got his head in front of 2-5 favorite Rocket Vandy in the first division of the Trials with about 40 yards to go and kept it that way for a $30.40 win payoff. Bombin Rocket, out with the leaders all the way, was another head back in third place.

* * * *

SULEO'S ROCKET had it easiest in the middle division as Charlie Smith, who failed while astride Rocket Vandy, guided Suleo to a one-half victory over Miss Gold Angel, the 4-5 favorite, who broke badly but still defeated Vandy Joy Reed by a length for the second spot.

Suleo's Rocket paid $5.80 as the strong second choice.

Rapid Volley, bet down as the heaviest favorite of the meeting at 1-5, swerved inside coming out of the gate in the third division but Kenneth Chapman got the filly straightened in a hurry, quickly caught the early pacesetters, Go Gayle, Pappy Bar and Moore Go and held off a strong bid by the latter to win by a neck.

Rapid Volley paid $2.60, $2.20 and $2.20 and created a minus show pool of $679.

* * * *

THERE WERE 11,000 fans on hand by the time the Trials began. More than $100,000 was wagered on each division. The total crowd on a warm day when the track was lightning fast was 13,336 and a whopping $965,614 was bet through the mutuels. The crowd and handle were the second highest for a fall meeting day.

Go Rebel Go, ridden by Harley Crosby, is owned by the H&H Ranch and trained by Gene Chambless. Suleo's Rocket is owned by Z. Wayne Griffin, who also owns Rocket Vandy, and is trained by Calvin Mims. Rapid Volley is owned by Fred R. Beckham of Anaheim and trained by Dave Newby.

* * * *

RAPID VOLLEY will go into the Futurity with a bankroll of nearly $95,000 and Go Rebel Go and Suleo's Rocket each have won over $40,000. The Futurity winner will get $72,897.

The first deadheat for win occurred in the first race when the cameras couldn't separate Bamason and Sullivan's Silk, resulting in two daily double payoffs to Beau Regards, the only three-time winner, in the second race.

Fly Away Faila won the $5,000 Monita for two-year-olds and Go Josie Go, last spring's Derby winner, won the $5,000 Josie Bar for older horses to climax the big racing program.

FIGHT KO'D: 5 KNOCKOUTS IN 6 LOSSES

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A fight card scheduled next Tuesday was called off Saturday when it became known one of the boxers was under suspension in California for getting knocked out too often.

The fighter was Gabriel Hernandez, who lost six of his last seven fights, five by knockouts. He had been signed as a substitute to meet Rafin King of Nigeria in the main event.

He was to have filled in for Richard Sue of Portland, who hurt a knee in training.

600-mph Streamliner on Display Today

The world's fastest car, Craig Breedlove's "Spirit of America-Sonic 1" is on display for the last time in Los Angeles today, as Mickey Thompson's Auto, Boat and Speed Show winds up its four-day run at Great Western Exhibit Center.

In addition to Breedlove's 600 mph streamliner, more than 250 other racing cars and boats will be shown.

The show opens at 11 a.m. and closes at 11 p.m.

Flag Raiser Scores Sixth Stakes Victory by 7 Lengths

Combined Wire Reports

Flag Raiser took an early lead and romped to a seven-length victory in the $61,200 Stuyvesant Handicap at Aqueduct Saturday.

The 3-year-old colt, top-weighted at 121 pounds and part of a three-horse entry trained by Hirsch Jacobs, was ridden by Bobby Ussery. His time for the one mile was 1:35 3/5.

Turn To Reason, a stablemate of Flag Raiser's, was second and Cupid third in the large field of 15.

Flag Raiser came out of the extreme outside post and was taken into a quick lead by Ussery, with Turn To Reason and the third member of the entry, Isle of Greece, right behind. Ussery hustled Flag Raiser to the rail and the colt steadily lengthened its advantage. By the top of the stretch it was all over.

Flag Raiser now has won six stakes and eight races over-all this year. His first-place in the Stuyvesant was worth $39,780 for owner Isidor Bieber and Jacobs.

The entry paid $8.00, $6.40 and $4.60. Cupid was $8.40 to show.

Celts Win Despite Russell's Injury

Combined Wire Services

The Boston Celtics, playing without Bill Russell for three periods, still managed to defeat the St. Louis Hawks, 100-94, Saturday night in an NBA game at St. Louis.

Russell injured his right leg at the start of the second period and had 10 points before being sidelined. Sub Mel Counts accounted for 18.

Eddie Miles jumped in 36 points as the Detroit Pistons whipped the Baltimore Bullets, 130-119, and snapped a three-game losing streak and ended a three-game Baltimore winning skein.

Utah Scalps Loyola, 113-81

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Redskins of Utah scalped the Loyola of Los Angeles 113-81 Saturday night in a free-shooting romp.

Utah's Richart Tate scored 28 points and teammate Jerry Chambers added 23. It was the second time in two games this season Utah has scored more than 110 points. Utah beat Montana State 121-71 Thursday night.

Grief-Stricken 76ers Postpone Pair With Knicks

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Grief-stricken members of the Philadelphia 76ers Saturday agreed to postpone two weekend games against the New York Knickerbockers because of the death of Ike Richman, co-owner of the 76ers.

Saturday night's scheduled contest at New York and another slated for here today will be played at a later date, announced Irv Kosloff, Richman's partner in the operation of the Philadelphia team

Funeral services for the 52-year-old attorney - sportsman, who died Friday night while watching his team play the Boston Celtics in Boston Garden, will be today.

GRIFFITH 12-5 PICK IN FRIDAY TITLE GO

NEW YORK (UPI)—Emile Griffith, boxing's most active champion, Saturday remained a 12-5 favorite for his world welterweight title defense against Manny Gonzalez of Odessa, Tex., at Madison Square Garden next Friday night.

Gonzalez gained a unanimous decision over the 26-year-old champion from the Virgin Islands in a non-title bout at Houston last January.

Griffith and his co-manager, Gil Clancy, called the Houston verdict a "home town decision," and the oddsmakers apparently agreed.

Gonzalez, also 26, has fairly good credentials—37 victories in 55 pro fights, including 10 knockouts. He has six draw decisions on his record and he has been stopped only once.

Preceding the title fight, former middleweight king Sugar Ray Robinson will formally retire in the Garden ring.

Randy Turpin, Bobo Olson, Gene Fullmer, Carmen Basioli and Jake Lamotta—the men from whom Robinson won five middleweight titles—will be present for the special ceremonies.

BAY MEADOWS RIDER STILL UNCONSCIOUS

SAN MATEO (UPI) — Phillip Grohs, the 30-year-old hard-luck jockey spilled from his mount during the second race at Bay Meadows Friday, was still unconscious and in serious condition Saturday at Mills Memorial hospital.

Grohs, the father of four young children, was in the hospital's intensive care ward and was under constant observation.

Dr. Gordon Morrison said Grohs "suffered some brain damage which has left him partially paralyzed on the right side but there is reason to believe he'll recover."

Money Mark Established by Nicklaus

PALM BEACH GARDENS (UPI) — Beefy Jack Nicklaus walked away with the biggest pot of money ever collected by a professional golfer in one year of competition on the tour in 1965 when he corralled $140,752.

Nicklaus' total which was compiled in 20 official tournament appearances surpassed the NICKLAUS previous high established by Arnold Palmer's winnings of $128,230 in 1963. Big Nick also won $11,494 in unofficial money for an overall total of $152,246.

Tony Lema had his finest year in 1965 winning $101,816 officially and $108,869 over-all, marking the third straight year that two players have soared past the $100,000 figure in official earnings.

Consistent Billy Casper just missed making it a threesome as he wound up with $99,931 ($126,462). Doug Sanders $72,182 ($83,079) and Gary Player $69,964 ($71,060) rounded out the first five.

* * * *

IN ONLY four years on the tour, Nicklaus has earned $415,945 in sanctioned tournaments, placing him third on the money winners list in a period dating back to 1947. Only Palmer and Casper have amassed more in that time.

And, at age 52, Sam Snead wound up his biggest financial year on the tour—$36,889.

As leading money winner, he collected $31,593 in official tourneys in 1949 and $35,758 in 1950.

'Termites' Chief Pests to Texans

By BRUCE YOUNG

The Henderson, Texas Cardinals may have to be more than good football players to beat Fullerton College in next Saturday's Junior Rose Bowl. They also may have to be termite exterminators.

Coach Hal Sherbeck and the Hornets have 11 pests running around on the field, which they laughingly call the "Termites," while opponents woefully refer to them as the best junior college defensive unit in the nation.

Fullerton, which waltzed to a 9-0 regular season record, has a unique defense. Usually the emphasis is on big men for defense, but Sherbeck has been successful with a squad that has only three men over 200 pounds and only three who are six-footers or taller.

* * * *

THE TEXAS squad, which was the first team from the Lone Star State to go undefeated (10-0) since Tyler did it in 1960, holds a six-pound per man advantage over Fullerton's defensive starters.

Over the front five, Henderson's advantage is a whopping 22 pounds per man.

This hardly comes as a shock to Sherbeck's Termites, who have been outweighed, but never outplayed this season. Statistics are proof positive.

In nine contests, the Hornet defense allowed only 872 yards rushing and tossed its hefty foes for 364 yards in losses. Net rushing yardage against the Termites is 508, or 56.4 yards per game.

* * * *

FULLERTON has yielded only 46 points all season, with four consecutive shutouts to its credit. Most points scored off the stingy Hornets was 14 by San Diego in the season opener.

The opposition has averaged 120 yards total offense against the Eastern Conference champions to Fullerton 416. And the Hornet secondary his yet to surrender a touchdown through the air.

What is the secret of Fullerton's amazing defense?

Coach Sherbeck says its "quickness and pursuit. They are also very, very proud." Citrus coach Dave Peterson, who was routed 55-0 by Fullerton, sighed, "They are so quick and react so fast at times I think they even surprise themselves."

* * * *

ANOTHER coach shook his head in amazement after watching the Termites swarm through to dump his passer. "They have exceptional balance and agility. They reacted so fast one time that they knew where we were going even before we did."

Middle guard Rick Crog anchors the line, which averages 200 pounds. Crog, a former all-Orange County star, is flanked by tackles Jerry Gatewood, who is the heavyweight up front at 222 pounds, and Bill Peterson. Peterson tips the scales at only 195 pounds, but runners say he hits with the impact of a 295-pounder.

The flyweight ends are 183-pound Dennis Lightner and 180-pound Billy Vasquez. Lightner was all-Eastern Conference the last two years.

Key to the lightweight defense is all-America linebacker candidate Richard (Boogie) Carrillo. The 208-pound, ex-Anaheim standout calls the defensive signals.

Carrillo and his sidekick, Fred Warren, give the Hornets a pair of the nation's best linebackers. Warren was honorable mention JC all-America last year at Santa Ana.

The secondary is led by the squad's tall men, 6-2, 193-pound cornerman Dave Clayton. He teams with Bob Abbott, an all-league quarterback last year at Anaheim, to give Fullerton what rival coaches describe as the fastest secondary in jaycee ranks.

Mike Greenwald, a converted end, and Bill Drake, a freshman who stepped in when Jim Ciucki was injured, complete the Termite defense at safety.

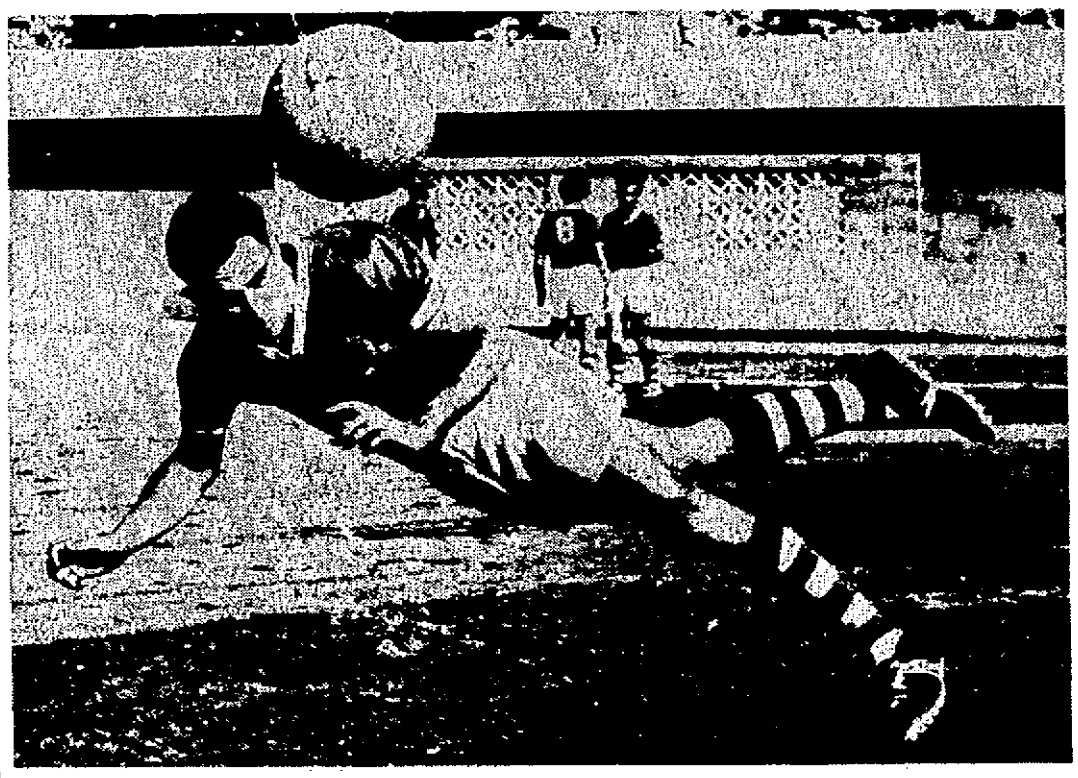

The Cardinals will have another tall tale for the folks in Texas when they return to claim they ran into the largest Termites in captivity.

HORNET DEFENSE—IT STINGS AND IT'S STINGY

Fullerton's record-setting defensive squad will be outweighed, as usual, in Saturday's Junior Rose Bowl Game against Henderson, Tex. But the "Termites" are tough and have credentials to prove it. They've held opponents to an average of 56 yards on the ground. Front row (from left): Dennis Lightner, Bill Peterson, Rick Crog, Jerry Gatewood and Billy Vasquez. Linebackers are Fred Warren and Richard Carrillo. Hornets had 9-0 record during regular season.

ALL-AMERICA IN ACTION TODAY

Orange County forward Manuel Abaunza, a 1965 all-America selection, will perform in final game of tripleheader as soccer comes to Veterans Stadium today. Abaunza is a Nicaraguan who learned his soccer in Costa Rica. He's one of lightest players in Southern California, also one of leading scorers.

Soccer Tripleheader at L.B. Stadium Today

Big time soccer football comes to Veterans Stadium today with first-round elimination games for the U.S. Open Cup.

A tripleheader is scheduled today, beginning at 10:30 a.m. The opener matches Los Angeles of the Continental League and the Costa Rica-Ticos Club, one of the top teams in the Greater L.A. League.

The Long Beach Pirates of the Continental League meet the all-Italian Gladiators of the L.A. League at 12:30 and at 2:30, unbeaten Orange County faces Montebello.

Beginning Sunday, Jan. 9, all games of the newly formed, semi-pro Continental League will be played at Veterans Stadium.

Members of the Continental League are Long Beach Pirates, Orange County, Los Angeles, Hollywood Stars, Beverly Hills, Montebello and Lynwood Falcons.

THE LEAGUE includes five all-Americas, topped by Orange County's Abaunza brothers, Manuel and Bayardo. Freddie Cameron is another all-America with the power Orange County club.

Hollywood player-coach Helmet Bicek and Albert Zerhusen, of the L.A. Soccer Club, also were named to the 1965 all-America team. Zerhusen has the distinction of being the only American-born all-America.

The Orange County-Montebello contests is today's feature. Orange manager Bob Florin has a team composed mostly of Latins, three Europeans and one Canadian. Montebello's standouts are Armenian.

In case of ties after the regulation 90 minutes, there will be overtime periods of 15 minutes each, up to a maximum of one hour.

Other U.S. Open Cup games today:

Rancho Cienega Stadium (LaBrea at Rodeo Rd.)—10:30, Scandia vs. Green White; 12:30, Maccabees vs. Hollywood; 2:30, Guadalajara vs. Lynwood.

PASTURES WERE GREENS

Equestrians were blamed for some $1,500 worth of damage to two golf courses in Griffith Park Saturday.

Park officials said someone had ridden over greens on the first and 16th holes of the Harding course and the 15th and 18th holes of the Wilson course.

The green on the first hole at Harding was so badly damaged it may be out of service for nearly a month.

Aparicio Good for Five Years; Astros Want Him

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Paul Richards, Houston Astros general manager, said Saturday that Venezuelan Luis Aparicio could play in the majors for another five years at least if he wanted. He said he would like to acquire Aparicio from the Baltimore Orioles.

Richards was commenting on recent statements by Aparicio that he plans to stay in Venezuela after playing the winter ball circuit there and would retire from the majors definitely.

Aparicio currently is playing for the La Guaira Sharks of the Venezuelan professional league.

THEY MAY HIDE HIS SKATES, BUT . . .

Captain Marc Can't Stay Away

By RICH ROBERTS

The athlete who boasts, "I never get hurt," is a liar. They all do.

The difference is that some won't admit it, even to themselves. An injury doesn't count as long as you can play.

Marc Boileau, the Blades' right wing, is 33, an age where even the healthy participate in a tough, demanding sport look forward to a day off like an Arab welcomes an oasis.

MARC BOILEAU
Mental Anguish Worse

For most of this season Boileau has been playing with a pulled groin muscle that puts him through agony every time he hustles, which for Marc is most of the time.

"I could hear him moaning every time he skated past me," referee Bill Papp said after a recent game.

Nevertheless, Boileau showed up for the Blades' first practice in three weeks last Monday ready to work.

"He said he'd had a shot and the muscle was frozen," coach Lynn Patrick explained. "But, hell, I don't want him to skate because he can still tear it more, even if he can't feel it."

Boileau always has been that way, but this year he feels an even deeper responsibility to the team. He's the captain, and captains aren't quitters, especially when things are going so badly.

Last season he strained some lower abdominal muscles. The pain was so bad that he could hardly straighten up to walk, let alone skate.

The doctor prescribed complete rest, and Marc did sit out a few games. But when the mental anguish of missing the action got worse than the physical pain, he was back in there again.

A couple of weeks ago he and Willie O'Ree, another right wing, suffered the same type groin injury at about the same time.

O'Ree still is shelved, and Boileau admitted at the start, "I probably shouldn't be playing, but with Willie out, well . . ."

Patrick does not relish the task of telling Marc he can't play, but he's seriously considering hiding his skates.

THE BLADES' visiting goalie, Ed Johnston, confirms previous reports brought back from the National Hockey League about Bobby Hull, the Chicago Black Hawks' super shooter.

"You hear a lot about his slap shot," Johnston says, "but he can wrist it just as hard, he's so strong. He has to have all his shirts specially made big in the biceps. His arms are like a normal man's legs."

Johnston saw Jack Norris knocked cold by a Hull cannonball after the Blade goalie was called up to Boston last season.

"That's probably what made him puck-shy. He'll get over it. Hull's hit me a couple of times, too. When he's driving from 30 or 35 feet you don't have a chance. Even if you aren't screened you can't really see it."

3 All-Americas Named to South Sr. Bowl Squad

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Three all-America players head the South squad announced Saturday for the 17th annual Senior Bowl football game in Mobile, Jan. 8.

They are Alabama center Paul Crane, Florida end Charley Casey and Tennessee linebacker Frank Emanuel. In addition, Auburn linebacker Bill Cody, Kentucky tackle Sam Ball and Mississippi guard Stan Hindman, all second-team all-Americas, were selected.

Of the 27 players on the squad, 19 were drafted in the top five rounds by teams in the National and American Football League.

The South will be coached by the New York Jets' Weeb Ewbank.

The North squad, to be coached by Mike Holovak of the Boston Patriots, will be announced next week.

CRA Driving Title on Line

Hal Minyard of Crestline, Paul Jones of Torrance and Bob Hogle of Buena Park will settle the 1965 California Racing Association driving championship when they take on a 50-car field in this afternoon's 100-lap CRA sprint car Pacific Coast championship races at Ascot Park.

Racing starts at 2 p.m., preceded by time trials at noon.

Only 58½ points separate the top three drivers in the 1965 CRA point standings, with 100 points going to the winner of the day's 100-lap main event.

Golf Clubs Bring $3,000

BERKELEY (AP) — Clubs used by some of the world's most famous golfers, including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, are bringing high bids at a charity auction here.

Bidding reached $3,000 Saturday for the 18 clubs and 45 autographed golf balls in the second day of a week long auction to raise money for Childrens Hospital Medical Center of Oakland.

Included are clubs used by Bobby Jones, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Ken Venturi, Gary Player, Walter Hagen and Gene Littler. Golf balls include autographs by Bob Hope and Bing Crosby.

The event, the Golf Tree Auction, is a successor of last Christmastide's Willie Mays baseball tree auction, which raised $3,500 for the hospital.

Rapid Growth for Crowley Trout

Biologists of the Department of Fish and Game sampled trout in Lake Crowley last month and discovered that the subcatchable rainbows planted after the lake's closing July 31 had grown from 8.1 inches to 10.6 inches and had increased in average weight from 4.1 to 9.7 ounces.

Once, again, this sampling proves that Crowley is one of the best lakes in the nation for trout growth. Thirty-nine fish were taken in September and 53 were taken in the gill netting operations in late November.

Of particular significance to the DFG biologists was the fact that 18 of the 71 rainbow trout taken in the November set were carryovers from the 1965 subcatchable plant. Those carryovers were about 17 inches long and weighed an average of two pounds.

That fact refutes the oft-heard argument that the relatively poor angling season at Crowley this year was due to a scarcity of fish.

Also caught in the gill nets were seven brown trout from 16 to 25 inches long and ranging in weight up to six and a half pounds. All the fish taken were trapped in two small nets, 8 by 100 feet each.

DFG biologist Phil Pister said, "When you get so many darn fish that they more than fill a washtub, you can't help but wonder what the population of Crowley really is."

THERE WAS SOME FANCY shooting at the Long Beach-Dominguez Gun Club Thursday afternoon when the Southern California Tuna Club had its annual trap-skeet-duck tower shoot. Just because the men belong to the SCTC, don't sell them sort when guns are involved.

For instance, Ken Sperry, Bert Paul and Carter Boswell tied at 22 each in the duck tower event. (I couldn't even hit the tower, much less those tiny clay pigeons zooming over your head from behind). There was a shootoff and Ken and Bert tied at 18. Then there was a second shootoff and Bert finally won, 18 to 12.

Dr. Robert McCoy Jr. had a perfect score (25-25) at trap, and Russell Pray was the winner of the skeet events with 25 in the handicap division. Arthur Macrate was the over all handicap champion with 71 out of 75. He and his brother, William, are two of the best trap and skeet shooters in this area.

The SCTC also had its annual sportsmen's dinner Friday night at the Virginia Country Club with loads of smoked marlin, other ocean delicacies, venison, ducks, geese and other tempting morsels.

All of the wild game and fish were donated by members of the club and prepared by the chefs at the Virginia. It is a banquet that is long remembered by the members and guests.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — The tables virtually groaned the other night when the Long Beach Yacht Club awarded its trophies for the year. As Commodore Robert Pierce put it: "The only trouble we are having here this evening is a complaint from the National Hardware Association that we have gone into competition with them."

The club was filled with diners and it seemed that everybody got a cup for something, mostly sailing feats. The club will install its officers Jan. 17, with William T. Dalessi taking over as commodore.

Marion J. Bailey, 6508 El Roble St., Long Beach, has complained to the Utah Department of Fish and Game about a violation for which he was fined $30 for not punching his deer tag. This is not the first time this has happened to California hunters. Bailey says the instructions fail to mention that the tag should be punched. He said that seven other violators from California paid the same amount that day.

Merlin A. Robbins, 1951 Knoxville Ave., Long Beach, also has a complaint about the State Division of Parks. He says that on a recent trip to the Salton Sea, there was a sign "NO VACANCIES" at the entrance to the state park. He informed the ranger on duty that he merely wanted to drive his family around and show them the park. He was permitted to do so, but observed several empty camp sites. He wonders if the sites were being saved for the 30-day "nomads."

NEW BOOKS—Arnold Gingrich, publisher of Esquire magazine, has written a book, "The Well-Tempered Angler," a delightful collection of stories about trout fishing, light tackle, fishing cronies, as well as chapters filled with advice on taking of trophy trout on the tiniest of flies. He has one chapter on Ernest Hemingway that is worth the price of the book. The book is published by Alfred A. Kropt., Inc., 501 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

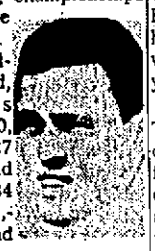

Doubleday & Company, Inc., 277 Park Ave., New York, N. Y., has two new volumes on the market, "Above and Below," by Tom Shelnick with Ray Cristina, and "The Gunner's Bible," by Bill Riviere.

"Above and Below" is a fantastic collection of the experiences of the internationally known diver, Tom Shelnick, and those adventures are excellently told by Ray Cristina. Shelnick has worked on such diving jobs as the La Guardia jet wreck, Andrea Doria salvage and many others. He is retained by the Secret Service, the FBI, U.S. Navy and many private organizations.

"The Gunner's Bible" is just what the title implies. Riviere has done a masterful job in putting together a complete guide to sporting firearms and their accessories, with more than 200 photographs of guns and gunning. There is hardly any subject in the world of guns that isn't detailed in his book.

Twilley First Catch, Point King

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Twilley, Tulsa's little end with the big list of records, is the first player to win the major pass receiving championships in the same season.

The All-America end, who stands just 5-foot-10, scored 127 points and caught 134 passes for 1,779 yards and 16 touchdowns in 10 games.

TWILLEY TOP UPI LINEMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tulsa end Howard Twilley Saturday was named United Press International's "lineman of the year" for 1965.

Twilley, who established eight major college pass catching marks while winning all-America honors this year, was a one-sided choice in the balloting of a national cross-section of writers and broadcasters, garnering 90 votes compared to 27 for Texas linebacker Tommy Nobis and 15 for Notre Dame guard Dick Arrington..

Statistics released Saturday by the NCAA showed Floyd Little, Syracuse's breakaway halfback, second in scoring with 114 points while Chuck Hughes of Texas Western was he runner-up in receiving with 79 catches for 1,519 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Besides his touchdowns, Twilley got his points on 23 of 29 conversion kicks and four two - point conversion catches. Last year when he also won the receiving crown, then missed the scoring title by one point.

The senior from Galena, Tex., also set eight major-college pass - catching records. They are:

Most passes caught in a game, 19; caught in a season, 134; caught in a career, 261; touchdown passes caught in a game, 5; season TD receptions, 32; pass-receiving yards in a season, 1,779; and career pass receiving yards, 3,343.

Graebner Stuns Stolle, Gains Victorian Finals

MELBOURNE (AP) — Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, upset Australian Fred Stolle in straight sets Saturday and went into the final of the Victorian Tennis Championships against Wimbledon titleholder Roy Emerson.

Graebner never lost a service and controlled the match all the way as he cut down Australia's No. 2 Davis Cup ace in 75 minutes 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

Emerson, beaten by Graebner in the recent New South Wales Tournament at Sydney, crushed a fellow Australian, John Newcombe, in the semi-finals 8-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Nancy Richey of Dallas gained the women's singles final with a 6-0, 6-1 triumph over Gail Sherriff of Australia. The little Texas girl will play Margaret Smith, the Wimbledon and American champion, who ousted Mrs. Clark Graebner, the former Carole Caldwell, 6-2, 6-8, 6-1.

Miss Richey and Mrs. Graebner gained the women's doubles final by beating Jan Lehane and Madonna Schacht of Australia 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. They will play Miss Smith and Lesley Turner.

AAU Seeks Authority as Govt. Delays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union adopted guidelines Saturday for participation of its athletes in open track and field events until the government acts to settle the dispute between it and colleges.

At its annual convention, the AAU voted unanimously to require that all open competition be conducted exclusively under its rules and procedures.

It held further that athletes will not be authorized to compete in open meets unless they are legally approved by the AAU.

President Clifford H. Buck, in presenting the guidelines for approval, said they were required because the government has failed to appoint a board of arbitration to settle the longstanding fight between the AUU and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Senate approved a resolution several months ago calling on Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to appoint a five-member arbitration panel. Buck said he had been informed Humphrey might appoint the panel by next week.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fourteen athletes, including one killed in Viet Nam, were nominated Saturday by the Amateur Athletic Union for its 1965 James E. Sullivan Award, presented to the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

Among the nominees was Ronald Zinn, of Orland Park, Ill., the national race walking champion, who was killed in action in Viet Nam on July 7.

Other nominees: Ralph Boston, world broad jump champion; Princeton basketball star Bill Bradley; Cathy Ferguson, women's breaststroke swimming champion; weightlifter Gary Tubner; track star Gerry Lindgren; Randy Matson, world record holder in the shotput; Marine Lt. Billy Mills, long distance running champion; swimmer Dick Roth; Martha Randal, holder of the women's world swimming record for the 100-meter free style; James Ryun, America's fastest miler; Wyomia Tyus, women's world record holder for the 100-yard dash and 100 meters; Nera White, 11 times AAU all-America women's basketball player; and Bernie Wrightson, men's diving.

Angry Rockets Oppose Angels at Blair Field

By CHUCK MEDICK

Three weeks of rain and an extra inning loss are not the ingredients to make a happy baseball team.

Therefore, it will be an angry group of Long Beach Rockets who take Blair Field at 1:30 today to meet the L.A. Angels.

Manager Lou Weidman brings to town one of the best hitting ball clubs in the semi-pro Winter League. John Demko, John Bacher, Nat Dancy are L.A.'s leading sluggers.

With but five games to go in the regular league schedule, the playoff seems far away for the Rockets, who have dropped three and are in second place, 1½ games from the top.

Butch Hughes, Larry Killingsworth, Terry Richards, Steve Ellingson and Don Rowe will be ready for mound duty.

L.B. Trio Sparkles in Iron Man Meet

Dick Pearson, Harvey Loya and Jeff Breithault ran away with honors Saturday in Los Altos YMCA's fifth Iron Man Invitational cross country race for junior high schools at Long Beach State College.

Pearson, of Jefferson, raced to a 3:27.1 clocking on the three-quarter mile course, longest run by junior high boys in Long Beach, to establish a ninth-grade record. Loya, from Stephens, was the eighth-grade champ and Breithautt, of Hill, took the seventh-grade title.

Top 5 Finishers

9th Grade—Pearson (Jefferson) 3:27.1 (course record), Bill Penn (Hughes), Dave Lea (Lynwood), Jeff Jacobson (Hughes), Marlin Curtain (St. Anthony).

8th Grade—Loya (Stephens) 4:00.4, Bob Buckley (Stanford), Jan Pengra (Wilmington), Jim Dare (Hill), Fred Ballsle (Hughes).

7th Grade — Breithautt (Hill) 4:07.9; Steve Snow (Hill), Dave Shepard (Hill); Craig Kelley (Marshall), Dary Johns (Hughes).

Japanese Volleyballers in 2 Exhibitions

The Japanese national men's and women's volleyball teams will appear twice in Southern California next week.

They will play the U.S. all-stars at Cerritos College in Norwalk Monday, Dec. 13, and at UCLA's new Pauley Pavilion, Dec. 14.

Japan's women are defending Olympic champions. They have not lost an international match since 1963. The men's team finished second to Russia in the Tokyo Olympics, and second again in the recent World Cup tournament in Poland. The Japanese were the only ones to win a match from USSR in Poland and now are rated No. 1 in the world.

Jim Montague of Long Beach is trying out for the U.S. men's team.

Elorde Weathers Cut Eye, Retains Junior Title

MANILA, (AP) — Ring veteran Flash Elorde weathered a cut eye in the first round Saturday and kept his world junior lightweight boxing title with a unanimous 15-round decision over 20-year-old Korean challenger, Suh Kang Il.

The 30-year-old champion, making the ninth defense of his title, was ahead all the way and never was seriously bothered except for the cut under his right eye that twice brought the doctor into the ring.

DORIS DAY

Magic Name At Boxoffice

DORIS DAY . . . Drama to Slapstick

HOLLYWOOD — The little blonde, freckled girl who first won the hearts of movie fans by belting out pop tunes in musicals has progressed through suspense pictures, volatilely dramatic roles and domestic romances to a position of being the screen's foremost comedienne of today.

Only Doris Day fits all of these facets of a busy and highly successful career. Currently, she is starring at MGM with Rod Taylor and Arthur Godfrey in a picture titled "The Glass Bottom Boat," the plot of which is generously sprinkled with pure farce and shades of slap-stick.

When critics and analysts get around to cataloguing Miss Day's forte these days, they ultimately come up with the comparison of her with the beloved Carole Lombard — a shapely, glamorous, modish and beautiful star who throws caution to the winds when it comes to working for a real belly-laugh.

Through the past dozen years in Miss Day's career, she has remained the acknowledged number one boxoffice star of the world. This has been chiefly during the time she was becoming an expert in comedy, having graduated from light frothy musicals into emotional singing roles such as her Ruth Etting part in "Love Me or Leave Me" through spectacular song-and-dance films like "The Pajama Game" and "Calamity Jane" and side excursions into fare like "The Man Who Knew Too Much" and "Julie" in which both audiences and heroine Doris were scared to death from start to finish.

Then, suddenly, Doris found the niche that has put her on top of the heap. It began with "Pillow Talk" and has extended right through "Do Not Disturb" for Christmas release to "The Glass Bottom Boat."

UNAFRAID OF LOOKING ridiculous, Miss Day has her face smeared with cake frosting for scene with Dom De Louis in "The Glass Bottom Boat."

EVERYTHING goes wrong for Doris in "Do Not Disturb" during a day in Paris.

MOST 'INS' NOT SO MUCH

Actress Hill Unimpressed by Presley

MARIANNA HILL

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—There are people brave enough to think and mostly they are young . . . and one is 21-year-old Marianna Hill who plays Elvis Presley's leading lady in a film but cannot be induced to say that Elvis is a great acting talent.

And many of the so-called "in" people and places are "frauds," "wasteful," and "dissipating," alleges she.

Long-haired Marianna, grandniece of New Jersey police boss Norman Schwarzkopf, has recently filmed "Paradise, Hawaiian Style," with Presley.

"They kept asking me," Marianna says, "'Hasn't he got talent?' That was when the picture was starting.

"I said, 'He's a show business phenomenon.'

"When we were finishing the picture, they said, 'NOW hasn't he got talent?'

"I said, 'I still say he's a show business phenomenon'."

"Did you ever have a date with Elvis?" I asked Marianna.

"No," she squirmed. "You see, he's got his entourage, and they go over to his house and eat popcorn and watch television."

AFTER BRUSHING off Elvis, Marianna took after the restaurants of San Francisco where she once lived (she also grew up in Santa Barbara, La Jolla, Vancouver and New York).

"I think New York's restaurants are superior to San Francisco's," Marianna said.

"Here it's alive! San Francisco's restaurants are cliquish . . . it's very old San Francisco society . . . and everybody's looped. If you drink a bottle of liquor a day, you're one of the social group."

"Did you live there long?" I asked Marianna.

"Till I was 5."

"And you learned those details about San Francisco restaurants before you were 5?"

"I have a 165 IQ!" she said. "I am going to challenge Jill St. John to an IQ test. She keeps bragging about her IQ. She doesn't look all that bright to me."

DISCOVERED by Howard Hawks while at New York's Neighborhood Playhouse, after graduating from Montemar Girls School in San Diego at 18, Marianna was cast in Hawks' picture "Red Line 7000."

"I refuse to go along with all the nonsense about the 'in' places being great," she says. "As a creative person, I find them wasteful. The places and people in them are not for real.

"They have to rush in to every party and be a knife. Slash right through to the center of everything. I know one actor who has absolutely nothing. But he works all the time because he horns his way in everywhere and has endurance.

"He's successful because he lacks perception and awareness and is able to live with his blindfolds on, in a dream factory. Oh, so many people are frauds. The ones I respect are Kim Stanley, Marlon Brando, George C. Scott, Julie Christie, and Anne Bancroft."

"People start drumming their fingers on the table when I say these things. They start acting nervous. They think I'm a trouble-maker."

'Holiday on Ice' Opens Tuesday

"Holiday on Ice," starring ice-spin king Ronnie Robertson, opens a 13-day, 19-performance engagement at the Pan-Pacific Auditorium, Los Angeles, Tuesday.

Featured in the cast are Charlotte Balauff, Alfredo Mendoza, Eric Waite, Jane Morris and Harry Blackstone Jr., son of the late Harry Blackstone, who carries on the famed magical tradition of the family in a production number, "Alladin and His Wondrous Lamp."

Prominent throughout the United States, "Holiday on Ice" was the first American ice show invited to perform in Moscow as part of the Cultural Exchange program and last year accepted a second invitation to appear in the Russian capital.

USC Prof's Novel to Become Movie

"Seek Out and Destroy," a novel dealing with the current war in Viet Nam, has been purchased by Stanley Kramer as a future film production for Columbia Pictures release.

The book, to be published in England in March, was written by Irwin R. Blacker, professor of Cinema at USC.

Blacker served with the Army Engineers in Africa during World War II, performed intelligence work for the Army during the Korean struggle, and a few years ago wrote a book called "Guerilla Warfare—Irregulars and Partisans," published by Simon and Schuster.

Ruth Warrick Shines in O'Neill Play

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

With tall, stately Ruth Warrick of "Citizen Kane" distinction and "Peyton Place" popularity turning in a priceless gem of a performance as the mother, Mary Cavan Tyrone, something wonderful happened at the Warner Playhouse, Los Angeles, Friday night to Eugene O'Neill's immortal "Long Day's Journey Into Night."

The production, a thoroughly professional job, in which Repertory Unlimited debuts, brought a new, strangely magnificent illumination to O'Neill's fog-lost people in their summer home on that memorable August day in 1912.

Under co-founder-director Barry Baumgarten's piercing and meticulously detailed craftsmanship, the Tyrones' place home magically becomes a huge stage on which each Tyrone only calls home because he hangs his own private fantasy—not his hat—there.

* * * *

USUALLY "Journey" meanders into hardcore realism trimmed with diffuse touches of illusion as the story of an embattled Irish-American family. Emotionally it is quite moving when done this way; but also quite morbid, making some of it rather hard to endure in one setting.

In place of everyday emotions, the new production brings the theatrical elixir of highly skilled disciplines. Each member of the family including the lowly maid, acts out his fantasy in the public manner of actors who are onstage every moment of their lives. And one begins to understand why O'Neill draws so largely on theatrical memory—some of it in snide references ("Enter Ophelia")—in his play.

* * * *

"LONG DAY'S Journey . . ." is more than a thrust into the emotional hideaways of the heart. It is the story of human survival purged through art.

This is the bright, new illumination the new repertory company brings to this long, yet masterly written play. And their final achievement is astonishing.

The company starts out with a top o' the morning heartiness in which everybody laughs and method-gestures just too much. But this is only a bait set by brilliant actors who know how to build slowly and surely.

After the light opening, Miss Warrick moves into her superb technical work as the dope-ridden mother trying to con even "my Blessed Virgin" with sweet prayer. Miss Warnick's massive interpretation eschews sentimentality. It does not beg the heart; it begets it. Her recall of being fitted for that famous wedding gown as the romantic, well-bred girl in love with the matinee idol of coarse origin is so graphic it makes everyone relive the scene in its entirety.

On Stage

ARTHUR MILLER'S modern classic, "Death of a Salesman" at Long Beach City College auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Avenue, features (from left) Barbara Ritman, Ron Boussom, Robert Sprott and Randy Mozingo, at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

JEAN ANOUILH'S modern love story, "Romeo and Jeanette," is at Actor's Circle, 29 39th Pl. Bonnie Gallup and Larry Verdugo are shown in scene from the show playing at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

PAT LANG and Joe Daguman in Harbor College, Wilmington, Starboard Theater production of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" playing at 8 p.m. nightly Tuesday through Saturday.

Moorehead at Marymount

Agnes Moorehead will be presented in a program of classical and contemporary readings at 8:30 p.m. Friday at Marymount College, Palos Verdes.

A five-time winner of the New York Film Critic's Award and three-time Academy Award nominee, Miss Moorehead has been appearing professionally on stage and screen since she was 10.

She said she will determine which selections she will use on the program after she has had a chance to sense the mood of her audience.

AGNES MOOREHEAD

'Las Posadas' at Padua Hills Theater

CLAREMONT—"Las Posadas," the story of Christmas in Old Mexico, currently is playing on stage at Padua Hills Theater.

The play is staged at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Saturdays and at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and Fridays.

The theater is located three miles north of Foothill Boulevard in Claremont.

SURVEY
THE HALF DECADE AHEAD

The next five years may well be the most exciting and significant in Metropolitan Long Beach's history. To tell this story, in advance, is a challenging newspaper project, one which we believe will be the most widely read and eagerly discussed edition we have ever undertaken.

It should be read by every member of our community, by students, by our representatives in government, by influential people everywhere.

Thousands of extra copies of "Survey/the Half-Decade Ahead" will be printed for nation-wide distribution. You will want to watch for it, save it, order extra copies for family, friends, and business contacts.

Unsheltered From Fallout, Rain, Taxes

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

A Santa Monica woman who complained that the fallout shelter in her yard doesn't even keep out the rain, has found out it is no protection against the county assessor, either.

Mrs. Jane G. Carey, who lives in Santa Monica Canyon, had petitioned to have the assessment on her land reduced from $4,800 to $3,700, and the assessment on improvements lowered from $3,000 to $2,300.

A leaky fallout shelter could hardly be called an improvement, she contended.

A county tax appeals board held, however, that the assessor had made a fair evaluation of her property and denied her petition.

N. LONG BEACH ACTION

Fire Is Boy-Scouted

Two North Long Beach Boy Scouts remembered the Scout motto — "Be Prepared" — Saturday afternoon when they spotted a fire in the storm sewer at 49th Street and Virginia Avenue.

Bruce Pietrzak, 12, of 104 W. 49th St. and Mark Mulholland, 11, of 4925 Virginia Ave., wasted no time in bringing buckets of water to douse the flames.

A passing policeman helped them make sure the fire was out, then commended their alertness. Accumulated gases in drains and sewers can sometimes explode, he pointed out.

Jack Shivel, neighborhood commissioner for the boys' Troop 153, passed the incident along but didn't say whether it would eventually count toward two firefighting merit badges.

Only Ford Motor Company offers you all these station wagon firsts:

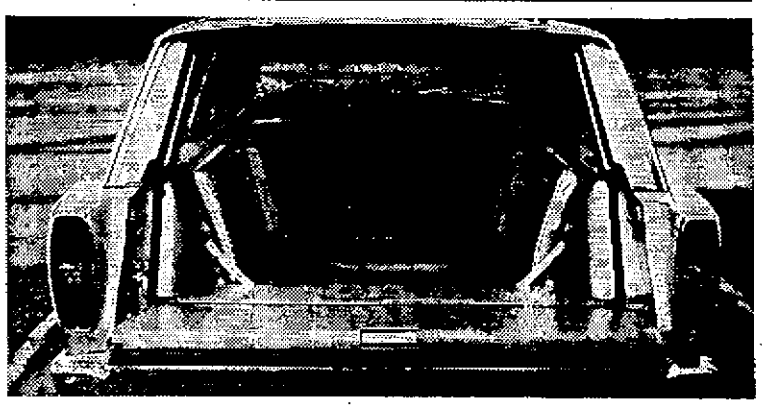

a tailgate that swings open like a door (for people)

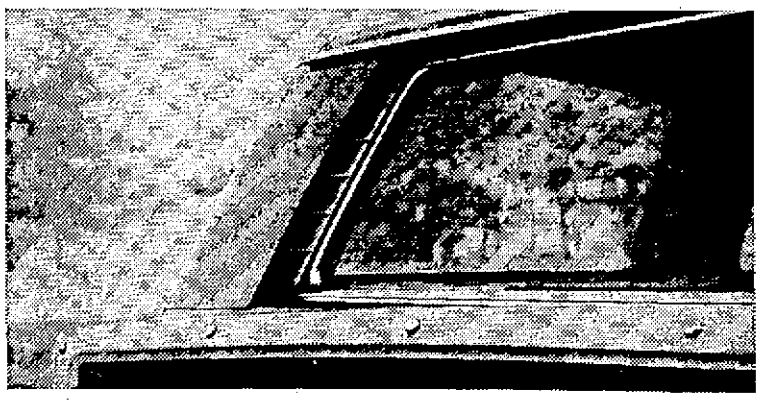

or lowers like a platform (for cargo)

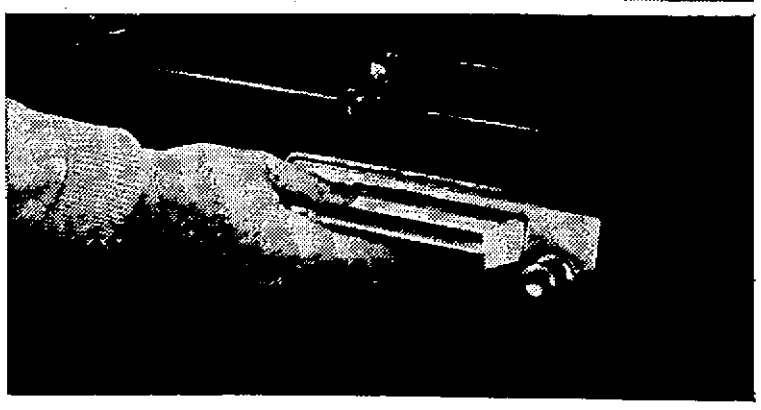

side-facing rear seats (that make room for a family of 10 or fold down flush with the floor)

deflectors that air-wash back window—automatically (air streams help clear away dirt, dust, and snow as you drive)

a Stereo-Sonic Tape System (over 70 minutes of your favorite music with no static, no commercials)

That's why you've bought more new Ford Motor Company station wagons these past nine weeks than in any similar period since we built the first one in 1928. Why all the enthusiasm?

New ideas. More smart, swinging ideas than all the others put together.

Come see all that's exciting for 1966 . . . at your Ford or Lincoln-Mercury dealer.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE
Agency For International Development
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20523

REGISTERED NURSES FOR CIVILIAN POSITIONS IN VIETNAM

Difficult, possibly hazardous, working conditions, long hours, great responsibility, in remote locations. To work with international medical teams in provincial hospitals of South Vietnam, treating civilian war casualties and villagers needing medical attention, as part of U.S. AID program. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit, 25 to 45 years of age (exceptions for outstanding qualifications) with a minimum of two years experience in patient care or ward management, willing to serve abroad without dependents for at least 18 months. Mothers of dependent children not acceptable.

Salary range: $6,000 to $12,000 plus 25% overseas differential, housing allowance, other benefits.

AREA DEVELOPMENT OFFICERS — VIETNAM, THAILAND AND LAOS

The Agency for International Development (AID) is seeking dedicated and skilled American men to advise provincial, district, and village officials in Vietnam, Thailand, and Laos on locally administered projects in the public works, agriculture, education, health, and sanitation fields. Candidates must have a genuine interest in the welfare and future of the people of Southeast Asia and be willing to serve in remote areas under conditions of hardship and personal risk.

A minimum of a bachelor's degree in the social sciences or agriculture fields is required as well as several years experience in local government public services, rural development, and/or the coordinated management of financial, personnel, and material resources.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens of above average physical fitness, and be willing to undergo separation from their dependents for up to 18 months if selected for Vietnam.

Salaries range from $6,000 to $15,000, plus up to 25% differential, housing allowance, and other benefits.

PROGRAM ECONOMISTS, VIETNAM AND FAR EAST

Difficult working conditions, long hours, great responsibility, in a challenging environment with considerable personal career growth potential. To work under the direction of the Program Officer in AID Missions abroad in the preparation of large scale economic aid programs, with responsibility for providing Missions with the input of economic information, analysis and recommendations necessary to formulate, change, implement and evaluate Mission programs. Applicants should have a Ph.D in economics or comparable training/experience or a M.A. with at least two years experience in economic analysis or teaching of economics at the college level; applicants should be highly trained in economic theory and especially competent in developmental economics. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit and willing to serve abroad with their families for a minimum of two years at a time (in Vietnam, at least 18 months, without dependents).

Base salary, related to present earnings: $8,500 to $18,000 plus overseas differential, housing allowance, and other benefits.

ASSISTANT PROGRAM OFFICERS, VIETNAM AND FAR EAST

Difficult working conditions, long hours, great responsibility, in a challenging environment with considerable personal career growth potential. To work under the direction of the Program Officer in AID Missions abroad in the preparation of large scale economic aid programs and to assist in program planning. Applicants should have a M.A. in political science, international relations or economics, or an A.B. degree with additional experience and executive potential. At least 12 hours in economics, and some analytical experience required. Management/administrative experience desirable. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit, and willing to serve abroad for a minimum of two years (in Vietnam, at least 18 months, without dependents).

Base salary, related to present earnings: $7,000 to $16,000 plus overseas differential, housing allowance, and other benefits.

OVERSEAS AUDITORS — VIETNAM AND THE FAR EAST

Challenging career opportunities in the Office of the Controller, in AID Missions in the Far East, in audit activities of major economic assistance programs. Applicants should have personal growth potential, a bachelor's degree from a recognized institution with a major in accounting, and have a minimum of two years experience in public accounting and/or internal auditing in private industry or government. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit, and willing to serve abroad for 24 months (in Vietnam for 18 months without dependents).

Salary range: $7,000 to $12,000, plus up to 25% overseas differential, housing allowance, and other benefits.

AGRICULTURAL ADVISORS VIETNAM

Difficult, possibly hazardous, working conditions, long hours, great responsibility in remote locations.

Applicants should have a B.S. degree in Agriculture or Agricultural Education. A minimum of five years experience as a County Agricultural Extension Agent, Vocational Agriculture Teacher or a similar position. However, a specialist with practical experience and farm background is acceptable. Career opportunity.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit, and willing to serve abroad without dependents for at least 18 months. Language training prior to assignment may be provided.

Salary range: $7,500 to $15,000, plus 25% overseas differential, housing allowance, other benefits.

PUBLIC SAFETY ADVISORS

Limited number of overseas positions available for Public Safety Advisors in programs of the U.S. Government. These assignments are of the greatest importance to U.S. objectives, to assist police forces of the Free World.

Applicants must be willing to serve anywhere in the world. Five years minimum experience is required at executive/supervisory level in Federal, state, or local law enforcement. Degree in Police Administration or allied fields, and overseas experience desirable. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, may be up to age 45, and must be physically fit.

Salary range: $8,500 to $12,500, plus overseas differential if applicable, housing allowance, and other benefits.

TO APPLY

An AID recruitment team will be at the U. S. Court House, Room 1517, 312 North Spring Street, Los Angeles, the week of December 6 to interview candidates. Call 688-5678 (collect, if out-of-town) for an appointment.

OPPORTUNITY
SEMI-SKILLED

We are now offering an opportunity for semi-skilled men to learn a trade. Our trainees are available for shift work, as well as weekends. They are men who are willing to put in a hard day of work because of the rewards and experience they gain.

Our apprentices know that reliability and effort are recognized through increased earnings and rapid promotion. They are men who are more concerned with the future than the present. They also prefer permanent work, as opposed to being laid off every other month. If you are type of man we are looking for then come in today and talk employment possibilities with us.

This MAN IS A "Security Risk"!

Age 29. Married. Two children. High school education. Active in lodge, church, veterans organization. Employed by large manufacturing concern. Earns $103 a week.

Sounds like an Average Joe. And he is. Too average! He's got a job. It pays fairly well. He's satisfied.

But here's the catch. With the right kind of training, this young man could be stepping into better jobs. He could be making $7-$8,000 a year. He could be cashing in on those sparetime hours he now wastes. As it stands now, he's stuck in his job. Can't seem to make any headway. He's reluctant to try. So he just hangs on.

This man is a "Security Risk" to his wife and children. His family probably will never enjoy the comforts, the prestige, the good living that could be theirs.

If hard times come, they are almost sure to be hurt. For an Average Joe can't compete with trained men when the chips are down.

A man like this would do well to start a planned program of self-improvement. In his spare time. In a field related to his interests and abilities. Right NOW!

Don't You be a "Security Risk"

Prepare now for professional career. Opportunity unlimited. Free R.E. School & Training.

All-electric apartments from $80 per month!

Why rent anything but a Flameless All-Electric Gold Medallion Apartment when it's so easy to afford today!

The Gold Medallion Award tells you your new apartment is completely flameless—the easiest ever to care for—and fully equipped for the best of living.

Enjoy flameless electric heating—more comfort than you've ever known. Clean and quiet as sunshine too. Helps furnishing, drapes, carpets stay bright and new far longer.

Flameless electric water heating—the carefree way to have hot water instantly—without a hot, burning pilot light.

A modern all-electric kitchen—the cleanest and coolest!

Full "Housepower" wiring with all the circuits and outlets you'll ever need.

Fully insulated for maximum soundproofing, comfort and economy.

Move in now to cleaner, quieter, easier living in an all-electric apartment.

SPECIALISTS

Invite you to investigate one of the world's most profitable franchises! Compare these facts with any other franchise available:

• AAMCO has 200 franchised shops from coast to coast, and offers a national, exclusive lifetime guarantee.

• AAMCO Shops average $100,000 annual gross, with best shops grossing $250,000, making possible personal income of $30,000 to $50,000 per year. In addition, AAMCO shops are unaffected by seasonal slumps and recessions.

• AAMCO maintains a distributor school and training directors, field representatives, and a consulting division to train you thoroughly in the most advanced management and merchandising techniques, then makes sure you have all the help and advice you need for continuing success.

No automotive experience is necessary; your own ability is put to work for you. Modest, partly financeable investment of $17,500 to $23,000, depending on territory. Please furnish complete personal details. Write, wire or call Robert Morgan, Vice President . . .

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS
Before you buy or sell that lot, investigate it's potentials. If it is zoned for apartments or not, we will make a survey without obligation to you, to determine if it is advisable for you to build or to sell. We check your lot size, zoning, vacancy factor & rent schedules in your area; we advise as to what is best suited to the neighborhood, what we think belongs on your lot and what it costs to build. We show you how it can be financed, what your income & expenses will be and how much cash income is yours each month. If it makes $ cents $ to build, we can provide 100% financing for the entire project.

QUALITY MAKES THE DIFFERENCE
A successful business must have two things: a quality product and quality salesmen.
It is an unbeatable combination where one thrives on the other and both become successful.
Harbor Chevrolet has this combination.
Since 1923, our records prove it is the successful way to sell automobiles.
We believe those who surpass the high standard we set for our salesmen deserve recognition; therefore we proudly announce our

City of the Seals Active

LAYOUT OF S&S CONSTRUCTION CO.'S 1,700-HOME DEVELOPMENT AND BIXBY RANCH CO.'S $10 MILLION GOLF COURSE

Independent-Press-Telegram
Progress
BUSINESS REAL ESTATE

LONG BEACH, CALIF., SUNDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1965

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Southland Progress Editor

Fifty years ago, a small band of elated Seal Beach residents was basking in the glow of national publicity.

Their enthusiastic prediction: 20,000 population within two years.

The national spotlight had swung onto the mile-square resort city because of the daring of Mack Sennett and a silent bathing girl movie filmed in Seal Beach.

But 1916 and 1917 sped by and the predicted growth did not materialize.

Short post-World War I depressions, the questionable reputation of some establishments in the community's amusement zone and prohibition all helped to quiet the citizens' enthusiasm during the years that followed.

A half century later, the population prediction came true.

Seal Beach again is in the spotlight—the home of important naval facilities, a vast North American Aviation complex where the Saturn second stage booster is manufactured and as an ever-growing recreational and residential community.

City Manager John Williams and Thurman Earhart, building department head, say these moves now are at hand for the expanding 10-square-mile city:

1. A 1,700-home development, by the S&S Construction Co., in the newly annexed area east of Los Alamitos Boulevard and north of the Garden Grove freeway.

2. North American Aviation's plan for a multistory engineering headquarters building on its newly acquired Hellman Ranch site south of Garden Grove Freeway and west of Bay Boulevard.

3. The Fred H. Bixby Ranch Company's plans for a private country club and golf course between the S&S Construction Co. residential development and Los Alamitos Boulevard.

4. A "several hundred thousand dollar" improvement to the Seal Beach pier, including erection by the lessee of a restaurant, boat landing and refueling station.

The S&S Construction Company plan calls for a $51 million investment, adding an estimated 6,500 persons to the city and $20 million annually to the area's income.

The firm's New College Park Unit will be on one of the last remaining large parcels of the historic Bixby Ranch, according to S&S principals Nathan Shapell, David Shapell and Max Webb. Model homes will be ready early next year, they said.

Officials of the Fred H. Bixby Ranch Company, in revealing plans for the golf course, also said a commercial complex and — perhaps later — apartment buildings are under consideration.

Estimated investment in this project: $10 million.

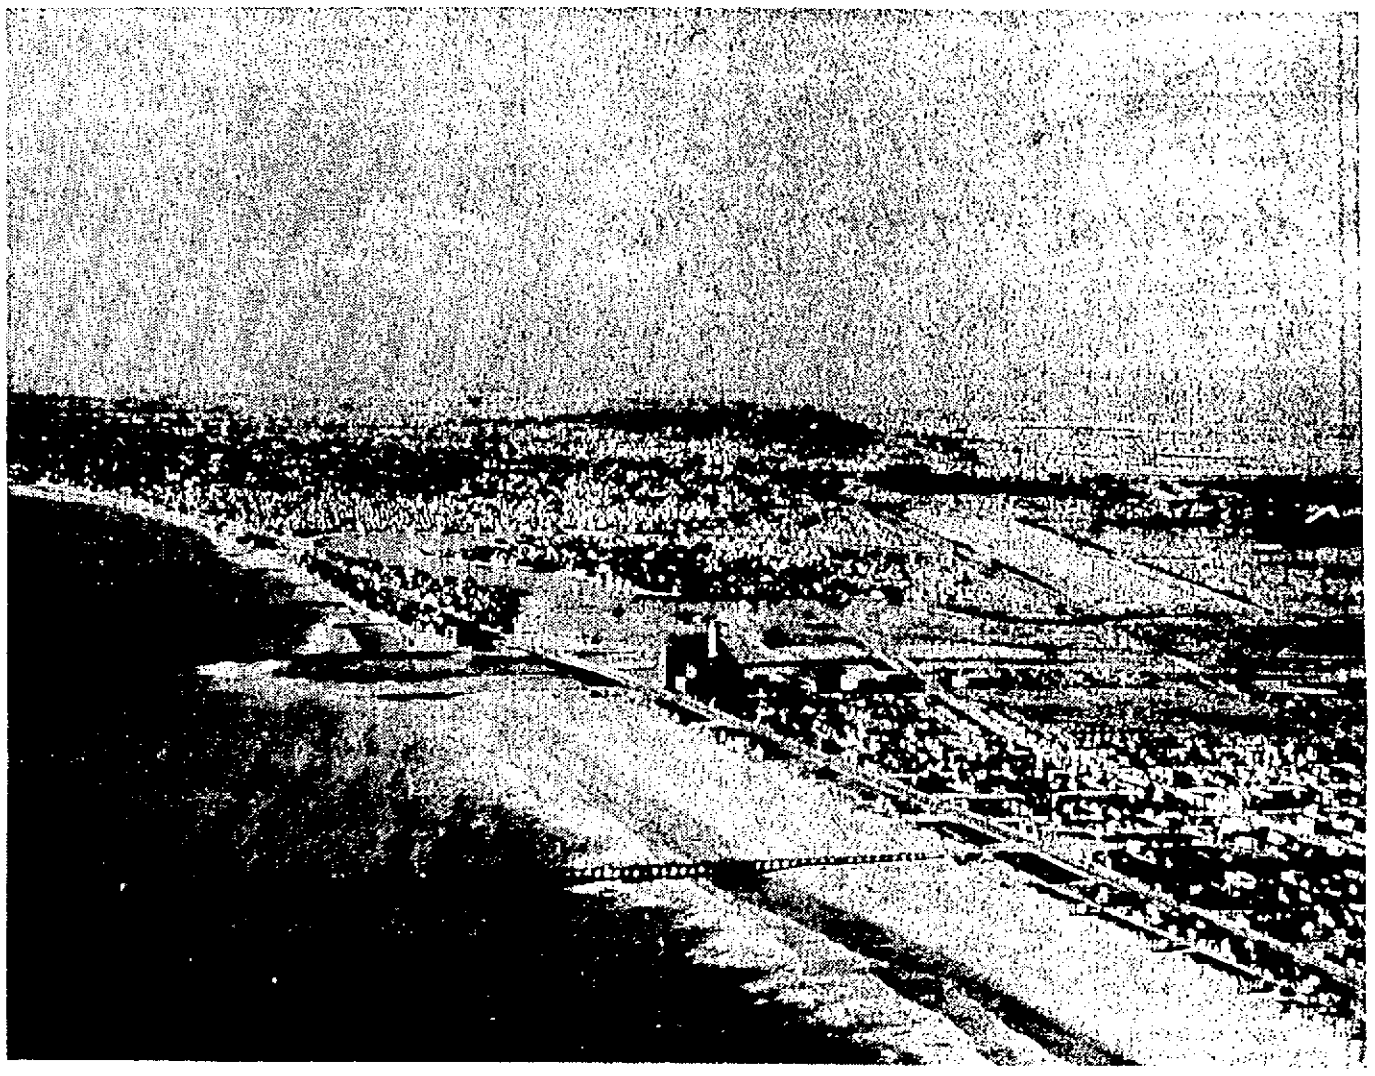

North American officials plan an attractive multistory structure on or near the site of the old Hellman ranch house to serve as a headquarters for its engineering and quality control staffs connected with the Saturn project.

Spokesmen said administrative offices also will be included.

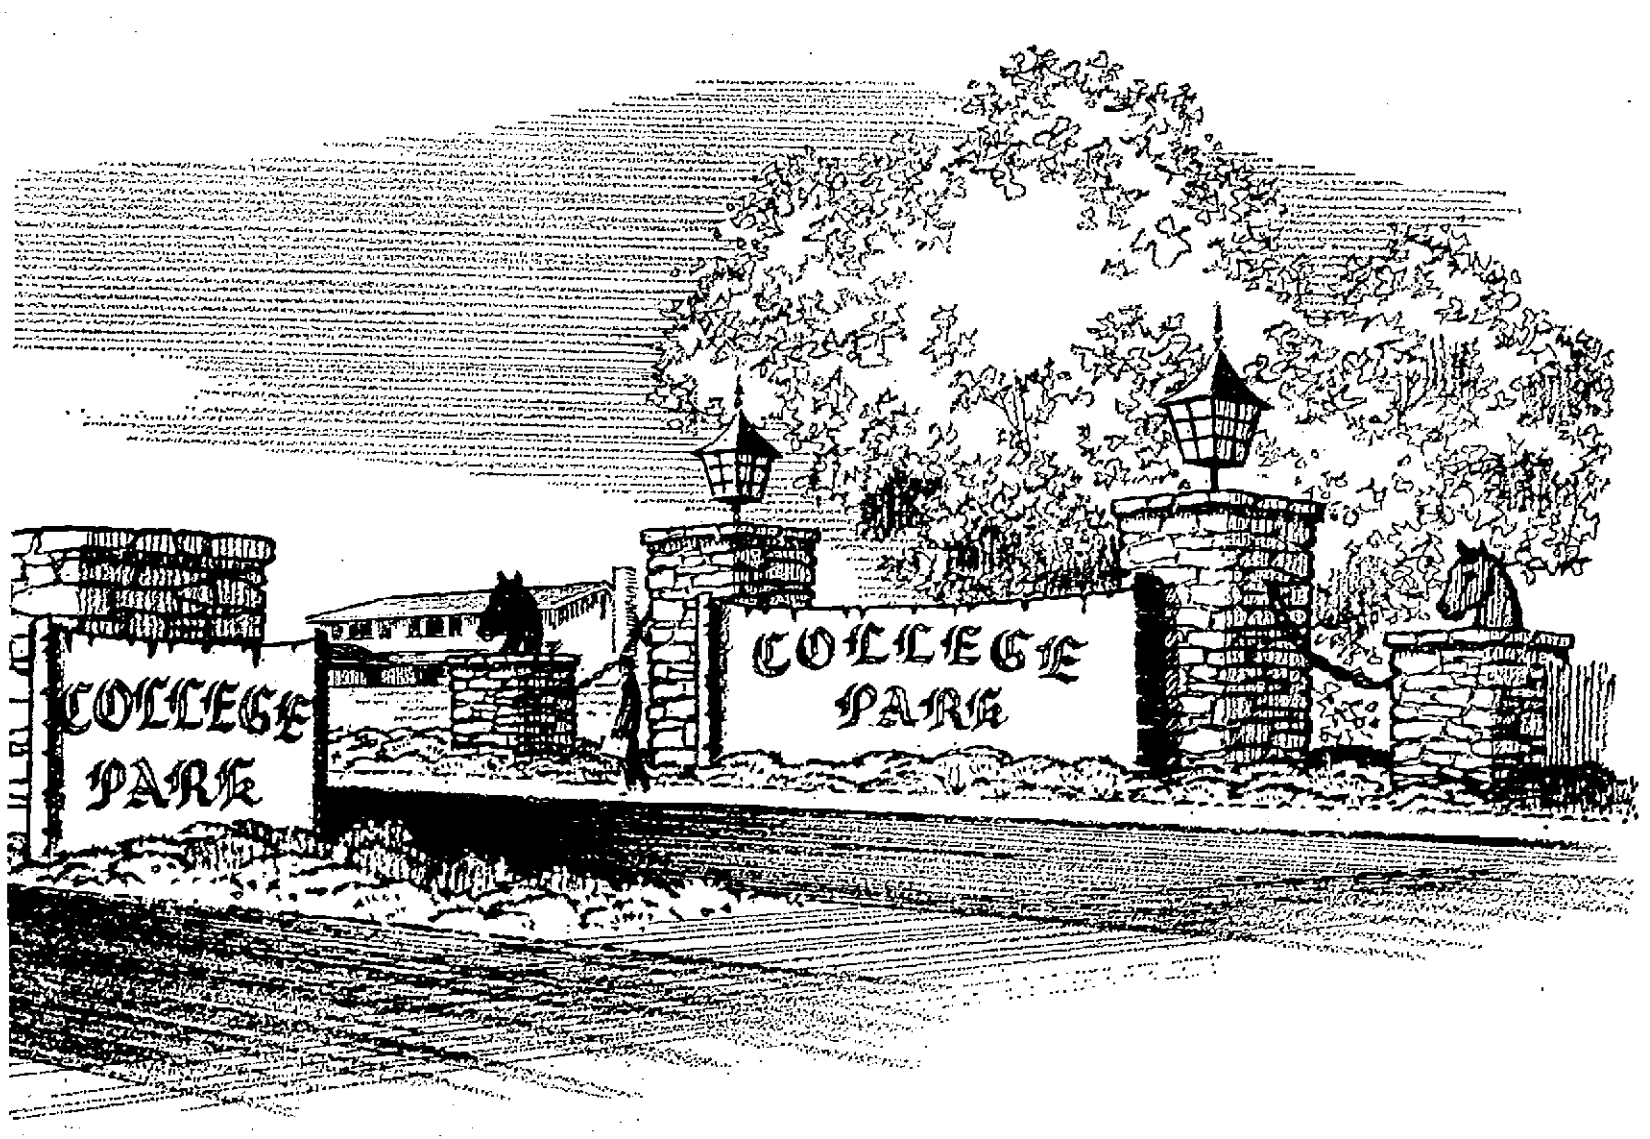

At least 2,000 workers will be transferred to the new facility immediately upon its completion with the total expected to reach 5,000 by the end of 1966.

City Manager Williams has his own Seal Beach population prediction: 58,000 by 1985.

"We must," he warns, "maintain and capitalize on our community's identity. We must maintain our unique separateness. We must not be lost in the metropolitan sprawl."

THE REV. LEROY DOTY . . . Manor Will Be Ready in October

ON PACIFIC AVENUE

Low Cost Total Care Is Brethren Manor Feature

Food, shelter and medical care—all for less than $125 per month.

These are the goals of Long Beach Brethren Manor, a $3.1 million low cost senior citizen housing development now under construction in Long Beach.

Sponsored by the First Church of the Brethren in Long Beach, the manor will consist of 297 Gold Medallion (all-electric) apartments and provide housing for 400 to 450 persons.

Studio, one-bedroom and two-bedroom apartments will range in rents from $60 to $105 per month and include utilities.

Although each apartment will feature a compact kitchen with wall oven, built-in range, refrigerator and waste disposal, tenants may elect to take their meals in a central dining facility for an additional $52 per month.

In addition, for just $10 per month, a group insurance program will be available to each Manor resident to supplement the national Medicare program and provide complete medical and hospital care.

The Rev. C. Leroy Doty, pastor of the Church of the Brethren and chairman of the board, Long Beach Brethren Manor, said the goal is to provide a facility for senior citizens of modest income.

"We started this project to provide adequate shelter, food, medical care and other services for elderly citizens or pensioners with low income. The Manor will meet these goals because it is truly a low-cost housing project sponsored by a nonprofit organization," he said.

H. G. Hanawalt, Southern California Edison Company district manager, reported that the total-electric concept of the Manor will help reduce construction and maintenance costs.

Located at 3333 Pacific Ave., the six-story, reinforced concrete building will feature glass-walled recreation lounges with color television and outdoor terraces on each floor. Additional recreation area will be located on a landscaped roof-top garden.

Other facilities will include hobby shops, a library, community dining hall, elevator service and parking for 227 cars.

Long Beach Brethren Manor, designed and engineered by Daniel, Mann, Johnson & Mendenhall, features planning throughout to meet the specific needs of the elderly.

Each apartment will have electric baseboard heating with individual thermostatic control. In addition, wall-to-wall carpeting, nonskid floors and bathtubs, and drapes.

Automatic coin-operated electric washers and dryers as well as sewing facilities will be provided in a utility room on each floor.

All apartments, unfurnished, will be available on a rental basis. The Manor is expected to be ready for occupancy by October, 1966.

Oltmans Construction Co. of Monterey Park is the general contractor of the development.

"Governor Brown's Citizens' Advisory Committee on Aging has gone on record with the statement that this project represents a major breakthrough in the field of senior citizens housing," Rev. Doty said.

Rev. Doty discussed plans for the Manor with members of his church—Willard Harris, Lowell Reed, Robert Walker, Homer Fike and Frank Howell. Fund-raising drives and private gifts and donations kept the project alive until proper financing could be obtained.

The Manor now is financed by a direct loan from the HHFA Community Facilities Administration. It represents the largest loan commitment in the southwest for a senior citizens housing project and one of the largest such commitments in the United States for a church-sponsored project.

Douglas of Canada Taps New Officers

New officers of Douglas Aircraft Company of Canada, Ltd., have been announced as Douglas Canada assumed responsibility for the productions of DC-9 components at Malton, Ont.

Donald W. Douglas Jr., chairman of Douglas of Canada and president of the Douglas Aircraft Company, Inc., of Santa Monica, said Jackson McGowen, group vice president-aircraft of the Douglas Aircraft Company, had been elected president of the Canadian subsidiary.

* * * *

OTHER OFFICERS are W. L. Whittier, vice president-general manager; C. R. Gollihar, vice president-financial management; W. H. Jackson, vice president-administration, and A. W. Baker, vice president-operations.

Douglas and de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, Ltd., announced in October that Douglas Aircraft Company of Canada would lease and operate that portion of de Havilland's Malton plant devoted to production of components for the DC-9 transports.

Douglas of Canada will manufacture four sets of DC-9 wings and tail sections a week, amounting to more than $2 million a week in U.S. dollars. Employment will be provided for approximately 6,000 Canadians including those working for subcontractors.

* * * *

DIRECTORS OF Douglas of Canada are Donald W. Douglas Jr., McGowen, Whittier, A. V. Leslie, Edward Curtis, M. B. Hunt, H. E. Shuwalter, Jack Hall and B. F. Coggan.

Twenty-three airlines have now placed a total of 370 orders and options for the DC-9, the latest in the long line of Douglas transports. Among these airlines is Air Canada, which has eighteen DC-9s on order.

The DC-9 entered commercial service last week with Delta Air Lines.

H. TRATTNER

Trattner had been associated with Nash for more than 25 years before joining in other area jewelry outlet endeavors in both sales and managerial capacities.

Quarter Dividend Up

Directors of Petrolane Gas Service, Inc., Signal Hill, have voted an increase in the quarterly dividend to 17½ cents a share. The board also announced record high sales and earnings for the year ending Sept. 30.

NEWEST LONG BEACH BANK . . . To Occupy New Boulevard Building

ELEVEN DIRECTORS NAMED

Bank of Long Beach, N.A., to Open Doors About March 1

Organizers of the Bank of Long Beach, N. A., last week elected 11 of 13 directors and approved the bank's Articles of Association in an organizing session attended by 150 of the bank's 496 shareholders.

George A. Hart Jr., a Long Beach attorney named chairman of the board, announced concurrently that the bank will open about March 1 in a new building at 4201 Long Beach Blvd.

* * * *

ALSO ELECTED directors were the 10 men who helped Hart organize the bank:

Dr. William Ballhaus, president of Beckman Instruments, Inc., Fullerton; Mel Burns, president of Mel Burns Ford; Maurice Carl, owner of Carl's Furniture & Carpets; George S. Denbo, real estate developer; F. A. Hagelberg, formerly vice president and controller of Van Camp Sea Food Co., now retired; J. S. Jacobs, president of J. S. Jacobs & Co., an electrical contractor; D. L. Marlett, vice president of Great Lakes Carbon Corp., a New York-based industrial and real estate company with local offices; Jerome Moss, a real estate developer; M. A. Nishkian, president of M. A. Nishkian & Co., consulting engineering firm; and H. H. Ridder, publisher of the Independent, Press-Telegram.

HART SAID two additional directors will be named later, bringing the total to 13 as approved by shareholders. Also to be named later are operating officers of the bank.

Capitalized at $1.5 million as an independent national bank, the Bank of Long Beach initially will occupy the first floor's southerly 8,000 square feet in its quarters at the intersection of San Antonio Drive and Long Beach Boulevard, Hart said.

The building will be known as the Bank of Long Beach Building, he added.

Tennis Court Contract Set at $90,000

One of the laregst tennis court contracts in Orange County history was signed last week with developer George M. Holstein and Sons naming the Ben F. Smith Company of Los Angeles as court contractors for the Newport Beach Tennis Club complex.

The contract was for in excess of $90,000, with grading and land preparation to get underway immediately at the site on Eastbluff Road at Vista Del Oro in the Eastbluff area of the Irvine Ranch.

Drafty Windows Can Be Expensive

Your house may be breezier than you think. Studies show air infiltration accounts for approximately 37% of the total heat loss from a typical five-room, well-insulated bungalow.

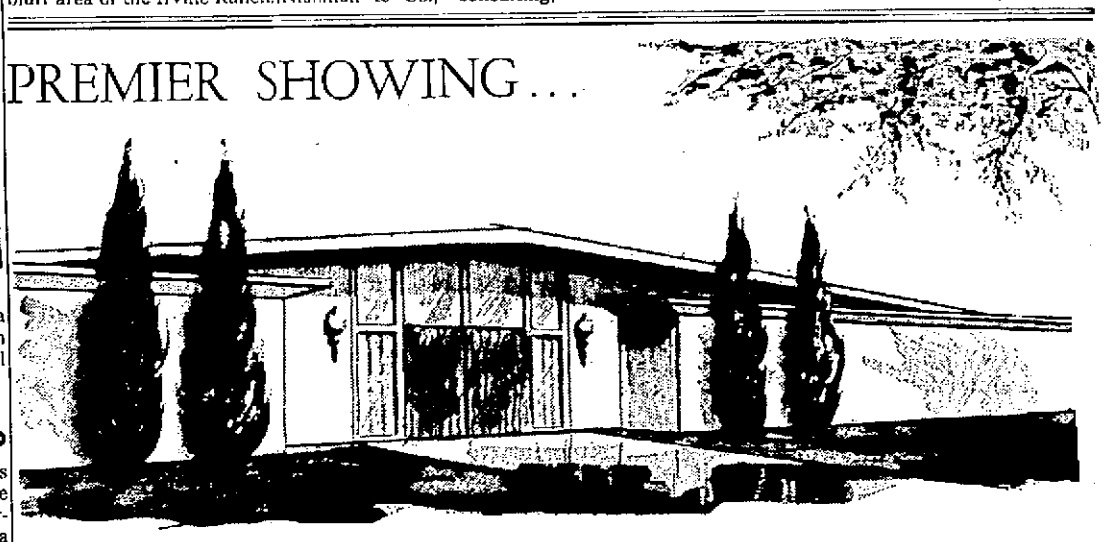

A study by the University of Minnesota's Institute of Technology found that the use of weatherstripping on windows, such as the factory-installed weatherstripping provided with stock windows of ponderosa pine, can reduce infiltration losses to 17% of the total heat loss from a house, with a corresponding saving of approximately 24% of the total fuel cost.

William R. Brooks Elected to Office

William R. Brooks of Long Beach has been elected to a one-year term as district vice president of the Society of Industrial Realtors.

Other officers elected at the society's annual meeting at Chicago included William B. West of Cleveland, president.

SHOULD YOU LIVE IN AN ADULT COMMUNITY?

If you're an active adult we think you'll be interested in our new concept in living for people without children. Huntington Bay, located just 3 minutes from the ocean in Huntington Beach offers adults a unique, rewarding way of life.

NOT A RETIREMENT COMMUNITY

Huntington Bay is not an "old folks home." Some of our residents are in their early thirties . . . most are in their forties and fifties . . . all are people who prefer adult associations and an adult atmosphere. Sales are limited to families with children 14 years of age or more.

MAKE NEW FRIENDS OR KEEP THE OLD

Huntington Bay residents are a sociable lot with most of the families active in the community's planned social and recreational program. If you're new to Orange County you'll have as many friends as an old timer before you know it.

For the established residents the built-in privacy and the private club recreation facilities are perfect for entertaining old friends or for quiet seclusion.

Regular activities range from parties at the private clubhouse to bridge, square dances, pot luck breakfasts and pool parties. At Huntington Bay you live the way you prefer.

MORE LEISURE TIME— NO MAINTENANCE CHORES

When you move to Huntington Bay you leave your lawn mower behind. All lawn care and exterior maintenance is done for you by professional maintenance crews. This means extra hours every week to do as you wish. And, when vacation time comes around you just pack up and go knowing your lawn will be cared for in your absence. For those with a green thumb there's ample opportunity for gardening within your own fenced garden patio where protected tropical plants grow in profusion. Even shopping is more convenient at Huntington Bay with many stores and shops within walking distance.

YOU GET A COMPLETE HOME

Gone are the problems so often posed when purchasing a partially equipped home. Your Huntington Bay home is complete in every way with built-in Frigidaire oven and range, Frigidaire washer and dryer, disposal and deep pile wall-to-wall carpeting. Your garden patio is completely fenced for privacy. A wide selection of 1, 2 and 3 bedroom designs, both one and two stories, enables you to choose the plan that suits your needs best.

LIVE JUST 3 MINUTES FROM THE BEACH

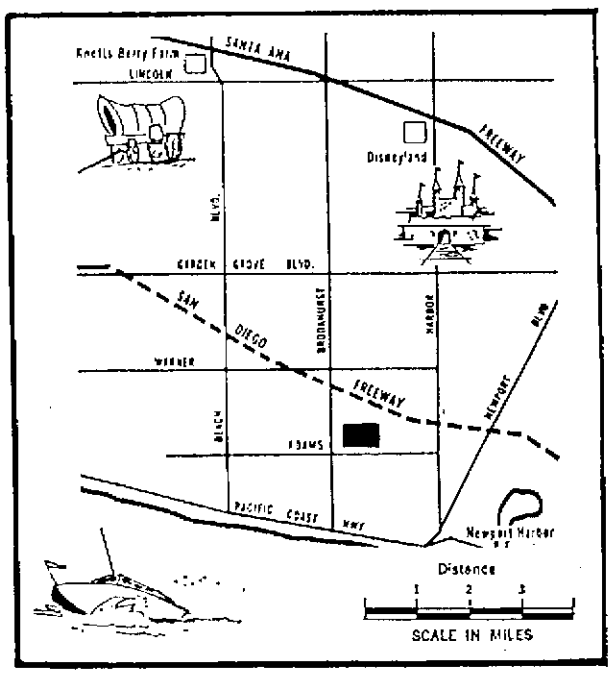

At Huntington Bay you'll enjoy the fresh, clean ocean air every day of the year. And, if you enjoy boating, fishing and other water sports, you're just a 3 minute drive from Newport Beach.

SAVE MONEY FOR THE THINGS YOU WANT MOST

After seeing the luxurious features and the complete facilities of Huntington Bay, you'll be amazed by the low cost of these beautiful homes. You not only enjoy new comfort and convenience but you save money every month through lower payments and tax advantages plus one of the best opportunities for appreciation of your investment. Payments for a spacious one bedroom home are as low as $92 a month . . . 2 bedrooms $118.00 and a three bedroom home for just $125.00 a month. The money you save can be used for those trips you always wanted, for new furnishings or even form the basis for a sound retirement fund. No wonder so many residents consider their Huntington Bay home the best investment they ever made.

DEVELOPED BY AMERICA'S NO. 1 BUILDER

Huntington Bay is a development of Kaufman and Broad, the nation's largest publicly owned producer of popular priced homes. A combination of nation-wide experience and mass buying power bring Kaufman and Broad home owners unmatched quality and value and the assurance of a sound investment.

PROFESSIONAL APPROACH

Architects Do More Than 'Draw Plans'

Many persons consider an architect as a man who "draws plans" for a home. He does, but actually this is a minor part of his job. His real purpose is to save you time, money and anguish in turning your dream home into an actual structure.

His first step in stretching each penny of your building dollar may be to analyze your family's living habits and requirements and match them to your financial resources.

Too, he will assist in choosing a building site. Professional advice in this matter has become increasingly important since suitable land is getting so scarce.

The architect also can specify every item that goes into construction, down to the shape and color of ceramic tile. The value of his skill in preparing specifications is important because anything not covered may be considered an extra by the contractor, and charged accordingly.

NOTES OF BUSINESS, ECONOMY

Ocean, Not Moon, Offering Greatest Field for Venture

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

If and when man reaches the moon what will we really gain for the billions of dollars spent?

That was a question posed by Dr. Charles F. Jones, president of Humble Oil & Refining Co., when he spoke before the National Association of Manufacturers meeting in New York.

"Man in the sea should prove much more important to this country than a man on the moon," said Dr. Jones as he unfolded a story of great economic possibilities which may be waiting discovery beneath the oceans.

"It makes little economic and social sense to spend tens of billions on space exploration and to pinch pennies insofar as oceanographic research is concerned.

• • • •

"I AM NOT advocating a reduction in our space effort, but space is essentially void—the sea teems with food and energy."

EDITOR'S NOTE— Long Beach city and harbor officials are moving into developing oceanographic and scientific possibilities and recently named Lou Jobst, I, P-T marine editor, to direct such activities.)

"We need to know more about the sea before we can expect to get the kind of return from it in all areas that we should have," continued Dr. Jones.

"However, the potential rewards, in human and business terms, are vast and, so far, industry has barely rippled the waters."

There are substantial incentives for business to enter this field, he pointed out. The oil firm president quoted the estimate of one scientist that there is one-half billion tons of phosphorite, a key component in fertilizers, from 200 to 1,000 feet off the Pacific coastline.

And, he added, there are some concentrations of manganese nodules on the bottom that may be worth up to $10 million a square mile. Sea water contains some 60 dissolved elements in abundance.

• • • •

"WE MUST have ways to harvest these crops from the ocean and the burden is on business to find them," said the doctor.

He reminded his audience the oil industry recognized the value of minerals below the ocean floor three decades ago. Currently, he said, international offshore oil fields are producing more than 4 million barrels of oil a day, about 16% of the free world's total. In addition, large deposits of sulphur have been found.

"Irresponsible industrial practices could destroy the delicate balance of life in the ocean. We must make certain that we plan and not plunder," warned Dr. Jones.

"In many cases investments in the ocean won't begin to pay off for a long while. We must minimize our aquatic risks by prediction and planning."

• • • •

SOME OF THE key challenges relating to sea exploration outlined by Humble's president included: Greater knowledge about human engineering as it applies to men in the ocean, the use of materials like concrete and plastic in the sea, underwater lighting systems, mooring techniques and remote handling devices. Studies also are necesasry in such areas as marine microbiology, underwater metallurgy, soil mechanics and waste disposal.

In the transportation area, for example, "No one has yet developed the underwater equivalent of the jeep," he said.

NEW SUBDIVISIONS in this area announced the past week include: Belinda Co., plans 91 homes on 40 acres in the Rancho Cajon de Santa Ana, Yorba Linda.

Broadmoor Homes will build 42 homes on 15 acres in the Tustin area. Smith Development Co., plans 37 homes on 16 acres in the same area.

Pemba Subdividers announced plans for 202 homes in Costa Mesa.

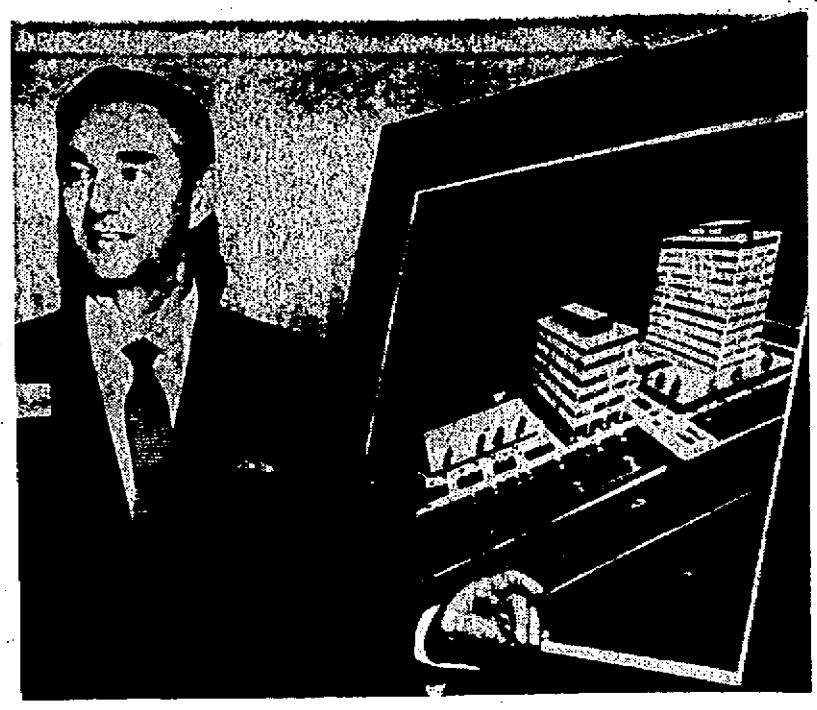

Deane Bros., will build 155 homes on the south side of Cannery St., Huntington Beach.

FWHL developers are having plans drawn for 93 homes at the Southeast side of Warner Avenue and Brookhurst Street, Fountain Valley.

Offshore Exploration Conference Slated

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

The Offshore Exploration Conference, scheduled to be held in Long Beach Feb. 21-23, is shaping into a technical and scientific masterpiece, according to M. J. Richardson, OECON coordination chairman.

"We are assured that the conference will be both qualitative and quantitative one of the finest in history," asserted Richardson.

The conference, first dealing with scientific and industrial developments in the increasingly important field of offshore exploration ever held on the West Coast, will attract leaders from the scientific community, the aerospace and petroleum industries.

* * * *

CONFERENCE officials estimate the three-day affair will be attended by 50,000 visitors to see the exhibits and 2,000 industry experts to hear the papers.

"We are especially gratified with our symposia and technical papers," said Richardson.

Forty major papers — in the fields of oceanography, electronics, subsea systems, fixed and floating platforms and management — have been accepted by the technical papers committee headed by Ray Walker of the Shaffer Tool Co.

These include a study "Determination of Design, Wind, Wave and Current Conditions for Offshore Structures" by Dr. Basil W. Wilson of Science Engineering associates of San Marino, and "The Exploration for and Production of Solid Minerals from Offshore Areas" by Dr. John L. Mero, Ocean Resources Inc. of La Jolla.

* * * *

THESE AND other papers will be of special interest to foreign and domestic oil producers in their possible application to development of subsurface petroleum deposits in the North Sea, an expanding enterprise that has galvanized the world oil industry.

The electronic papers will include works on "Deep Submergence Instrumentation," "Instrumentation and Automation in Deep Ocean Engineering," "Nuclear Power Sources for Underwater Applications," "Manned Submersible Operations" and "The Impact of Deep Submergence Capabilities on Offshore Exploration."

Deep-diving submersibles and major breakthroughs in human capacity to work on the ocean bottom is of tremendous import to development of sea resources, especially mineral recovery, from the continental shelves, Richardson said.

* * * *

THE PAPERS on this subject include a work by B. F. Moore of Westinghouse Electric Corp., developer of the deep-diving submersible Deep Star.

Certain to attract worldwide attention is a paper by L. J. Danforth of Northrop Nortronics of Anaheim on "The Feasibility of an Offshore Deep Submergence Underwater Oil Drilling Platform."

* * * *

RICHARDSON said the conference planners are negotiating for a variety of demonstration equipment including submersibles, diving bells and deep-diving experiments.

There will be displays in the Long Beach Arena (conference and symposia will be held simultaneously in the Lafayette Hotel) of oil tool equipment, platform models, computers, and other sophisticated electronic gear, subs and diving bells, subsea wellhead equipment, photographic equipment, seismic instrumentation and even helicopter.

"We will have live demonstrations — televised to the surface — of undersea equipment in operation and men working on the bottom," added Richardson.

Another highlight of the conference will be a special Teen-age Science Seminar in which the leading science students from more than 50 metropolitan area schools will be guests at demonstrations and lectures.

* * * *

"WE ARE AIMING at interesting the talented youth, the scientists of the next generation, in the future of ocean exploration and all of its ramifications," said Richardson.

"It is a major aim of this conference to accomplish this."

Richardson said three "truly remarkable men" will be speakers at the conference.

They will be A. C. Rubel, former chairman of the board for Union Oil Co., on Feb. 22; A. W. Rose, president of Byron Jackson Division, Borg Warner Corp., on Feb. 23, and John Moore, president of Autonetics Division, North American Aviation, Inc., on Feb. 24.

Chairman of the conference is J. S. Russell, president of Thums, Long Beach Co., developer of the 1.2 billion barrel East Wilmington Oil Field.

Thums is a combine of Texaco, Humble, Union, Mobil and Shell oil companies.

New Santa Ana Electric Company Is in Operation

SANTA ANA — Formation of Wanlass Electric Co. has been announced by Dr. S. Dean Wanlass, president. The new Orange County firm will design, manufacture and market products for the power conversion industry.

Dr. Wanlass also announced Ernest R. Breech was elected chairman of the board of directors.

Breech, a nationally known industrialist since 1929, is chairman of the board of TWA and a director of Rexall, Ford and Lehman Corp. He was formerly top executive of a number of major American firms including chairman of Ford, chairman of North American Aviation, president of Bendix Aviation and a vice president of General Motors.

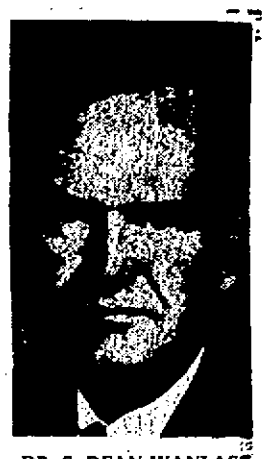

* * * *

DR. WANLASS said the company is based upon more than six years of independent research and development out of which grew a fundamental invention for the control and conversion of electrical power. The invention covers a new electromagnetic device which can electrically control A.C. power without using mechanical or solid state elements.

Wanlass Electric has already introduced several lines of voltage regulation equipment and power supplies at industry-wide trade shows. The firm will introduce several additional power conversion devices in the near future, according to Dr. Wanlass, including power inverters, D.C. converters and frequency converters.

* * * *

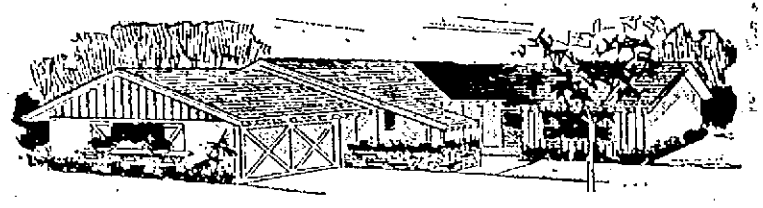

"WE ARE emphasizing power conversion and control equipment at the outset," Dr. Wanlass said, "because electrical power is of fundamental importance to all of industry. The first application of our patents will significantly improve today's electrical products, particularly from the standpoint of cost and performance. I firmly believe that this new company will contribute to tomorrow's technological breakthroughs in the power conversion field."

'Super Metal' to be Produced Near Compton

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
I. P-T National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Development of a "super metal" able to withstand ultra high temperatures has been announced by the National Aeronautics & Space Administration.

Initial production of the alloy is being undertaken by the Fansteel Metallurgical Company, 18201 S. Santa Fe Ave., near Compton.

Expected to increase the operating efficiency of rocket engines, the metal was developed under NASA contract by the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago.

NASA said the metal is an alloy of two uncommon elements, hafnium and tantalum, and is capable of resisting temperatures up to 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Production of the alloy is being speeded so that it may be used to coat rocket engine parts that are subjected to intense heat. High temperatures have caused malfunctions of rocket engine parts such as nozzles and throat inserts.

Scientists currently are studying the possibility the alloy may be used for things such as the leading edge of aerospace vehicles, where great heat is generated at high speeds in the atmosphere, and in turbine and ram jet engines.

The new alloy resists heat by forming an extremely hard scale when subjected to extremely high temperatures. This scale prevents further erosion of the metal. Virtually all other metals wear away under constant thermal pressure.

The alloy has an advantage of relative light weight in addition to its heat resistence.

The current alloy ratio is 80% hafnium and 20% tantalum, but other combinations are being investigated.

Hafnium, the rarer of the two, has been used for years for control rods in nuclear reactors. Tantalum, the more pliant, has had previous use in electrical systems.

Tantalum is mined principally in Brazil and Mozambique. Hafnium is more widely distributed, but is found in smaller quantities. The U. S. has substantial stockpiles of each.

Bellflower Realtors to Fete 2, Install Officers

Awarding of Realtor of the Year and Associate of the Year trophies will highlight the annual officer installation program of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors Wednesday night at the Edgewater Inn.

To be installed as president, succeeding Ray T. Smith, will be Robert Y. Prigmore.

Esta Rodgers takes over the vice presidency, succeeding Robert Reed, and Wayne Van Waveren replaces Grover C. Crisp as secretary-treasurer.

Smith, who was awarded the Realtor of the Year trophy in 1963 and 1964, will present the trophy to the 1965 winner and Esta Rodgers of the Burt Smith Company, 1962 and 1964 winner of the Associate Member of the Year award will make the presentation to the new winner of that trophy.

* * * *

BOTH awards are made on the basis of work in the community and on the local and state level in the field of real estate, and in the case of the Realtor of the Year work in the national association also is included for the judging.

First recipient of the Realtor of the Year award—in 1954—was Burton Smith, who on Jan. 8 will be installed as president of the California Real Etate Association at the Biltmore Hotel. Other holders of the award were Hal Goettsch, 1955; Med Cogburn, 1956; Prigmore, 1957; Vern Ligtenberg, 1958; Al Sykes, 1959; Floyd Marcusson, 1960; Wick Parker, 1961 and Thornton Ibbetson, 1962.

Previous holders of the Associate of the Year trophy, first awarded in 1957, are Linora Dutcher, Pauline Anfang, Thelma Puisys, Hattie Branham, G. C. Crisp and Wayne Van Waveren.

$9.5 Billion Tab

CHICAGO (UPI) — Food purchases by all food service establishments are estimated at $9.5 billion in 1965 by the National Restaurant Assn.

APPOINTED

Robert S. Ewing of Anaheim has been appointed installment loan officer of First Western Bank's Compton branch, Manager Walter J. Stark announced. Ewing, graduate of Long Beach State College, joined First Western last May.

SELECTED

Stanley Perry, of Wilmington, has been named a vice president of the J. L. Moyer Co. in Sherman Oaks, land developing firm. Perry will be in charge of Orange and southwestern Los Angeles Counties operations, including several condominium developments.

AWARD

William Stricklin, owner of Long Beach Maytag Home Laundry Center, has received the company's Red Carpet Service Award for service excellence, third of its kind to be presented to California dealers.

Taxpayers Face Many Changes in Next Year

New and revised income tax rules plus increased social security and self-employment taxes highlight the many 1965 federal income tax changes facing taxpayers when they start to prepare their annual tax returns, says Commerce Clearing House.

High spots of the changes, explained in the 1966 edition of CCH's "U.S. Master Tax Guide," show how this year's tax activity in Congress, the Internal Revenue Service and the courts will affect 1965 tax returns and 1966 tax planning, as follows:

Taxpayers will benefit from new lower tax rates effective this year. Individual rates now range from 14 to 70%. And while the normal corporate rate remains at 22%, the corporate surtax rate drops from 28 to 26% for 1965.

* * * *

THE self-employment tax rate, including the new medicare tax, rises to 6.15% in taxable years beginning after Dec. 31, 1965. Also, the earnings base for the self-employment tax is raised from $4,800 to $6,600, beginning at the same time.

Physicians become subject to the self-employment tax provisions also after Dec. 31, 1965.

For social security purposes, the 3⅝% tax on both employer and employee rises to 4.2% for 1966 to provide hospital insurance (medicare) coverage, and the taxable wage base goes from $4,800 to $6,600 in 1966.

* * * *

REPEAL OF many excise taxes initially levied as emergency revenue - raising measures during the Korean War, World War II or the Depression of the 1930s was provided by the Excise Tax Reduction Act of 1965.

Cash tips amounting to $20 or more per month received by an employe after 1965 in the course of employment by a single employer are considered wages subject to withholding, but the employer has to pay withholding tax only on tip income reported to him.

Lump - sum readjustment allowances paid Peace Corps volunteers upon completion of periods of service may be spread back over the period of actual service for tax purposes.

Gross income limitations under the optional method of reporting farm income for self - employment tax purposes are increased.

* * * *

THE INTEREST equalization tax — designed to stop the flow of gold out of the country — has been extended through July 31, 1967, and applies to acquisitions of foreign debt obligations maturing within one to three years.

Taxpayers who itemize deductions should examine the new 1965 state sales tax deduction guideline for each state. Sales tax laws were newly adopted in 1965 by Idaho and New York and are reflected in the guidelines. Also, increased sales tax rates are reflected in the guidelines for Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Mississippi, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Washington and Wyoming, and a new guideline based on "family size" has been adopted in Hawaii, CCH reported.

Rolling Hills Man Gets Promotion

Appointment of Raymond F. Pontious of Rolling Hills as superintendent of the industrial fastener department at Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Los Angeles plant has been announced by R. J. Tremblay, plant general manager. Pontious was promoted to succeed Leonard R. Gustin who has retired after 41 years with the corporation.

R. F. PONTIOUS

Big in Texas

Texas produces more asphalt shingles annually than all the wood shingles and shakes produced in the United States.

The asphalt shingle industry yearly uses a half-million tons of Texas petroleum products and pays $13 million in wages in the Lone Star State.

KING OF THE ROAD

High enough to serve as a garage roof for the auto parked under it, this 100-ton trailer, built to haul steel, is believed to be the largest single-axle unit ever constructed. The trailer, built by Freighter Industries of Australia, gets much of its height from the huge Goodyear tires, largest ever imported by Australia. Each weighs 1,557 pounds and stand eight feet high.

POLL SHOWS

Apartment Renters Fussy About Size and Location; Dislike Noise

Size, location, and cleanliness, in that order, are what renters look for most when they go apartment hunting.

Secondary — but still important — considerations include storage space, on-site laundry facilities, and the condition of furnishings in furnished apartments.

Far down the list, at least for the bulk of renters, come such items as swimming pools, air conditioning, or steam rooms.

Source for these findings on tenant preferences in apartments is a new study completed with assistance from the Real Estate Education, Research and Recovery Fund by Associate Professor William H. Hippaka of the San Diego State College Bureau of Business and Economic Research. The findings should be applicable to tenants in most other metroplitan centers.

The report is based on 298 field interviews with renters, managers, and owners of San Diego apartment buildings.

ON THE whole, tenants reported a high degree of satisfaction with their accommodations. Nearly nine out of 10 answered "yes" when asked, "Are you satisfied with your apartment?"

As to their reasons for preferring their apartment to a house, most answered that an apartment required less effort to maintain. "This definitely indicates," Hippaka observes, "that people living in apartments expect someone else (managers, owners) to do most of the work connected with maintaining and operating the property."

Respondents furnished a variety of answers when asked what they liked most about the location of their apartment.

ALMOST one-third (there were 141 women in the sample) were pleased that the apartment was "close to shopping." Another one-fourth cited "closeness to work" and still another one-fourth listed "quiet neighborhood."

Hippaka considers tenant preferences on the question of location to be crucial to efficient property management. "No property manager can be successful in the maximum sense of the word," writes the San Diego researcher, "without knowing what tenants consider to be the basis of apartment location desirability."

Not all, however, was perfect where location was concerned. Almost one out of eight tenants in the survey disliked something about the area where his building was situated.

OF ALL THE complaints voiced, the most common was "noisy." Next came "amount of traffic," an objection which might have some relation to the noise factor.

Most often, the disturbances came from outside the building, but in about one-third of the cases, it originated in adjacent apartments. Owners should take steps to eliminate such problems, Hippaka counsels, for "the noise factor is a substantial contributor to vacancies in apartment properties."

To Provide Plane Fuel

Two major contracts for aviation fuel to the Defense Department through facilities of Long Beach-Los Angeles, have been awarded by Defense Fuel Supply Center.

Richfield Oil Corp., through its facilities in the Port of Long Beach, will supply 54,600,000 gallons of aviation gasoline at a cost of $8,068,319.

Union Oil Co., through its port facilities in Wilmington, will provide 3,262,000 gallons of aviation gasoline at a cost of $1,452,621.

Families Pool Land for Better Housing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seventy-five families in the suburban Washington community of Scotland, Md., are pooling their land for a better life.

Like many another once-rural settlement near a big city, Scotland has lately become a suburban slum. The houses are run down and the residents, Negroes, haven't enough money to fix them up.

Most of Scotland's families have lived there for generations. Many would prefer to keep the community together instead of selling out bit by bit to suburban developers who are pressing in from every side.

SO THEY'RE pooling their land in a non-profit organization, Scotland Community Development Inc. With the help of mortgages backed by the federal government, the corporation plans to build 75 units of new housing at Scotland.

Most of the houses will be semi-detached. A few will be detached and some will be town houses. Rental units will be financed with mortgages carrying below-market interest rates so that the monthly rent will be within the means of the families. Purchase units will have 40-year mortgages at market rates of interest.

Each family will get credit for its land and for whatever labor it puts in on the new housing. Many of the men in the community work in the construction trades.

Thus a family with half an acre assessed at $5,000 which contributes $1,000 worth of labor will need a $6,000 mortgage to finance a $12,000 house.

Tiny Device Operates Garage Doors by Radio

A palm-sized high-frequency radio transmitter which will operate garage doors by remote control has been introduced by the Alliance Manufacturing Co., Inc., Alliance, Ohio, subsidiary of Consolidated Electronics Industries, Inc.

Designated the "Alliance Genie Model AT-10," the new transistorized transmitter offers a greater transmission range — increased from 50 to 125 feet — and provides 21 channels instead of nine formerly available. It can be tuned to the complete RF frequency.

Housed in a case styled in tough, high-impact plastic, the tiny (3¾" x 2¾" x 1¼") transmitter weighs only nine ounces. It is powered by a single, low-cost 22½-volt battery to provide long service. The cast snaps open easily for battery access or service.

A new mounting kit includes a chromium clip for attaching the AT-10 to a sun-visor, and a black plastic holder for below-dash mounting.

Both the Alliance Genie AT-10 transmitter and its companion receiver, Model AC-10, are certified to meet FCC rules.

SCHEDULED IN MARCH

Long Beach Home-O-Rama Theme on Modern Living

"Showcase for Modern Living" has been selected as theme for the 1966 Long Beach Home-O-Rama scheduled March 2-6 in the Long Beach Arena under sponsorship of the Long Beach Builders Exchange.

Don Anderson is general chairman of the home show and Lou Anfinson, chairman of the 1965 show, will serve as co-chairman.

The chairman heads up a six-man advisory and planning committee including Anfinson, Noel M. Guertin, Paul Grefe, Marvin L. Davis and Palmer W. Power.

George Colouris, who has produced the show since it was started in 1960, said the theme of the home show comes from a new format adopted this year which will emphasize the showcasing of products and services of the construction industry.

Colouris said sectionalizing of exhibits will provide a modern merchandising concept for the home show.

Executive offices for the Home-O-Rama have been opened in Room 2-1 of the Arena.

HOMES PLANNED FOR FUTURE

Two Stories, Three Garages

A LANDMARK HOME OFFERED IN CITY OF LA PALMA

R. C. Morrison, sales manager, says one of the features really appreciated at the East Lakewood Landmark homesite is the spacious three-car garages.

Preview homeseekers are invited to visit the model area in the city of La Palma now. Located at the intersection of Moody Street and La Palma Avenue, this newest Landmark Homes community will eventually comprise some 360 homes.

In the first unit there will be 144 homes. All homes will be two-story and offer over 2,222 sq. ft. Morrison adds that features will include: underground utilities, carpeting, fencing, landscaping, sprinklers, optional air conditioning, walk-in closets and the usual long list of Landmark Homes exclusives.

* * * *

A GENERAL plan for developing La Palma as the community of the "Ideal American City" has been approved by city councilmen. The development of residential, commercial and industrial land is expected by 1975.

The master plan calls for 490 acres of low-density residential housing, 88 acres in "town house" construction and 69 acres in high density apartments.

Other zone plans include commercial, 55 acres; civic center, 8; industrial, 166; schools, 112; churches, 18; special uses, 10; parks and green belts, 46; and flood control channels, 8.

* * * *

FEATURES include: underground utilities, magnificent entries, spacious family rooms, deluxe built-ins, fireplaces, preparation for air conditioning, custom entry flooring, cultured pullmans, separate service areas, step-down living and family rooms, massive master bedroom suites and convenient dressing alcoves.

Prices at the homesite begin at just $27,875 with an excellent 5% down plan offered. Terms are flexible.

Don't Rush Visit, Says Home Firm

There is so much to see in new designs and features at El Dorado Park Estates that, if you're in a hurry, please postpone your visit, urges Dorene Smith, project sales manager for the builders; S & S Construction Co.

"This is not a psychological sales gimmick, either," Mrs. Smith avows. A possible lifetime investment deserves observation and contemplation. We invite detailed analysis—and comparisons."

El Dorado Park Estates, winner of numerous awards for excellence of construction, features three, four and five-bedroom homes in one-story, two-story and triple-level floor plans, priced from $33,100. Excellent conventional financing is available, with 10% down.

CURRENT HOMES are 1966 models, boasting advanced designs, new interior decoration, revamped landscaping and completely new interior furnishings.

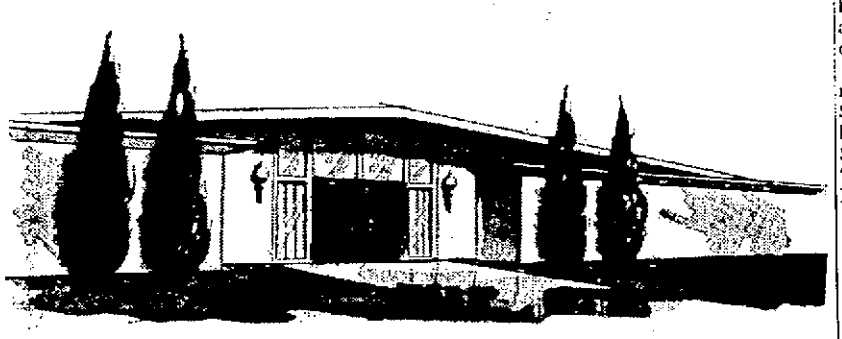

The homes are exclusively designed for ideal furniture arrangement—with the largest possible living room and bedroom wall expanses.

Greater efficiency in the kitchen and grander elegance in the formal dining room are included in the new designs.

Indicative of quality and value, Mrs. Smith says, is the use of lath and plaster construction, concrete driveways and walks, custom electrical fixtures, unique fireplaces, acoustical ceilings and many other items.

The luxuriously furnished models can be reached via San Diego Freeway to Studebaker off-ramp, north to Spring Street and right to "Avenue of Model Homes" at El Dorado Park Estates.

Big Luxury Home Shown Today

"HOLIDAY HOUSE" IS OPEN FOR VIEWERS

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP)—Burglars who carried off an empty safe from Franklin Oil Co. apparently don't believe in signs. Police said a notice on the safe read, "This safe is not locked — please use the handle."

Tougher Rayon Cord in Tires of Future

American automobiles will be able to receive an extra premium of safety, riding comfort and durability as a result of a new rayon tire cord development. "Dynacor" is the name given to the tough new Tyrex rayon tire cord which represents a major breakthrough in rayon tire cord development, it was announced by George I. Rounds, executive vice president, Tyrex Inc., New York, N.Y., the association of rayon tire cord producers.

The development of "Dynacor" is the latest move on the part of the rayon producers to provide the average driver with an even greater margin of performance and safety. Dynacor rayon tire cord has 50% more durability and 300% more adhesion qualities. Rayon tire cord has been used in the original equipment automobile tires the past eight years.

The new product represents another major advance in cellulosic chemistry affecting tire fabric materials since 1957 when Tyrex rayon became the first textile specifically developed for use in tires. Piles of rayon cord fabric are vulcanized into rubber compounds to give backbone and strength to automobile and truck tires.

It is estimated that over 200 million pounds of rayon tire cord with a market value in excess of $100,000,000 is used in automobile and truck tires each year.

Paper Use Up

NEENAH, Wis. (UPI—The country's consumption of household paper products is growing faster in dollar volume than its totals of disposable personal income and personal spending, reports Kimberly-Clark Corp.

Oil Leases Now Cover Vast Areas

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—The Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) reports a vast area of land in the United States is leased for oil and gas production or exploration.

About one-fifth of the land area of the nation now is under lease for future drilling or production or aleady is producing petroleum, the IPAA said. Of the 32 states that produce oil or gas, more than 25% of 13 of them is covered by leases for production or exploration.

Kitchen Plans Made Easier

Homeowners planning new kitchens can now get a quick and easy look at how the job will look when it's finished.

Building Supply News reports that a new template or work guide has been developed to enable the rapid sketching of L or U-shaped kitchen plans, with appliance and cabinets drawn in perspective. The device enables building supply dealers with home remodeling services to sketch the modernized kitchen right in the customer's house.

You'Hep' to Hip Roof?

Do you take the roof over your head for granted? Most people do. They know surprisingly little about roofing terminology.

Terms like "rafters" and "shingles" are relatively easy. For those who are uncertain, rafters are the timbers that form the frame of a roof. Shingles are a finished roof covering, such as asphalt shingles, which are laid in strips over the roofing boards.

But how many persons know what "cricket," "hip" and "rake" mean? Here is a glossary of common terms every roof-watcher ought to know:

Coverage—The number of layers of protective roof sufacing.

Cricket—A saddle-shaped board fastened behind a chimney where it intersects a sloping roof. The cricket diverts water, snow and ice.

Eaves—The lower part of a roof that projects beyond the face of the wall.

Flashing—Strips of metal or other material used in making watertight joints on the roof, such as around chimneys and vent pipes.

Hip—A sloping edge formed where two sides of a roof meet. A roof with this feature is called a hip roof.

Rake—The inclined edge of a roof.

Ridge—The uppermost horizontal line of a roof, where two inclines meet.

Roofers—Tongued-and-grooved boards that act as a roof covering over the rafters and as a base for the exterior roofing material.

Valley—The angle or channel where two slopes in a roof meet.

New Job for Exile of Cuba

MIAMI (AP)—Miami "hot tamale" man Nestor Lao, who before his exile was a prominent businessman in Havana, sells cold tamales. Frozen ones.

"In Cuba frozen tamales were unknown," said Lao, who owned a travel agency, a motion picture theater and the Actualidades Bar, well known to American tourists. All were seized by the Fidel Castro regime.

The exile, a former director of Havana's aristocratic Vedado Tennis Club and treasurer of the Friends of the Sea, an organization of boat lovers, is one of thousands who have radically changed their mode of living in exile.

* * * *

"I WORK from 7 in the morning until 8 at night," he said. "I make 500 to 600 tamales daily."

They are a modern version, placed in a laminated bag rather than wrapped in corn leaves.

Lao mused: "What wouldn't they give in Cuba if they could eat my tamales. The ingredients are lacking there, nearly every food item is scarce. There is no shortening, no meat, few onions."

Would he and his wife, both came here in 1961, return to Cuba if the Castro government falls? "Yes, but I consider that an unlikely situation."

AWARD-WINNING DIAMOND HEAD HOME IN BELLFLOWER

"The house-hunting executive is finding Bellflower Eastridge a real treat," comments John Joyce, sales director. "Because of the wide range of plans and exteriors, one more exciting than the other, some buyers are having difficulty making a choice."

Others, however, know just what they want. Having seen, for instance, the award-winning Diamond Head in other prestige developments by Master Builder Ray Watt, many prospective homeowners have sold themselves on it.

The Diamond Head is California's most honored home, having been selected by a panel of housewives as one of the five most outstanding home values in California.

THE POPULAR tri-level plan features four bedrooms, three baths and a rumpus room complete with wet bar. As do all the homes in Bellflower Eastridge, the Diamond Head features wall-to-wall carpeting, balanced power kitchens with O'Keefe & Merritt gas range, oven and automatic dishwasher and In-Sink-Erator food waste disposer. Utilities at Bellflower Eastridge are all underground, giving homeowners an unimpaired view of the surrounding countryside.

Since only 50 homes comprise the community, with 20 exterior elevations to choose from, each home has a "custom" look and an individual charm. Prices start at $34,000 and six furnished models can be seen on Hacienda Street at Grand Avenue in Bellflower.

Westminster Board to Hear Water Expert

Charles Trigg, new assistant water superintendent for Westminster, will talk to members of the Westminster Board of Realtors at their 8 a.m. breakfast Wednesday at King's Table Restaurant, 6471 Westminster Ave.

Trigg will include in his talk personal observations of conditions in Brazil.

Pays Dividend

Directors of U.S. Borax & Chemical Corp., meeting in Los Angeles, declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share on the 4,228,145 common shares outstanding. The dividend is payable Dec. 15.

Orangewood Homes to Have Own Park

In the newly opened development of Orangewood in Cypress, Don Wilson Builders have set aside an area in excess of two acres for a community park. Construction is moving rapidly, and the park will be ready when the first occupant moves into Orangewood.

This provides the residents of Orangewood with their own neighborhood park, which is walled for privacy from the flow of traffic. In the park, grass and trees have been planted, with a sprinkler system installed.

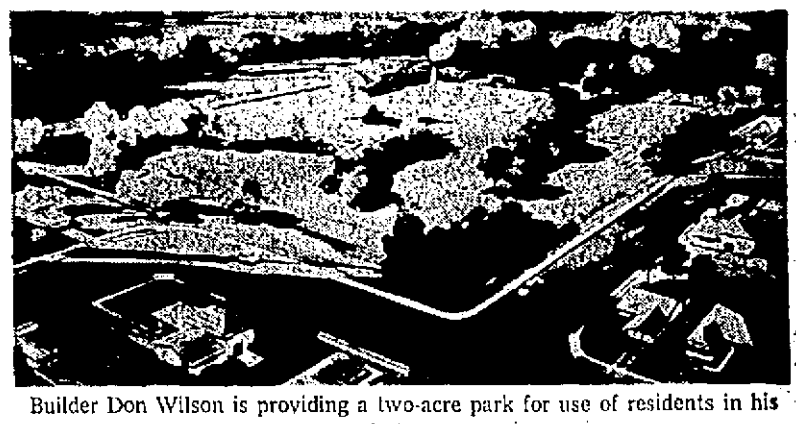

* * * *

HOMES IN THE development include the first split and tri-level models in the area. Accommodating the growing family, they also include the first step-down rumpus rooms, a spacious gathering place that is ideal for informal entertaining, or family parties. The wide range of styles and designs allows the buyer to choose just what he wants—whether it's traditional colonial or famous rambling California ranch. Featuring three, four and five bedrooms, each home has two custom baths. Living rooms are accented with custom designed fireplaces, and in every home sliding glass doors lead lead to patio areas.

Another of the quality additions is the efficiently planned kitchen with built-in O'Keefe and Merrit gas range and oven, and Waste King disposer.

Quality wall-to-wall carpeting and decorator wallpapers add yet another note of charm. Landscaping will include front lawns, with shrubbery. All utilities are underground.

One and two-story homes are priced from $24,950 with $995 down. Furnished models are now open and may be seen by driving on the Garden Grove Freeway to Knott Avenue, then north to Orangewood.

Builder Don Wilson is providing a two-acre park for use of residents in his newest development, Orangewood, in Cypress.

Second Four Seasons Unit of Homes for Fountain Valley

FOUR SEASONS HOME MODEL
Second unit of Four Seasons Homes has been started in Fountain Valley. Here is one model of the big homes now offered for sale.

Dike % Colegrove, Inc., has started construction on the second unit of their Four Seasons Homes, on Magnolia & Ellis Aves., Fountain Valley.

The homes, 50 of them under construction are a duplication of tract No. 1 with the exception of a new four-bedroom one-story house. The rest have a few minor changes in the floor plans which was done after a complete survey of the purchasers in tract No. 1 and the opinion of the viewing general public as to their likes and dislikes.

The Four Seasons Homes are again offering 17 elevations and five floor plans of one and two-story homes, featuring contemporary classic, traditional Spanish, contemporary Hawaiian, Mediterranean, California Monterey, provincial ranch and colonial, on lots of 7,200 square feet.

* * * *

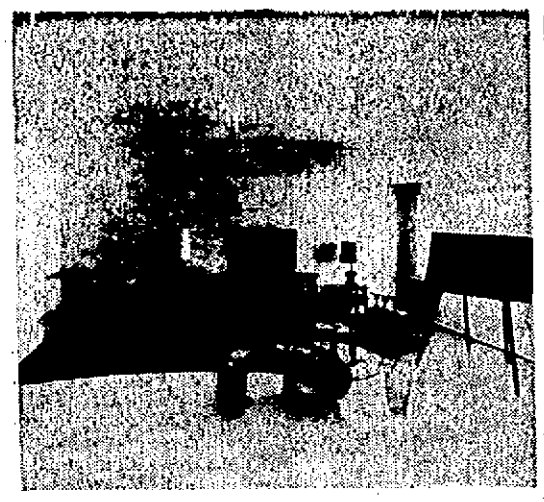

THESE HOMES have three and four bedrooms, two and three baths, living rooms with fireplaces, family rooms, dining rooms, breakfast nooks and the ever popular all electric look through kitchens, two and 3-car garages.

* * * *

ONE OF THE NEW features and wherever possible, a boat door has been installed in the back of the garage so that a boat can be towed through the garage and stored in the back yard. Each yard has an area for a swimming pool. The homes range in size up to 2,300 square feet of living space.

Models for the new tract are being held open in the No. 1 tract and are open daily.

Dike and Colegrove, Inc. offers broad financing plans of FHA—VA and conventional. The new homes are selling from $27,750 to $33,450.

PLAY ROOM AT PREMIER
Premier Homes "Premium Fun Area," a 17x22-foot finished and tiled room with plumbing roughed in for third bath or wet bar, is featured in fast-selling Huntington Beach development.

Buyers Attracted to Premier Homes

Premier Homes "4 Ways Better" formula and the surge of homebuyer interest in Huntington Beach has made possible the sale of over 160 homes the past year. So says Frank McFarland, sales agent, who reports that Premier is still able to offer immediate move-in on some models.

The extension of the San Diego Freeway last month to Hiway 39, has resulted in expanded homebuyer traffic at Premier, according to the realtor.

* * * *

PREMIER'S "4 Ways Better" formula includes better kitchens, better extras, better construction and better pricing and financing. Premier kitchens are all-electric, Bronze Medallion award units, featuring double oven, range, dishwasher, disposer, bench-mounted mixer-blender and foil and paper dispenser.

Prices start at $24,950. An "immediate move-in special" is offered on a four-bedroom, two-bath plan, with playroom, for $26,500.

Financing arrangements include 25 and 30 year loans at 5¾% and 6%.

Premier's model home display is on Terry Street, adjoining the south side of Fantastic Fair. Buyers may take San Diego Freeway to Hwy. 39, then drive south of 39 to Terry Street and turn left to the models.

Hunsaker Trade-In Program Is Popular

More than $2.5 million worth of homes have been traded in less than one year under the Hunsaker Insured Trades (HIT) program, Duane J. (Sam) Summey, director of Hunsaker Realty, reports.

"Under HIT, Hunsaker Realty — a division of the building-development firm of S. V. Hunsaker & Sons Inc.—guarantees the resale of the homeowner's current residence," said Summey.

HIT applies to any of Hunsaker's single-family homes at Chatsworth, Covina, Duarte, El Toro, Fountain Valley, Lakewood, Newhall, and West Covina, or at the condominiums, located at La Puente, Stanton and Ventura.

* * * *

MANY HOMEBUYERS find a new home and want to move in as soon as possible, but are perplexed about selling their old home, he added. "With the formation of HIT, the firm assumes full responsibility for reselling the former home."

For example, this is how the program works:

A couple selects a Hunsaker-designed home, and tells the salesman they want to be part of HIT. A staff of trained appraisers will evaluate the homebuyer's present property. After checking comparable values in the area, the property will be listed for the consideration of other buyers. If there are no buyers at the end of 90 days, the home will be purchased by Hunsaker Realty.

* * * *

OFFICES OF Hunsaker Realty are at 15855 E. Edna Place, Irwindale, and 1345 Anaheim Blvd., Anaheim.

Founded in 1932, the Hunsaker organization is a subsidiary of publicly-owned Occidental Petroleum Corp. (NYSE), and has built and sold more than 12,000 detached single-family homes and 3,000 multi-units in more than a dozen California and Nevada cities.

Will Discuss Two Subjects

Two concurrent subject area sessions will highlight the Dec. 8 meeting of the Long Beach Chapter of the National Association of Accountants.

Discussion leaders will be Robert J. White Jr., Southern California Minerals Co., on "Accountants Role in Insurance Evaluation"; Robert J. William, Robertshaw Controls Co. on "Profit Measurement by the Product Lines." The sessions are designed to give members an opportunity to exchange experiences in specific areas of accounting.

The meeting will be held at the Elks Club, with dinner scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Fernhill Location Attracting Buyers

Fernhill's advantageous location, combined with the unique design features of the homes themselves have contributed substantially to the Huntington Beach planned development's success. In making this report, sales agent Gerry Lance of Pacific Shores Realty expressed the opinion that Huntington Beach is entering a new period of even greater population influx and general development.

Lance said that Fernhill's location on Warner Avenue just east of Bolsa Chica Road has attracted many buyers. The planned development adjoins Meadowlark Golf and Country Club. Huntington Harbour and Bolsa Chica State Park are one mile west of Fernhill. The new Douglas Space and Missiles Systems plant is 1¾ miles north of Fernhill. Residents have their choice of several nearby shopping centers.

* * * *

THE REALTOR said that Fernhill's popularity with buyers was due also to the planned development concept—there is no exterior maintenance performed by residents—and the unusual design of the homes within that concept.

Three floor plans are available, ranging from 1450 to 1600 square feet. Two and three-bedroom plans, with two baths are offered.

Two of the three floor plans are individual homes, with no common wall other than in the garage. One of the plans is a completely detached single home, with no common walls.

Price range is from $22,400 to $25,500, with 5% down and 30-year loans at 6¼%.

Visitors take the Bolsa Chica Road turnoff south from San Diego Freeway to Warner Avenue and turn left to Fernhill.

Resources Up

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The California Banking Department reports the resources of California's state and national banks totaled $12.3 billion as the 1964-65 fiscal year drew to a close. This was 6% more than the previous year.

Big Building for Granny Goose Foods

Granny Gonse Foods Inc., is building a large facility in Santa Fe Springs to be used for production and distribution of products in Southern California.

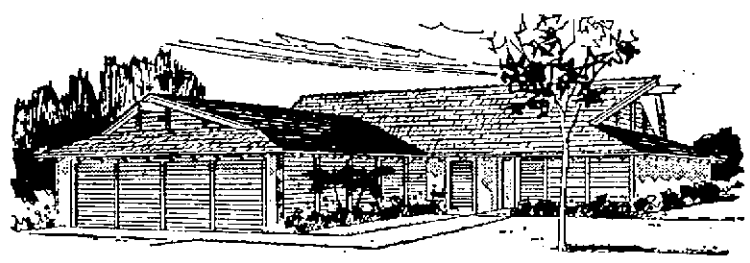

The firm, headquartered in Oakland, hopes to have the new plant completed next March. It will contain more than 100,000 square feet and will be at 14044 Freeway Drive.

When the plant is completed Granny Goose will move from its present facilities at 6237 Maywood Ave., Huntington Park.

Granny Goose manufactures snack foods.

Home for Gracious Entertaining

INDOOR OR OUTDOOR APPEAL
Buyers of this Encanto model at Fairway Park in Cypress find the home is designed for both gracious formality in entertaining or for informal entertainment in the private patio.

Most buyers of the Encanto model at Fairway Park in Cypress cite the home's possibilities for indoor-outdoor entertainment, reports W. Dean Hanson, vice president of marketing and sales for builder-developer Robert H. Grant & Co.

"The entire design was created for families who want a gracious formality, and also like to entertain," said Hanson. "Entertaining can be important, especially during the holiday season."

In the Encanto, a formal entry way leads to a step-down living room which is adjacent to a raised formal dining room with wrought iron railing.

* * * *

THREE SEPARATE areas at the rear of the home each have a sliding glass door, and the front entry is reached through an enclosed atrium planting area.

Designed by architect Earl G. Kaltenbach, AIA, the Encanto is one of five floor plans available in 18 exterior stylings.

One and two-story homes feature three to five bedrooms, up to three baths and formal family rooms, and are priced from $26,500 to VA, FHA or conventional terms.

Custom features include crystal chandeliers, wood-burning masonry fireplaces, cedar-floored wardrobes, Del Piso tile foyers, floor-to-ceiling mirrors and forced air heating.

Homes also have oak floors on raised concrete pillar foundations, a hallmark of the Grant organization.

Fairway Park is located across Cerritos Avenue from the Los Alamitos Golf Course, and is 30 minutes from downtown Los Angeles and 10 minutes from the heart of Orange County.

BUILT-IN RAINFALL
Ready for real rainfall, a model points to built-in rain at Westmont Homes in Fountain Valley. Landscaping and sprinklers are included in current units. Prices start at $25,600.

Westmont Gives Fast Occupancy

With sales now well into unit 23, some homes are now available for immediate occupancy at George M. Holstein and Sons' Westmont community in Fountain Valley the pioneer building firm reported.

Both three and four-bedroom homes with the big over-the-garage Bonus Room are complete in unit 22 and can be occupied in time for the Christmas holidays, the developers explained.

Westmont prices start at $25,600 and include, along with the big bonus room, landscaping, sprinklers and block wall. FHA, veteran, cold war terms as well as conventional financing are available at the community.

Westmont is about five miles from Huntington Beach State beach just east of Hwy. 39 on Warner Ave.

Casa La Palma Homes Appeal to Young, Growing Families

ATTRACTIVE INTERIOR
This view across the living and dining area of a Casa La Palma home shows how the kitchen adjoins the patio for outdoor-indoor living theme.

Young and growing families find the homes in Casa La Palma highly attractive because of the living space offered and the location close to schools for all ages, says Ray Patscheck, sales manager for the development in La Palma.

"Casa La Palma is virtually surrounded by schools. An elementary, junior high and high school border the project. Students can reach their classrooms in just a matter of minutes," Patscheck said.

Spacious three and four-bedroom homes provide ample room for growing families, he added. A two-story, four-bedroom model contains more than 2,280 square feet of living area, while single-story homes also are extremely large. All houses have big closets and lots of storage area.

* * * *

PRICES RANGE from $24,950 to $29,850, Patscheck reported, with several types of financing, including VA, FHA or conventional available on 30-year contracts.

Large fireplaces are found in the living rooms of some models, while others have fireplaces in the family room. Open-beam ceilings are another feature.

Built-in Waste King-Universal gas ranges and ovens, vent hoods, dishwashers, disposers, hand-trained hardwood cabinets and ceramic tile counter tops are integral parts of all "Balanced Power" kitchens.

Casa La Palma is a joint project of two homebuilding firms, Frank H. Ayres and Son and Warmington Construction Co. The two companies have nearly 80 years of building experience.

To reach Casa La Palma, take the Garden Grove Freeway to Valley View, proceed north on Valley View to La Palma, go left on La Palma to the models.

The development offers 1½ and 2-story homes. There are three floor plans with nine distinctive elevations. These Spanish, provincial and colonial homes with shake and shingle roofs consist of four bedrooms, large family rooms with fireplaces, two and three baths, luxurious master bedroom suites with private baths, two and three-car garages and many other features.

* * * *

GENERAL ELECTRIC kitchens are equipped with range and double oven, dishwasher, disposal and Modernaire range fan and hood, hand finished walnut and natural stained birch cabinets. They have forced-air heating, wall-to-wall 100% continuous filament nylon carpeting throughout, concrete driveways, and pool sized lots. Homes are priced from $37,500 through $39,950.

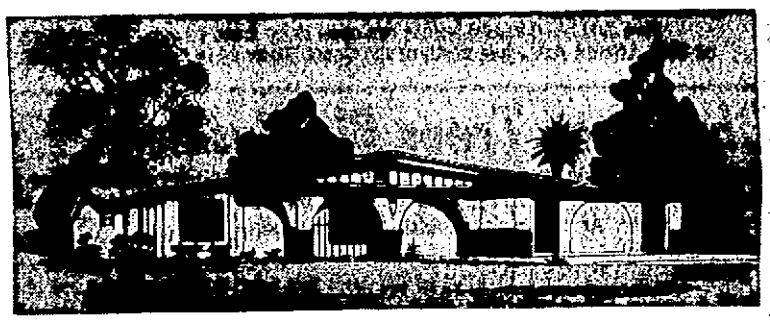

To reach Pennswood Square turn east from Lakewood Shopping Center to Graywood, then one block north.

21,342 Miles of Pipelines Laid in Year

Pipeline construction, a booming industry for the last 20 years, shows no letting up, according to the yearly survey made by Pipeline Engineer international publication based in Dallas, Tex.

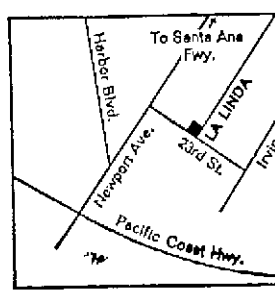

Statistical data show that 21,342 miles of pipelines were built throughout the world (excluding Russia) during the 12-month period prior to Oct. 1.

Planned for construction during the coming year are 24,306 miles of pipeline. Some of these proposals may not be built for various reasons—inability to obtain permission from the Federal Power Commission; overlapping projects which eventually require fewer lines being constructed, etc.

Wall Street Chatter

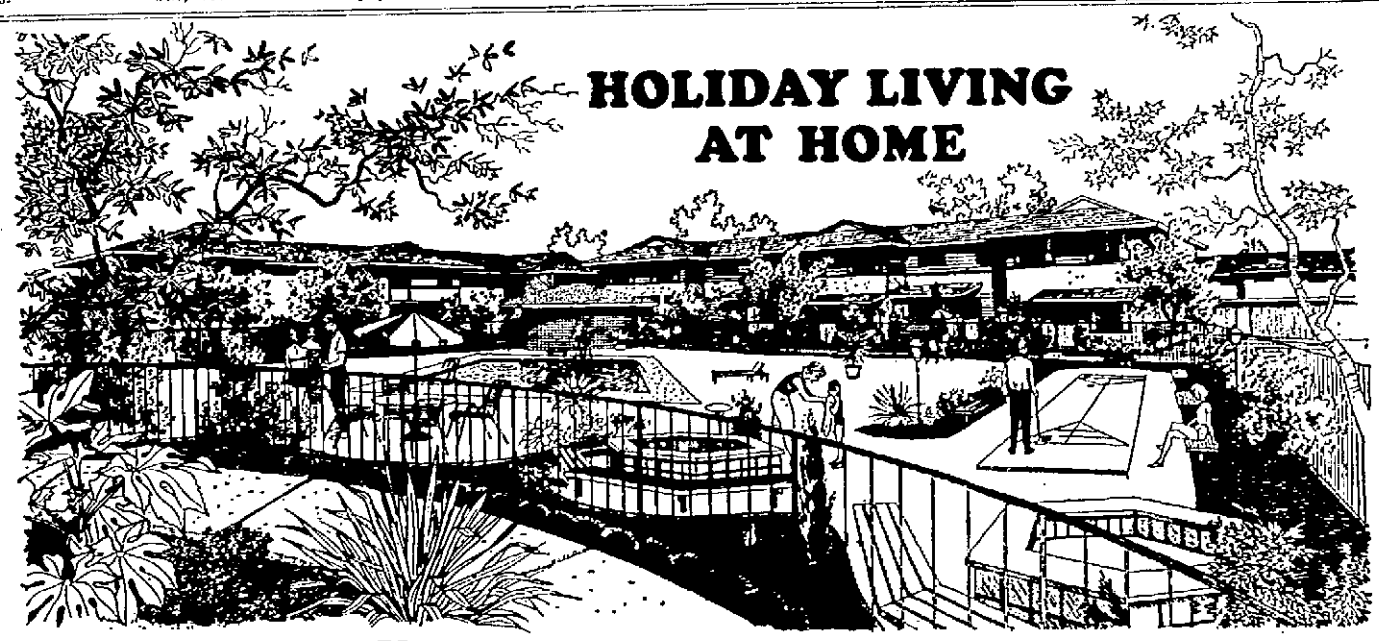

NEW YORK — Analyst James Dines advises clients, "trade if you are willing to accept high risks, but observe your stops closely so that you don't get caught."

Dines advises traders to stay out of the market for the moment if moves of 10 points in either direction on trivial news makes them nervous.

Leslie M. Pollack of Reynolds & Co. says that when consideration is given to the strong economic picture and the long primary uptrend, it seems the best course at this time is to stay on the positive side of the market.

Bache & Co. says it believes the strong economic underpinnings point to higher prices and, in its opinion, the recent reaction in industrials may be over and the year-end rally ready to get underway.

Tessel, Paturick & Ostrau Inc. says now is the time to arrange trading and investment portfolios to participate in what may be an exciting period of market history.

Spacious Pools, Lawns for Surfside Residents

RECREATIONAL FACILITIES PLENTIFUL

"Instant grass," more than 227,000 square feet of it, welcomes visitors to Surfside, flourishing townhouse community by the sea, in the Huntington Beach-Newport Beach area.

The term, as used by Ron Foell, vice president of Security Fore Corp., builders, refers to the special type of Turf Green Bermuda Grass sod used in the fast-selling community.

This natural carpeting provides lush lawns and green areas for immediate use by Surfside residents. They do not have to wait for seeding to sprout or be trampled.

QUICK AND EFFICIENT sodding is one of the well-planned reasons why more than 300 homes have been purchased at Surfside during this year. The new homeowners have moved in during the last four months.

There are some select-site homes still available in this first unit of Surfside whose location is just 1,500 feet from the Pacific.

In addition to complete landscaping, the modern community includes carpeting and drapes for each home. Exteriors, of which there are 12 different stylings, are in traditional Cape Cod and Colonial designs.

RECREATIONAL FACILITIES present a gamut of relaxation or athletic activity. Residents enjoy the pleasures afforded by a spacious clubhouse, cabana club, two large swimming pools, badminton, volleyball and basketball courts, plus fully equipped playgrounds for the children.

Each home has an attached two-car garage with room for workshop and extra storage space.

Five floor plans present from one to four bedrooms, and the dwellings are available for as low as 5% down.

Price range is from $14,950 with monthly payments starting at $116.50, including principal, interest, taxes, insurance and maintenance.

Five furnished model homes are open daily from 10 a. m. to sundown at 8176 Atlanta Ave., just north of the Coast Highway in Huntington Beach.

Christmas Trees Big Business

That Christmas tree you will buy this year, along with 34 million other American families, has created a gigantic industry.

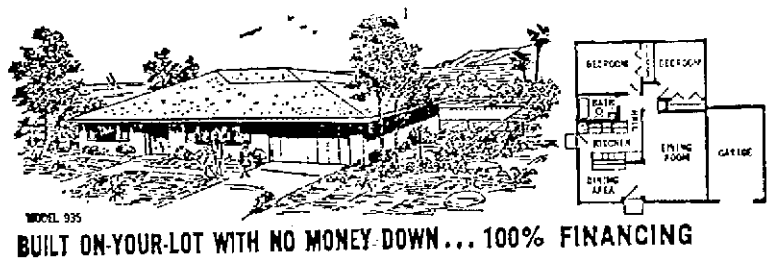

Until a decade ago, about half the trees purchased in the United States came from Canadian forests. Now the nation supplies the majority of its own trees each year, thanks to efforts of the U.S. Forest Service plus a few far-sighted state forestry departments.

Most of the trees this year will come from supervised "tree farms" in designated areas in almost all states. Even in the so-called desert states of the Southwest, at least 1 million trees will be cut commercially for use in nearby metropolitan areas.

★ ★ ★ ★

WHITE balsam fir will maintain the number one spot this year as the top choice of American tree buyers and cutters. Commercial tree companies say the balsam fir is tougher, holds its needles longer and can take more abuse in shipping.

MISTY quality in picture of solitary figure in Recreation Park (above) contrasts sharply with brilliantly colored vertical lines of high-rise building (below).

LONG BEACH SKYLINE: BUILDINGS, BLUE WITH BRIGHT ACCENT, THRUST THROUGH DARK FOREGROUND

NEW ART EXPRESSION

Essence of color, form

By ELISE EMERY

To see a completely new art form is rare and exciting.

Such a stimulating experience awaits visitors to "Impressions Through the Color Camera" show which opens today at Long Beach Museum of Art.

With commercially available materials, Roger Coar has devised what he calls a "variable optical system" that creates works of astonishing beauty—technically photographs, perhaps, but art that man has not seen before.

There is nothing new about color photography, but there has never been color photography like this. In colors ranging from brilliant oranges, blues, greens, reds to somber browns and shady grays—all the colors of the spectrum—Coar has done much what the Impressionists did on canvas—imparted new directions to the tradition of representing objects and captured a fleeting impression, as though the subject were being seen for the first time.

There is a sense of mystery in the Long Beach skyline, dynamic excitement in the brilliant geometric lines of piercing color that reveal a high rise construction on Ocean Boulevard, a feeling of the essential loneliness of the individual in the picture of a solitary figure walking in the park—though it is dominated by blues, greens and flashes of bright yellow. A shoeshine scene in Liberation Plaza in Guadalajara is strangely moving with figures—forms only—and curving trees in blue.

COAR'S works are not the sharply delineated pictures of conventional photography—they transform the ordinary into the extraordinary with what he describes as a "system of variable distortion." He calls the system anamorphic, which Webster defines as "characterized by progressive complexity or changing to a form of greater complexity—producing or having different magnification of the image in each of two perpendicular meridians—used of an optical device or the image formed by one."

Coar, chief photographer for the Independent, Press-Telegram, began using this technique

PLAZA IN GUADALAJARA: SHOESHINE BOY AND CUSTOMER IN HAUNTING, TIMELESS APPEAL

TIME FOR laughter, too, during busy planning session as Mmes. Charles London, show chairman, Duke Stoddard break up over another's quip.

PICTURES of last year's fantasy are reviewed by Mrs. Dan Farnham (left), Mrs. Howard Jones. Entries in contest (all for sale) will be judged for originality, artistry, best expression of Christmas theme.

CHRISTMAS TREAT

From Sandlarks for you

Tired of your tired old Christmas decorations? No time to create your own?

Sandlarks to the rescue with their 13th annual Christmas Fantasy. Fantasy is a display and sale of holiday decorations just right for home or office, all donated by local business firms, florists, individuals and clubs. Trophies and ribbons are presented winning arrangements. Free to the public, show opens at Elk's Club Tuesday at 8 p.m.; continues from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday; and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday. Everything is for sale and bargains are fantastic with proceeds all allocated to the Children's Home Society of California.

BEAMING their pleasure as they learn number of entries promised for Fantasy are Mmes. Francis Pard, Jack London. They're confident this year's show will be best yet.

NOW, TIME is of the essence for Sandlarks with annual Christmas Fantasy set to open Tuesday at Elk's Club. Mmes. San Schaefer, Don Nutter help finalize myriad details.

WILD WAVES SAY

Yule race on--parties take lead

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Society Editor

ONE OF THE best things that will happen to a large chunk of December is that "Scrub" and Caye Elliott will be here from New York, where they moved in the fall of 1964.

They're due here Dec. 10 before going to San Francisco (he goes 14th; she on 16th) on business, after which both will return Dec. 18 for the holidays. They'll visit her mother, Mrs. Adah Suter, 272 Termino Ave., sister and brother-in-law, Gwen and Dick Martin, their daughter and son-in-law, Nancy and Gary Carter. Their son, Ens. Terry Elliott, will have have holiday leave from Navy duty in Hawaii—so this should be one of the better yuletides.

Lots of parties being planned for the popular ex-residents including a cocktail affair Sol and Cleone Deeble will have; and cocktails, dinner plus bridge to be hosted by Elva and Dick Lawson for the old crowd of regular shufflers, etc., etc., through a merry, swirly stay.

DECEMBER arrived with lovely drifts of white right here in Long Beach. The drifts were in the form of exquisite floral arrangements when Dorothy (Mrs. Dan) Dunlap entertained at a winter white themed tea in her home to introduce her daughter-in-law Pauline (young Dan's bride) to friends from throughout the Southland — Palm Springs to Beverly Hills, San Diego to Long Beach.

Snowy mounds of azaleas filled the hall while in the other rooms white spider crysanthemums and gardenias were used in profusion. It was as big a party as it was beautiful—377 invitations were issued! Pauline wore white as did those assisting—Verna Collins, Lillian Maggart, "B" Hancock, Doris Wood, Pauline Simons, Helen Jones, Mildred Wing, Helen Hamman, Artie Stevenson, Gennelle Neveau and Ethel Severson.

TODAY IS A-Day, meaning Arrival Date, of Capt. Jim Clinton, USA, wife Toy, and their daughters, Carie, Lynne, 6½, Tina, 5, and Laurie, 3. Jim and Toy will move into a home in Rossmoor, sight unseen before. They left it up to his mother, Marge and husband, Phil Hattery, to buy it for them.

The Clintons, who have been Army stationed various places for past four years, most recently have been at Ft. Benning, Ga., where he was head of instructor pilot's school. Jim's stay will be brief. He leaves Dec. 15 back to Benning and thence to restricted overseas duty as a pilot with the 1st Cavalry Airmobile Division.

That veiled expression, limited overseas duty, leaves little to the imagination at this time. There's no doubt where he's headed.

THE HOLIDAY season is now here officially. It must be, considering the Christmas parties which are popping up all over.

Harold and Katie Parks will have a Noel inspired cocktail buffet in their spacious home on Country Club Drive next Friday for a pot-pourri of friends from Virginia Country Club, Tuna Club. They plan to bring indoor comfort to the outdoors by erecting a big tent over the patio.

The division of party space will offer one more advantage: the Virginia golfers and TC fishermen can find separate retreats to spin tales of big ones caught, long ones hooked.

FILLED TO overflowing with beautifully garbed women Friday was Petroleum Club when Marian Groshong entertained at a brightly Christmasy, gaily chattery luncheon and bridge.

A few in merry throng of about 60 bidden were Florence McBride, Eleanor Carlson, Lee Hunt, Gladys Furie, Florence Magill, Kay Inman, Mildred Dorsey, Flo Newton, Carol Leggett.

"WE'VE HAD some wonderful experiences, but oh, it's great to be home," said LaVerne Huey. She and husband Arthur, a geologist, just returned from Africa where Art's work took them last spring. They lived in Carthage, Tunisia, in a delightful villa overlooking the Bay of Tunis.

Their daughter, Charlsie, flew over to join them in Carthage after which they toured Europe extensively before flight back here.

La Verne couldn't say enough in praise of the people in the American colony in Carthage who represent U.S. there. "I didn't meet a single American I couldn't be proud of—they're just great."

Carthage is a sightseer's heaven, especially for those who dote on ancient ruins. Just don't go there in the summer, La Verne said. It's so hot that most restaurants and shops just close up. You learn to eat the native food—or else. They did.

Court Marion party planned

Court Marion, 1669, Catholic Daughters of America, will have its annual Christmas party Wednesday, 8 p.m., in W.O.W. Hall, 11 W. Plymouth St.

Ann Blyth is speaker for college series

Actress Ann Blyth McNulty will speak about career and marriage problems with Mount St. Mary's College students Thursday, 1:15 p.m., in the campus Lecture Hall, 12001 Chalon Road, Brentwood.

The lecture, "It's No Easy Task," is third in the "Women in Contemporary Society" series sponsored by the school.

JUST WRAP ME IN MINK, says Alexis Cordona, pretty Wilma Hastings' model. Doing her Christmas prompting early, she tells Santa she prefers this three-quarter length Tourmaline.

'All I want for Christmas is...'

Staff photos by TOM SHAW

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
Director, Women's News

Dear Santa: please make mine mink!

But, if there aren't enough of the little animals to go around, any old thing will do —like a six-foot coffee table . . . with gold leaf top, of course.

Or, if that isn't convenient, just wrap up a leopard-covered chair, a bedroom suite or one of those duplex refrigerators (the kind that turns out ice cubes automatically).

Funny, that transition from mink to refrigerators.

But my physchiatrist tells me it's perfectly normal. It's a trend, he says. He showed me a survey to prove it.

True, women still like to slink in mink. And more do than ever before.

But according to this gift market study, there's been a swing in feminine desires from personal luxuries to furniture, appliances and other household accessories.

In the survey (by Chicago Printed String Co.), 32% of the women interviewed preferred something for the house, while 10% interviewed wanted clothing.

AND WHAT do women give other members of the family?

Last year, hobby gifts were the favored presents for husbands.

It's all part of the trend to buy for and enjoy leisure, say the researchers.

An amazing 80% of those surveyed said they knew exactly how much they plan to spend for each person on their list—the averages were $27.70 for husbands, $27.30 for children, $9.80 for other relatives and $6.70 for friends.

And Santa, that's what I want to talk to you about. Do you have any figures showing what hubbies are spending?

More than wives, I hope. After all, how much mink could you buy for $27.70? A button, maybe?

L.B. women on 'Othello' committee

Mrs. James Kresl and Mrs. George Johnson of Long Beach are among Southland women on a committee which will present a pre-release world premiere of "Othello" on Dec. 15 at Pacific's Pantages Theater, Hollywood.

Starring Sir Laurence Olivier, the movie premier will benefit the Los Angeles chapter of Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

The premiere has been set as a major event in a limited Academy Award qualifying engagement prior to national release in the spring.

Tickets at $10 and $15 may be purchased from Mmes Kresl or Johnson or from the MDA office, 945 So. Western Ave., Los Angeles.

Petro Wives show 'santas' what they want for Christmas

Staff photos by TOM SHAW

PRETTY CLEVER, those Petroleum Wives! They entertained hubbies . . . wined, dined and treated them to yule music (by Civic Light Opera Chorus). Then came the REAL show: a fashion extravaganza of at-home and going-out-on-the-town clothes that "would make just wonderful Christmas presents!" Commentator and emcee were svelte Wilma Hastings and suave Marvin Cloyd (above, he in tux, from Raymond's, like they'd like hubby to wear). Wilma Hastings' models (like lovely Pam Finley, left) swished down ramp in finery from Parisienne and Hill Furs. Pam's hostess gown, by Virginia Wallace, is pure silk interwoven with 24-carat gold. And like one wife pointed out: "It only costs $186.95!"

Jaunty host for teenager holiday party

Snowman of snowy latex foam rubber provides lively theme for teen-age party. All that is needed: one-fourth inch thick latex foam rubber cut into two larger and smaller connected circles to form head and body. Hat is cut from red blotting paper with eyes, mouth, bow tie cut from black paper and pasted on rubber. Entire snowman is attached to wall with double-faced masking tape which leaves no mark when removed. Placemat of foam rubber encircled with holly leaves holds punch bowl. Bright green table covering is in gay contrast to red and white candy striped wallpaper, napkins. Another color note: punch mugs and plates of bright blue.

Goldenwed Van Tuyls honored at family party

Mr. and Mrs. Arde Van Tuyl, Bellflower, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at an open house in the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Wanda and Paul Groskopf, Van Nuys.

The Van Tuyls were married Nov. 28, 1915, in Nobby, Mo. He is a retired rig builder.

The open house, attended by more than 50 friends and relatives, was preceded by a family dinner.

Dinner guests included the Groskopfs and the couple's son and wife, the Bob Van Tuyl, Paul V. Groskopf, Lee and Lynn Groskopf, and great-granddaughter Jocelyn.

Gurley-McGrath engagement announced; wedding set April 2

Mr. and Mrs. Jack G. Gurley, Downey, have announced engagement of their daughter, Diane Lee, to William A. McGrath, son of the Donald M. McGraths of Palos Verdes Estates.

Miss Gurley and her fiance attend Long Beach State College, where she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha and he is a graduate student and member of Sigma Pi fraternity.

The wedding will take place April 2.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

He's not ready for altar!

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Danny and I were planning to get married as soon as he paid off some of his bills.

But, darn it all, he hardly gets one bill paid when he makes another. And all of them are for his precious car! He doesn't need half the things he buys for that car and I told him it was beautiful as it is, but he won't listen.

Even when we are alone, instead of telling me the things a girl likes to hear (including marriage), all he can talk about is his CAR.

Molly, can you help me before I lose out to that pile of iron on wheels? SECOND CHOICE

DEAR SECOND CHOICE:

My dear, from all appearances, you have already lost out to that pile of iron.

If you tell him "it's either that car or me," you might get him to the altar but he really isn't ready for the responsibilities of marriage. He's still a little boy playing with toys.

As long as he'd rather spend his time and money on his car, you might as well forget the wedding bells. M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Years ago, I was an alcoholic. My life was miserable and left a great deal to be desired. My wife (bless her!) stuck with me until I came to my senses and stopped drinking, with the help of A.A.

I guess I'm getting my punishment now. I have two grown children (two boys) who are married, have children and are following the same path I did years ago.

Sam's wife left him last week, taking their two children and moving in with a friend. Bill's wife is a nervous wreck, trying to reason with him and trying to keep their home together. I know what they are going through and I'm heartsick.

I have talked with the boys but it's like pouring water on a duck's back (I knew it would be). They won't quit until they've reached a point where they realize they MUST quit, be willing to accept help like I did.

Is this drinking habit something the boys inherit? Or is it a result of my life before I "took the cure"? Am I to blame for my boys' misery? I pity my sons' wives and my poor grandchildren, but what can I do? If there is anything, just anything I can do, I will do it. EX-ALCOHOLIC

DEAR EX-ALCOHOLIC:

You're putting questions to me I can't answer. From what I have seen in various families, drinking habits are not inherited. I've seen children of alcoholic parents who wouldn't touch a drop of the stuff—afraid maybe. I don't know.

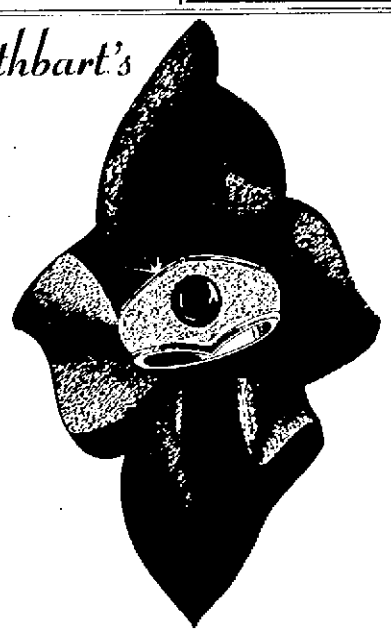

I do have one suggestion for your sons' wives if they would care to use it. Tell them to go to Alnon. Alnon is a group of people (working in conjunction with A.A.) made up of wives and husbands of alcoholics. They don't attempt to cure the alcoholic but rather help their spouses live with the problem. The wives could lose nothing by talking with this group and it may help them.

About all you can do is stand by with what help and comfort you can give to your grandchildren and their mothers. Maybe some of our readers have better suggestions.—M.M.

AT HOME ON THE RANCHO . . . PLENTY OF ROOM TO RAMBLE . . . Kelly Lynch, 3, rides a wild tricycle in front of parents' comfortable rancho tract home

With the city pushing at its borders where do the tracts go from here? Today young couples with small pocketbooks and growing families move into row-on-row housing. Tomorrow there may be no more room for such developments. Then, what will be the trend in family housing?

HOW LONG BEACH LIVES

Tracts attract young homeowners

My MARY NETH

The Harold Lynches, 7214 Metz St., live in a type of community that lately has been maligned by everyone from comedians and song writers to city planners and sociologists.

They live in a tract.

And they love it.

They wouldn't trade their small house on its street, shaded by tall sycamore trees, for all the high-rise in the U.S.

To them, suburban living (in the Long Beach bordering Lakewood) is a happy, healthy way of life—the only way for young couples with children.

They scoff at the stories of psyches damaged by tract conformity. They snear at those who spread tales of suburban frustration, frantic socializing, lost purpose.

Sixth in a series

They laugh at the idea that everyone in a tract is on the same track—that the way of life homogenizes personalities.

"We moved out here three and a half years ago," says Hal, director of campus planning at Long Beach State College.

"We did a lot of looking before we settled on this choice. We were pleased with the price—all the features."

THE FEATURES that attracted the young couple?

They liked the rancho styling as executed by architect Cliff May, the wise use of lot space, the quiet neighborhood itself.

"May has a knack with floor plans," explains Hal. "This is a small house (less than 1,200 square feet) but it has a big house feeling and plenty of privacy."

The three-bedroom home is designed with beamed ceilings, lots of glass, a small backyard and two side patios.

"By eliminating the traditional, all but useless, front lawn, we have more space for private outdoor living," points out Lynch.

"We both enjoy working on a house—so problems of maintenance and landscaping aren't chores for us."

And according to Mrs. Lynch, whose days are primarily taken up with care of the little Lynches (ages 4, 3 and 2), the quiet residential block has offered lasting friendships.

FROM 1940 to 1960 more people became homeowners than in all the preceding 150 years of our national history. Today, in fact, more people own their own homes than rent—and they spend, on an average, a smaller percentage of income doing it, than ever before.

"There's a new philosophy about buying," says Lynch. "Today, you don't put a down payment on a home with the idea of paying it off in a few years. You look at the transaction as an investment."

And, as he sees it, buying in California is the best of investments. "Of course, you have to have faith in the national economy—but, no matter what might happen, I can see no way that one can lose out here. Too many people are pouring in. The State can't do anything but grow.

THE LYNCHES plotted their course well before they went house hunting. They decided the best buy would be the "worst of the bunch" in the best of environments.

And that's what they happily settled for.

"We liked the looks of the tree-lined, one-block-long street—we liked the area. So we snapped up this house—which was in extremely rundown condition."

The Lynches have revamped the exterior and interior, have knocked out part of the garage for an extra dining, office area, and now are remodeling the kitchen.

Their investment already has paid off in rising resale value.

BUT, AS MUCH as the Lynches like their tract way-of-life, this type of suburban planning may well have passed its peak.

And there are many community planners who see its demise as a boom to our growing society.

The rancho tract the Lynches live in, built about nine years ago, shies away from many of the most despised features of row-on-row housing.

The absence of front lawns, the use of side patios, gives the area less the look of monotony which so many planners find objectionable.

But some of these experts, including famed architectural critic Peter Blake, still would growl over what they term the idiocy of checkerboard planning.

As they see it, and probably rightly so, tracts spread people thin right when the population is getting thicker.

It's estimated that within 20 years the present suburban population of 50 million will double.

If this proves true, there just won't be room for every family to live fenced in on a little square of land.

THE NEW IDEA in community planning? Blake, former managing editor of Architectural Forum and author of "God's Own Junkyard," believes it may well be the cluster approach. Here, homes would be arranged together in bunches instead of lined-up like boxcars on a siding.

The result: private front and backyards would be replaced by individual patios and community park areas; fewer streets would be needed and money would be saved on installation of sewers, water mains, gas lines, etc.—and the tax dollars that go with them.

But this type of planning isn't just around the corner. So far, according to Blake, it's been discouraged by government building restrictions, pressures from land speculators (who are cashing in on the suburban sprawl) and by developers who find their standardized package sells—so why change.

Today, many young couples on a budget have little choice but to buy in a tract—but tomorrow there may be no room left for such a decision.

Winter Skin Care

Here is a simple beauty hint that will bring life and a peaches-and-cream radiance to a winter dull skin. Wring out a face cloth in warm water, press it gently on and off your face until it begins to cool. This will stimulate the circulation, bringing the healthy blood cells to the surface to give a glow of beauty to the skin. Now to hold the good of this warm complexion beautifying stimulant smooth on a little Olay oil. For day-long care always smooth in a film of Olay before making up.

Long Beach home awaits newlyweds

Westminster Community Presbyterian Church was setting for the marriage of Barbara Jeanne Reynolds and Richard Knight Brown Friday evening.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald William Earle, 12171 Ballantine Drive, Los Alamitos, wore a brocade wedding gown with basque waist and flowing chapel train.

JoAnn Earle was maid of honor and Pamela Folsom and Lyn Beresford were bridesmaids.

THE GROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brown, 3213 Maine Ave., chose John Lawler as best man. Paul Reynolds, brother of the bride, and Carlan Tapp seated guests.

The young Mrs. Brown was graduated from Millikan High School and Long Beach City College. Her husband, a graduate of Poly High School, attended Long Beach State College where he was affiliated with Sigma Pi.

Following a drive up the California coast, the couple will establish a home in Long Beach.

CORPORATE WIFE SAYS

Don't be too smart, too sexy

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business News Writer

If you want to help your husband get ahead, you'd better not be too sexy, too beautiful or too smart. If you succeed, though, you could end up with an ulcer.

That is the word from Mrs. J. Robert Fluor of Pasadena, Calif., wife of a business executive and beauteous mother of two sons, aged 18 and 20. She's so attractive you would think she did not take her own advice.

Her husband of 21 years is chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM). He also is president of Fluor Co. Ltd. of Los Angeles, a firm with 6,000 employes that does a $100 million to $200 million a year business building oil, chemical and petrochemical plants around the world.

"We have the perfect husband-wife relationship," said Fluor. "I get the work, and she gets the ulcer."

Less than three months after he was elected last year to a one-year term as president of the NAM, Mrs. Fluor came down with an ulcer.

"I take things quite seriously," she said. "But that ulcer—it wasn't all NAM. It was part Fluor."

She is quite serious about her role as a corporate wife.

"You should be a good listener and a good conversationalist," she said in an interview. "That's one of the biggest things for a good wife."

AT ALL ODDS, you must not attract too much attention or any criticism.

"Any criticism of the boss's wife would be transferred to his company," she said.

"I like to be able to be myself, but I must dress and act in keeping with my husband's position and not overdo."

As for her husband's business, Mrs. Fluor said she knew little about it.

"He's a firm believer in leaving business at the office," she said. "When someone asks me why the stock went up or down, I don't know and I ask. But he always says he doesn't know, either.

EXECUTIVE WIFE, MRS. J. ROBERT FLUOR
. . . looks like she doesn't take her own advice

"I give him an opinion on personnel problems, whether he asks or not."

When your husband gets involved in something, said Mrs. Fluor, you just set aside part of your time, however long it is.

"You try to stick to your normal routine, but don't do the extras. You don't play golf," she sighed. "You postpone decorating the house."

You do start trying to add a personal touch to the business, whatever it is.

For Mrs. Fluor, that has meant things like going over the menus and decorations for quarterly NAM meetings for 200 persons and the annual meeting in New York this week for 1,500.

"I like a personal feeling," she said.

Coar's camera explores new medium

in April, 1964, to show the mechanistic aspect of our culture.

* * * *

HE EXPLAINS, "As the straight line seldom occurs in nature (this mark of civilization is readily visible from the air — in roads, canals, section lines, etc.) it seemed a logical approach to devise a means of emphasizing straight lines. One might, for example, make use of astigmatism to emphasize line in a given plane.

"In the beginning, I was concerned with vertical exaggeration along with removal of 'photographic' detail which tends to impede instant impression by a viewer. Looking back at some previous successes in black and white, I can analyze them in this same respect—they are of form and tone land detail; while it is there, is not a prominent influence to the eye. Working in a color medium, the essence becomes color and form, to the exclusion or underplaying of discrete detail.

* * * *

"IT IS NECESSARY, of course, that I be able to control both form and color; otherwise, I would be at the mercy of the camera, much as any other camera user. The resulting optical system was thus designed to permit those controls; it is variable to the degree demonstrated and is, as well, infinitely variable back to 'normal.'

"Traveling a year ago to Mexico for the first time seemed a perfect opportunity to test the camera against my tourist mind. That is to say there was a feeling that there was something pervasive about Mexico, coupled with fleeting impressions gained as we hurtled through the countryside at maximum speed limit.

"The Mexico series gave so much the 'sense' of Mexico as I had experienced it, that I was compelled to explore a general spectrum of subject matter."

THE 29 PICTURES in the museum show range in size from 16 by 20 inches to 40 by 60 inches. All were shot with a 35 mm. camera and processed by Pace Color-prints in Los Angeles on regular sheets of color paper. Mounted on mat board, they are lacquered to protect them from color changes from ultra-violet rays and from moisture.

Coar's work is part of the "f/3: Coar, Heinecken, Rink" exhibit which will hang through Dec. 26.

Robert Heinecken, assistant professor of art at UCLA, has a distinguished record in photography and has been awarded a research grant in creative film-making.

Larry Rink, who also is a painter, is exhibiting his poetic interpretations of natural phenomena.

FRIENDS of the Museum will host an opening reception today from 2 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend the informal gathering and to talk with the participating artists.

Coar sums up his feeling for photography thus:

"It is to me basically a means of expression. There is a particular challenge in remaining effective amid the visual bombardment in our lives today. We are constantly assaulted by an ever-growing avalanche of visual material and as the volume increases, indiscriminate taste cannot help but increase.

"The problem is basic and twofold—any expression to be effective must first gain attention. Once that requisite is met it is owed both to its exponent and to the audience that the work be meaningful or, as the phrase goes, 'have something to say.'

"There is no question in my mind about the attention getting quality of these pictures and, although basically explorations in a new medium, there are several which do have something to say as well."

Family dinner for newlyweds

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Rice of Westminster will host a family dinner party in their home next Sunday in honor of her son, Richard Philippi, and his bride, nee Carole Gohr. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Gohr, formerly of Long Beach, now of Swampscott, Mass. The newlyweds were married at Swampscott.

The bride attended Millikan High and her husband attended Westminster High. They will reside at 4055 Bellflower Blvd.

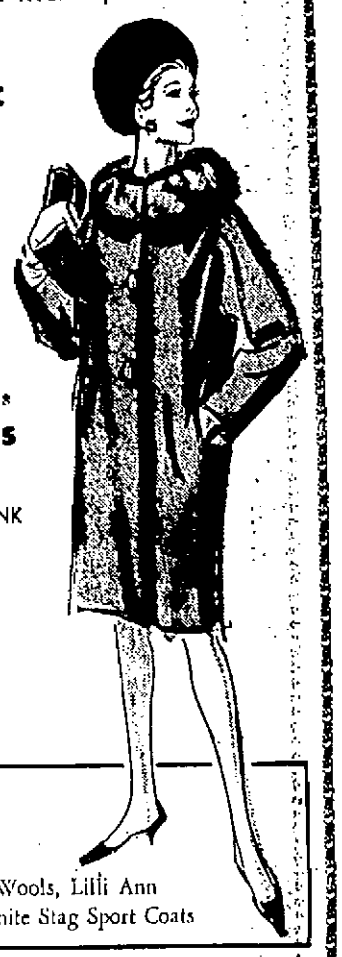

Mary Elaine Frampton engaged; will wed Cal Poly grad next July

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Frampton of Long Beach have announced engagement of their daughter, Mary Elaine, to James B. Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Northrop Ellis, formerly of Santa Barbara, now of Santa Monica.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Poly High and will graduate as an English major in June from Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo. Her fiance is a graduate of Cal Poly with a degree in mechanical engineering. He affiliated with Tau Sigma, honorary engineering fraternity, on the San Luis Obispo campus, and was a member of Blue Key, honorary service fraternity.

The wedding is planned for July 9 of next year.

Thompson banks on chicken cacciatore

D. EDGAR THOMPSON

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

It all began in Downey. They started out as buddies, grew up together as friends—and now are FRIENDLY competitors, both as bankers and "Chefs."

The THEY in this instance are today's Chef of the Week, D. Edgar Thompson, vice-president, manager of the United California Bank, and former "Chef" Leroy H. Showalter, vice-president and manager, Security 1st National Bank. It's a bit confusing, but each credits the other for his having become a banker.

And that, no doubt, took a bit of doing in the case of Thompson, for his ancestors had spent their time GUARDING the bank. They lined up like this: his great-grandfather was captain of the Texas Rangers, his grandfather was the sheriff and his brother is a captain in the Palm Springs Police Department.

THOMPSON got his start in Evansville, Ind., but came with his family to Downey when he was nine. After mastering the Downey school system, he went to the University of Washington School of Banking for his degree.

He joined the United California Bank as messenger, advanced to bookkeeper, savings teller, chief operations officer and assistant manager.

He had managed two branch banks before coming to Long Beach from Covina in 1963. He held the position of vice-president, until being appointed this week as manager, and to the big job of filling the shoes of retiring "Chef," Bob Reid.

A member of the Downtown Lions Club, Thompson also belongs to Virginia Country Club and the Huntington Harbor Beach Club.

AT HOME, Thompson rates as "king of his household." It consists entirely of the feminine gender, even to Heidi, the pooch. He and Mrs. T. (Inez) have three daughters—Judy, now Mrs. James Montgomery, Diane, a senior in high school; and Susan in her freshman year.

As a family, they swim and golf. He shoots to an 18 handicap—and Inez can provide the necessary competition to keep the game interesting.

In the kitchen!—well, our "Chef" likes to supervise there, too! Today his recipe is for Chicken Cacciatore Banker Style.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE BANKER STYLE

- 2 2½-lb. chickens (cut up)
- 3 tblsp. shortening
- Salt and pepper
- ½ cup sliced onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ½ cup chopped carrots
- 2 tblsp. chopped parsley
- 1 cup tomato ketchup
- 1 cup water
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 tsp. salt
- Dash pepper
- 2 tblsp. dry red wine

Brown chicken in shortening. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Remove chicken from skillet. Saute onion and garlic, carrots and parsley in skillet until lightly browned. Stir in ketchup and remaining ingredients. Add chicken. Simmer, covered, 1½ hours, or until tender. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Woman's City Club to celebrate 54th anniversary on Friday

Woman's City Club of Long Beach will mark the 54th anniversary of its founding with past presidents as honored guests on Friday.

Luncheon at noon in the clubhouse, 1309 E. Third St., will feature the honored guests giving highlights from their years with Maybelle Tedro, hospitality chairman, in charge.

Following 1:30 p.m. business session, the program will be given by Ken Delo featuring vocal renditions of musical comedy and semi-classical numbers.

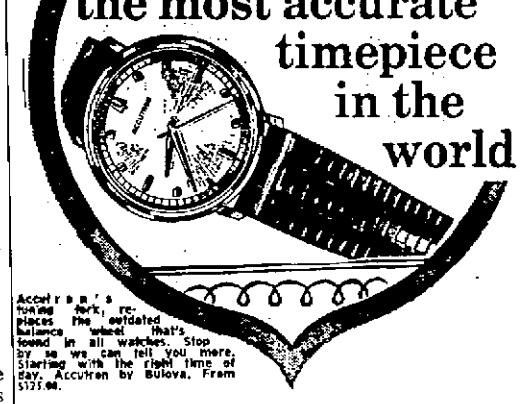

Luncheon reservations may be made with Mrs. Katherine Crandall.

Claretian Guild luncheon is scheduled Wednesday

Students from Dominguez Seminary will present Christmas music at Claretian Guild's dessert luncheon Wednesday noon at 728 Elm Ave. Card play will follow.

MONDAY: Lasagne, tossed green salad, sliced peaches, raisin bread-peanut butter sandwich and milk.

TUESDAY: Taco, Rio rice, buttered carrots, raspberry sauce with whipped topping, whole wheat bread-butter and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, waldorf salad, chocolate pudding with marshmallows, hot buttered cornbread and milk.

THURSDAY: Italian spaghetti, buttered peas, cherry sauce with whipped topping, hot buttered French bread and milk.

FRIDAY: Tuna-noodle casserole or sweet-sour pork on rice, creamy coleslaw, apricot halves, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

ROBYN CROFT, SOLOIST

KARL WELANDER, PRINCIPAL

Fonteyn and Nureyev to dance for benefit

Los Angeles' budding resident ballet company will be given a big boost when the Australian Ballet appears in three benefit performances Jan. 3, 4 and 5 at the Music Center.

Stars of the Australian troupe such as Robyn Croft, soloist and Karl Welander, principal, will share the stage with famous guests Rudolf Nureyev and British ballerina Dame Margot Fonteyn.

Youthful Nureyev, the fiery Russian ballet star, whose dramatic escape from behind the iron curtain made international headlines, will present the American premiere of his re-staged "Raymonda."

* * * *

"RAYMONDA" opened in Paris Nov. 14 to standing ovation for Nureyev. Critics hailed the stars and praised the production as one of the finest.

The two guests are donating their opening night performance as a benefit for the local Western Ballet Association.

Rapid strides have been made in forming this local company which already includes a corps de ballet and a school under direction of Eugene Loring.

Soviet artists to play at center

Two noted Soviet musicians will perform this week with Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in the Music Center.

Wednesday, violinist David Oistrakh will play in the Sibelius "Concerto in D Minor" and Mozart's "Concerto in D Major." Maurice Abravanel, director of the Utah Symphony, will conduct.

Thursday, pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy will make his Los Angeles deput playing Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 3 in D Minor." Zubin Mehta will conduct.

Engagement told

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Wright of Long Beach have announced the engagement of their daughter, Donna Mae, to Thomas Erwin Case, son of the Howard E. Cases, also of this city.

The wedding date has not been set.

4 organists to be heard in concert

Numbers by four local organists will be presented when Long Beach Chapter, American Guild of Organists, holds an open meeting Tuesday at Immanuel Baptist Church, Third Street and Obispo Avenue.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Presenting the program in the church sanctuary at 8 p.m. will be Sam Posthuma, Elizabeth Vasa, Connie Lu Berg and Donald Palmer. They will play advent and Christmas selections. Guests not wishing to attend the dinner may attend the concert only.

'Art for Christmas' on sale

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

"Better than ever!" promise Long Beach Art Association members of their annual "Art for Christmas" sale which opens today in their gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

Artists are displaying a great variety of themes, media and styles, including paintings, sculptures, drawings and prints.

The show is designed to offer works of art at reasonable prices for Christmas giving or for collectors.

Any non-member who visits the gallery during December may register for the free drawing of an oil painting by Marie Bucher. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily except Monday.

JACK H. RUTHERFORD, Long Beach native who is here from his permanent home in Mexico, has some critical comments on this city's culture.

After living three years in Mexico, where he paints, teaches and resides with his wife and four children, he notes a relative lack of growth in the visual arts here.

He received most of his training in Long Beach and exhibited and taught locally.

He says, "I worked at two other jobs beside my art, taught and painted at night, but to do justice to my work I realized one must give himself fully to art. Unfortunately, in the United States a vocational artist with a family is not yet patronized enough to allow this economically. So, selling my home, I headed for Mexico in an attempt to reconcile what one might say is the modern artist's most pressing problem — to meet his responsibilities to his work and yet support himself and family. Mexico provided the solution with its lower cost of living and receptive attitude toward art and artists."

Long Beach is not really encouraging or supporting its few galleries and artists in a dynamic way he asserts and he believes that each individual should accept the challenge of supporting the arts in his community. Considering its growth in other areas, this city has, in Rutherford's opinion, neglected the visual arts.

A reception today from 5 to 8 p.m. will open an exhibit of his work in Atelier 7 Art Gallery, 3316 E. Seventh St. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to midnight, seven days a week.

JOE MUGNAINI, head of the drawing department at Otis Art Institute, will speak at a combined meeting of Bellflower Art Association and Lakewood Art Association Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Kiwanis Hall, 9302 E. Laurel Ave., Bellflower.

Loyce Carhart, juried artist with Long Beach Art Association and Seal Beach Artists League, has a show at Bay Shore Library during December. The 15 paintings may be seen Mondays through Thursdays, and on Saturdays. The library is closed Fridays.

Pots by Faith Banks, paintings by Christine Morgan and mache objects by Edna Montague are on display at the studio of The Designing Woman, Elizabeth Sullivan, 1754 Atlantic Ave.

Impact of sculpture in David Smith show

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"David Smith, A Memorial Exhibit," is a show of tremendous significance. The large steel sculptures are installed in the pools and plazas of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., where they will remain until Jan. 6.

Smith, who died last May in a tragic automobile accident, is highly regarded in the art world. He is revered especially by young sculptors who must struggle for self-expression in the wake of the powerful innovations in the art of our century.

Hilton Kramer, author of the introductory essay in the catalogue for this show states: "His 'oeuvre' (work) is unquestionably the greatest ever produced by an American sculptor" . . . and "was also the most consequential produced anywhere by a sculptor of Smith's own generation."

* * * *

WITH TWO exceptions, the 14 works in the exhibit, ranging in height from 124 inches to 173 inches, are of burnished stainless steel. Smith called them "Cubi"; they are boxes, cubes, long rectangulars, with an occasional cylinder, welded at the seams and together with elegant skill. The burnishing is a free calligraphy, causing the work to shimmer into all planes of space.

* * * *

SOME ARE lone sentinels, others recline in diagonal thrusts, three are huge frames through which to look toward Nature's constructions. While the installation of six works in the pools is effective, the sculptures on the plaza cannot breathe . . . against the mechanical white facades of the building. Smith's work is to be seen best against grass and trees.

Inside the museum is a photographic display of Smith's works in the rolling wooded acres at Boltons Landing, N. Y., where he lived and worked. Seeing the pictures mounted in the Lytton Gallery will help in understanding Smith's particular vision.

The sculptor came from the heartland of America and worked in metal as a laborer before he went to Europe and New York. He absorbed the contributions of the "School of Paris," and according to Kramer, achieved "an authentic American style fully capable of assimilating the European inheritance without remaining hostage to it."

Set audition for opera at LBSC

Auditions for principal roles in Long Beach State College's spring opera production "Don Pasquale" by Gaetano Donizetti will be held at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in Room 127, Music Building. An accompanist will be available.

Required are a soprano, tenor, baritone and bass. Any singer who plans to enroll as a student at LBSC during the spring semester is eligible to audition and should be prepared to sing an aria containing some coloratura passages. Although the opera will be sung in English, the tryout number may be in another language.

"Don Pasquale" will be performed in the campus theater May 19, 20, 21, 26, 27 and 28 under direction of Dr. Hans Lampl, associate professor of music.

* * * *

THE COLLEGE'S new Opera Workshop will have its first presentation Jan. 6, 7 and 8, 8:30 p.m., in the Little Theater. The program will include the one-act opera "Riders to the Sea" by Ralph Vaughan Williams and excerpts from "The Merry Wives of Windsor" by Nikolai; "Cosi fan tutte" and "The Abduction from the Seraglio" by Mozart; "Don Pasquale" by Donizetti; "Suor Angelica" by Puccini and "The Bartered Bride" by Smetana. There is no admission charge.

Popular chorus in free concert

Songs of Christmas will be theme of a program to be presented by 71 members of the Westchester Concert Chorus Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the student-faculty center of Marymount College, Palos Verdes. The concert is free to the public.

In addition to Christmas carols, selections by Randall Thompson, Roger Wagner, Adolphe Adam, Jeffrey Marlowe, Paul Tschesnokov and Jan Pieters Sweelinck will be presented.

Winnipeg Ballet on stage here

Long Beach Community Concert Association will present the Royal Winnipeg Ballet of Canada in Convention Hall of Municipal Auditorium Monday. Doors open at 7:15 p.m. with curtain time scheduled for 8:15. Admission is by season subscription only and no single performance tickets are sold.

L.B. Symphony begins Sunday concert bills

Joseph Schuster, cellist of international renown, will be featured artist at the opening concert of Long Beach Symphony's Sunday Series, 8 o'clock this evening, in Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium. He will play Haydn's "Concerto for Cello."

Schuster was solo cellist with the Berlin Philharmonic until 1934 when he moved to New York and was appointed solo cellist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony. He has concentrated recently on concert work, appearing with major orchestras in the United States, Europe, Central and South America. When not touring he teaches in the Music Department at UCLA.

Tonight's program also will feature the Long Beach Symphony conducted by Lauris Jones in overture to "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner, "Essay for Orchestra" by Barber, "Serenade for Strings" by Tschaikowski and "Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes of von Weber" by Hindesmith.

Single and season tickets will be available at the box office.

Chorale director sets lively pace

By DANIEL CARIAGA

Roger Wagner, that incorrigible musical dynamo, and one of the prime forces in the current renaissance of choral music in America, will conduct the first concert of the Los Angeles Master Chorale's second season Sunday, Dec. 12, in the Pavilion of the Music Center.

This matinee performance, titled, "Noel: Renaissance to Respighi," follows by less than two days the close of Wagner's cross-country tour with the famous choir which bears his name, a tour which began Oct. 4 in Long Beach.

The indefatigable conductor, after tending the home fires of his teaching duties at both UCLA and UC, Irvine, and early preparations for Master Chorale Concerts in April, May and June, will conduct the second concert Jan. 9. It will offer Brahms' "German Requiem."

Undaunted by the cancellation of his 1966 Soviet tour just two weeks ago, Wagner will take his 36 singers and a dozen first-desk instrumentalists to four Middle Eastern countries, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Yukoslavia, Austria, France and Italy, for a 10-week tour ending March 25 with a concert in the Vatican.

* * * *

"I'D RATHER not get to Russian anyhow," Wagner laughingly told me by telephone this week, skirting gracefully the obvious. "I happen to like good hotels."

He was in Corvallis, Ore., having just driven the scenic 325 miles from Pendleton; the concert in Oregon State University's Coliseum, the second of eight consecutive appearances this week, was only two hours off.

Wagner, instead of sounding tired, bubbled over with understandable pride in his almost year old Master Chorale, and plans for its future.

The Dec. 12 concert features, besides several 16th and 17th century antiphonal works (and the Pavilion is one of the few halls anywhere where this music becomes overwhelmingly effective), the lyric wonders of Respighi's "Laud to the Nativity."

* * * *

THE THIRD event of this year's seven, brings Robert Shaw back to Los Angeles March 6 for what promises to be a delightful and sophisticated evening of Haydn, Schoenberg, and Bartok.

Major work of Bach, Handel, and Bloch complete the season, for which some 40% of the Music Center's 3185 seats have already been sold on a subscription basis.

Wagner is happy that the L. A. Philharmonic's programs this season include such standard choral offerings as Handel's "Messiah," and Orff's "Carmina Burana."

"This leaves us free to perform neglected masterworks and important contemporary music," he said.

The four separate programs he takes to Europe and the Middle East in January reflect the range and depth of his tastes, and the good fortune of his audiences.

In addition to the standard, yet hardly over-performed, B minor Mass of Bach, the list includes major choral works of Aaron Copland and Roy Harris, George Antheil's "Fragments from Shelley," written for Wagner, and Maurice Durufle's "Requiem."

ROGER WAGNER, UNDAUNTED CONDUCTOR

To show film series in schools

Eric Pavel's "Paris," third program in the current International Film Series, will be presented at 8 p.m. Monday in the Wilson High School auditorium.

The film-lecture will be repeated Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Lakewood, Thursday at Polytechnic and Friday at Millikan High School. Tickets will be available at the door each night.

Next on the Long Beach City College series will be Russ Potter's documentary on Belgium, scheduled the week of January 10-14.

Noted entertainers join in tribute to Nat 'King' Cole

"A Night in Memory of Nat 'King' Cole will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Friday at Los Angeles Music Center. Proceeds will benefit the Nat 'King' Cole Cancer Foundation.

The musical-variety program will feature such well-known entertainers as Nancy Wilson, Frankie Laine, Juliet Prowse, Bob Newhart, Gogi Grant, Allen and Rossi, Maury Wills, the Krofft Puppets, Les Brown Chorale and others, with music under the direction of Nelson Riddle and his orchestra.

* * * *

THIS WILL be the first benefit sponsored by the foundation which hopes that ticket sales will raise $100,000 to establish professorships in medical schools.

Tickets are on sale at the Music Center Box Office, Mutual ticket agencies, offices of the Automobile Club of Southern California and Wallich's Music City Stores.

Choir series scheduled

A Cappella Choir, Long Beach State College, will open its fall concert series today at 7 p.m. in Garden Grove Community Church, 12141 Lewis St., Garden Grove.

Two seldom heard works will be presented—"The Spirit Also Helpeth Us," a motet for double choir by J. S. Bach, and "O Savior, Throw the Heavens Wide," a motet by Johannes Brahms. The Bach work will employ an instrumental ensemble and vocal quartet.

Frank Pooler, associate professor of music at LBSC and internationally known as a composer of choral music, will direct.

GRACIOUS LIVING IN A PROUD MANSION

Old Creole days not dead in New Orleans

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

NEW ORLEANS — The dignified charm and gracious living of the aristocratic Creole days of long ago are not dead in "America's Most Interesting City."

You find these yearned-for extras at Lamothe House. Once a home that echoed the gaiety and gallantry of a flamboyant era, Lamothe House has been carefully restored to preserve its heritage. Now, as a hotel whose facade peers down on the famous French Quarter, it remains aglow with the warm traditions of Old New Orleans.

The mere fact that there is only one Lamothe House lies in a parallel fact that there is but one Gertrude Munson.

Mrs. Munson is the chatelaine of this grand old mansion, and has been since 1956. Long before that, she gained renown for her southern graciousness and hospitality as lady of Glenwood Plantation, an immense sugar farm in a nearby bayou; so famous, in fact, that her special way with guests and her sparkling parties were described by Emily Kimbrough in her book, "So Near and Yet So Far."

* * * *

LAMOTHE HOUSE was built about 1800 by Jean Lamothe, a wealthy sugar planter, and it was built to stand the tests of time. All work was done by hand. Great cypress floor and ceiling timbers were hand-hewn and tooled. Hand-carved Corinthian columns graced the entrance. Twin winding stairways had hand-turned mahogany rails. Ornate friezes and medallions decorated the spacious, high-ceilinged rooms.

In the "U" adjoining the main mansion structure on the rear were the slave quarters, between which was a flagstone courtyard where jasmine and sweet olive still fill the air with a heavy fragrance.

It was here that Lamothe brought his family to escape the terrors of a Saint Domingo insurrection and start life anew. It was in this house and with their wealth that the Lamothes fitted ideally into those opulent times.

* * * *

A HUNDRED years later, with the Lamothes gone, the mansion fell into disrepair. When restoration was made, it was so exactingly complete that even Lamothe would have been proud.

Today, the facade and the ornate interior hold the enchantment of old, with rich antique furniture and smaller antique treasures of the 1840 period that completely furnish each lovely room.

All of these things, plus the attentions of Mrs. Munson, make a stay at Lamothe House a memorable one.

* * * *

GUESTS look forward to a complimentary petit dejeuner, or continental breakfast, served each morning in the spacious dining room. Lingering about the old banquet table after being served coffee from a 200-year-old Sheffield urn, they listen to Mrs. Munson's tales of Old New Orleans, or her suggestions on what to see in and near the city. On either subject, her knowledge is encyclopedic.

But the most pleasant time of all is the one evening each week when she presides with ceremony over the flaming cafe brulot—a delicious hot, spicy, cognac-and-coffee concoction—just as she did for honeymooners at Glenwood Plantation.

The French Quarter's historic and entertaining attractions, but a stone's throw away, come later.

(The most inexpensive way we know of to visit fascinating New Orleans is via Delta Air Lines—TWA triangular Los Angeles-Chicago-New Orleans-Los Angeles excursion. The New Orleans leg of the flight is included for only one dollar plus roundtrip fare to Chicago.)

THE FACADE OF LAMOTHE HOUSE, with its hand-carved Corinthian columns, peers down on the French Quarter from 621 Esplanade Ave. in New Orleans.

Christmas spectacles top December events

Gorgeous Christmas lighting displays, pageants and parades — including one in Long Beach and another in near-by San Pedro—will take place in various Southland communities this month.

Naples, the canal community of Long Beach, holds its Christmas Water Pageant at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 18 and 19. Boats will be fashioned into Christmas floats that will parade out into the canals into Alamitos Bay. Costumed carolers will ride barges, rubber-suited skin divers swim the route, and Santa rides an easy chair aboard a cruiser.

A parade of light-decorated yachts, taking more than an hour to pass, will traverse the main channel of the Port of Los Angeles, San Pedro, on the evening of Dec. 18.

* * * *

IN OTHER communities:

A 184-foot "Christmas Tree"—a flagpole decorated with great strands of lights—in Calipatria, in the Imperial Valley, may be seen for miles.

In Santa Monica, 14 churches have constructed Nativity scenes, complete with dressed manikins, and these will be lighted at night beneath the palms of seacliff Palisades Park beginning Monday and continuing through Dec. 31.

Costumes of other countries will be worn by bands and choral groups in the parade of "Christmas in Many Lands" next Saturday at Camarillo. Actor Walter Brennan will be master of ceremonies.

A St. Nick parade, with a Miss St. Nick beauty contest, takes place Dec. 12 at Encinitas, north of San Diego.

* * * *

ALTADENA again will stage what is probably the most famous of Southern California's outdoor Christmas lighting spectacles—the thousands of lights on 100 giant deodar trees along Santa Rosa Ave. leading down from Mt. Lowe. The spectacle begins Christmas Eve, continues to New Year's Night.

More than 100 costumed men, women and children, and some live animals will move on and off the scene in "The Bethlehem Story" at St. Paul's Church in Lynwood on the evenings of Dec. 25-26.

About 75 members of a surfing club who ride the waves on surfboards all winter, line up beside the pleasure pier at Oceanside at 1 p.m. Christmas day for a swim, later snack on doughnuts and coffee.

STUDY TOUR TO HAWAII ANNOUNCED

The 1966 Summer Travel program to the University of Hawaii Summer Session is now accepting reservations, Dr. Robert E. Cralle, executive director, The Adler University Study Tour to Hawaii, announces.

Special rates for students and teachers for the 43-day program begin as low as $549. This includes round-trip Pan American jet travel from the West Coast, accommodations in deluxe Waikiki Beach hotels, plus a full schedule of 22 planned activities including island sightseeing trips and tours, cruises, dinner dances and beach parties.

Extra credits earned are transferable to most Mainland colleges. A visiting faculty from all over the world offers a wide range of subjects and courses.

Full particulars including a 24-page illustrated bulletin and 1966 application forms are available by writing to Dr. Robert E. Cralle, Executive Director, The Adler University Study Tours to Hawaii, 345 Stockton St., San Francisco 8, Calif.

More jets to Alaska

Pacific Northern Airlines will schedule additional Constellation service between the southeastern Alaska cities of Ketchikan and Juneau and Seattle-Tacoma for the holiday period, Dec. 16 through Dec. 24, according to Harold A. Olsen, PNA vice president - traffic and sales.

In addition, PNA northbound and southbound Jetliner flights between Anchorage and Seattle-Tacoma will make a Juneau stop on specified days during the same period.

The additional flights have been scheduled in order to accommodate the large number of Alaskans planning to visit the Southern 48, as well as for those persons planning to fly to Alaska to visit friends for the holidays.

Access by air

There are 39 airfields in the Bahamas, located on 16 islands. Eleven years ago, there were only three airstrips in the colony.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

Traveling with Stan Delaplane

The rum and sugar islands of the Caribbean are getting the big action this winter—probably because they're spending millions on those four-color calypso ads. (You can almost smell the Planter's punch on the table.)

Air travel and cruise ships are quite reasonable. But—

Resort costs are a pirate's ransom. Folders quote $75 and $85 a day for two—and only two meals. The places are elegant—I imagine you can draw champagne from the tap. But they charge.

However, you can shop something reasonable. Not easy. The little guest houses can't afford to advertise in a big way. But try these:

Puerto Rico: Send for a little magazine called "Que Pasa." Lists small hotels there and in some nearby islands. Better send a dollar. Tell them what you are looking for.

Virgin Islands: Something like "Que Pasa" is "Here's How." Box 1795, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. Send a dollar on this too. Address Jeanne Harman and tell her what price range you're looking for.

Bahamas: Write Bahamas Development Board, Nassau, Bahamas. They'll send a free price listing with descriptions.

Jamaica, Trinidad, Martinique—just a letter to the Tourist Board in each island will get some listings.

Thing to remember in all the islands is they ALL have small guests houses—it's a Caribbean custom. Beautiful, nutmeg-smelling islands with wonderful swimming. But piracy in the big hotels.

* * * *

"My husband and I and another couple were sold one gallon of liquor each in Mexico City by two congenial fellows who assured us we could take it back home. At Los Angeles, Customs graciously allowed us to select one bottle each and confiscated sixteen from all of us."

TOO BAD. But that's the new law. You can only bring back a fifth—except from American Samoa and the Virgin Islands. From there it's still one gallon.

* * * *

"I would like to send an electric blanket to a friend in Italy, but will our blankets work on their current?"

PROBABLY. Most of Italy is 110-volt current like ours. (A few places have old current so your friend should check.) But more important, you must find out if this will pass Italian Customs. Or how much it will be.

Americans send a lot of presents overseas without thinking that foreign countries often have complicated laws about imports. Often it costs the persons a lot. Or even isn't worthwhile. Don't surprise friends with gifts. Ask them if the gift can get in.

* * * *

"Can friends of ours in England send us toy soldiers? And how much duty would we pay here?"

HAVE THEM send a few at a time in packages worth less than $10. Mark them "Gift—less than $10 value"

Flights start to Acapulco

Nonstop jet flights between Los Angeles and Acapulco were inaugurated Saturday by Western Air Lines.

The service was authorized when the Mexican government granted Western permission for 12 special flights in December and three in early January (Jan. 1, 2, 3) to accommodate visitors during the usually heavy Christmas holiday and winter tourist season.

Leaving Los Angeles International Airport at 9 a.m. (PST) each Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Western's 720B fanjet flights will arrive in Acapulco at 2:05 p.m. (CST). Acapulco departures will be at 3:05 p.m., with arrival in Los Angeles at 4:36 p.m.

Free winery tours offered

Free tours of old Brookside Vineyard Co. winery in Guasti, in the Cucamonga district, are now available seven days a week, it is announced by Philo P. Vaine, the firm's president.

Novel self-guided tours are available 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondys through Fridays; winery personnel conduct tours 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

To reach Brookside winery, use the turnoff from the San Bernardino Freeway, at the "Archibald Ave.-Guasti" offramp. The winery is just south of the freeway.

They work in straw

Native straw work is one of the most important of the Bahamian craft industries. Resort Island natives bring strips of palm fronds plaited into bands of varied widths to Nassau where the bands are sewn into hats, handbags, slippers, mats, baskets and other articles.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES E. O'CONNOR

Charles E. O'Connors to note golden date

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. O'Connor will observe their 50th wedding anniversary next Sunday at an open house in their home, 13434 Fairford Ave., Norwalk.

They subsequently will have a reception on Dec. 15 at the Sunset Club, 700 E. Broadway, for Long Beach friends. Mrs. O'Connor is secretary of the Sunset Club and also is a social welfare worker for the Long Beach post, Volunteers of America.

* * * *

THE GOLDENWEDS were married Dec. 15, 1915, in Port Huron, Mich., moving from that city to California in 1956.

O'Connor was employed in Port Huron as a marine reporter for the Great Lakes region for many years. Active members of the Michigan State Society here, the O'Connors were instrumental in founding the annual Port Huron picnic held annually in Bixby Park.

They have a daughter, Mrs. Thomas R. Duprey of La Mirada; a son, Charles R. O'Connor, Los Angeles; also 11 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mrochek-Kohr

Wearing a floor-length gown of ivory peau de soie with cathedral train, Suzanne Carol Kohr recited nuptial vows with Donald E. Mrochek in St. Matthews Catholic Church Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Pernie Moore Kohr, 2901 Spaulding St., and Harry G. Kohr, 1139 E. Ocean Blvd., are parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Mrochek, 4139 E. 15th St.

The young Mrs. Mrochek, former stewardess for United Airlines, chose Carol Speng as maid of honor. Other attendants were Mmes. Michael Clements, Steven Smith and Richard Newman.

George Marshal served as best man; James Rogers, Jerry Glass and Jerrold Young seated guests.

A reception followed at Long Beach Elks Club.

The newlyweds both graduated from Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. The bride attended the University of Hawaii; her husband a Long Beach fireman, attended Long Beach State College.

The couple will reside in Long Beach after a honeymoon in Reno and Lake Tahoe.

Mrs. Donald E. Mrochek

MRS. LEONARD SALONIUS

Salonius-Rich

Penny Ann Rich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max K. Rich, 2601 Marber Ave., and Leonard Eric Salonius exchanged wedding vows in St. John's Presbyterian Church Saturday during a 3 p.m. ceremony.

In a floor-length sheath gown of peau de soie with empire bodice of lace and styled with long, detachable train, the bride was attended by Julie Jones, maid of honor, and by the Misses Cheryl Campbell and Janis Kirkland, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, of Barstow, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric H. Salonius, Rio Vista. Don Hoskey was his best man. The 150 guests were seated by Roy Fentress and Marc Rich, brother of the bride. Tim Jack Rich, another brother, was ring bearer.

The new Mrs. Salonius is a graduate of Millikan High. Her husband, who received his education in Sacramento, has served four years with the U.S. Coast Guard.

After being feted at a reception in the church the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead. They will make their home in Barstow.

Lady 'hams' tune in for annual Christmas party

Hard play made easy by expert

Charley Solomon of Philadelphia, the president of the International Bridge League, has long been one of our best players.

The strongest feature of Charley's game is that he makes tough plays look easy.

Although Charley does open four-card major suits on occasion, his one club opening was normal. It is always good tactics to choose a club in preference to a major suit with this sort of balanced hand.

South's two diamond effectively ended the bidding and West opened the deuce of clubs. Charley was only looking at two hands but he succeeded in finding a defense to beat the contract. See if you can find it while looking at all the cards!

* * * *

HERE IT is. At trick two Charley led the three of diamonds. South let it ride around to dummy's eight and played the jack of hearts. This did him no good. Charley rose with the ace and played his ace of trumps. Then he continued with jack and another club. West took a trick with the king and led his last club for Charley to ruff.

RAY WHITAKER AT FOUR-IN-ONE KEYBOARD

BY TEDD THOMEY

Unquestionably it is the most spectacular restaurant organ in Southern California. It might even be the most spectacular in the world.

Called a Musicade, it consists of a Hammond organ, a Lowrey organ, a baby grand piano, xylophone, vibraharp, drums and more than 30 other percussion instruments — all combined into one hugely magnificent musical device which can be played by a single musician.

The idea for the first (and only) Musicade took root in 1962 in the lively imagination of Ray Whitaker, a former Long Beach and San Pedro organist who now lives in Santa Ana.

A professional musician for two decades, he was intimately familiar with the percussion effects which could be produced electronically on some organs. He felt, however, that such effects—although excellent in quality—had a certain synthetic feeling.

He decided to invent a device which would enable numerous real, full-size instruments to be played by one person seated before a group of keyboards.

* * * *

WHITAKER spent the next three years entertaining at night in various Long Beach area supper clubs and laboring during the day on his invention. For months organ parts and the bones of disassembled other instruments were strewn through every room of his San Pedro home.

The parts alone cost him $25,000. His investment in planning and labor was incalculable.

A few weeks ago, Whitaker saw his dream come true. He spent many days and nights installing his complicated group of instruments in the sunken entertainment lounge of the Mardi Gras supper club, 1835 W. Chapman Ave., Orange. Whitaker is now one of the club's owners, along with vocalist Tony Roberts (who entertains with him), Tom Butler and Jean Fay.

When patrons first step into the lounge and see the Musicade, they often stop as if shocked and exclaim: "What in the hell is THAT?"

* * * *

OCCUPYING the entire former dance floor are the Hammond and Lowrey organs, combined into one unit with four keyboards. The unit is white with ornate gold designs.

Beside it is a baby grand piano, also white with gold decorations. On the walls nearby are fastened nearly 40 other percussion instruments, ranging from a tiny bird whistle to the large xylophone and bass drum. Included are orchestra bells, finger cymbals, crash cymbals, choke cymbals, vibraharp, snare drum, bushes, tempo blocks, Chinese gong, glass wind chimes, an oogah horn (like those on oldtime autos), castinets, maracas, sleigh bells and a police whistle.

Through the use of pipe organ parts, magnets, levers and electronics, all the instruments can be activated by Whitaker as he sits before the four keyboards. Air pressure and vacuums enable everything to work precisely when he depresses the necessary keys.

* * * *

THE DEVICE has a "fast reiteration," which enables him to repeat certain sounds as long as he desires.

Even more intriguing are the lighting effects. Many of the instruments glow with colored light while being played, returning to darkness when their part of the concert is completed.

An accomplished musician, Whitaker plays classical and pop music on the Musicade. Three of his many impressive production numbers are "Clair de Lune" (which uses organ, piano, chimes and vibraharp); a Mozart rondo (organ, piano and xylophone) and "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" (organ, piano, xylophone, police whistle and snare drum).

While playing "Slaughter," he uses the snare drum to reproduce the staccato round of pistol shots and then calls the gendarmes with the police whistle.

THE MUSICADE was formally introduced to the public on a recent Sunday when the Long Beach Professional Organists Club held a jamboree at the Mardi Gras. More than 35 organists had the thrill of playing the device in a series of individual concerts which started at 2 p.m. and lasted until 11 that night.

An audience of 200 sat enthralled until the final note. One of the professional organists became so exhilarated that he returned to the Mardi Gras six times during the next two days, imploring Whitaker to let him play the marvelous device.

AKIRA ENDO INSTRUCTS CATHY MILLER

Keyboard Skills Unlock New World

His tiny finger presses down a key—and magically there is a singing sound. The piano has answered him!

For most children their earliest musical experience is with the piano, and for many that first striking of a key begins an enduring, lifelong source of joy and fulfillment.

Adults, too, who have missed early musical training, turn to lessons later in life for a new source of pleasure.

At Long Beach City College more than 40 classes in piano and spinet organ, ranging from beginning through intermediate courses, are offered at various locations in the school district.

The importance of music in the school child's life is underscored by a course taught by the college's orchestra director, Akira Endo, titled Music Skills for Elementary School Teachers.

* * * *

Both girls are sophomores and will continue their training at Long Beach State College which boasts an outstanding and active music department.

Registration for the tuition-free spring music courses at City College will be taken in late January and early February.

* * * *

DUANE GURNEE is chairman of the college music department.

Piano classes in the Music 51 A-B-C-D series are transfer credit courses equivalent to lower division offerings of the typical four-year college or university.

Non-transfer piano courses in the 151 and 751 series are designed primarily for adult students as are spinet organ classes in the Music 771 series.

Enrollment for all classes in the 751 and 771 series will be taken directly in classrooms at the start of the term.

Persons entering the Music 51 or 151 piano courses must enroll during the general registration for day and evening classes.

* * * *

PIANO classes will be offered at the Liberal Arts Campus and the West Adult Center both day and evening, and evenings only at Lakewood, Millikan and Jordan high schools.

Spinet organ classes will be given day and evening at West Adult Center, 1794 Cedar Ave., and evenings only at Millikan.

Latest addition to the college staff of piano instructors is Paul Belanger, who received his training at the Royal Academy of Music in London and the Paris Conservatoire and formerly was music director of Carnegie Hall and Concert Hall Recordings.

The printed schedule of spring classes will be available during the next few weeks at all City College offices and public library branches.

MTA Chapters Set High Goals

By DANIEL CARIAGA

"Parents of children about to begin piano study should consider the many advantages to be gained by starting with a teacher accredited and recognized by the Music Teachers' Association of California," Lura Soderstrom, president of the Long Beach Branch of MTA from 1963 to 1965, told me recently.

Besides the obvious advantages of study with a dedicated professional who meets the high standards imposed on teacher-members by MTA (roughly equivalent to three years conservatory training, with added requirements in psychology and teacher performance), the pupil has also the incentives of annual programs to recognize advancement, participation in recitals and festivals, and a large number of activities designed to stimulate growth and progress.

One of the most outstanding of these activities is the four-year old Southwestern Youth Music Festival, an annual event held each August on the City College campus, which draws young musicians of all ages and stages of advancement.

Begun by the MTA Long Beach Branch, the festival attracts budding musicians from all corners of Southern California.

* * * *

ANOTHER outstanding activity sponsored by the MTA is a Junior Bach Festival in which, again, young musicians of beginning, intermediate, or advanced levels, participate.

The MTA of California was chartered in 1897, but the Long Beach chapter was not formed until 1941, when a group of 11 Long Beach teachers banded together "to raise the standards of music teaching." That number has increased, 24 years later (the charter date was Dec. 7, 1941), to 91 active and accredited members, some 60 of which specialize in piano.

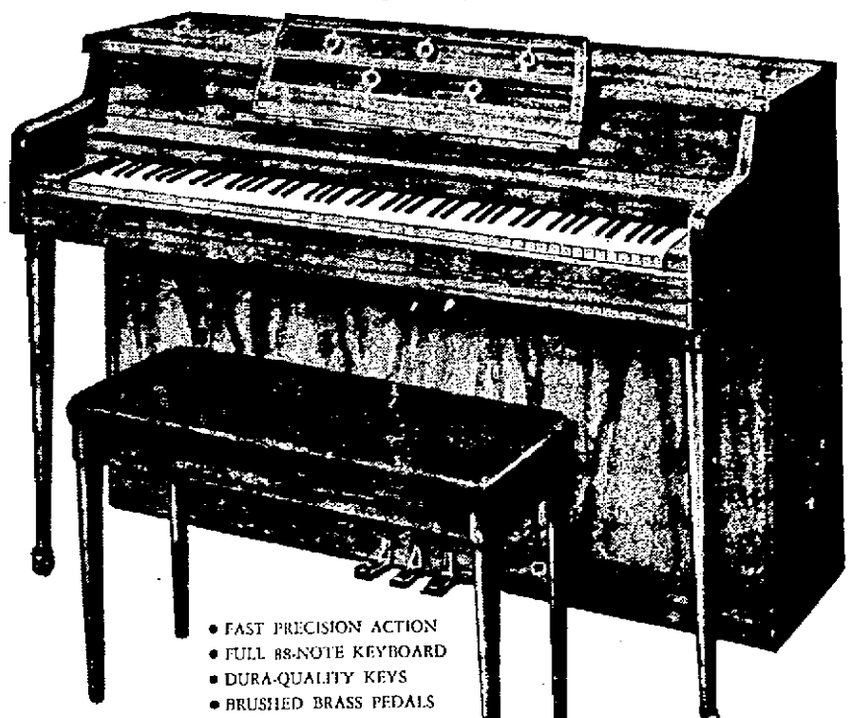

* * * *

THE STATE BOARD of MTA grants, to members who have completed special studies, three types of in-job diplomas: child specialist, colleague, and fellow. Work toward these diplomas is, of course, in addition to basic requirements for full membership, which must be completed within two years of a teacher's affiliation with the organization.

No Monkey Business --They Share Music

MUSIC MAKERS AID CHARITY
. . . Mmes. Caraco, Deffenbaugh, Fosholdt

They don't just monkey around with music.

The Organ Grinders, a group of talented women organists — all non-professionals, share their music with shut-ins at home, patients in hospitals and play for numerous civic and charitable organizations. They never accept a cent for their programs.

The club was started in May, 1962, by Mrs. Ray Fosholdt. All 13 members have organs in their own homes where they meet each month to take turns playing.

* * * *

"SINCE we take lessons from eight different teachers, the variations in style lead to discussion even livelier than the music," says Mrs. Fosholdt.

"The name Organ Grinders was chosen before most of us had perfected our keyboard technique — now we can just ripple off our favorite tunes."

* * * *

AMONG THEIR performances have been those for the Christmas party for the epileptic ward of Community Hospital, the recent Chamber of Commerce tribute to the Long Beach Year of Beauty, Long Beach Symphony Juniors fashion show, a fashion show for the benefit of Los Altos YMCA, Allen Center Officers' Wives salute to Long Beach programs, Naples Boat Parade, a fund-raising fashion show at Petroleum Club, Ayuda Club's charity event, and the Lions Club. On Dec. 18 they will perform in the Huntington Harbour Boat Parade.

"An individual or several women may be sent to play —it all depends on who fits the job and the length of the fashion show or program. We all love to play and we ask only that our service be for a worthy cause," Mrs. Fosholdt added.

Clean piano keys with a damp cloth and a very small amount of mild soap. Wipe keys lengthwise toward the piano's front and dry with a soft cloth.

Piano Sales Reach New 1965 Record

During the past 100 years approximately 5,000 different brands of pianos have been marketed. Although most of these manufacturers have since gone out of business, many of their pianos, although to 50 to 75 years old, are still in use.

Today there are 24 piano manufacturers in the United States. They accounted for approximately 214,000 of the 220,000 pianos sold in the U.S. in 1964. The remaining 6,000 were imported mostly from Japan and Europe.

Sales of pianos for 1965 are expected to exceed 230,000 units.

There are four basic types of pianos: spinet, console, studio and grand. The spinet is the smallest and was designed to meet the need for a more compact piano than the old upright. The console piano is similar to the spinet, except that it is slightly taller. The studio piano is larger and is suited for institutional and school use. The grand piano remains what it always has been—the Rolls Royce of the piano world.

Music Relaxing

Home organ owners say that the relaxation that comes with playing the musical instrument is one of its greatest advantages. There also is the pleasure of meeting new people with the same interest through organ clubs and other social functions. Many people who were beginners quickly progress to the point of playing for friends, social gatherings and church activities and even professionally.

Anti-Boredom

In a report of a survey of more than 100 recognized psychologists on the responsibility of schools in preparing students for increasing amounts of leisure time almost 85% felt schools should foster creative leisure - time pursuits, particularly music and art.

Psychologists responding cited boredom and restlessnes most frequently as the ill-effects of added leisure. The majority felt that inclusion of fine arts and instrumental music in school curricula provides outlets for creative drives and contributes toward a balanced education.

Beginners Find They Learn Fast

The electric or electronic organ is generally easy to play. At a first lesson, beginners usually find themselves able to master simple melodies. Learning with a group of beginners can add a whole dimension of enjoyment to the process. To meet the demand for lessons, studios specializing in organ instruction are springing up all over the country.

The organ, once restricted to the church, has evolved into an instrument for home and community use. It is even making inroads into school music programs. Organ lessons are being added to the growing list of music instruction classes in our public schools.

Some models of console organs have electronic attachments that permit the organ to simulate the sounds of almost every instrument in the orchestra. This is especially helpful to elementary school teachers in illustrating orchestral instruments to their pupils.

• • • •

ADVANCEMENTS in the organ over the past 30 years have brought it into the realm of popular music and concert hall as well as the home. Its current use as a solo or featured instrument in jazz arrangements and symphonic compositions shows its adaptability to different musical forms. In the years ahead, further refinements in the organ should make it an even greater technical wonder, capable of an unlimited variety of musical effects and sounds.

Organ Sales Zoomed in Decade

Of all musical instruments, the organ has shown the greatest percentage increase in sales since 1953.

Although the organ is the third most popular instrument in the United States, its percentage increase of 660% during the 10 years since 1953 outstrips the piano and guitar with 38% and 460% increase during the same period. Portable electric chord organs, introduced in 1958, exceeded 185,000 unit sales for 1964.

More than 3,000,000 Americans are playing the organ today, compared with 285,000 as recently as 1954. Almost 3% of our homes have organs, including console and portable electric models. Of all console models purchased for home use, 70% are bought by people in the 30-50 age bracket.

BOB PIERCE TOOK OUT 35% OF KEYS
. . . to create tired businessman's piano

By ELISE EMERY

Bob Pierce's latest book, sixth edition of "Pierce Piano Atlas" published three weeks ago, already is being sold in 32 countries. It is accepted as the definitive work on piano facts.

His 16 mm. film, "Keyboard Experiences," produced by Educational Productions, Hollywood, in 1957 has been used as a teaching device by hundreds of public and parochial schools.

* * * *

ORDERS pour in for his decals from every country where there are pianos—he has no competitor in this field.

"Pianos last forever," says the genial, slender, brown-haired Pierce.

"They have longer lives than cats with their proverbial nine. But when the cases are refinished the names are lost and the decals are needed to restore them."

He's been the subject of front page stories and magazine articles written in almost every language and he gets mail addressed simply to "Mr. Piano."

* * * *

VISITORS flock to Pierce's Mr. Piano store and his adjoining Hammond Organ Studios of Long Beach, 2188 Lakewood Blvd., to see his famous collection of miniature pianos.

* * * *

PIERCE HAS some specific ideas about music.

"It doesn't make any difference whether a person is a sophisticate or an aborigine, his essential needs are the same: something to eat, something to wear, shelter and music. The music may be made on a goatskin stretched over a log or on a complicated instrument, but the need for melody and rhythm exists.

"There's an iron curtain in many adults' minds — they think they can't play an instrument. But there's a big hunger, too, to play ballads and melodies. With simplier notation systems now it really is possible for beginners on piano and organ to enjoy playing—and sometimes we discover unexpected talent. We've had students from 3 years to 92. It's a joy to see people find that their big, stiff, old, tired fingers can still learn."

TO FURTHER simplify learning, Pierce has made what he calls the tired business man's piano, removing 35% of the keys and devising a method of playing so elemental that he says, "I can give it to anyone on the back of a card. Its simplicity borders on parlor magic."

Underlying Pierce's dedication to his field is his belief:

"Music is an international language. It speaks to our hearts and minds. Maybe, someday, if it could reach us all we could understand each other—perhaps even see an end to war."

Famous, Near-Famous Pianists Heard Here

LEONARD PENNARIO

An engrossing chapter of Long Beach musical history is the appearance, on Long Beach stages, of a large number of great and near-great, famous and obscure, eccentric and legendary pianists during the past 42 years.

Which is not to say that many pianists did not visit this city before 1923, the year Leo Ornstein and Olga Steeb demonstrated the wonders of the Knabe-Ampico in separate recitals here. Public records, however, are incomplete before that year, and private memories understandably hazy.

Impresario L. E. Behymer did present, between 1904, and his death in 1945, many pianists here. An old brochure, on file in the Long Beach Public Library, announces, for the 1922-23 season, the appearances of Paderewski, Teresa Carreno, and Moiseiwitsch, appearances which talks with older musicians cannot confirm.

That Paderewski and Moiseiwitsch did play here during the '30s is established; earlier visits cannot be verified. The much-married Careno would have been 70 in 1923; we can only wonder if she continued to travel.

In 1925 both Ernst von Dohnanyi and Josef Lhevinne came to Long Beach. On paper, neither recital seems extraordinary; it is interesting, perhaps, that Dohnanyi played the Chickering.

* * * *

THE DECADE of the '30s was one of great pianistic activity in Long Beach, not only in regular visits by famous performers, but also in increased local participation.

Besides concerts by duo-pianists Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, Josef Hoffmann, Artur Rubinstein, Alfred Cortot, Gimpel, and Paderewski, there were, in the late '30s, many performances by local pianists.

The Long Beach Chamber Music Society, organized in 1935, presented programs of great sophistication, often performed by the members themselves.

One such program, given in March 1936, featured, among other music, the concerto for piano, violin, and string quartet by Ernest Chausson, in which pianist Alice Coleman Batchelder and violinist Ingwald Wicks were soloists.

Also in 1936 was formation of the Pianists Association of Long Beach by local teachers, led by Jane Stanley.

* * * *

THIS ORGANIZATION, forerunner of the MTA, presented, between 1940 and 1942, a series of piano concerts of wide interest. The association paid full artists' fees, but charged only 25 cents admission to students. Needless to say, the Times Concert Hall at 215 American Ave., was filled for each event.

Appearing on that two-year series were Margaretta Lohmann, John Crown, Frederick Marvin, Lillian Steuber, Emil Danenburg, Kato Mendelssohn Szekely, and Homer Simmons, among others.

Piano soloists with the Long Beach Philharmonic (now the Long Beach Symphony) during those years were Sari Peterfy, Dorothy Judy Klein, Percy Grainger (1942 and 1944), Dorothy Simpson Smith, and duo-pianists Bartlett and Robertson.

* * * *

RUBINSTEIN appeared three times between 1941 and 1946, under the Hurok banner. Jose and Amparo Iturbi, on their first duo-piano tour, played here in 1944.

A long line of famous pianists has visited this city in the 20 years since 1945. For me, three "Emperor" Concertos were particularly memorable: John Crown's with the L.B. Philharmonic in 1946; Eugene Istomin's, with the same orchestra in 1949; and Solomon's, with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in Municipal Auditorium in 1950. KFAC broadcast that performance, the most moving, authoritative reading I have heard of that work.

Pennario's playing of the First Tschaikovsky Concerto, with Resta and the Long Beach Philharmonic in May of 1949, was another unforgettable evening.

Of recent appearances, in the last three years, by Rudolf Serkin, Jorge Bolet, and Gina Bachauer, Bolet's alone stands as proof that the giants of the past have worthy successors.

—DANIEL CARIAGA

Traditional Music Celebrations Are Essential to Christmastide

It is said that the birth of Christmas carols took place during the 13th Century in a small Italian village. St. Francis of Assisi and a group of devoted followers honored the birth of Christ by singing simple tunes as they knelt before a crude reproduction of the manger scene.

Singing of Christmas carols soon spread through the Continent, to England and eventually throughout the Christian world.

Schools Gain Music Facilities

A study of 12,000 school districts in the United States (97.7% of all pupil enrollment) by School Management Magazines revealed that music room facilities had the most dramatic comparative gain of all special school facilities (language, science, home economics) from 1962 to 1964. Of new secondary schools completed in 1964, 75.1% included facilities for music, compared with only 35% completed in 1962.

Audiences Increasing for Organ Concerts

Long Beach has many fine church pipe organs which have enabled the city to attract outstanding organists for concerts and recitals.

Ownership of their own home musical instruments has stimulated the interest of many persons in these programs.

One of the churches with a continuing schedule of recitals is First Congregational at Third Street and Cedar Avenue.

* * * *

JAMES R. WEEKS, minister of music there, is a past dean of the active Long Beach Chapter of American Guild of Organists which also has presented famous musicians here, giving many of the programs at First Congregational. Don Palmer is current dean of the local chapter.

"Our church has a concert mailing list of more than 700," said Weeks. "About 45% live out of town and many frequently attend our organ recitals. We have people who come from as far away as San Francisco, Santa Barbara and San Diego."

In 1957 eminent organists who played at the church were Pierre Cochereau from Notre Dame in Paris and Fernando Germani from Rome. Karl Richter came from Germany in 1958 and Jean Langlais from Paris in 1959. Others who performed here that year were Alexander Schreiner from Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City and Flor Peeters from Belgium.

* * * *

GERMANI returned in 1960, having been preceded by Claire Coci of New Jersey and Ted Alan Worth of San Francisco.

Organists who performed in 1961 were John Weaver of New York, Garnell Copeland of San Francisco, the famed Richard Ellsasser, presented by AGO, Thomas Murray of Occidental College, and Piet Kee from The Netherlands.

Audiences flocked in 1962 to hear Richard Purvis of San Francisco's Grace Cathedral, Leonore Owsley of Auckland, New Zealand, and AGO sponsored concerts by Carl Weinrich of Princeton, Clarence Ledbetter of St. Louis and, again, Flor Peeters of Belgium.

* * * *

PHILLIP STEINHAUS of Washington, D.C., opened the 1963 season to be followed by George Markey of New York, Ladd Thomas of Pasadena, George Decker of New York and, under AGO auspices, Robert Anderson of Ft. Worth.

An AGO recital by Marie Claire Alain of Paris was first in 1964. She was followed by Claire Coci in her second performance here and Edward Mondello of Chicago.

This year, soloists have been Gerre Hancock of Cincinnati, Peter Hurford of St. Albans Cathedral, England, and Wilma Jensen of Oklahoma City.

As the sale of home organs increases, audience interest in the finest of organ music grows, too.

Orchestra Figures

There are 1,401 symphony orchestras in the United States, excluding the 300 youth symphony orchestras that are a part of the training programs of many adult groups.

MASS MANUSCRIPT, 1450 A.D.

Many Changes Mark Music Notation Style

Music notation is written music—just as script and printed words are written speech.

It's taken man centuries to figure out how to let his fellow musicians —or just the fellows—know how to reproduce the melodies the composer hears in his own ear.

There's no clear record of it, but probably the pre-historic little shepherd boy piping on his reed had a way of leaving a chart for others to follow.

The inventive ancient Greeks, with only unharmonized melodies, used letters of the alphabet in various combinations and the practical Romans gave each letter a place on the scale.

* * * *

IT WASN'T until the year 900 A.D.—approximately — that an unknown musician drew a red line across a manuscript and called it F. Anything above red was higher pitch and anything below was, of course, lower.

Sometime later another anonymous genius drew a yellow line and called it C. After that a monk, Hucbald, drew lines and used the spaces between to indicate pitch. In the early days color was important in notation but eventually music manuscripts were delineated in black and white.

* * * *

SOME CONTEMPORARY systems make use of color and other devices with great success.

The manuscript pictured is a leaf from a Mass dated 1450 in Italy. It is part of the Frank V. de Bellis library which includes 12,000 rare volumes and prints in addition to many music manuscripts and recordings.

De Bellis, San Francisco philanthropist, began collecting in 1941 and in 1964 gave his half-million dollar library to the California state colleges, first major gift to be donated to the system.

Long Beach State College was one of the first to display the rare collection.

Claims Music Is Science Aid

Several months ago in a nationwide television interview, one of the United States' first astronauts, Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr. said he felt education is placing too much emphasis on science. The commander, who orbited the earth in a Mercury capsule in 1962, claimed such subjects as music are as important to youngsters' development as any Space Age subject.

Apparently many science educators agree with him. In a survey conducted by the American Music Conference, more than 100 deans and presidents of the nation's college engineering departments and technical universities were contacted. Of those responding, almost 70% stated that music study even helps to aid in laying a foundation for scientific thinking.

Pianos Back for Families

At the turn of the century, almost every home had a family parlor and every parlor had a piano. As a result, music-making occupied a particularly important role in the family's home entertainment, both for themselves and friends.

Music-making is again solidly entrenched in families' self-entertainment plans. And just as in the "piano in every parlor" days, the parents are still the key influences in their children's attitudes toward learning to make their own music, regardless of the instrument involved.

Athletes Also Play Musically

As far as most fans are concerned, the only time professional football and music come together is at half-time.

The players apparently hold a different viewpoint. A survey of National Football League of pro athletes' hobbies revealed that at least 42 players qualify as amateur musicians, undoubtedly the world's most muscular musical ensemble.

Baseball players, the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals rate highest in the musical standings with six amateur instrumentalists each. The Los Angeles Rams, Cleveland Browns and Pittsburgh Steelers are close behind with five musicians each; the Detroit Lions are sole occupants of the four-player spot; the Baltimore Colts list three musicians; the Philadelphia Eagles, Dallas Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings each field a pair of amateur music-makers; and the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers are in a tie for the bottom spot with a single player.

Polish Cabinet

Polish the wood of your piano with a good no-silicone liquid wax and a fine, soft cloth once a week at first, then whenever you do your furniture. Use white, milky no-silicone wax on blond pianos. For Danish walnut use a clean, dry cloth only.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

ALTHOUGH NBC-TV BILLS Patricia Crowley as the star of "Please Don't Eat the Daisies," she looks at herself as sort of a second-fiddler.

That doesn't mean it isn't music to her ears when someone talks about the series.

"Everybody who stops me mentions the dog first, then the children, then the house," said Patricia.

"By that time, they've gone on to something else. I'm just pleased they mentioned the series."

From Patricia's point-of-view, a series has to have "everything" going for it.

"To have four children and a shaggy dog going for you is money in the bank."

For Patricia, in her Tuesday channel 4 role as Jean Nash, the series is something more than money in the bank.

"It's darn challenging."

Part of that challenge comes from the fact that the role calls for more than just a housewife. It allows her to be "gutsy, humorous and I can admit my shortcomings."

Her real-life husband, Atty. Ed Hookstratten, knew when he married her almost nine years ago that she was an actress and hoped to continue her career after marriage.

He's delighted that she's now acting in her first series, according to Patricia.

"He knows I enjoy it and I'm much easier to live with when I'm working."

IT IS WORK which, so far, has had only one temporary drawback. It was the aftermath of a visit of the "Daisies" set by her two children, Jon, 7, and Ann, 4.

Son Jon told her that if any of the boys in the series got sick, he would like to fill in.

And Patricia thought to herself:

"Oh fine. He's been bitten by the bug just like his mother."

Jon's mother — before she was — got nipped by the bug when she was 11 years old.

Holding a bunch of balloons, she had a walk-on in a summer-show production of "Carousel."

"From that time on there was never anything else for me but show-business."

But she wouldn't want it for her son even after he became a man.

ESPECIALLY after he became a man.

"A man kind of loses self-respect — he has only himself to sell — when he becomes an actor," said Patricia.

"He becomes overly concerned with himself, how he sounds, how he looks, what kind of impression he's making.

"There are exceptions, of course, but it is the very nature of a male actor's job that literally forces him into becoming vain."

And actresses aren't vain?

"Of course we are," said Patricia. "But a certain amount of vanity is considered feminine and man has learned to live with that for a long time."

As it turned out, it really wasn't the acting bug that had bitten Patricia's son.

What had intrigued Jon during his visit to the studio was the schoolroom set-up. He wanted to go to the studio school and if it meant he had to do a little acting, well, he wouldn't really mind too much.

Jon returned to his regular school the following day and hasn't mentioned the subject since.

Scratch one temporary drawback.

CRITIC'S

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Programs

Program. "The Dangerous Christmas of Red Riding Hood," aired last Sunday on channel 7.

ABC hopes "The Dangerous Christmas of Red Riding Hood" will be one of those special niches in television's archives where, like a few other special shows, it will be shown annually.

This viewer, a Cyril Ritchard fan, hopes so, for the musical adaptation of the children's story into an adult's delight was lots of sly fun, imaginative and tuneful.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

If this was intended by General Electric as a holiday perennial it'll never make it, even with the help of color. Slotted at 7 p.m. on the Sabbath when the tykes own the sets, it must've left them totally disenchanted. Their mental picture of Red Riding Hood had to be shattered. Not the sweet, dimpled darling of the French fable but a miscast singer, Liza Minnelli, who mugged, grimaced and displayed no fear whatever of the big bad wolf, Cyril Ritchard, who revels in meanie parts dating back to "Peter Pan."

Critic Helm of "Variety"

ABC-TV presented a one-hour original musical comedy version of the tale of Little Red Riding Hood, but from the wolf's point of view—and with Liza Minnelli, Cyril Ritchard and Vic Damone as the stars. All were absolutely splendid in a gay and spoofing show, in which the poor misunderstood wolf (Ritchard) explained he really tried to make friends with Red, but thanked the management for equal time anyway.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

Program: "Julie Andrews Show," aired last Sunday on channel 4.

As safe a bet that the sun will set over the Pacific is the sure thing that Julie Andrews special will be the season's rating topper, and if the odds are right the highest in tv history for an entertainment show. What's more, for originality and pure inventiveness by Bob Finkel, Alan Handley and their production staff the show is an almost sure Emmy. By itself it needed no help but with the inherited audience of "Bonanza," all eyes must've been on the NBC channel.

There should have been a national proclamation of Julie Andrews Night. She is the best thing that has happened to television and gave the medium new stature and a dimension far beyond the abused word of "special." So much talent wrapped in such a dainty package. Yet, it wasn't a one-woman show and Gene Kelly deserves a generous share of the credit.

Critic Helm of "Variety"

NBC-TV presented a one-hour Julie Andrews special, in which the lovely entertainer was joined by Gene Kelly and the New Christy Minstrels in an amiable outing. Miss Andrews sang many of the songs she has made famous, and Kelly and the Minstrels took care of most of the zing, though their hostess also chipped in with a rousing music-hall number. Her dances with Kelly were also tops.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

"The Julie Andrews Show" on NBC was a gay, pleasant and rather low-key hour of singing and dancing in which the talented Miss Andrews had a hefty assist from light-footed Gene Kelly, the New Christy Minstrels—and all those songs from "My Fair Lady" to "The Sound of Music" which are associated with her.

Program, 'Who Shall Live?", aired last Sunday on channel 4.

NBC-TV took up the unglamorous subject of artificial kidney machines and turned out an hour of controlled crusading that ranks with the television medium's most important achievements.

At its core, the subject was, simply, the matter of life and death—and whether it should be decided in terms of dollars in this day and age in a nation that is forever claiming how important each individual is, but spends billions on questionable projects while human problems remain to be solved.

"Who Shall Die?" made you angry. It made television look 10 feet tall. It should rerun in prime time, with much more promotion.

Program: "The Incredible World of James Bond," aired Nov. 26 on channel 4.

A thinly disguised trailer for the James Bond pix, this spec drew generously on the four Bond films which comprised most of the footage.

Critic Daku of "Variety"

Who says television is killing the movies? NBC-TV presented the year's longest, sexiest and most beautifully mounted commercial, "The Incredible World of James Bond," an hour entertainment documentary billed as a special, and composed primarily of motion picture excerpts.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

The most incredible part about the hour is how the television censor for the network let it slide by with so little blue pencilling.

Apparently highly suggestive scenes and near-nude femmes are permissible on video if they're labeled "Documentary."

I'm not really complaining, mind you, but merely reporting what was—wow! —observed.

Critic Bert Resnik of "Tele-Vues"

Bistro for Odette

Odette Myrtil, actress long prominent in motion pictures and on the stage, has joined "The Secret Storm," daytime drama series on CBS-TV, as proprietress of a Paris bistro.

Good Old Ozzie Nelson Digs Rock-and-Roll

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Ozzie Nelson's weekly candy drop has been on the networks for 14 years now. It might be safe to call him the grand old man of television, except Ed Sullivan would take umbrage. (That's not quite as bad as taking hemlock, of course.)

Anyhow, old Oz keeps a youthful outlook, I'm glad to say. Maybe even too youthful as, for example, when he talks about pop music today.

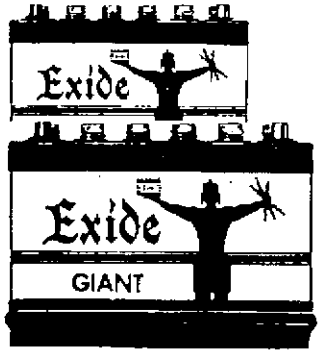

"Pop music is at its peak today," Ozzie says. I don't know if people like Irving Berlin and Cole Porter and Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey would agree with that estimate, but that's Ozzie's opinion. He likes rock 'n' roll and things like that.

But he does draw the line at Sonny and Cher. "That Sonny—cut his hair and wash him and he's nothing," Ozzie says. (Please note that I'm quoting Ozzie and don't send me all those nasty letters.)

As for the future of the Nelson family on television, Ozzie says it's too soon to tell about next year.

"Sure, I'd like for us to go on," he says. "Anybody who says they wouldn't is kidding himself."

Documentary Probes Watts Riot Causes

In an attempt to probe the causes of the violence, CBS-TV (channel 2) will present an hour documentary at 10 p.m. Tuesday on the Watts riots.

The program will emphasize the national similarities of problems that led to the uprising in Los Angeles.

Narrator for the documentary will be Bill Stout, the CBS news correspondent who covered the riot that started last Aug. 11.

Among those whom he will interview will be Los Angeles Police Chief William H. Parker; former Assistant Secretary of Labor Daniel P. Moynihan, author of a report on the plight of the Negro, and several attorneys.

In addition to the backward look at the causes of the riots, the program will show what steps are being taken to prevent a reoccurrence.

SPECIAL

PRESIDENT'S MEN—Premiere. Paul Niven begins a 9 pt. half-hour series examining the roles and responsibilities of top-ranking officials, cabinet members and special Presidential assistants. Guest for the ch. 28 opener, at both 3 and 7:30 p.m., is Sec. Dean Rusk.

ANDY WILLIAMS—Andy calls in both a doctor and a secret agent, but there's neither illness or trouble—just musical-and-comedy entertainment — when Vince Edwards drops Ben Casey's scalpel for a singing appearance, and Don Adams tackles both his anti-Bond Agent 86 role (solving the case of Edwards' missing watch) and a dissertation on his problems on a non-scheduled flight from Acapulco. In the informal spot of the 9 p.m. color hour, ch. 4, Andy introduces the young wandering minstrel Buddy Bohn, who completed a world tour without spending a dime—strumming his guitar and singing happy songs for his supper.

BUILDING THE BOMB—The development of the atomic bomb, and the decision to use it, are detailed in an hour-long special at 9 p.m. ch. 28. Among those discussing the project are Robert Oppenheimer and Edward Teller.

You pay for one dinner only and the second dinner is absolutely free "Compliments of the House." In your Bonus Book you will receive FREE a night's lodging, FREE dinner and/or breakfast at fine motels and hotels, PLUS FREE entertainment tickets to theaters and sports events. A total of more than 90 establishments in all. After you examine the contents of the membership and if you are not delighted, send the complete unused membership back within 10 days and your money will be promptly refunded.

SPECIAL

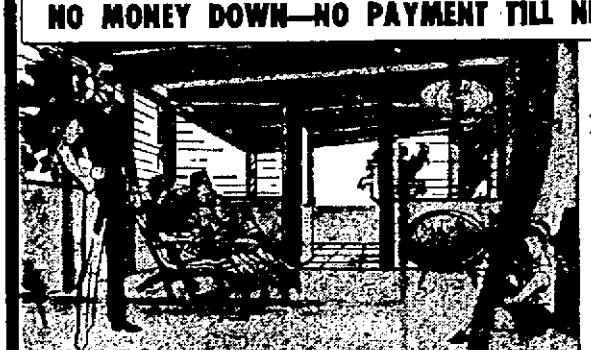

DECEMBER 7: Day of Infamy—David Wolper uses Imperial Japanese Navy films to trace the militarists' master plan for the conquest of Asia and the Pacific, to place in proper historical perspective the attack on Pearl Harbor just 24 years ago. With Richard Basehart narrating at 8 p.m., ch. 11, we see Tojo, Admirals Hamomoto and Monura, special peace envoy Saburo Kurusu, Cordell Hull and FDR.

WATTS: Riot or Revolt?—Another day of infamy, last August 11, that launched six bloody days of the most destructive race riots in recent American history, is examined in detail during a "CBS Reports" hour at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Bill Stout, who covered the riots in the predominantly Negro district both day and night, will be the reporter, probing the causes and underlying meaning, and stressing the many paradoxes in the violence in a city where racial tensions had not been high, and where the neat, one-family homes were a far cry from the slums of our older cities. Hour uses film from more than 70,000 feet taken during the rioting, and interviews former Assistant Secretary of Labor Daniel P. Moynihan, LAPD Chief William H. Parker, an attorney who handled complaints of police brutality, a boy accused of looting, and a Rhodes scholar who has lived most of his life in Watts. (A Viet Nam probe gets this hour next week.)

NOTRE DAME highlights, 10:30 p.m., in color, ch. 5, has Ara Parseghian with a review of season highlights.

SPECIAL

L.A.'S MEXICAN - American Story — Bill Johns narrates an hour's probe of a less-discussed racial minority, plagued with discrimination and bigotry, but fiercely proud of his Mexican heritage. Mexican-American leaders, police, educators and teenagers give their views at 8:30 p.m., ch. 13, in color, as cameras record the story of their religion, home-life, social life, schools, poverty belts, gay fiestas, loves and hates.

DANNY THOMAS — Danny tries to re-capture the magic of last year's look at burlesque, which scored the top Nielsen of any show all season, with a second edition guestarring Jerry Lewis, Lucille Ball and Shirley Jones — with cameo appearances by Jimmy Durante and Sheldon Leonard. Highlights of the 9 p.m. color hour, ch. 4, are such old classics as a pair of dead-beats taking a pair of gum-chewing gerties to dinner, a flat broke poker player conning a butcher boy out of some dinner meal, a "butterfly ballet" with wires, and a parody of "White Cargo" with a black-wigged Lucy as the tempestuous Tondelayo. Hour preempts "Chrysler Theatre," which yields also through Christmas for a Hope comedy special and a color documentary on Michelangelo.

DIXIE KNOLLS

Pan and Fan Mail

I am 11½ years old. Each Thursday my sister and I look forward to watching Daniel Boone on NBC.

Nov. 18 it was preempted because of a special. Nov. 25 it was preempted again. This time, on Daniel Boone, they were supposed to have a Thanksgiving theme. But instead, there was a water conservation documentary.

I hope NBC will be better on their scheduling in the future.

Caren Ruth Corbett, Long Beach

Poor old Daniel is having more trouble with the preemptions than he is with the injuns.

There are so few really good TV shows that are entertaining for the older folks and I am sure that most of your watchers are elderly folks like myself.

Lena A. Blair, Long Beach

I don't believe old folks or elderly folks should be put in a category as TV watchers. Many whom I know are a great deal younger-in-heart than I am. There's a 93-year-old golfer at Recreation Park who beats me consistently. I wish TV would find something interesting for him to watch so he'd stay at home.

In the "Legend of Jesse James," Chris Jones who plays Jesse James, is he married?

If so, does he have any kids. If not, does he date. I think he's a doll.

How did he get started in the story of Jesse James.

Fredra Woolard, Compton

He married Susan Strasberg a few months ago. He doesn't have any children. He doesn't date. Your doll got started in the Jesse James story by taking a screen-test for the role, then being hired.

I recently watched "The Man With the X-Ray Eyes" and I thought it to be the most gruesome, horrible movie I have ever seen.

I wonder if the people at the studios look at those movies before they show them. If they looked at that movie, they must be absolutely crazy to show such a sickening movie.

I hope in the future, before they show those kind of movies, they will think of people with weak stomachs like mine.

J. B. Bradsten, Long Beach

Assuming your fingers are stronger than your stomach, why don't you get up and turn the dial? Don't fight. Switch.

I would like to know if any one of the Beatles' voices are used in the Beatles' cartoons.

Elise Estes, Long Beach

One and all in the singing portions.

We feel so disappointed that we are going to lose the King Family TV program. It is one of the best clean programs we have on the air.

Edla C. Cotton, Long Beach

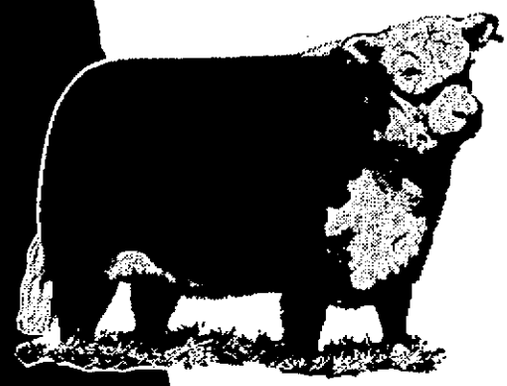

Well, that's how the soap suds.

SPECIAL

A CHARLIE BROWN Christmas—The famous "Peanuts" comic strip characters — Charlie, Lucy, Linus, Schroeder, Frieda, Snoopy and Pigpen—step out from the pages of 750 newspapers (including the Orange County Evening News) for a full-length animated story at 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 2. With an original musical score by Vince Guaraldi, Charlie sets out in search of the real meaning of the Yuletide observance —a spirit he finds usually obscured by the shadow of commercialism and greed. Cartoonist-creator Charles M. Schulz appears at the close of the half-hour special with a holiday message of "Peanuts" fans everywhere.

FOOTSTEPS on the Moon—The challenge and perils of a moon landing, and the men responsible at both the highest and lowest echelons of the Apollo program, are examined in an hour-long special at 7:30 p.m., ch. 9. Taking part are Dr. Wernher von Braun, developer of the 40-stories-high Saturn-5 rocket; Dr. George Mueller, overall director of manned space flights; Cape Kennedy program coordinator Rocco A. Pattrone, and the actual Apollo astronauts in training programs at Houston.

Sports Today

OLYMPIC BOXING, 8:30 p.m., ch. 5, has Dick Enberg ringside for a 10-round heavyweight match between Lars Norling and Manuel Ramos.

Lana Wood New GI Pinup Favorite

Lovely Lana Wood, star of 20th Century-Fox Television's "The Long Hot Summer" series for ABC-TV, is fast emerging as the GI's favorite pinup girl of the Viet Nam conflict.

The shapely young brunette daily receives hundreds of letters from American servicemen stationed throughout the world and in this country, and faithfully sends each one an autographed photo by return mail. Requests are mailed to Lana at PO Box 900, Beverly Hills, Calif.

The whole thing began a few weeks back when three adventuresome servicemen had the initiative to call and ask to speak to their favorite actress, Lana Wood.

To their surprise, they not only got to talk to her, but were invited for a personal tour of the studio. After the tour they asked for a photo and received a pose of Lana in one of next spring's bathing suits.

Lana asked if they thought any of their friends might like a photo. The suggestion met with enthusiastic response.

Soon service newspapers throughout the world were running the pinup photos of Lana and reprinting her offer to personally autograph copies to any serviceman, anywhere, if he would only drop her a line.

"It's a pleasure to send out the photos," Lana explained, "and after all we don't want our guys to forget what American gals look like . . . do we?"

BARNEY PETERSON, Owner

TV Popular Behind Iron Curtain

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television behind the iron curtain is as popular as it is in western Europe and the United States — so popular, in fact, viewers willingly pay a $2 monthly tax for owning a set.

In Bulgaria, Hungary, Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia antennas are sprouting from the tops of even the poorest shacks.

Joseph Roizen, international video consultant for the Ampex Corp., recently returned from seven weeks in Russia and its satelites where he visited the major television studios and talked with viewers. He found a burgeoning young industry everywhere despite the fact that technically eastern Europe is five years behind the West.

"TELEVISION on the other side of the curtain is completely controlled by the various governments," Roizen said. "It encourages TV sales because of the enormous propaganda value.

"They've even adopted the old capitalist credit plan, 25% down and low, easy monthly payments to viewers who buy sets."

During his tour Roizen lectured on American equipment and techniques, finding huge and enthusiastic audiences among technical personnel. There is little or no video tape in most of the countries which rely on filmed and live programming.

* * * *

EVERY country but the Soviet Union has only a single channel. Frequently the programming is haphazard with no specified scheduling. Rumania's station is on the air only 28 hours a week. But in Poland, the single channel beams 270 hours per month.

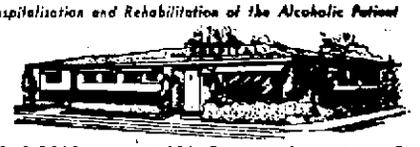

A breakdown of Polish programs is typical for the other countries. News and information programs gobble up 45% of air time. 5% is given to education, 3% to Russian films and, surprisingly, 5% to American films. The remainder is given over to 1½% for Eurovision and 4% to Intervision (the iron curtain inter-country network).

The most popular shows in all countries involve sports, especially football (soccer to Americans).

American television shows are frequently U. S. Information Agency films with occasional popular U.S. favorites such as "Dr. Kildare" and "Bonanza."

According to Roizen, viewers would like to see more American shows and television bigwigs would be happy to accommodate them but they use the excuse that U. S. shows are too expensive.

Zimbalist Prefers TV Over Movies

EFREM ZIMBALIST JR.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Efrem Zimbalist Jr., your friendly neighborhood FBI agent, had his choice between television and movies and chose the tube over the flickers.

On the face of it, this is no momentous decision. But it is an unusual one. Given the choice, almost all actors would jump for the big screen.

Many leading men consider television only a stepping stone to the bigtime — Steve McQueen and Jim Garner are the best examples.

Zimbalist has twice chosen the small screen. Seven years ago he gave up a promising movie career to play a regular role in "77 Sunset Strip," a hackneyed detective story that died an unmourned death at the end of the 1964 season.

Somewhat disenchanted, Zimbalist returned for a crack at the movies. He was better off, it turned out, in television.

He starred in two eminently forgettable pictures, "The Reward" and the Electrovision version of "Harlow." Zimbalist was good but the films were so bad it apparently cured him forever.

Now starring weekly in ABC-TV's "The FBI Story," Zimbalist believes he has found a home.

"I WAS FED UP with doing a series after '77 Sunset Strip,'" he said. "It was a fairy tale about private eyes that had no connection with reality. But I was also fed up with being out in the movie world.

"I've had an unlimited opportunity to study scripts, directors and attitudes in both mediums, and I think the best brains in the business today are in television.

"It's more competitive. It's more creative. Television must come up with a new show every week. The competition keeps everyone on his toes, sharp and active.

"Sitting around wasting time on movie sets, or waiting for a new picture bored the pants off me. There's no time for boredom in television. You work too hard for that."

ZIMBALIST WAS sitting in his dressing room at the noon hour, eating from a lunch bucket he brings to Warner Bros. every day. It's not through economic necessity, however. The silver lunch bucket exactly matches the color of his Rolls Royce.

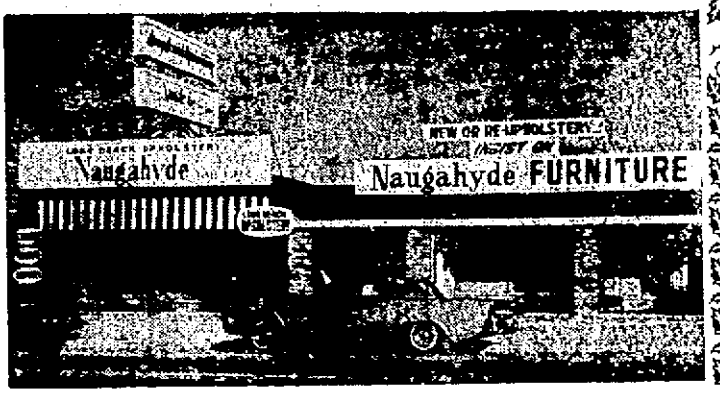

"The FBI Story" is among the highest-rated of this year's new shows and as far removed from the half-baked heroics of "77 Sunset Strip" as J. Edgar Hoover from the Green Hornet.

"This show deals with actual cases from the files of the FBI," Zimbalist said. "Before production started, I went to Washington to familiarize myself with the bureau and the agents. I also met Mr. Hoover.

"But the most gratifying thing is hearing from FBI agents who really enjoy the show and remark about its authenticity."

GETTING UP NIGHTS MAKES MANY FEEL OLD BEFORE THEIR TIME

Sufferers Find Quick Help For Kidney & Bladder Irritation & Secondary Backache or Nerve Tension

As we grow older, many men and women suffer from feeling old, tired, worn out and depressed by losing sleep and worrying about getting up nights, due to common irritation of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Tract. This condition, often due to a germ called the colon bacillus, and non-specific germs resulting from colds, bad teeth and minor infections, may cause frequent, urgent and painful urination. These irritations may also cause strong, cloudy urine and sometimes result in secondary backache, headache and nervous tension. Then you should heed the warning from your nerves and try CYSTEX for quick help.

HOW CYSTEX HELPS

New Improved CYSTEX releases a gentle, soothing bacteriostat in acid urine to combat germs which may be causing irritation. This is like a gentle, mildly antiseptic, soothing bath for the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Passages. CYSTEX also contains two of the very best known analgesics for soothing, gentle relaxing relief of discomforting pains due to common Kidney and Bladder irritations.

WORLD WIDE SUCCESS

Formulated by American scientists, CYSTEX has been helping people (in 72 countries) for 40 years to combat the foregoing irritations and thus feel cleansed and refreshed—and because of less nerve irritation able to sleep better and feel more vigorous and cheerful. Get CYSTEX from druggist today. See how fast it can help you

Charlie Brown and 'Peanuts' Pals in Television Special on Thursday

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Good grief, Charlie Brown and his pals from the "Peanuts" comic strip and books are coming to television for a Christmas season special.

It will mark the television entertainment debut for Snoopy, Lucy, Linus, Sohroeder, Pig Pen and that blockhead, Charlie Brown.

The gang has appeared in recent years in commercials for an automobile manufacturer. The characters will remain the same under the direction of Bill Melendez, who does the animation.

But the guy in overall charge of Peanuts is, naturally, Charles Schulz, creator of the comic strip.

The show, "A Charlie Brown Christmas," will be screened Thursday via CBS-TV (channel 2 at 7:30 p.m. in COLOR).

The question is, why did Schulz finally agree to a Peanuts show after turning a deaf ear to producers for years?

"I wouldn't have done the show without Bill Melendez," Schulz explained. "He has a real feeling for the characters and wouldn't do anything outside their realm.

"I also found a producer with whom I could work. He's Lee Mendelson and he knows what Bill and I have in mind for Peanuts."

THE ANIMATED special finds Charlie Brown disenchanted with the commercialization of Christmas. In searching for the true spirit of Yuletide, he asks the misanthropic Lucy for help. She puts him in charge of a Christmas play which, inevitably, is a disaster under Charlie's bumbling direction.

Ultimately good old Charlie Brown is mollified when his bedraggled Christmas tree is decorated by the other Peanuts.

While Schulz favors occasional television specials, he is against a weekly Peanuts series, saying, "It involves so many animators that it might lose the spirit of the comic strip. If we just do a few specials each year we can maintain control of the action.

"We're doing a second show for June or July on baseball, and if the first two are a success we may come up with another for Halloween with Linus and the Great Pumpkin."

LINUS AND SNOOPY WATCH CHARLIE BROWN AND LUCY ON TV

Schulz makes a few sketches for the story line which Melendez follows in bringing the little characters to life on celluloid.

"Charlie Brown always gets a pile of Christmas cards," said Schulz. "Readers feel sorry for him because he's the eternal loser."

Since drawing Peanuts, Schulz has become a persistent winner, and his Christmas show should be one of the big winners of the season.

Good Grief!

Pumpkin Hours

Milt Josefsberg, head writer on "The Lucy Show," says comedy writers compose their silliest jokes between midnight and 4 a.m. "It's a period when we often can't sleep," he says. "We call them the pumpkin hours, but don't ask me why. It's just a tradition in the business."

'House Party'

Among the many items of misinformation supplied by children on CBS-TV's "Art Linkletter's House Party," Linkletter recalls these favorites:

"It may sound strange that Socrates was born in 470 and died in 399, but in those days everybody lived backwards."

"Magellan explored because he was curious. People often said, 'Isn't Magellan a curious person?'"

"The Sulphate of Magnesia ruled the ancient kingdom of Epsom."

City College Instructors on 'Scope'

Lectures and demonstrations by five Long Beach City College instructors will be presented on the Channel 7 "Scope" series at 7 a.m. Monday through Friday this week. The schedule:

Monday: Donald E. Miller, "Retailing Facilities." Tuesday: Duane Gurnee, "The Romantic Musician in Retrospect." Wednesday: Arnold Schroeder, "The Computer in Mathematics." Thursday: George DeWitt, "The Essential and the Existential Poem." Friday: Donald R. Howey, "Electric Meter Operation."

Wednesday's program will demonstrate a new remote unit which permits the use of a central computer installation over a long-distance telephone line.

Examples of 19th century music to be discussed on Tuesday will be performed by Dorothy Judy Klein, Long Beach pianist.

SANTA advises his beaming buddy that the pair will appear at 5:30 p. m. today (Sunday) in "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer" on channel 4 in COLOR. The hour special was first telecast last December. Burl Ives dons the suit of Sam the Snowman in narrating the animated fantasy.

These Gifts Neighborly

By Ruth C. Ikerman

WHEN picking out gifts for neighbors, what the modern family usually wants is something catchy looking and relatively inexpensive so that it can be given in quantity. Here are some simple suggestions which will help turn the ordinary and usual item into a most welcome gift of unusual beauty, combining the festive and functional.

If you are making a gift of fruit such as persimmons from your own tree, don't just put them into a sack, no matter how elaborately it is decorated. Save foil pie tins, and arrange half a dozen of the orange fruit against this silver plate. Pick a number of the leaves from this or some other tree, and spray them lightly with silver paint so that some of the green still shows through, making a mottled effect. Put the leaves at the edge of the tray, and you have a gift of royal appearance.

BUY AN unusual shade of tissue paper in the range of gold or yellow, and cut this to fit over a paper plate, leaving an extra inch around the circular edge. Put an assortment of cookies made with brown sugar on this harmonizing platter, and place a plain white paper napkin over the top. Instead of the customary ribbon bow, insert a tiny cluster of plastic oranges through the napkin.

Is your gift greenery from your fir tree? You can camouflage a bow by cutting a single piece of heavy foil to look like a tied bow. This involves two triangles cut toward the center with about two inches left straight in the middle between the triangles. At this point attach a plastic poinsettia, or a real or artificial spray of holly. The silver bow, the red flowers contrasting against the green, tied together with dark wire or heavy cord make your gift instantly ready to hang at the doorway of your neighbor.

SAVE THE inexpensive but durable tins which come through the years when the various flour and cake mix companies offer their special premiums. Use these as containers for home made candies, first treating them to special color treatment by applying spray paint.

One year, let your dishes be gold, another year silver, another year blue or red. Then put white lace paper doilies over the inside of the container. When the metal is filled with the candies or cookies, slip the whole container into a plastic bag, and tie the loose end with a simple ribbon bow.

NEXT WEEK

Famed Pike's Peak is not the chief tourist attraction in Colorado. That honor goes to the Cadet Chapel at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs—the most ecumenical church in the world. Next week, in sparkling pictures and story, Southland tells how this glistening, man-made attraction got that way.

MIRACLE COATING ELIMINATES OUTSIDE HOUSE PAINTING

OUR SLOW SEASON IS HERE! IN ORDER TO KEEP OUR MEN WORKING, WE ARE SLASHING OUR PRICES 30% DURING THE MONTH OF DECEMBER ONLY!

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the FLEXON STORY. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather, and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

SYNONYMOUS WITH CHRISTMAS

The Fruit of the Evergreen

By ELEANOR AVERY PRICE

CONES from evergreen trees are, to most of us, as synonymous with Christmas as the trees that bear them, and with holly, mistletoe, red berries, and Yule logs. One legend tells of Winfred, an English missionary who, on a journey to Germany to spread the teachings of Jesus, found a group of pagan worshipers about to sacrifice young Prince Asult to the god Thor under the Oak of Geismar. Winfred cut down the oak, and as it fell a young fir tree appeared, which, since it was covered with cones, Winfred declared was a tree of life.

So this is the time of year when we get a Christmas tree and when we take out the fruit of the evergreen—cones—stored away from our summer excursions or from last Christmas to touch up with spray and glitter or even use a la naturelle for holiday decorations.

CONES have other uses, of course. When growing healthfully on pine, redwood, cedar, and fir, they tell licensed woodcutters that here is good wood. When a squirrel sees heavy green cones, he knows he can count on eating. If you have ever visited a California national park in summer, you know jolly well you had better not sit directly under hard green cones hanging high overhead if there is a squirrel in the branches, and especially if the squirrel has suddenly stopped his screeching scolding which is his "Timber!" before he nibbles the last bite that lets a cone drop like a bomb.

For the California Department of Conservation, Division of Forestry, cones mean seed for its four nurseries. Each year nearly four million seedlings are grown to help renew state forests, particularly in burned or cut-over areas, for new Christmas trees on private land, and for use in research at the U. S. Department of Agriculture and Interior and at the University of California at Davis.

FORESTRY and research personnel cannot, of course, depend on squirrels to drop cones for them. Instead, in 13 organized collecting zones in California where there are ample cedar, redwood, Ponderosa and other pines, and white, red, and Douglas fir, tree climbers are employed. In September and October, at the peak of cone ripeness, the men climb trees with the aid of shoe hooks, ropes and pulleys. Heavy duty pole pruners serve as cone cutters.

Each type of cone is given individual attention. Location and date of harvesting are also noted. Once a tree is stripped of cones, the cones are sacked and hauled to camp where they are dried, reracked, and trucked to Davis or one of the other three nurseries.

CONES are again dried, then put through special equipment that shakes the seed free. Many seeds are needed to make any kind of a showing. Sierra redwood seeds, for one, are very small and many thousand are needed to make a pound. The seeds are cleaned and stored, or they may be

Stately pines are among oldest of tree types descended from forests of geological ages. The cones contain seeds to feed wild life and sustain the species from which they fall. The pine is attractive as yule decoration, and dipping cones in special dye is a project for older children —and one of which even the family cat approves.

One of teeners' unglamorous but very important chores is washing glasses, as Ann Carroll does.

Volunteens and Belles perform vital tasks in Long Beach hospitals

"THE KIDS are invaluable."

That flat, unequivocal statement sums up the feeling of hospital administrators and medical personnel alike for the volunteer work of the various junior auxiliary members at local hospitals.

From the Volunteens of Memorial Hospital of Long Beach to the Belles of St. Mary's, the attitude of unselfish service in the teen-aged auxiliary members is a constant source of joy to hospital staff members—as well as to the object of their affections, the patient.

By performing chores and duties that would ordinarily require a staff member, the junior auxiliary members release more staffers to work in the hospitals.

This ultimately results in more attention to the patient, both by the volunteer and the regular hospital staff member.

Susan Ito demonstrates an important auxiliary task, that of pouring media in the laboratory.

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL'S Volunteens and St. Mary's Hospital Belles are typical of the youth groups that are so popular in the hospitals throughout the nation.

The junior auxiliary members are usually boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 18; however, in the case of the Belles of St. Mary's, they are composed of 150 girls only, ages 15 to 17 years.

Favorite job of most of the teen-agers is helping to entertain and feed the children.

They are also to be found transporting patients in wheelchairs and gurneys, delivering mail and flowers and assisting with coffee carts.

They run errands for patients, buying magazines, newspapers and other items. Volunteens and Belles help with clerical work in the office and assist in the medical library by sorting and stacking books.

IN A MORE technical field they assist in the laboratory pouring out media (a base for bacteria), washing glasses and cleaning test tubes.

The youngsters are a big help to the food service department with their work on the tray line and in delivering late trays.

The two favorite seasons for Volunteens and Belles alike are Christmas and Easter.

On Christmas they deliver special Christmas greetings to the patients.

THE VOLUNTONES — a choral group composed of members of the Volunteens — sing Christmas carols for the patients.

The Saturday before Easter is a big day for the Volunteens, too. They deliver Easter baskets to the patients.

The Belles make a big thing of their annual Christmas play which is staged for hospital personnel and ambulatory patients from the pediatrics departments.

Another of their favorites is the bake sale which they conduct every six months.

Hospital administrators are lavish in their praise for the youngsters and their work.

"IN THIS DAY and age when you see and read so much about juvenile delinquency and teen-age crime it is a real pleasure to see such a group of dedicated youngsters who are willing to devote all their energy to a really worthwhile cause," they say.

The administrators point out that the hospital experiences of the teen-agers provide them with a learning process by which their understanding of life is broadened.

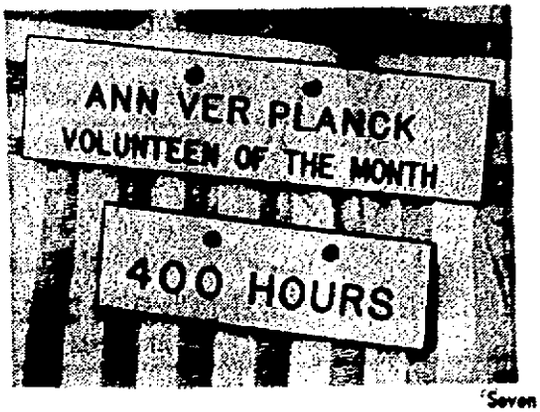

An important by-product of this learning process, as far as the hospitals are concerned, is that their relationship with patients affects their attitude toward people and makes them aware of and very interested in hospital careers where there is a perennial shortage of qualified help.

To point out the amount of service rendered by these youngsters, Alice L. Armour, director of volunteer services for Memorial Hospital, says that last year the Volunteens worked more than 16,553 volunteer service hours.

MISS RULE: Would GRESSLEY be difficult to trace? — J. G., Garden Grove.

GRESSLEY had its English beginning as "Graesley" in the 1200s. This home-location phrase described "owner of the grassy meadow." Gressley ancestors have been recorded in Derbyshire since the mid-11th century. Their armorial shield is covered with a pattern of alternating ermine and red fur pieces. The Gressley motto "Meliore fide quam fortuna" translates from Latin as "Better faith than fortune."

MISS RULE: Please identify MASSARI — J.M., Garden Grove.

MASSARI, also spelled Massaro in Italy, means "steward," referring to an ancestor who was a steward or manager of a manorial nobleman's estate.

MISS RULE: Please publish data on LE JEUNE — E.L., Lakewood; K.S., Long Beach.

LE JEUNE in France during the Middle Ages meant "the youthful one." The Le Jeune armorial shield is silver, crossed by a red stripe engraved with three roses.

MISS RULE: What is the source of GENT — R.G., Artesia.

GENT from Holland Belgium, depicted an ancestor from the famous Belgian city of Ghent. The city-name source was "Gant" meaning "rock." The Dutch Van Gent armorial shield is blue, crossed by a wavy silver chevron.

MISS RULE: May we have information on COLEMAN — J.C., Long Beach; A.C., Norwalk.

COLEMAN is in the Royal English Domesday Book of 1085, the earliest census. Coleman described "dark or victorious warrior." Robert, son of Coleman, was a farmer in Cumberland, England, in 1176. The Coleman shield is silver on the upper half, black on the lower part, decorated with a black and silver cross between four stars. John Coleman of England was an early 17th century New England settler.

The Thunder and the Agony at Pearl Harbor

In memory of brave men who died in Pearl Harbor's sneak attack by forces seeking to destroy the western world, the memorial (left) stands over the sunken battleship Arizona. Above, the holocaust aboard the sinking vessel after the infamous attack.

ELEANOR CARMINES

They knew the fury of the infamous attack on Pearl Harbor 24 years ago.

By EV HOSKING

THE PLACID waters of Pearl Harbor lapping around the base of the beautiful USS Arizona Memorial and, at the same time, covering what remains of the huge battlewagon, are a far cry from the Pearl Harbor of 24 years ago Tuesday.

It was a fairly quiet Sunday morning aboard the Arizona on Dec. 7, 1941, with some of the crew at breakfast and others getting ready for liberty.

Suddenly, thundering explosions jolted the mighty ship as torpedoes ripped into her port side. A large bomb hit the forecastle, penetrated to a powder magazine and the resulting explosion, in turn, exploded the Arizona's main forward battery magazines. The entire forward structure of the battleship was completely wrecked. The two forward turrets and the bridge dropped vertically between 18 and 20 feet and the Arizona sank in less than nine minutes.

As she sank to the bottom of Pearl Harbor, most of the crew went with her, including Rear Adm. Isaac C. Kidd, commander of Battleship Division One, and Capt. Franklin Van Valkenburgh, commanding officer of the Arizona. Of the 1,550 Navy and Marine Corps men aboard the Arizona, only 289 survived.

It is generally believed that more than 1,100 men still remain "aboard" the battlewagon. Those aboard are considered buried at sea.

THE FIRST booms from the explosions ripping the Arizona and Pearl Harbor awakened 12-year-old Theda Jacobson in her home at nearby Hickam Air Force Base. She padded down the stairs to get a comic book to read in bed.

She wasn't sleepy and she figured the Navy was on routine maneuvers.

Then she heard her father, a master sergeant in the Air Force, cry "we're being attacked! I've got to help get the planes out."

This is the way Miss Jacobson, now a resident of Lakewood and a member of the Air Force's Contract Management Division at El Segundo, remembers Pearl Harbor day.

Her most vivid memory today is the awful suspense of waiting for the bombs to fall.

"We could hear them whistle through the air. From the time we heard the first whistle until the explosion was a tense moment. Once they exploded then I knew we were safe until the next one."

There were no orders for them to leave the base. In the confusion families had to make their own decisions. However, once they left the base, military authorities discouraged them from returning until the danger was past.

They drove to Honolulu and then they went to the University of Hawaii where a large ballroom was turned over to the refugees.

All this time Miss Jacobson's mother kept trying to find out what happened to her husband. Later they learned he was killed when dive bombers hit the hangar where he was working to get an airplane ready to fight back.

Miss Jacobson and her mother were taken aboard a troop transport on Christmas Day 1941 to return to the states.

AT TWO IN the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, John Nobriga finished work at Schofield Barracks and had to make a decision. Should he go into Honolulu then or wait until daylight?

He decided to go—and when he returned to the post after the Japanese attack he found the spot where he would have stayed had been riddled with bullets.

Nobriga, now a resident of 13842 Claremont St., Westminster, was ready to go with his family to church when a neighbor cried: "There's something happening at Pearl Harbor!"

They ran outside to see columns of smoke blasting up from the naval base. Then the radio broke with "all military personnel return to your bases. We are being attacked."

He immediately rushed down town and caught a taxi for the ride back to Schofield, the Army post in the center of the island.

The taxi got as far as the highway past Pearl Harbor and had to stop because Japanese strafing fire from the attacking bombers was ripping across the road.

"The boats were tied in rows," he recalled. "Smoke and flames were everywhere. From where I waited it looked like all were afire. The whole harbor seemed burning.

"The Navy was shooting back. The battleship Utah was on its back. I could see the Arizona burning."

During a lull between the first and second attacks, the taxi driver got across the strafed area and they headed back for Schofield.

Nobriga's post was with a replacement depot on the west side of the post. It was in a direct line with Koli-Koli Pass through which the attacking planes came.

They started strafing as they passed over. Fortunately 90% of the replacements were on leave. There were no casualties, but the bullet holes showed definitely that he had made the right decision when he went to Honolulu.

For the balance of the war he worked in the Army finance office and later came to the states to study for a degree under the GI Bill.

EARLY THAT same morning a traffic policeman blew his whistle at Eleanor Car-

Safe That Held History

By Helen L. Gillum

IN A SMALL alcove in the office of Hal McGrew, contractor, at 2951 Long Beach Blvd., stands an old, black, iron safe. It no longer holds valuables of any kind, serving now as a depository for odds and ends of papers and other miscellanea. But if the safe could talk, it would tell interesting stories of Long Beach's growth and development. For it once belonged to Long Beach's first lawyer, Elon Carlton Denio; and through its heavy doors passed countless legal documents pertaining not only to the city's history, but to many business establishments extant even today.

The histories of the safe, Long Beach, and the professional career of Denio are closely related. Denio, who came here in 1887, studied law at Wells & Lee in Los Angeles before establishing a law office in Long Beach in 1891. His first office was a small one-story frame building, 8x10 feet in size, at the northwest corner of Ocean Boulevard and Pine Avenue where the Heartwell Building now stands. A few years later, he moved into a new office at First Street and Pine, the present site of the Security Building, which now houses the law firm of Denio, Hart, Taubman and Simpson. Sometime during this busy period, Denio obtained the safe, made by Hall's Safe Co. of Cincinnati, from Thomas B. Clark in Los Angeles.

Records that made history in Long Beach were safeguarded in this strongbox in past years.

DENIO WAS elected to the city council in 1891 and, in 1896, became chairman of the board and mayor of Long Beach. He also served as city attorney for many years, drafting ordinances, resolutions, franchises and other legal papers for the city.

During Denio's tenure, the first city hall site of a city block was purchased for $3,000, with a rebate of $500! (The city hall was built at a cost of $9,000!) The first municipal pier in Long Beach — and the state, the first municipal auditorium, and the first sidewalks and street paving were attained under Denio's administration.

In 1895, Denio issued to Robert Benzie the first franchise for an "electric lighting plant", and the first water franchise to Bouton Water Co. The first Pacific Telegraph and Telephone Company received its franchise about this time, too. And in 1897, Denio drafted the bill that secured to the city again the property lost when the city was disenfranchised in 1896.

DENIO WAS resident counsel to a number of other local firms, such as the Security Trust & Savings Bank, Pacific Electric Co., Craig Shipbuilding Co. and the Craig Corporations. He also helped organize the Long Beach Bar Association in 1917.

The safe is 43 inches high, 30 inches wide, and 25 inches deep. McGrew, who is no "johnny-come-lately" himself—he arrived here in 1901 — received the safe years ago, when his wife, Mrs. Juliette Denio McGrew and her sister, Mrs. Geraldine Denio Loomis, decided that it should continue to serve the family. He values it as a historical souvenir of the community that grew from seaside marshes and sheep pastures to one of the most beautiful and progressive cities on the Pacific Coast.

Toys are everything to brother of artist Norman Rockwell

This Santa's Too Busy to Grow Old

By JEROME HALL

IN THIS, the hunting season for millions of pseudo-Santa Clauses, the hunters are confronted by a myriad of choices, from talking sea monsters to buzz saws for 6-year-olds.

The problem, as anyone who ever has been a pseudo-Santa Claus knows all too well, is to find just the right toy for each little one.

Unfortunately, the end result is that the hunter finds just exactly the toy he/she wants for, not the child, but himself/herself. At least that's the view of a large number of psychologists and the view of one of the foremost toy designers, 73-year-old Jerry Rockwell.

The brother of famed artist Norman Rockwell, Jerry has been designing toys since the 1930s and is renowned himself as probably America's No. 1 designer of playthings for preschoolers.

TOYS FOR the youngest younger set is a subject that has come into a new importance. During hearings in the U. S. Congress on the Educational Act of 1965, psychologists and educators testified that many children failed to learn because of the waste of early childhood years, the peak learning years.

Into the Congressional Record went such statements as "Fifty per cent of the development of the child in a number of areas occurs before the age of 6," and "Children who fail to get (proper educational-value toys) fall behind other children from the beginning of school and continue to fall further and further behind."

Says designer Rockwell: "Children actually know more about selecting toys than their parents do and usually the parent will buy the wrong thing. Then the child will break the toy to get rid of it."

During his 30 years of toy-dreaming Rockwell has come to many conclusions about tiny-tot playthings. "It wasn't easy to introduce educational toys in the 30s," he recalls. "We had to force them into the stores by creating a demand. We did this by door-to-door selling to mothers, explaining their value to the development of mind and talent of their youngsters.

EDUCATIONAL toys are simply wood blocks cut to a wide variety of shapes that can be put together to simulate everyday sights—the mail truck, a train, auto or house. Working with various shapes, children are free to use imagination in building, tearing down and rebuilding.

"The reason we don't have many antique toys," says Rockwell, "is that in earlier days people thought toys were meant to break. Today we realize that a toy becomes, very often, a child's most prized possession. When it breaks he feels a great disappointment if it was a toy that was properly chosen and suited to him in the first place."

Rockwell says there really are no new ideas for pre-school toys, just modifications. "We give a toy a new appearance, a new play value," he says. "Until three years ago adults wanted toys to be seen and not heard. Now we have music, bells, rattles and beep-beeps on everything."

Though he's far beyond conventional retirement age, Rockwell has no thoughts of slowing his pace. He reports to his Chicago office of the Playskool Co. research headquarters five days a week and, according to his wife, is on the job seven days a week.

"HE NEVER takes a day off," she says with a trace of impatience. "I've quit nagging him about a day off because he just says 'I can't make an appointment with myself to sit down from 9 until noon and dream up a new toy.' Actually, I think if he got away from toys for even one day he might turn into an old man."

But Rockwell says there is no danger of his growing old. Who ever heard of an old Santa Claus? A little weary once in a while, perhaps. But he's far too busy to grow old.

Above his desk hangs a constant reminder of the importance of designing toys. It is an oil painting of a white bearded gent in a red velvet suit, dozing. It was painted by Rockwell's younger brother.

"How," asks Jerry Rockwell, soon to be a great-grandfather, "can anyone who is surrounded by children and toys ever get old?"

Jerry Rockwell (above) looks over an assortment of preschool toys that he has recently designed. Rockwell is as prominent in the field of toy development as his brother, the artist Norman Rockwell, is in art. Left, a tot plays with blocks and rods that provide a challenge to preschoolers to use imagination and creative talents. Basic materials for play backed by educators are squares, circles and triangles, all of which may be fitted over wooden dowels. All in colors.

'Don'ts' When Selecting Toys

DON'T CHOOSE toys that are not suited for a child's particular stage of development. A toy should stimulate new interests, create new challenges. A toy that is "too young" or "too old" for a child will leave parents and youngsters soon discouraged.

DON'T SELECT toys that are not soundly constructed and durable enough to take punishment. When a toy is broken, it's more often the fault of the toymaker than of the child.

DON'T FALL into the parent trap of buying "world-in-miniature" toys, so attractive to adults but which have limited play value to children. Battery or electrically-operated toys are fine for older children, but the preschoolers should have toys that stimulate the imagination.

DON'T OVERLOOK the simple, wooden toy that the child can take apart and put together. "Let's pretend" is a child's favorite game up to age 6. Simple blocks of varying shapes, sizes provide widest opportunities to pretend.

DON'T UNDERESTIMATE a child's ability. To the preschooler, the world is a fascinating place and learning is fun. Help him.

DON'T SPEND the entire year's toy funds at Christmastime. To the preschooler, educational toys are nutrition for the imagination. Feed that imagination the year around.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Oriental--Even to a Tea House

By Stella George

ORIENTAL pieces collected over the years have come to their full-value in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kaspereit, 3326 Warwood Road. The Kaspereits designed and built the dwelling and Mrs. Kaspereit, who collected the Oriental items, did her own interior decorating.

Beginning with the exterior design, the theme is Oriental throughout, but it is unlikely that a Far Eastern dwelling place could match the livable features of this Lakewood Country Club area residence. Some of the larger details include a large tea house in the rear garden, big enough to accommodate a large number of guests.

Individual pieces of the furnishings are far too numerous to mention and each has a fascinating history.

Terrazo flooring is used in the spacious entrance hall where, on the right, a large mirror-front chest displays Oriental treasures. The living room is to the left. A gold-tinted mirror hangs above a sofa which is upholstered in gold and turquoise made of a silk fabric. Occasional chairs are done in peacock blue silk. Tiered tables are ebony, inlaid with mother-of-pearl. Pictures on the walls were hand made in the Orient, embroidered in minute detail. They are appropriately framed in bamboo. The coffee table is a handsome hand-carved chow table which has a glass top to protect (and display) the carving on the surface. Hand-carved stools, customed to surround the table, seat six guests.

A CURVED BLACK railing separates the step-up dining room from the living room. A long oval table is suited to dinner parties. All furniture of the room is Oriental, as are all the accessories down to the tiniest ornament on the buffet. The lace tablecloth was made for Mrs. Kaspereit by a friend who is 94 years old. The cloth is beautiful and shown to advantage over an undercloth of gold satin.

Wood surfaces in the compact kitchen are finished in Chinese red, carefully crafted to show the grain of the wood.

A service bar leads from the kitchen to the family room, where a large stone fireplace with a built-in planter at one end dominates one side of the room. A colorful lamp hangs over the planter. Built-in cupboards and drawers with bookshelves above are at the side of the fireplace. A sofa and Oriental coffee table is across the way. Handsome paintings, all in the Oriental theme, hang over the TV at the other end of the room.

DONNA and Beverly, the Kaspereits' daughters, share a bedroom done in tones of pink. Son Denny's room is done in autumn shades and features a built-in desk and shelves.

The master bedroom is a fantasy in orchid — carpeting, walls, and accessories. One far wall is "pushed out" with a large mural. The bedspread is in shades of orchid, lavender and lilac. An adjoining bath has a built-in dressing table next to the wash basin and matches the bedroom in color.

Exterior design sets mood for Oriental theme of the interior.

Q. Did the unicorn ever exist? J.W.

A. Many authorities believe that this fabulous beast was not entirely a product of the imagination. In the Muslim world, its prototype most probably was the one-horned rhinoceros of India whose form became distorted in reports of travelers and filtering through popular legend. Stories of unicorns may also trace back to the oryx, a swift antelope with two horns so slender that they seem like one in profile or at a distance. Transplantation of two-horn buds to form a single horn is another possibility. A scientist who created a "unicorn" in this way in 1933 believes that earlier peoples may have commonly practiced this trick.

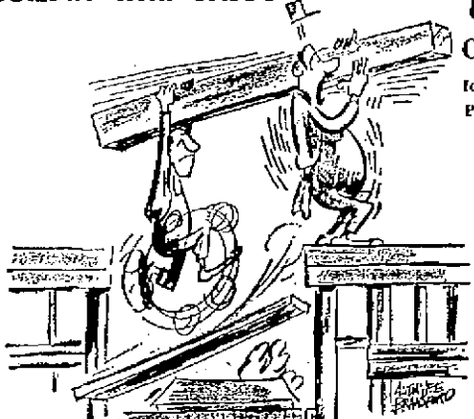

Q. Please provide a list of monuments in the United States which are dedicated to Negroes, or tell me where I can get such a list. R.O.

A. The American Oil Company has published a booklet titled "American Travelers Guide to Negro Monuments." This work describes the meaning, appearance, and location of monuments and memorials dedicated to, and erected for, American citizens of the Negro race. The booklet is available, without charge, from the Public Relations Department, American Oil Company, 910 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Q. Which upsets a human being more—a dark, silent room, or a room with low noises and vague lighting? G. V.

A. While scientists have found that both sets of conditions disturb the human mind, the more prominent disturbance is in a room with low-level, constant, unpatterned noise and light. Two Canadian doctors tested the reaction of students who were restricted in their movements and placed in totally silent and dark isolation chambers. They then tested another group under the conditions of unpatterned noise and light. They found greater disturbances under the second set of conditions, evidence that low-level noise and light are more disturbing to the total functioning of human beings than complete silence and darkness.

The Cliff-Hanger Railway

Snaking along the tortuous roadbed, a train of the cliff-hanger railway traverses Carriso Gorge. A man who knew no "impossible" built the road.

By Enola Chamberlin

THEY said it was impossible, this railroad, when there was talk of its being built across the mountains between San Diego and El Centro shortly after the turn of the century. It was called impossible of operation when, after much sweat and toil and ingenious planning it was finished 12 years later.

And recently other impossibles have shown up; the impossibility of salvaging the impossible beer, 11 cars, 72,000 cans of it which, when the cars went off the track, was spilled down into a rugged, rocky canyon.

It is such canyons with their almost straight up and down rocky sides which made experts say the railroad couldn't be built; that it was impossible.

AND PERHAPS it would have been to any man but John B. Spreckles. But he could see the track built and carrying trains. When he was told he would be throwing his money away on the project, he looked off into space.

"Maybe," he said.

Then he went right ahead and built it.

So it was finished. Spreckles drove a $286 golden spike into the last section at Carriso, Calif., on Dec. 1st, 1919.

"Well, you built it," everyone said, "but you'll never run trains on that winding, cliff-hanging track."

AND YET two trains, one each way, have run over that track every day since the first one sounded it out 45 years ago.

Still, though it grosses $3,000,000 in a year's time, it is an impossible railroad. It leaves San Diego as the SDAE, San Diego and Arizona Eastern. Its train is a freight. It enters and runs through Mexico as the T & T, Tijuana and Tecate. Cars loaded in the United States are sealed at the border by a customs official. A gate has to be opened to let the train cross.

Once in Tijuana the train becomes a passenger as well as a freight. Anyone having the few cents fare can travel the 44.4 miles to where the track crosses the border again at Lindero. The passengers dispose themselves in the train's rear car. They can get off at any of the stations. These are little Mexican towns where everyone stops work to watch the train go by.

Boys run after the train, almost but not quite keeping up with it. For over this stretch it makes but 11 miles an hour.

SO FAR, there seems no reason why the building of the railroad was called impossible. But the mountains soon provide the reason. Piles of bare rock, rugged and sharp, with canyon walls dropping away more than 2,000 feet down to more rock. And no flat acres for a man to walk, let alone lay ties.

So, the railroad hangs on the cliffs. Sometimes the wooden trestles which support it, holding it to the face of a cliff, are set 200 feet below. The turns and twists are continuous. At one place the track spans a gorge where the wooden supports rest 1,000 feet below.

But breathing spaces do come. From the sides of precipices the train plunges into tunnels—17 times in the 11 miles of negotiating the mountains. The most spectacular stretch of road is where it winds along the rock side of Carriso Gorge. The bottom here is 2,350 feet below.

THE INCIDENT of the lost beer occurred in a canyon nearer to San Diego and 1,000 feet deep. The railroad made no effort to salvage the beer but some adventurous individuals did — only to learn something of impossibilities.

The beer location is inaccessible except by negotiating four miles of track and two one-fourth mile tunnels. Men tried it on foot, in a Jeep and on motorcycles. These last succeeded in saving their lives by getting hurriedly out of tunnels when trains thundered into them.

Some hikers did reach the beer canyon. One, being lowered into the canyon by a rope, received a fractured skull.

And the irony of it all is that the beer once out of the refrigerated cars and warmed, even though chilled again, would not taste good.

The beer spill will be forgotten; an incident which might happen anywhere. But the amazing railroad goes on, proving by its continued existence and its operation, that some men's vocabularies contain no word "impossible."

Come To Our Big Birthday Celebration

Chicken l'Orange

By Mildred K. Flanary

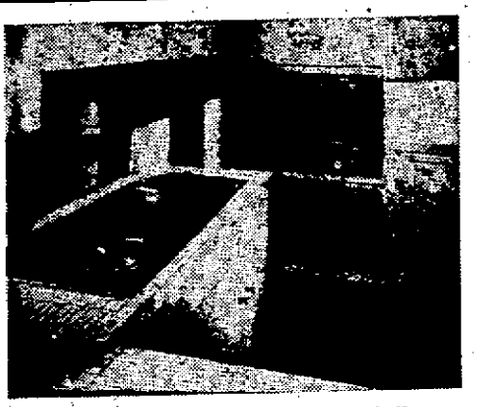

Home Economics Editor Southland Magazine

DELICATE, tender chicken . . . juicy Florida oranges . . . readily combine for a tantalizing dinner-dish sensation that's bound to be remembered with pleasure long after the event.

The recipe for Twin Chicken l'Orange is reminiscent of French cookery. Plump whole broiler-fryers are stuffed with fresh orange chunks and tarragon, rubbed with garlic, and roasted. Half an hour before the end of cooking time, the chickens are basted with a tart-sweet sauce of orange juice, chicken stock and wine vinegar to give them a handsome glaze. Then the cooked birds are removed from the pan and the sauce thickened. Arrange the chicken twins on your prettiest platter, garnish with orange slices and fresh watercress, and serve with the hot sauce.

COIN ROUNDUP

Chapel Coins

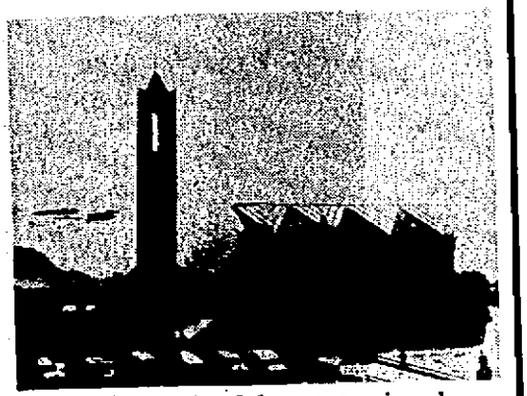

By Maurice Gould

ON A RECENT trip out West, my wife visited a church called The Wayfarers' Chapel in Portuguese Bend, Calif.

This all-glass structure was built on a rocky point overlooking the ocean. Shrubbery and exotic plants circle the building, and in many spots cover the sides and roof, giving the edifice a picturesque and unusual appearance.

There are more than three-quarters of a million visitors from every corner of the world to the Chapel each year, and the offerings they have donated form the nucleus of a coin collection which has been on display since February 1964.

The collection has been continually growing, and every one of the items on display had been left in the offering plates at the Chapel.

Wayfarers' Chapel houses a coin collection of worldwide representation.

As the collection has grown, quite frequently wayfarers will note that certain coins from their homeland are missing and will mail them to the church upon their return home. There are 38 countries represented in the collection, and along with the coins are various pieces of paper money. All the Continents are represented, as well as both sides of the Iron Curtain.

THE PURPOSE of this collection is to show the geographic spread of the visitors to the Wayfarers' Chapel.

The coins are mounted in vinyl coin holders and only one of each denomination is displayed, with dates and mint marks disregarded.

The minister, Rev. Robert Loring Young, a former Bostonian whose parents live only a few miles from my own home, has spent considerable time and effort classifying these coins and currencies, which should prove fascinating to both the public and experienced collector alike.

To order the booklet, "Coins of Special Value," send 50 cents with name and address to Coin Roundup, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801. Allow three weeks for delivery.

Making Pottery by Hand

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

CREATING something useful with your own hands is a basic urge—and the desire to mark into wet, unblemished surfaces is instinctive.

A good many people would like to make pottery pieces especially for Christmas presents, but they hesitate to put out the money for a pottery wheel.

A wheel isn't necessary; hand-created articles have more individuality, insists Carlton Ball, master potter. He and Janice Lovoos, artist and writer, pooled their talents to produce "MAKING POTTERY WITHOUT A WHEEL, Texture and Form in Clay" (Reinhold, $9.95), high on the list of Christmas books.

This comprehensive and well-illustrated book covers every phase of hand-building and decorating clay pieces, working with tools usually found in the home. Finger tips, jar tops, pen knives, saw blades, match books, carpet tacks, bits of string, lengths of burlap, kitchen door springs—the list is endless—can be used to make interesting patterns in clay.

Ball and Mrs. Lovoos then show how clay may be draped into a mold, folded over a newspaper mold, wrapped around a form. Step-by-step instructions and illustrations show how to make pots, bowls, tiles, panels, etc., with suggestions for table tops, patios, floors, gardens and garden walls, playrooms and fireplaces, any area where original ceramics will enhance the decor.

THE 35TH EDITION of "CHRISTMAS, An American Annual of Christmas Literature and Art" edited by Randolph E. Haugan (Augsburg Publishing House, 426 E. Fifth St., Minneapolis, $1.50 and $3.50) captures the joy and reverent spirit of Christmas in art, literature, poetry and music.

Better Homes and Gardens "1965 CHRISTMAS IDEAS" (Meredith, $1.35) offers a variety of ornaments, wreaths, trees, gift wraps, mobiles, toys, bazaar gifts, recipes and creches to inspire the homemaker's creativity.

AN IMAGINATIVE account of the Holy Family's flight to Egypt after the Infant's birth at Bethlehem, the refuge they found in the desert, and events that led to their return to Galilee is given by Louis Untermeyer in "THE SECOND CHRISTMAS" (Hallmark Cards, distributed by Doubleday, $2.50).

GEORGE O'BRIEN, for many years news editor of The New York Times, edited a comprehensive new book on how America lives, "THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK OF INTERIOR DESIGN AND DECORATION" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, $15) He conducts a photographic tour of some of the most attractive and comfortable residences across the country from the east to the west coasts. Homes are not of the very rich; rather they are the homes—houses, apartments and vacation houses—of persons of average means with excellent taste. Incidentally, O'Brien thinks personal taste can be developed by any interested person. He discusses handling difficult spaces, arranging furniture and accessories, displaying art or book collections and color matching. The 240 pages contain 275 illustrations, 27 in full color.

HISTORY'S most fateful decades — the 1930s and 1940s—are retold by Bruce Bliven in "THE WORLD CHANGES" (Day, $6.50) through the lives of eight men who changed the modern world: Roosevelt, Churchill, Ghandi, Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini, Chiang Kai-Shek and Emperor Hirohito. By following the individual careers, Bliven separates the strands of the complex events—the most destructive war of all time, the deepest economic depression, the rise of the welfare state and the death of colonialism.

MUCH HAS been written about the "dirt" archaeologists who discovered the ruins, graves and other artifacts of ancient civilizations in Egypt, Mesopotamia, Central Asia and Mexico. After them came the scholar-adventurers looking for the written records of these civilizations.

"TESTAMENTS OF TIME, The Search for Lost Manuscripts and Records" by Leo Deuel (Knopf, $8.95) in a sense is the "archaeology of books." Deuel tells about the intrepid men who followed faint trails in strange places, discovered unknown or lost texts and then laboriously deciphered them. The story of the Dead Sea Scrolls is one of many.

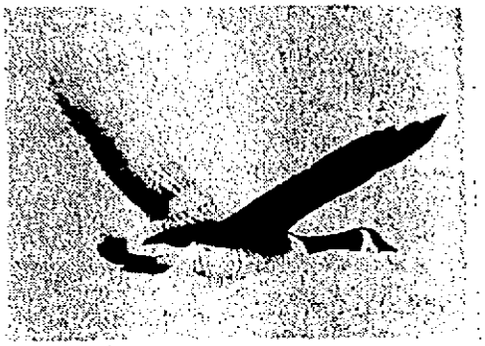

TWO WORLDS compete for the son of an immigrant in Peter Sourian's "THE GATE" (Harcourt, Brace and World, $5.75.) The Old World contends for Paul through his Armenian family, the New World through the sophistication of urban America. Paul's father is an unforgettable character — Sarkis, an architect, self-assured, forged in the toughness of a people long used to suffering and long the victim of cruelty.

Paul and his sister Grace have Sarkis' mercurial emotions, but not his toughness. Her problems are compounded by the demands for adjustment made by her marriage to an idealistic minister of Scandinavian stock.

Armenia colors every page of this at times sad, at times humorous fictional account of the emotional turmoil that has boiled for myriads of families in the American melting pot.

ENGLISH translations of three of the works of master storyteller I. J. Singer, classics in Jewish literature and the Yiddish theater, are being published by Harper & Row. If the acclaim accorded Singer's "Brothers Ashkenazi" is a criterion, the reissues should receive wide acceptance.

"YOSHE KALB" ($4.95), the true story of a saintlike Talmudic scholar whose blunder into bigamous scandal inflamed and divided pious Jewry of eastern Europe, is the first of the reprints. It is translated by Maurice Samuel and carries an introduction by the late author's renowned brother, I. B. Singer.

FROM DECEMBER through February the Canadian goose wings its way across California. It not only migrates to California (clever bird!) but also nests and winters here. Above, one of the 74 photographs in "THE GIANT CANADA GOOSE" by Harold C. Hanson (Southern Illinois University Press, $7.50).

Blueprint for Fun

By Virginia Clark

IT'S MAGIC! A scraggly old weed or a plain leaf can be turned into a beautiful blue picture in no time, and mothers can help their children have fun too. They can make magic prints with leaves and weeds, and perhaps incidentally learn about nature. Materials are inexpensive and even a small child can make the pictures easily. Those of the cub scout age will spend happy hours gathering nature materials, printing and developing their leaf art.

When you know how, this trick of photography is simple. Place a leaf on a white piece of blueprint paper which is held in place with a piece of window glass, hold in the bright sun several minutes, remove the paper, wash in a potash rinse and presto-chango, you have a picture of a dainty white leaf on a blue background.

Blueprinted leaves and flowers, framed with tape, provide an attractive wall decoration.

LIKE ALL well organized magicians, you must have everything ready before the show starts. Buy the print paper at a blueprint shop. It sells for 25 cents a yard which makes about a dozen or more sheets. At the same store purchase the necessary amount of potash for the rinse, at 10 cents a quarter pound. Put masking tape around the edge of a piece of glass approximately six by nine inches. Hinge the glass with tape to a cardboard the same size, using the same masking tape. Make several of these if you plan a group activity. Several hours before using the blueprint paper, reroll it the other way. It will be easier to handle. Keep out of the sun while cutting the blueprint paper into pieces slightly smaller than the glass. If you plan to let the children frame their pictures, cut cardboards to the right size; have photographer's tape, and glue-on picture hooks at hand. Now it's time for the children to gather their weeds, flowers and fern-like leaves. If they are young, one leaf may suffice, but if they're older, they could plan an arrangement of several leaves or weeds. Provide two pans of water (two rinses are necessary) and one of the orange colored potash solution. (Mix the latter, one tablespoon to a quart of water).

THE CHILDREN roll up their sleeves, fold back the hinged glass, place the light-blue-colored print paper on the cardboard and on it quickly arrange leaf or leaves. Put the glass down firmly and hold in bright sun, or until the blue color fades—about three minutes. Remove paper, rinse in clear water a second, then place in orange potash solution till it turns blue, about one minute. Wash off in the second water, and the magic picture is done! In addition to having fun with photography, children can learn about leaves, and this will be more meaningful if the adult helper is well informed. The children's section of the Public Library recommends "Leaves" by Bertha Morris Parker and "Discovering Design" by Marion Downer, as excellent books for background.

Finally, the children will have a great feeling of satisfaction if their pictures are hung. So when the prints are dry (dry between small turkish towels on flat surface) have the youngsters glue them to the same size cardboard, frame neatly as possible with photographer's tape, and fasten a picture hanger on the back.

Parents will be happy to have their walls decorated with a row of their child's attractive blooms in blueprint!

Intimate Mural to Fit Decor

By Steve Ellingson

MANY PERSONS think of murals only on a grand scale, requiring large rooms with large walls, but this is not true.

Murals can be intimate and in small limited areas should be of a size for enjoyment at close quarters. Breakfast nooks, bathrooms, hallways and all small rooms call for a mural of moderate proportions. The one pictured at left with Leona Irwin, of the CBS Red Skelton show, fits this category. It is three feet tall and 28 inches wide. Any amateur can paint it when the full size pattern is used. Just trace the pattern on the wall, then paint over the tracings.

The pattern clearly shows what colors go where and gives different color combinations to match mural with decor of a particular room. Directions are included with each pattern.

To obtain the full size Flower Bouquet pattern No. 317, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

THEY HAVE worked more than 65,000 volunteer service hours since the organization was formed in 1960.

The Belles are sponsored by the St. Mary's Hospital Guild and their red and white striped uniforms are a welcome sight around the Long Beach hospital where last year they put in a total of 6661 volunteer hours.

The St. Mary's youth group is now four years old. The Volunteens are sponsored by the Volunteens Committee which is composed of adult members of the hospital's volunteer auxiliary.

"If the hospital was sending out report cards, these kids would get straight 'A's' " says Ted Krec, director of public relations for Memorial Hospital.

"As it is all we can do is say thanks, from the bottom of our hearts."

The statement is echoed wholeheartedly by staff members of St. Mary's Hospital.

etched and scratched to help germination. In some cases, seeds are chilled in moist vermiculite for a few hours, then refrigerated at 33 to 35 degrees Fahrenheit. Time spent in the refrigerator depends on seed specie.

Good seeds do not occur regularly. Sometimes it takes several years for quality renewal. And good tree climbers are hard to come by, for the turnover is great. This may be due in part to the fact that other work during the rest of the year is not satisfying.

Bombs Over Hawaii

mines in downtown Honolulu. She wondered what she had done. Then she heard him shout:

"Get under cover! Don't you know we are being attacked?"

"I couldn't believe it," she recalls at her present-day home, 311 E. 44th St., Long Beach.

"I'd heard the bombs while I was still in the shower before leaving home, but like almost everyone else in Honolulu, I thought it was a Navy maneuver."

"I remember thinking that this must be the roughest maneuver they ever had."

She hurried to her office. From a top-floor window she could see the entire panorama of Pearl Harbor under attack. She worked for the Army Corps of Engineers and was scheduled to work Sunday.

The Rising Sun was clearly visible on the attacking planes as they swooped down to blast the ships lined up on "battleship row."

Her view of the battle came to an abrupt end when an Army antiaircraft shell looped over the city and exploded in the building across the street. At the time the engineers did not know the shell's source. They thought their headquarters was under attack because they had all the plans for military construction in the Pacific islands, including those as far away as Guam.

They fled taking with them the construction plans.

"We went down on the waterfront in the Hawaiian Tuna Packing Company's plant, Mrs. Carmines recalled. "The tuna pressure cookers, large enough for a man to walk upright in, made wonderful air raid shelters for us."

She spent the rest of the day making sandwiches for those detailed to dig foxholes. They then moved to Punahow School where she spent the first night after the attack typing orders for transport of the wounded and for graves for the dead —giving her a graphic picture of how much damage the attack had done.

Later in the month she was given the opportunity to return to the states. "But I felt I had lived through the worst and might as well stay around for the finish," she said.

FAR REMOVED from the scene of the Arizona burning, in the mess hall on Midway Island, Allan Hall was eating breakfast when the communications network blared:

"Japanese planes are bombing Pearl Harbor!"

He dropped his fork and ran to his position in the communications section of a gun battery and waited for the expected attack on Midway.

This is the way that Hall, now of 4581 W. 129th St., Hawthorne, recalled how he heard of the Pearl Harbor attack.

"We were ready," he said. "We had been on alert for a week and had changed the old ammunition in our ready magazines."

But the attack was delayed until after dark. They were finally hit by a Japanese cruiser and two destroyers.

"The cruiser had eight-inch guns. We couldn't come close to it," he said. "Then a destroyer got overbold. We ripped off his superstructure with our three-inchers. He turned west and ran into our five-inch guns."

After this they were harassed each afternoon by submarines that would surface in the sun and shell the island.

"They seemed to always catch us in the showers," he said.

THE ONLY news they got was pickup from censured commercial newscasts. They could not find out what had happened to Pearl Harbor, but did hear that Wake Island had fallen.

"We heard President Roosevelt's broadcast in which he said loss of Midway was expected."

There were 600 of them on Midway and Hall recalls that all 600 were in complete disagreement with their commander-in-chief. "We did not intend to lose the island."

They didn't. The Japanese push was halted by the historic battle of Midway. The first planes off the Japanese carriers came right over his gun position. They hit the hangar back of the guns. He rushed to help get the planes out of the burning hangar. The gooney birds kept getting in the way.

ALLAN HALL
Survivor of Midway

"You had to kick them out of your path. Then they would bite you like a bunch of geese."

Following the successful defense of Midway, Hall followed the Marine-Navy push through the Pacific for 52 months.

NOW, 24 years later, all four of these who know the day of infamy close up are comfortably settled in the Southland.

But they all have one thing in common—whether or not it was based on their Pearl Harbor experiences they don't know. But they all still work for the United States government — the U.S. Air Force.

And while they enjoy recalling the day of excitement in their lives they pray fervently that it will never happen again.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Antiviral Need Told

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

A NEW antibiotic, vivomycin, is effective against influenza virus in mice, British researchers report.

Research so far is only preliminary.

Meanwhile, Polish scientists have found that an old drug, p-NBP, inhibits the activity of a certain virus in animal experiments.

Research pertaining to the compounds is reported in Antibiotic News and in the English scientific magazine Nature.

There's a big push in science now to develop drugs that will be as effective against viruses as antibiotics are against bacteria, fungi and other micro-organisms. At present there are only a very few effective antiviral drugs used in clinical medicine, and these are used only for limited situations. What is needed is a drug that will knock out a wide range of viruses in the human system.

CHRONIC pulmonary disease now constitutes the greatest single medical problem in northern Europe, says famed researcher Dr. Rene J. Dubos.

Meanwhile, he says, pulmonary ailments are increasing at "an alarming rate" in North America and will likely spread to all areas undergoing industrialization.

THE BRITISH Ministry of Aviation has warned pilots of the hazards of certain medications.

For instance, says the ministry, tranquilizers and sedative drugs depress fear, which is an effective alerting system. Such drugs have contributed to fatal aircraft accidents, says the ministry's report.

Pilots are urged not to take any medicines before or during flight unless they are familiar with the effects of the medications on themselves.

CALIFORNIA State Health Department is concerned about the bad habits of automobile seat-belt owners.

A study conducted by the department's Family Research Center discloses:

Although about two-thirds of belt owners wear them regularly for highway driving, only half this number use them regularly around town.

This failure to use seat belts regularly for local driving is alarming because of the following fact:

Two-thirds of all auto fatalities occur within 25 miles of home. And more than half of the accidents causing injury or death involve speeds of less than 40 miles an hour.

A NEW pamphlet dealing with allergies may be had for the asking. Send a business-size envelope, stamped and self-addressed, to: Allergy Foundation of America, P. O. Box 1005, New York, N. Y. 10017. Ask for: "Asthma, Hay Fever and Other Allergies."

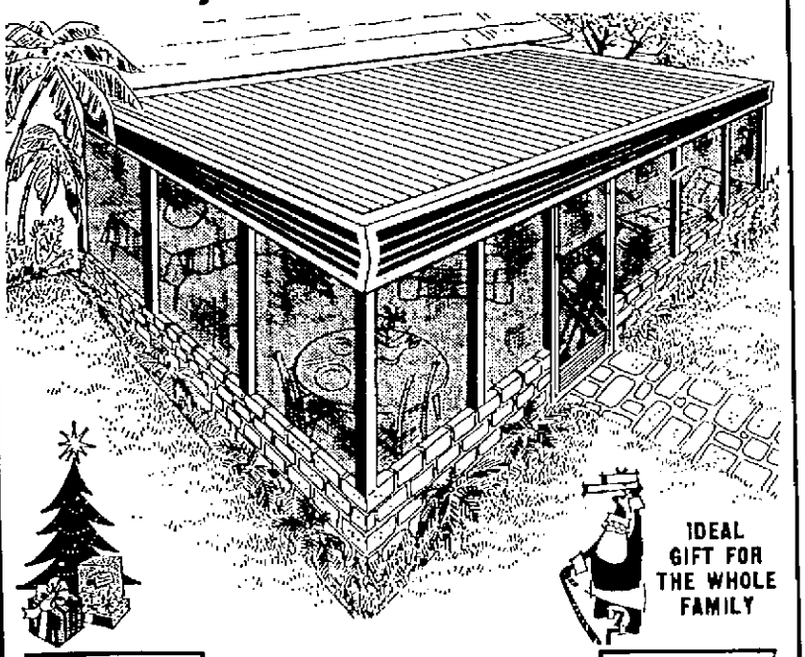

WOMEN appear to be more susceptible to canker sores than men, and this common infection seems to run in families, the U. S. Public Health Service reports.

An estimated 20 to 50% of the U. S. population is afflicted at some time during their lives with canker sores—painful recurrent ulcerations of the mouth.

A new publication, prepared by the National Institute of Dental Research, discusses four types of oral ulcerations. Single copies are free. Write: Public Health Service, Washington, D. C. 20201. Ask for: "Canker Sores and Other Oral Ulcerations" (PHS Publication No. 1329).

Susan and the School With a Heart

By Norman Perkins and Jennie Rotherham

Because of a school with a heart, Susan Kading is learning achievements toward a useful life.

"GOD gave me His love and kindness when He brought me to Carl Harvey School," so, the young redhead types on the electric typewriter. "Without this chance, I would be totally helpless and unable to push my own wheelchair or walk on my crutches."

Eighteen-year-old Susan Kading, and 115 other physically handicapped persons attend Carl Harvey School, 1325 E. 4th St., Santa Ana.

Each morning, promptly at 9, Susan arrives on a bus provided by Taylor School Bus Service. She is lowered to her wheelchair in a special hydraulic lift in the rear of the bus, while others go carefully down the steps with crutches and braces, or are carried to wheelchairs.

They are looking forward to another day of learning, exercising and fun. Susan takes herself to class, pushing the chair with her right arm and giving a little more power with her left foot. She even manages to go up a 35 degree ramp.

SOMETIME during the day, she goes to physical therapy. The present school director, Dr. Ray Moudy, tells the importance of the therapy program. "We must remember what the cerebral palsy child would be like without treatment or care. Two-thirds of our pupils have this handicap. Susan was almost completely helpless, but now she moves about in her chair, has learned to stand, and then walk on crutches."

As he continues, a serious expression comes over his face. "Cerebral palsy is not a disease," he says, "but results from an accident before, during, or after birth. It cannot be inherited. Certain areas of the brain are damaged, causing paralysis, poor coordination, and many muscular difficulties. The condition cannot be cured, but it can be improved, just as can our other disabilities like muscular dystrophy and spina bifida."

Susan's fighting determination to succeed has carried her through many trying times. About five years ago, she underwent surgery to lengthen the ligaments in the back of her legs, with the hope it might enable her to stand. For six months, her legs remained stationary in two full-length plaster casts. She had to endure the frequent pain of muscle spasms.

AFTER THIS, she was fitted with heavy steel correction braces. She began standing in a standing table, a large wooden device used by many of the Carl Harvey students. It surrounds the individual, giving essential security against falling.

Finally, the day came when Susan graduated to a cerebral palsy walker. Hours were spent, endeavoring to learn the fundamentals of taking steps one by one.

Something much better followed this. Susan rose up on special crutches. Except for physical therapist Ruth B. Smith and Susan, no one thought this ever possible. "When I know I can do something," Susan spells on her talking board, "it can be done."

This talking board is the young girl's communication line. Because of her severe speech difficulty, she spells out words or points to one of the words in the lists of commonly used verbs, adjectives, and conjunctions. Examples are "and", "to", "go", "from", and so on. Speech therapist Barbara McDonald devised this rectangular cardboard and its valuable printed contents. It has meant a new life for Susan. She carries on quite involved conversations with her classmates, neighborhood friends, church group, and the personnel at Disneyland. She is an avid fan of the Magic Kingdom.

OCCUPATIONAL therapy is also provided for Susan and her classmates. Susan has been taught to feed herself and perform many of the usual activities of daily life.

To back up therapists and teachers are the clinic doctors, an orthopedist and pediatrician. All children and their parents are seen in clinic once or twice a year, according to individual needs. They work together to decide the best way to carry on the treatment and training at home.

Carl Harvey School is a result of a project begun in 1938. Mrs. Harvey Sigrid Brown taught a small group of cerebral palsy children in a room in John Muir Elementary School, Santa Ana. The woman had barely any money for the project and spent hours after school, making her own teaching aids, games, charts and books.

In 1945, Mrs. Marjorie Dudley became principal of John Muir. She immediately began a campaign for better equipment. Then Carl Harvey, the new assistant superintendent of schools, was persuaded to attend some meetings in Los Angeles, concerning information on cerebral palsy. He became converted to the cause and put the matter of lack of funds before the school board. They appropriated $9,200 to be used that year. That summer, Harvey died, unexpectedly, after an operation. Plans for a new school came to a standstill.

Then, in 1947, the school board asked Mrs. Dudley to sketch a plan. Donations poured in. New bungalows were opened in May of that same year.

THESE BUNGALOWS are still in use, containing a primary and special class. Susan attends classes in the newer annexation. In the morning, Mrs. Geri Keys instructs her and others in typing mathematics and other subjects.

In the afternoon Susan goes to Brown's workshop. Here, the projects are varied. At Christmas, the young people make glittering corsages.

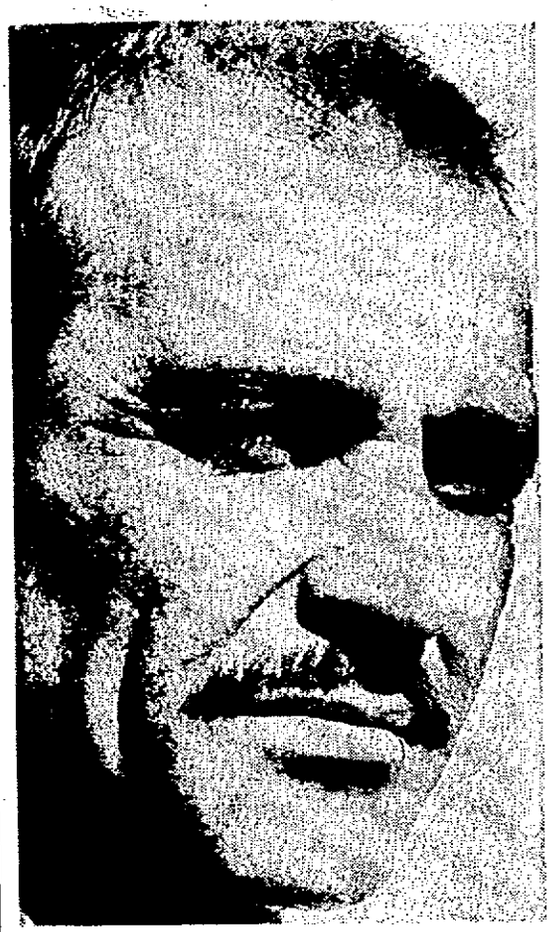

Each teacher has an invaluable assistant to help see to everyone's wants and needs. Three of these assistants are Mrs. Ruth Luman, Mrs. Edna Harris, and Mrs. Gertrude Kuikahi.

Susan is one of the lucky ones, for Carl Harvey has a long waiting list. Cost is kept at a minimum of about $1,800 per year, with most of the special equipment being purchased with donations from service organizations and individuals.

The attitude toward the handicapped has changed, thanks to Susan and others like her. They are accepted, by most, as being fully capable of making a decent life for themselves. They go to parties and church activities, have basketball teams, and have even devised their own way of dancing. Wheel chair dancing and listening to music are two of Susan's favorite activities.

The school works for constant improvement. The goal is enormous: to bring the handicapped to full capacity of their potential abilities. Carl Harvey is a school with a heart, filling Susan's heart with hope for the future.

007 Deserts for 'The Hill'

Sean Connery does an abrupt departure from his usual parts for gruelling role in "The Hill."

IS THAT Sean Connery on the screen? THE Sean Connery? A prisoner? Needing a shave?

Yes, that's THE Sean Connery, unshaven, a prisoner, troublemaker, maybe even a coward.

In "The Hill," an MGM-Seven Arts Presentation, the handsome broad-shouldered Scotsman makes an abrupt and striking departure from his dashing James Bond characterization. He stars as British Warrant Officer Joe Roberts, who has been court martialed for striking a commissioned officer for alleged cowardice under fire.

And every bit as dramatic as the character change for Sean Connery is the change in setting. Gone are the gambling tables, the posh hotels and the posher women. Gone is the out-of-this-world science fiction derringdo.

IN "THE HILL," produced by Kenneth Hyman and directed by the talented Sidney Lumet, the scene is a grimly realistic British military stockade in North Africa during Warld War II, where the chief torture instrument is a man-made hill of sand, 35-feet high, shooting upward at a 60-degree angle.

With full packs, under a blazing sun, the prisoners must climb the hill, again and again, on the double. And from the start, Joe Roberts is singled out for special attention.

If your knowledge of Sean Connery, BTH (Before "The Hill"), begins and ends with the Bond series, you'll be surprised to learn that the rugged 6-foot-2-inch 190-pounder began his theatrical career as a chorus boy in a touring British company of the musical "South Pacific."

AND BEFORE that — another surprise in view of his cinematic enlistment in Her Majesty's Secret Service as 007 and in the British army in "The Hill" — he actually served in the Navy for three years, on battleships, an aircraft carrier and at gunnery school.

Then came the odd jobs without which no actor's biography would be complete: cement mixer, bricklayer, steel bender, coffin polisher, lifeguard.

All the muscle-building occupations came in handy for "The Hill," with its gruelling action filmed on location in the blazing 115-degree heat of a sandy wasteland near the southern Spanish port of Almeria.

In the first four days of shooting, Connery and three other leading actors were injured. While double-timing up "the hill" with a 65-pound pack on his back, Connery severely pulled a leg muscle, and spent the rest of the day in a chair, with his thigh strapped.

ADD TO THIS a bad case of sunburned legs—the British army wears shorts, 4 inches above the knee, in warm climates. The star, calling it "the worst attack of sunburn" he'd ever had, said ruefully, "If you've ever had sunburn behind the knees, you'll know what I mean!"

None of this could ever happen to 007, of course, but then Warrant Officer Joe Roberts, of "The Hill," is a totally different—but in his way, equally memorable—character. Which is just what Sean Connery, determined not to be eclipsed by James Bond, wants.

60 Million Years to Make a Park

By Bill Stephens

L.A. County Parks & Recreation Dept. Photo

Trail, lower right, is one of many that take weekend visitors into "Devil's Punchbowl."

WHEN Nature sets out to make herself a masterpiece, it sometimes takes her 60 million years.

But when she's finished, as in the case of the Devil's Punchbowl in the Angeles National Forest, she can even outdo herself.

Families looking for unusual places to visit on weekends might drive a lot farther than the 75 miles from Los Angeles Civic Center to the Punchbowl to find something which equals this natural outdoor wonder, but it's not likely they'll find anything to surpass it.

This deep Grand Canyon-like depression in the Angeles National Forest, located in a 1,270-acre nature reservation park operated by the County Parks and Recreation Department, has much to delight, and more to amaze, the casual weekend spectator.

TRIALS WINDING down into the Punchbowl take visitors past towering rocks pushed hundreds of feet into the air by gigantic forces exerted by the nearby San Andreas earthquake fault, which actually passes through the park.

The San Andreas Fault, which extends from San Francisco to the Gulf of California, can be recognized by the great "earthquake crack" apparent in the area. The crack resulted from the Fort Tejon quake of 1857, which is said to have dwarfed the San Francisco cataclysm by comparison.

This fault has contributed to the character of the Punchbowl over the past 63 million years, compressing, folding, breaking, faulting and uplifting rocks until they stand in a topsy-turvey, awe-inspiring fashion.

REMAINS of prehistoric animals are still being identified in the Punchbowl, including recent discoveries of Miocene Age (13-25 million years B.C.) creatures such as a three-toed horse, a primitive camel and an ancient skunk-like animal.

"Waterfalls and creeks, a wide variety of trees and vegetation, and most of all —an unearthy silence — in the park infect every visitor with a profound revery," says Supervisor Warren M. Dorn.

A picnic area at the lip of the Punchbowl offers the visiting family with a chance to lunch in the shade of the San Garbriel Mountains. Cooking stoves are being thoughtfully installed for the convenience of nature habitues.

For all its splendor, the Punchbowl does have drawbacks. It's big enough for hikers to get lost there, and some do. County Parks officials recommend visitors stick to the trails to avoid the unpleasant situation of getting lost overnight — many a night there are subfreezing temperatures in the area.

AS STATED, the Punchbowl is a nature reservation. Nature took a long time to create her masterpiece, and County Parks and Angeles National Forest people are determined to keep it the way it is. If visitors take the same point of view, weekenders will find it looking just the way it does now, 30,000 years from now.

Weekenders of this century can reach the Punchbowl in Antelope Valley by driving north on the San Diego or Santa Ana Freeway to the Golden State Freeway, north to Highway 6, north to Highway 138, east to 131st Street-East (Pearblossom), South to Tumblewood Road, and left on Tumblewood Road to the Punchbowl parking lot.

Recipe of the Week

CASSEROLE cooking has many advantages and a casserole recipe wins this week's $5 prize for Gail V. Medick, 259½ Grand Ave., Long Beach 90803. The recipe:

Macaroni, Kidney Bean Casserole

1 De Luxe macaroni dinner
1 lg. can red kidney beans, undrained
1 lg. can ment sauce
1 lg. can mushroom gravy
1 onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tblsp. cooking oil
2 lbs. ground round

Prepare macaroni dinner as directed on package and place in greased casserole. Sautee onion and green pepper then add meat and brown in the 2 tablespoons of cooking oil. Combine the macaroni dinner, kidney beans, 2 sauces, and meat mixture. Mix well and bake in 350° oven for 1 hour; stirring twice. Serves 8.

French Dressing
Chocolate Mousse

Twin Chickens l'Orange

2 whole broiler-fryer chickens
1 tsp. salt, divided
6 Florida oranges, divided
3 sprigs of tarragon, divided
1 garlic clove, sliced in half
4 tblsp. sugar
¼ cup red wine vinegar
2 cups chicken stock
4 peppercorns
1 tblsp. cornstarch
Watercress

Sprinkle cavity of each chicken with ½ teaspoon salt. Hook wing tips into back. Remove peel of 1 orange with vegetable peeler. Cut peel into long strips and reserve for sauce. Squeeze juice from this and 3 other oranges and reserve juice for sauce. Cut 2 of the squeezed oranges into small chunks. Fill body cavities with orange chunks and one sprig of tarragon each. Tie legs together with strings, then tie legs and tail together. Rub each chicken with garlic clove. Place chickens in shallow open roasting pan. Roast in 375° F. oven 30 minutes per pound.

Meanwhile, prepare sauce. Stir sugar and vinegar together in saucepan; bring to boiling, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Reduce heat and simmer about 5 minutes or until mixture thickens slightly. Add stock, remaining sprig of tarragon, peppercorns and salt to taste. Bring to boil; let simmer about 10 minutes. Add reserved orange juice. Strain sauce into bowl; add reserved orange peel. Pour sauce over chickens during the last ½ hour of roasting, basting frequently. Remove chickens from pan onto heated serving platter; remove cavity filling. Stir a little water into cornstarch and stir mixture into orange sauce in pan. Heat sauce to boiling, stirring until smooth, clear and thickened. Garnish with slices of remaining 2 orange and watercress. YIELD: 8 servings.

Menu II

Orange Glazed Chicken

1 can (6 ozs.) Florida orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
¼ cup water
2 tblsp. soy sauce
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. salt
1 garlic clove, crushed
2 tblsp. slivered candied ginger
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces

Combine undiluted orange concentrate, water, soy sauce, pepper, salt, garlic clove and candied ginger. Pour over chicken pieces in shallow dish, let marinate in refrigerator about 3 hours or overnight, turning occasionally. Remove chicken from orange sauce and place in baking pan. Bake in 375° F. oven, brushing frequently with orange sauce until tender, about 45 minutes. If desired, heat any leftover orange sauce and serve hot with chicken. YIELD: 4 servings.

Make Your Own Pinata

The devil himself would enjoy taking a whack at this rakish-looking item.

Bag, stuffed with good things and shaped like pirate, makes a pinata.

By Betty Lois Eckgren

A POPULAR import from Mexico, the pinata adds merriment to a Christmas party. Often it is an earthenware jug filled with nuts and candy, raised and lowered on a rope while blindfolded contestants take turns whacking at it with a stick until it crashes to the floor, spilling good things to eat on all sides.

But it need not be earthenware, which packs a wallop if it swings into the blindfolded whacker or unwary spectator. Safer pinatas can be made out of strong paper bags, crepe or tissue paper, and a few simple classroom or household supplies.

It's easy to make a pinata:

1. SELECT a sturdy paper bag with a bottom approximately 6 inches x 8 inches. If you want an especially strong pinata, place one bag inside another.

2. Fill bag (bags) about half full of hard-shelled nuts and wrapped candy, which make a neat and sanitary cascade when the pinata spills its load.

3. Tie the bag closed with strong cord, allowing enough cord so that the ends can make a two or three-foot loop and join again in a strong knot above the top of the bag, for suspending the pinata.

4. Most bags are divided into two parts: the big heavy base (containing the goodies) and a smaller bulge to form a head. Stuff the upper part (parts) with wadded newspaper and tie bag tightly above stuffing. Folded strips of additional newspaper may need to be tied around the outside to obtain desired shape. If string doesn't hold paper in place adequately, use staples, brads, or curved needle and thread.

5. SUSPEND pinata from looped cord to determine center of gravity. Cord may have to be adjusted for better balance if the bag is to be held on its side.

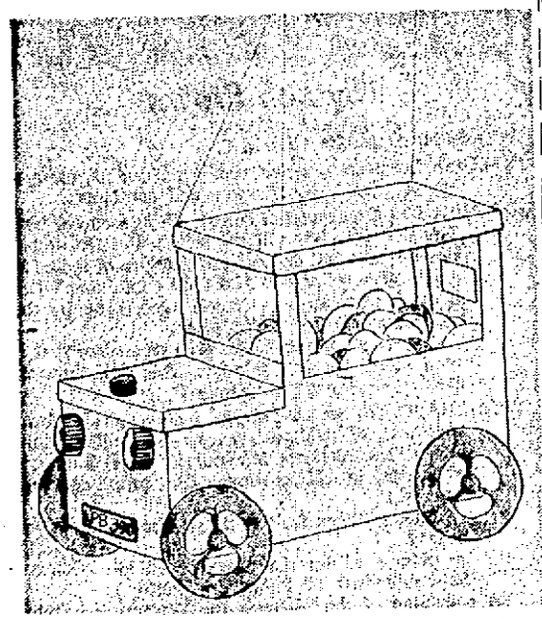

6. Now that the basic shape is right, and proper balance obtained, cover the surface of the pinata with a layer of appropriately colored tissue or crepe paper, pasted down with any soft, abundant paste (flour and water mixture is excellent). The color of the bag can be allied to the theme. The natural tan of the paper bag is a good skin color for a pirate figure.

7. Cut long strips of crepe or tissue paper about three inches wide, fold lengthwise, and fringe with a scissors. These will make the basic covering for such designs as a rooster, turkey, owls, or devil.

8. Rest the pinata upside down and paste strips of fringe around it, beginning at the bottom of the sack and working toward the top (downwards), with fringe hanging down. When dry, turn pinata right side up, and fringe will curl downward to afford a fluffy, feathery effect.

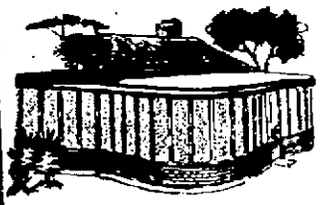

Details vary with each pinata. A devil pinata's horns and collar are made of aluminum foil. A pirate's eye, eye patch, mustache, lips, hair and beard are fashioned from construction paper.

An antique car pinata is made from a shoe box swung from four strings laced together through the bottom of the box and reinforced by plastic stripping stapled along the sides of the car where the string is. Red construction paper covers the back of the car and upper sides. Toy wheels, film reels, cellophane tape cans, or jar lids may be used for wheels. The headlights are tops from plastic squeeze bottles. The license is an identification tag made by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Candy and nuts are stuffed under the hood and seats. The seats are folded cardboard stapled or stitched into position. A car pinata permits of endless elaboration, but you would do well to remember its inevitable end and allot the time and effort accordingly.

Shoe box, fashioned into antique car form and filled with goodies, makes interesting pinata.

PET PARADE

Interest in Specialties

By Eleanor Avery Price

MISCELLANEOUS classes at dog shows provide additional interest to the standard activities, featuring mostly Akitas and Shih Tzus.

The Akita has had numerous names. He has been referred to as Japanese deerhound, Shika Inu, Japanese spitz, among others. And there is some confusion as to his weight. Most of the dogs we see must weigh close to 100 pounds, which is large. Yet in an older English book it reads the Akita weighs about 50 pounds. The Akita is supposed to be the standard representative of three Spitz varieties of Japanese dogs. The three are called Large Nippon Inu, the Medium Nippon Inu, and the Small Nippon Inu. If the Akita actually is the medium, it would be interesting to see the large.

IN ANY EVENT, the Akita is not a common breed because it was on the verge of extinction from the end of the last century up until 1928 when a group of fanciers led by Hiroshi Saito and Ichiro Hata carefully fostered the breed and brought it to the attention of the public. The society was called Nippon Inu Hozonkai.

Centuries ago, the Japanese shooting men and woodsmen took the Akita with them into back country when hunting deer, sable, wild boar, and bear. The breed had an excellent scenting nose, so he served as pointer, setter, and retriever. Since his appearance resembles northern sled dogs, and because he can work like one, serve suitably as a police and army dog, and guard his home extremely well, his present-day fanciers are striving to have him recognized by the American Kennel Club as a working dog. This big moment should not be far off. He was imported from Japan into England in 1937, and undoubtedly would have been well established in America before now had not the Second World War affected his importation from the Orient. It is fortunate that returning American servicemen were able to bring fine progeny of British breeding stock to our country.

Orange County Shorthair Cat Club has scheduled a show Dec. 11-12 at the Fairgrounds, Costa Mesa.

Handsome Akita, property of Anita Powell of 1723 Canal Ave., poses with a pretty model.

Stereo Bar

IN THE "Pilot Room" of the home of Mr. H. G. Appleton, 25 Laguna Place, there is a built-in bar with stereo beneath that is as attractive as it is functional. The bar is lined with black wallpaper featuring dozens of cocktail recipes as the design. Glass shelves hold an assortment of rare and treasured (and usable) glasses. Necessary bar equipment is on the wide bar shelf below. Above, indirect lighting adds its own decorative effect. Inner sides of the doors reveal a display of photos and memoirs of the owner's many world tours. Below the bar, doors open to show a fine stereo ready for instant use.—STELLA GEORGE.

Science for You

By Bob Brown

PROBLEM: A test for vitamin C.

NEEDED: Cornstarch, water, tincture of iodine, orange or lemon juice, a heat source and containers.

DO THIS: Boil a teaspoon of cornstarch in a cup of water. This dissolves some of the starch. Put ten drops of this mixture and one drop of tincture of iodine into half a glass of water. Add food containing vitamin C, such as orange or lemon juice, drop by drop, until the blue color disappears.

Try fresh orange juice, then test some that has been boiled for five minutes. This will show that cooking destroys the vitamin C.

WHAT HAPPENS: Starch and free iodine unite to form a substance of unknown composition, called starch-iodide. This delicate blue-purple color is removed by heating or adding enough fruit juices containing vitamin C.

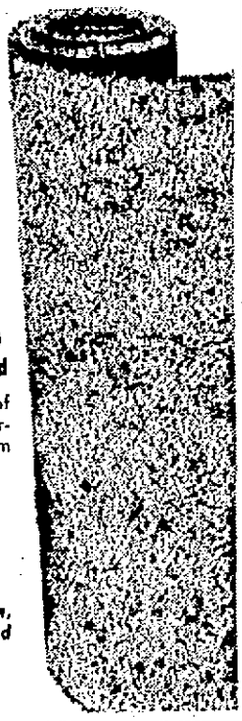

Boiling citrus fruit destroys vitamin C, at least in part.

(Suggested by the State of Illinois, Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction.)

A collection of the "Science for You" experiments is in book form and sold in better bookstores. It is called Science Circus.

The Soil's the Thing With Roses

By Joe Littlefield

American Heritage, a 1966 AARS winner, like all roses, does best if planted in good soil.

IT'S THE SOIL "down under" more than what you put on top of the soil that counts most in getting roses away to a good start and a long life of high productivity.

Prepare the soil in advance of planting, and you give a new rose a fine send-off, because the organic matter you work into the soil "leavens" it. This stimulates beneficial bacterial action, invites angle worms to work there, holds the moisture longer and aids in breakdown of fertilizers so that the roots benefit from all of it.

THERE are two schools of thought pertaining to rose soil preparation. Some firmly believe it is best to prepare the whole flower bed, others just as sincerely believe in preparing the individual large holes for the roses. Personally, I prepare the holes, later mulch the whole rose bed surface, and have good results. The consensus probably would be individual for rose hole soil preparation.

Then, too, there are a number of organic type materials one may use. Premoistened peat moss, leaf mold, well rotted manure, or compost soil are most used. The prepared mulches are better balanced.

GENERALLY, one-third to one-half of the planting hole is filled with organic material, a heaping cupful of bone meal and a handful of soil sulphur are scattered over the material, the rest of the hole is filled with soil. The materials and soil are dug over together to mix it, then slowly and thoroughly soaked down. A week later, the soil should be dug over again, then soaked. The soil is ready for planting several weeks later.

Modern, improved roses yield better, larger, more fragrant blooms. AMERICAN HERITAGE, 1966 All-America Rose Selections Award winner, is an attractive ivory yellow with suffusions of scarlet and vermillion, throughout the perfect full-flowered blossoms.

—Burpee Seeds Photo

Whirls of Color

GARDNERS can plant a carousel of color with the new Whirligig zinnias. The brilliant whirls of color that typify these large-flowered, fully double blooms are borne in a Joseph's-coat of bicolor and combinations. The rich carmine inherent in Whirligig combines and contrasts with gold, soft pink, white and scarlet and some exotic and startling combinations with gold, scarlet and carmine all appearing in the same flower. The flowers grow up to 4½ in. across and are borne on plants 20 in. tall, reaching a spread of 24 to 30 in. Whirligig is a sparkling subject for gay bouquets and for intricate and unusual arrangements and effects.

Most of us have a few house plants and they are a real source of enjoyment if we cannot work in our outdoor gardens because of the weather.

In planting new or repotting old plants, it is best to sterilize your pots and use all new planting mix.

There are so many good planting mixes on the market these days that it is usually cheaper to buy one or two bags already prepared than to buy the many ingredients to make your own.

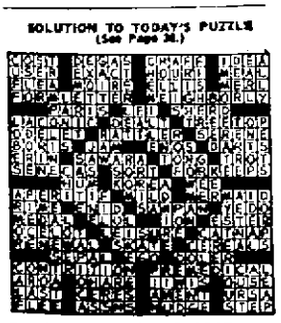

Do not over water your indoor plants and do feed them monthly with an all fish fettilizer.

About twice yearly I like to give them a feeding of a fertilizer with chelated trace elements.

By using these precautions you should have good healthy plants.

There are two sprays on the market that are very good for your house plants—one is a spray especially made for the bugs that attack tender leaves and the other is a Kelthane produce for mites.

Garden Clubs

Christmas decorations of her own creation will be shown by Alice Martin at a meeting of Garden Grove Branch, California National Fuchsia Society, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Iva Meairs School, Newland Street and Trask Avenue, Garden Grove. A plant table will be a feature. Public invited.

Long Beach Fuchsia Society will have a Christmas program and installation of officers Thursday evening at Machinist Hall, 728 Elm Ave. A potluck ham dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

"Orchid Odyssey in the Americas," a travel talk illustrated with color slides, will be given by Jack A. Fowlie at 7:30 p.m. Thursday before members of the Southern California Horticultural Institute in Plummer Park, Hollywood.

Wheel Control

One of the basic fundamentals of sound driving is keeping two hands on the wheel. This necessitates a firm grasp—hands placed at "10 and 2 o'clock" or "9 and 3 o'clock" on the steering wheel. This allows a driver to turn quickly to the right or left as unexpected situations arise.

Remember, if you reach to the right there is an automatic pulling downward by the left hand so that the car is steered, sometimes drastically, to the left. Use your head and your hands to drive safely.

Stay Alert

At least five cars in addition to your own concern you while driving. They are the one ahead, the one behind, the one approaching in the opposite lane, the one ready to enter from a side street, and the one parked at the curb.

You also must watch cars moving parallel with yours. Be prepared for any one of them to do anything without warning.

Think First

Before you start to aim your camera, think of what you want the picture to say. Then, take several shots of the subject from various angles. Employ archways, leaves or branches as a frame for the picture. By using some imagination, the most standard, often-snapped scenes can be made into prize winning photos.

Camera Tip

Here's a tip for making photos of houses and tall buidings: Shoot them head-on, holding your camera level. If you tip the camera up, the lines will converge near the top, giving the structures a distorted, pyramid shape. Hold the camera level, with the edges of the buildings lined up with the edges of the viewfinder.

Garden Tips

Garden tips for the week . . . A native ground cover that can be planted now is the attractive, pink-flowered Point Reyes Manzanita. Leather leaves, shiny red stems and a spreading, prostrate habit make it an appropriate all-year ornament for hillsides or informal gardens. Manzanitas are slow to start, but once established will survive under the most adverse conditions.

Continue garden cleanup. Rake and dispose of leaves; spray as necessary. Cut back spent perennials and remove annuals that have finished blooming. Move tender potted plants to a protected spot to avoid damage from frost.

If you're a camellia connoisseur (or if you're just beginning to grow them) this is the time to collect them. C.A.N. nurseries are receiving large shipments of camellias in bud and in bloom, among which you can find scarce varieties and new introductions. Give them good drainage, rich acid soil and filtered shade.

Deciduous magnolias should be planted now. The Star magnolia is a small tree with starry white, sweetly scented flowers in early spring. All magnolias thrive in rich, moist, well-drained soil.

This is an ideal time to feed lawns. Dress bulb beds with bone meal and water in. Add manure and other organic matter to your soil at this time to replenish nutrients and help it stand up to the winter rains without packing.

A Bit of Magic in a Den

ONE WALL of the den in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Gordon, 11622 Martha Ann Drive, is painted bright red. Double doors open to reveal an exciting array of treasured knickknacks with the television set placed in the center shelf. The doors are particularly interesting because Mrs. Gordon cut two ovals out of each door and then lined the ovals with sheer black chiffon. The effect is dramatic and eye-catching, and the area is as functional as it is attractive.—STELLA GEORGE.

lect term meaning "King," refers to the forefather's annual participation in a village pageant. After decades of enacting the part of a king in the ceremony, the ancestor assumed this title as his name. The Koenig armorial shield is red, emblazoned with a large blue "X"-shaped cross.

MISS RULE: Please inform us on WHORLOW.—M. W., Long Beach; P. W., Santa Monica.

WHORLOW is a variation of the English town-name Wardlow in Derbyshire. In the 1100s Wardlow, then "Weard-hloew," referred to "place of the lookout hill."

MISS RULE: What is the source of PALOMBA.—L. P., Lakewood.

PALOMBA is a form of the Spanish surname Palombar designating "At the dove-cote" where the family home was located in a village. The Palombar armorial shield is blue, decorated with a silver dove.

MISS RULE: Please give genealogy data on JUDD.—R. J., S. B., Long Beach; J. J., Santa Ana; L. J., Garden Grove.

JUDD was adopted as a surname in honor of Saint Jude, one of the Twelve Apostles. Jude deciphers as "man who is praised." Judde and Judd were the early English forms of Jude. One Jude ancestor was Lord Mayor of London in 1550. The Judd armorial shield is red, decorated with three silver boar-heads.

BELMONT SHORE (NAPLES)

A COUPLE of months ago, John T. Webster — thinking man's proprietor of the Corsican Room, 5430 E. Second St. — decided to prove something to the Long Beach area's dining out public.

"People have been conditioned," he said, "into believing a couple can no longer dine in a top-class restaurant for less than $5. But that conclusion is completely false."

To support his statement, Webster began emphasizing an unusual entree on his epicurean menu. It is Icelandic catfish, which the Corsican's chefs prepare in batter and pan-fry. Sweeter in flavor than bass, the fish is rich, boneless, flaky—and utterly delectable. The restaurant charges merely $2.35 for this delicacy and serves it in elegant surroundings on linen-covered tables. Moreover, the entree is accompanied by a host of side dishes, making it a truly remarkable dining out value. Included are chilled relishes, soup du jour, superb large salad, warm dark and light sourdough breads, beverage and dessert of ice cream or sherbet.

Webster, former president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, has been rewarded by seeing his theory embraced enthusiastically by scads of discriminating diners. The catfish, caught in icy waters off Iceland, has become one of the Corsican's most popular entrees. A beautiful establishment, Mediterranean in decor, the restaurant is also noted for the quality of its luscious, charcoal-broiled steaks, from $4.35, and its gourmet prime rib au jus, $4.50.

Now open seven days a week, the Corsican serves dinners from about 4:30 p.m. on. Composer-pianist Franz Steininger, a personable Viennese with a great following of fans, entertains in the lounge.

Q. Can you tell me how much money our government gives to Cuban refugees arriving in Miami?—F.T.L., Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Each family is given $100 per month until relocated. Relocation costs are also paid for by the U.S.A.

Q. Mme. Hervé Alphand, the great hostess, wife of the former French ambassador, who was her husband before Alphand? —D. E., Washington, D.C.

A. She was first married to Etienne Bunau-Varilla, son of the owner of the famous Paris wartime newspaper, Le Matin.

Q. How many children does Jayne Mansfield have?—Judy Johnson, Frankfort, Ky.

A. Five children.

Q. I understand that birth control pills are on sale in drugstores within 500 yards of the Vatican in Rome. Is this so?—L. T. Prince, Boston, Mass.

A. Yes, but only on prescription.

Q. How much did Vince Edwards' quickie marriage cost him?—G. T. Lombardi, Cleveland, Ohio.

A. Edwards of Ben Casey fame was married to Kathy Kersh in June 1965, separated in August the same year. The court ordered him to pay $1500 alimony per month for one year, $300 per month child support and medical costs for the expected baby.

Q. I know singer Barbra Streisand is very anxious for her husband Elliott Gould to make it big as an actor. How much did she invest in the flop play, Drat the Cat? —Ida Gold, Newark, N.J.

A. $100,000.

Q. Who said: "A friend in power is a friend lost."?—George Findley, Moline, Ill.

A. Henry Brooks Adams.

Q. I understand the leading writer in France at the moment is a female ex-convict named Albertine Sarrazin, that she will run off with all the literary awards for 1965. Can you tell us anything about her? —Diane Lefcourt, Cambridge, Mass.

A. Albertine Sarrazin, was born in Algeria and abandoned. Her stepparents brought her to France in 1947. She was raised in the south, went to Paris as an adolescent, supported herself by prostitution. She helped masterminid an armed holdup, was caught, sentenced to jail for eight years, married a fellow convict in prison in 1959, then began to write autobiographical novels, two of which now head the best-seller list in France.

Q. Is it true that Evita Perón, late wife of the Argentine dictator, once ran a brothel in Buenos Aires, kept a card catalog on all officer customers? Is it true that Perón's present wife, Maria Martinez, was a cabaret dancer in Panama before Perón picked her up?—Carlos Lopez, Miami Beach, Fla.

A. Evita Perón's reputation in Buenos Aires was not of the highest. The present Señora Perón (above) is a former cabaret dancer.

Q. How old are Frankie Avalon and Fabian? How has each managed to stay out of the army?—Tony Fiore, Jersey City, N.J.

A. Avalon is 25. Fabian is 22. Avalon is married and a father. Fabian has been deferred, expects a call-up in the near future.

Q. I would like to know who is making Anne Ford's wedding dress. She's Henry Ford's daughter and will marry Giancarlo Uzielli on December 28th. Also are these two Roman Catholics?—Francis Ingels, Chicago, Ill.

A. The wedding gown will be made by Oscar de La Renta. Anne Ford and her husband-to-be are both Roman Catholics.

Q. All the children of Franklin D. and Eleanor Roosevelt, all five of them have been divorced. Is this because their parents arranged all their marriages?—V. T., Miami, Fla.

A. Franklin D. and Eleanor Roosevelt arranged none of their children's marriages.

Q. What is the full name of the leader of Herman's Hermits? How old? Where does he come from?—Ann Rafferty, Piedmont, Calif.

A. His full name is Peter Denis Bernard Noone. He is 18, was born in Manchester, England, is the vocalist and leader of the Hermits.

Q. A novel called The Consort was suppressed in Great Britain. What is it about, and why was it suppressed?—Ian McCleod, Princeton, N.J.

A. It was suppressed in England on the advice of lawyers who thought some people might see a resemblance between the consort and Prince Philip. In the book a prince consort deserts his queen for a dusky girl in the "Backward Islands." He is escorted home by paratroopers where plans are made to hang him for his infidelity.

Q. How many U.S. troops in Japan?—Xavier O'Connor, Brooklyn, N.Y.

A. As of this writing 36,000.

Q. Is the U.S. using mercenaries in Vietnam to fight the Viet Cong?—Frank Gillespie, Vero Beach, Fla.

A. We are.

Q. Recently I read in the Wall Street Journal: "Of the nine justices now sitting on the Supreme Court of the United States only two can be fairly said to have had any real judicial experience prior to being named to our highest court." To which justices does the paper refer?—L. T. Allen, New York, N.Y.

A. William J. Brennan, Jr. (above), formerly justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, and Potter Stewart, formerly judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

HOW OUR LAWS DISCRIMINATE AGAINST CHILDREN:

CRIMES FOR KIDS ONLY

by SID ROSS and WILLIAM KILPATRICK

Smoking a cigarette, having a beer, shooting a game of pool, leaving home or even "idling away time" are not crimes in the United States. Not for adults, anyway.

But for any one of these "offenses" and many more—some so vague as to defy definition—kids in this country can be and often are picked up by police, brought before a judge, found delinquent and packed off to correctional schools and detention homes, sometimes for years during the course of which they become hardened criminals.

These juveniles, mostly from underprivileged families, are often denied legal counsel, inadequately advised as to the specific charges against them, tried without jury by what at times are little more than kangaroo courts and are deprived of their liberty—without benefit of many of the legal safeguards guaranteed citizens by the Constitution.

To get the facts behind this disquieting story of legal subcitizenship for juveniles, PARADE talked to attorneys, judges, officials of institutions and organizations concerned with the welfare of families and children and to the juveniles themselves. What PARADE learned is that how kids are handled by the law often depends on how much money the parents have and what and who they know. For less fortunate minors, the cherished "due process of law" can be an empty phrase.

Many authorities feel that laws originally drawn to protect the welfare of youngsters are now being employed punitively as social controls, not as social remedies.

ROPEWALKERS BEWARE

Some "crimes" for which kids can be arrested are ludicrous.

In New York, for example, a child under 16 being trained as a rope- or wire-walker can be deemed delinquent, apprehended and brought before a juvenile court.

In South Dakota, spooning juvenile couples can't take a stroll down Lovers' Lane after dark.

In Michigan, a juvenile can be picked up and detained for "idling away time."

None of these "crimes" pertains to adults. Yet for youngsters violation of such obviously outmoded laws can lead directly to barred windows and—despite protestations that juvenile court proceedings are not "criminal"—a permanent record.

According to William H. Sheridan, assistant director, Division of Juvenile Delinquency Service of the U.S. Children's Bureau in Washington, about 27 per cent of the cases brought before juvenile courts are for violations of "ordinances or regulatory laws applicable only to children." These include curfew violation, truancy, illegal use of tobacco and alcohol, incorrigibility, waywardness, being a runaway or ungovernable or a person "in need of supervision."

A Children's Bureau review of the inmates of 15 training schools shows that between 25 and 30 per cent are being detained for violations of laws that, had the violators been adults, simply wouldn't exist. For violating these laws kids can be unfairly victimized.

For example, in Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love and the birthplace of our Constitution, 15-year-old Peter is confined to the Youth Development Center, a collection of grim, fortress-like brick buildings right out of Gaslight. He has been there since February of this year, committed for "an indefinite period." His crime? School truancy and "absenting himself from home." His parents are both drunks. Is it any wonder Peter chooses to stay away from home?

At the same institution 13-year-old Charles has been confined since July, also for truancy and running away.

"I've done a lot of running away," Charles told PARADE. "I don't like to go to school. The kids tease me."

Because Charles doesn't like to be teased at school and because Peter would rather not face the ugly spectacle of two drunken parents, both are in jail.

At present most state and federal laws pertaining to children give juvenile courts the widest possible latitude. And—tragically—in many instances such courts simply pack a kid off just to get rid of what is in actuality a social problem, not a legal one.

"Many of these situations don't belong in the area of law," claims Sol Rubin, legal counsel for the National Council on Crime and Delinquency. "Many come under the heading of neglect and should be handled as social problems."

Rubin says communities should have proper services and facilities to aid children in trouble and their families. He thinks the police and courts should not become involved unless a law applicable to all ages within a society is violated.

"I don't see," argues Rubin, "how courts can deal soundly with, say, truancy on a delinquency basis. How does society 'solve' the problem of a habitual truant by committing him?"

A number of lawyers, legal scholars, judges, the Civil Liberties Union and various child welfare organizations agree with Rubin and are working to have archaic statutes overhauled, or at least interpreted differently.

"If we examine Indiana's catch-all delinquency statute," declares Frederick E. Rakestraw, judge of the state's Fulton County Circuit Court, "it is evident many provisions that serve for a determination of delinquency could just as well serve for a determination of neglect. And perhaps a finding of neglect would have a better effect on the community than a finding of delinquency."

WHAT A COURT IS NOT

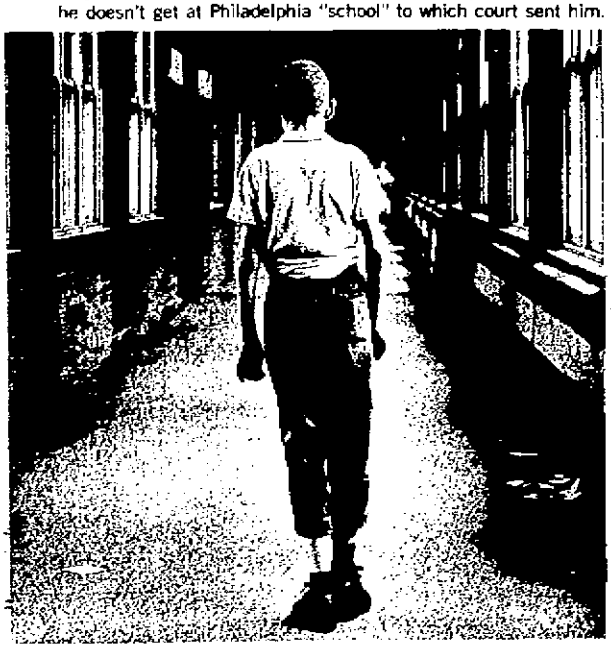

Judge Rakestraw says a juvenile court is not "a social worker, a psychiatrist, a family counselor or a kindly old philosopher."

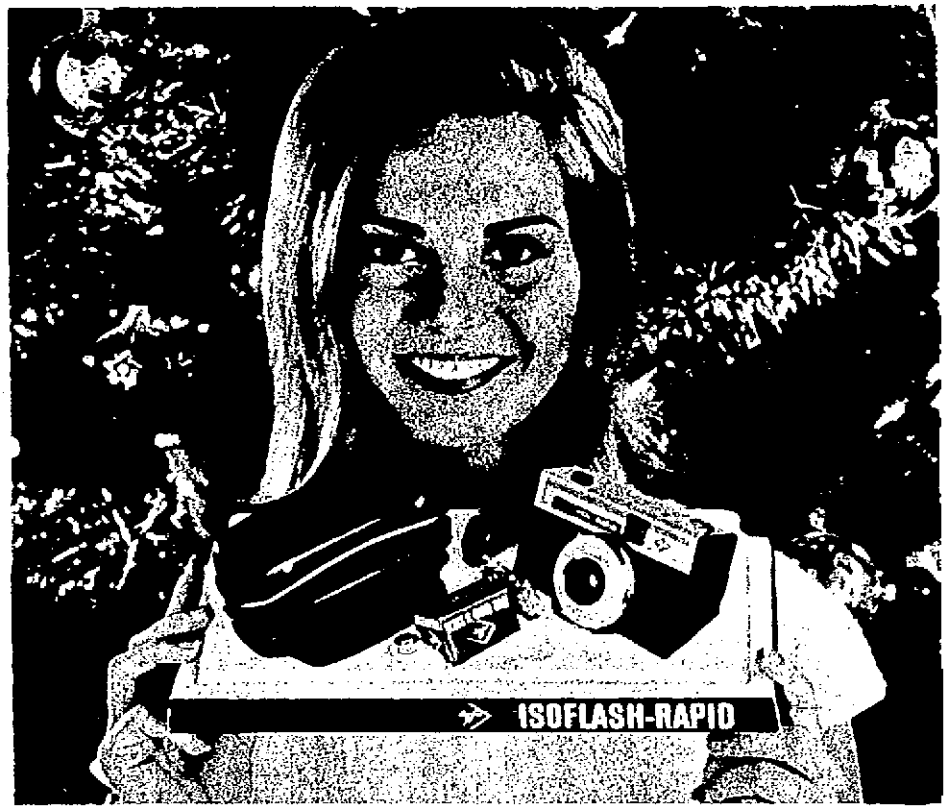

There are of course many who feel that juvenile laws should be made tougher. Still others are for leaving things as they are.

Most police and court officials claim that juvenile courts act as protectors of children, that such court proceedings are hearings and not trials, that commitment to an institution is "treatment" rather than punishment. They say that since the laws are designed to help children, there is no need for the usual Constitutional protections. Finally, they claim that it is right and proper to term "delinquent" chronic truants and children schools and parents cannot control.

The assumption is that both schools and parents care. But too often nobody cares, and a correctional school or detention home is a poor substitute.

13-year-old Kevin is a chronic truant needing psychiatric help he doesn't get at Philadelphia "school" to which court sent him.

This Christmas be a nice Santa Claus and give the AGFA ISOFLASH-RAPID, the instant-loading camera that gives you really sharp pictures.

Rapid loading is a snap. And a pleasure. Just plop in a roll of Agfa-Rapid film (black & white, color print or color slide). Flip the advance wheel and click the shutter a couple of times. Shoot. And say good-bye to fumbling, threading and rewinding.

The little gizmo we're pointing to in this picture is a pressure plate. It puts the pressure on your film. Makes sure it rolls out flat as a pancake, and stays in just the right alignment for sharp pictures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 times.

But there's more to this camera than 16 sharp exposures and rapid loading. Examples: A nice big viewfinder. A fixed-focus lens. A flash unit that zips up and down right out of the camera. An easy-to-squeeze shutter. Even an honest-to-goodness one-year guarantee.

Price? $17.45 complete. By complete, we mean you get the whole shooting match: camera, case, long-lasting Mallory battery, bulbs, and Agfa-Rapid film. (We even have a smaller shooting match for $14.95.)

So, what are you waiting for? Hop on your sleigh and jingle on down to your nearest camera, department or drug store. Stick our sharp little outfit in your sack. And make a rapid hit with your whole family this Christmas.

OUR MEN IN GERMANY

260,000 strong, ready for action—and keeping one eye on Vietnam

AN ON-THE-SPOT REPORT by ED KIESTER

On the town, GI's Harvey Peterson and John George strike up acquaintance with German girls in Bad Nauheim.

FRIEDBERG, GERMANY.

Where, outside its own borders, does the U.S. keep the greatest number of troops today?

If you asked that question of the average American housewife, the chances are nine in ten she would answer "Vietnam." Through build-up after build-up, so the headlines remind us daily, the ugly war in that unhappy Asian nation now claims more than 100,000 of our best fighting men. Included are some of the Army's top divisions.

The fact is, however, that a far larger force is concentrated in a different part of the world. Here in the shadow of the Iron Curtain, more than a quarter of a million men are braced for another kind of war —one few expect will ever break out. They are the American forces facing the main Communist threat from the Soviet Union. And today, as the upcoming anniversary of Pearl Harbor once more focuses attention on the Pacific, the GI's on the front line in Germany are the forgotten men of world events.

What are 260,000 GI's doing in Germany today? What occupies them 20 years after the U.S. arrived as conqueror after World War II? How ready are they to fight, how likely is it they will ever have to, how long might they have to remain here, why isn't more of the load shared by our European allies? And what do these GI's think of Vietnam and of their own mission in Europe?

I have just spent time asking these questions—here, where I myself was a GI 20 years ago. I have talked to the men and watched them in action. And the answers I got were both surprising and reassuring.

To begin with, the Germany of today is not the Germany of my time. There are scenes that would be familiar to anyone who lived through—or watched newsreels of—the postwar occupation. Crewcut young men still eye blonde girls on street corners. OD-painted tanks lumber down country lanes. Troops in fatigues and helmet liners stand in formation in old SS kasernes while Germans watch through the fence. But where the countryside was wan and sickly in 1945, it is fat and lush today. And the Americans are here not as conquerors but as allies. They have moved in with families, schools, special housing, commissaries, and they give every impression of being here to stay —yet somehow they are less in evidence than they were 20 years ago.

"The United States Army, Europe," proclaims a folder produced by the local command, "is the keystone of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization [NATO] land defenses in Europe." E/4 Harvey Peterson, of Beach, N. Dak., a Third Armored Division soldier whose routine is depicted in these photos, puts it differently. "We are the shield the rest of the Troops of the Third Armored Division on parade.

On the go, Capt. Walter Kidwell reviews company as Peterson drives. Special radio keeps unit in contact.

Moving out, Peterson helps fellow GI's board tanks. Troops keep packs ready, can roll at moment's notice.

In classroom, troops get refresher in firing. They are given lectures on global mission, relations with Germans.

free world would hide behind," he says.

That shield is a formidable one. Against a Red threat consisting of 66 Soviet divisions in Eastern Europe, plus 60 satellite divisions in support, NATO has a Northern Army group of British, Canadian, Belgian, Dutch and German troops and a Central Army group of U.S., French and German. The U.S. Seventh Army makes up about a quarter of this central group. It consists of five full-strength divisions and three armored cavalry regiments deployed in depth along 300 miles of the Iron Curtain. It is equipped with both conventional and nuclear weapons, and officers like to say that a single battalion today has more firepower than General Eisenhower could muster in all Europe in World War II.

A key element in this mission is the Third Armored. An outfit with an enviable combat record going back to the Normandy Campaign, it is ranged across the Fulda Gap, traditional invasion route into western Germany, and it keeps tuned up as if it expected that route to be used tomorrow. The division consists of six tank battalions and five battalions of mechanized infantry; it has 325 of America's most modern tanks, some of them (see cover) equipped with special xenon infrared and white searchlights for night firing and with ten 105-mm. flat trajectory guns.

Following around a youth like Peterson, you find that the units here mean business. Each division is required to assemble half its personnel in 30 minutes and to be able to move out to prepared positions, ready for war, with 85 per cent strength within two hours. Peterson's unit, C Company of the First Battalion of the 32nd Armored Brigade, has a daily "stand-to" in which all personnel and vehicles are checked for combat readiness, and there is an unannounced alert (which usually comes about 4 A.M.) once a month which requires that the entire company be off-post and at battle stations in two hours. The division also has regular weapons firing, tank maneuvers and annual combat exercise.

You get a real taste of the division's readiness when you watch a spot alert. The men keep their gear ready and their packs rolled, and even in a pre-dawn alert can be out of the barracks and on the tanks in what seems like split seconds. Peterson is usually first man out. As training aids noncom and jeep driver for the company commander, Capt. Walter Kidwell, it is his job to get to the CO's home, five miles away, and bring him back to the base speedily so the unit can move out. Peterson has zippers in his boots so he can be on the move faster. The last alert he was there and back and had C Company moving in 21 minutes.

Peterson, a blond 23-year-old, is one of those conscientious modern soldiers the division is proud of. "He can do any job you give him," Captain Kidwell says. A student at North Dakota State College, Fargo, before his enlistment, he plans to go back there next fall—hopefully with the help of the Third Armored scholarship fund. Last year he was one of six soldiers nominated for the Doyle Hickey award, a $100 bond given in honor of a former divisional commander to the man with the best knowledge of his job, the division and the Army history. Peterson finished second.

The life Peterson and his buddies live is military all the way. It starts in winter at 5:30 A.M., progresses through reveille and a 6 A.M. breakfast to a workday beginning at 8 A.M. The company spends its mornings in classes, learning tank identification, tactics, psychological warfare. In the afternoon there is cleaning and maintenance of weapons and upkeep of the company vehicles. On a regular basis they receive troop information lectures and talks on why they are in Europe and what they mean to the cold war.

GIRL FRIENDS & GASTHAUSES

Off duty, however, the men could well imagine they were not in service at all. Friedberg, in the rolling Hessian countryside north of Frankfurt, is a pleasant, castle-dominated little village of trees and timbered cottages. The GI's can go to a gasthaus (restaurant) or to visit girl friends every night, and there are sight-seeing tours to points of interest—like Rhine castles and Heidelberg. Married personnel have comfortable apartments as well as schools and commissaries. Although relations with the Germans are good—there is even a German-American soccer league—the two communities generally don't mingle.

Peterson, good soldier that he is, takes part in unit athletics, goes on trips, saves money for school and recently took an evening course in German—"so if I was lost out in the field, I would be able to ask directions." He has no girl friend here, spends most of his evenings with a buddy, Corp. John George. Occasionally the two go to town for beer or rowing on the lake. More often they loll around the barracks and shoot the breeze.

"Why are we here—that's generally the topic," Peterson says. "There are about six to ten guys that argue about this all the time. One group says, well, we're just numbers, we don't stand a chance if the Russians really want to move in. Another says we have to be here—Europe couldn't keep from being overrun if we weren't. We can hold territory until reinforcements come in behind us. Others say, heck, this is the safest place in the world; the Russians obviously aren't going to attack us. Why don't they pull us out of here and send us to Vietnam where we're really needed, and let some reserves do this?"

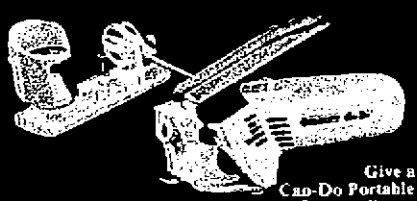

Peterson has a brother in Vietnam, Don Peterson, and so he is very conscious of the fighting there. It is possible now for GI's to volunteer for direct transfer to that theater, and some have done so (although, says the Pentagon, not all have been accepted because certain specialties are overloaded). Peterson has not volunteered and doesn't plan to, and recognizes that it is very unlikely that his unit will be transferred. "Armor is effective in Europe, but not in Asia," he says.

Besides, Peterson recognizes that the mission here in Germany is part of a global one, part of a national stance to stop the forward push of Communism anywhere. And he believes that he and his buddies, though out of the headlines at the moment, serve an important purpose. In this he is supported by the No. Two man in the U.S. Army Europe Command, Maj. Gen. Francis Drachler. "They are good men, good troops with the best equipment," says the chief of staff. "They could give a good account of themselves against any threat anywhere."

THE BIG SURPLUS FOOD BUNGLE

Egypt's Abdel Nasser fills his pockets with U.S. aid yet continues reviling American "imperialists."

It is noble in principle to help the world's needy, but should Uncle Sam give handouts to hands that are only too quick to pick his pockets?

Since World War II we have displayed a generosity unequaled by any other victors in history. We have been concerned neither with revenge nor with spoils. Our concern has been to get the world going again.

Not unnaturally, we hoped our generosity would be recognized and would win friends. But all too often, thanks to our own bungling and to cynicism on the part of governments we have helped, our food-for-peace programs have brought neither food to the hungry nor peace to the world. As for friendship, it seems to progress in reverse proportion to the amount of food we dish out.

Nowhere has this been truer than in the Middle East. And no one has been more adept than Egypt's President Nasser in turning Uncle Sam into Uncle Sucker.

Thousands of tons of food have been shipped to Nasser. In fact, his people depend for almost a quarter of their diet on American food shipments. Without those shipments the Egyptian masses might be harder to control; Nasser might even find himself with a revolt on his hands. Yet no one this side of the Iron Curtain is more critical of the United States.

Our economic aid helps him buy arms to fulfill his dream of vanquishing Israel. We have to compensate for this by providing the Israelis in turn with arms. In effect, we pay twice for the same machine gun.

Only this year, government auditors completed their investigation of the great Egyptian corn scandal, which cost American taxpayers a whopping $23.7 million. The story began four years ago, when Nasser pleaded for emergency corn shipments to save his country from famine.

ONE CONDITION

In response the U.S. rushed 186,000 tons of corn to Egypt. They made only one stipulation—that the corn be distributed free of charge to impoverished Egyptian farmers.

U. S. officials made no effort, apparently, to check the Egyptian claim of crop failure. They accepted the latest Arabian Nights story that floods and insects had devastated both the corn and cotton crops. Yet even as ships were steaming out with American corn, Egyptian farmers were harvesting near-record crops.

What happened to the gift corn? Instead of giving it away to the starving fellaheen, Nasser sold it to raise more money for arms. When we discovered belatedly what he was doing, he changed his policy—but not before he had managed to sell 80,000 tons of corn.

At least four shiploads of corn weren't even unloaded for several weeks because Nasser had black-listed the ships for calling at Israeli ports. If the Egyptians felt the corn had been tainted by its brief exposure to Israel, they found it had also been infested by weevils while waiting in port.

President Nasser and his 40 thieves also worked a fast deal in a most unglamorous substance—tallow. Egypt normally buys its tallow from the United States. The inedible tallow goes into soap, the edible into oleomargarine.

Our law stipulates that foreign aid must not interfere with commercial sales, but the Egyptians hated to pay scarce dollars for anything they could euchre out of the U.S. They begged for tallow as economic aid, which would permit them to pay for it in local currency. The United States already has $500 million worth of Egyptian pounds—more than can be spent in Nasserland in 50 years. Since local currency must be spent inside the country, the chances were that any payments in Egyptian pounds would remain unspent—thus making the tallow, in effect, a free gift.

The State Department's alibi is that the political bonus was worth the dollar loss. But if the tallow and the corn deals have modified Nasser's attitude toward the United States, he has yet to show it.

Another secret report, classified in order to hide the embarrassing details, has to do with a Middle East wheat deal. The Iranian government suddenly ran short of foreign exchange, and for "political reasons" Uncle Sam cheerfully filled the shah's coffers. A cool $39 million of the American taxpayers' money was turned over to him.

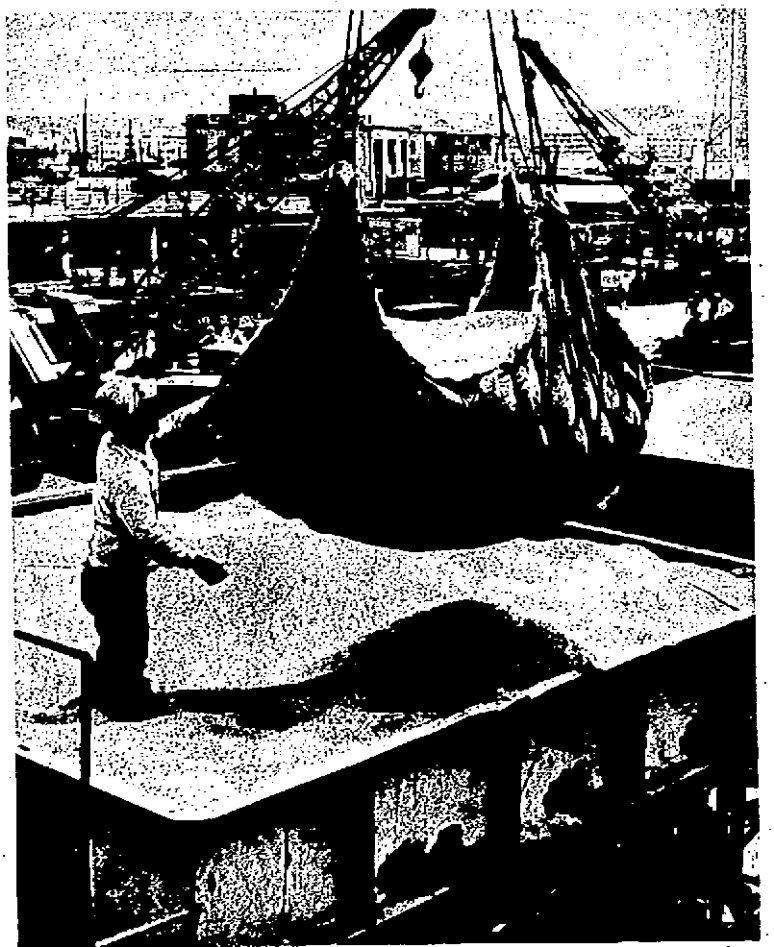

IRANIAN DUPLICITY

Later, Uncle Sam discovered that Iran had spent $12.5 million of this jackpot for wheat from Australia, though there was plenty of surplus wheat for sale in the United States.

Egypt and Iran are only two countries in which Uncle Sam has proved to be Uncle Sucker. There are many more.

American surpluses, as a result of giveaways and sales, are approaching the level this country needs for its own security. Wheat is only in "modest excess." Another big wheat giveaway could put us below the safety margin. Dairy products, once so abundant, have been so sharply reduced that some giveaways have had to be curtailed.

This is not an argument against generosity. But the American people never meant their bounty to be squandered.

Shipments like these—to so-called needy countries clamoring for U.S. food—are often misused or not used at all. The loser: American taxpayers, who fork over millions.

Holiday Fruitcake

Now's the time to make that Christmas fruitcake. These two beautiful and unusual cakes can be made ahead of time and stored, undecorated, until the holidays are here. One is for you and the other to give—if you can bear to part with it. Most unusual feature of these cakes is that they are two-toned—two layers of dark cake with a layer of white between. The white cake is studded with brilliant red and green candied fruits. It's just right to serve with eggnog or punch at yuletide.

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Dark Cake Batter

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, divided
2 cups seedless raisins
1¼ cups mixed, diced fruits and peels
½ cup thinly sliced preserved pineapple
½ cup halved candied cherries
½ cup pecan halves
½ cup blanched, slivered almonds
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup soft butter or margarine
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
3 eggs, separated
1 envelope (1 oz.) no-melt chocolate
2 tablespoons each lemon and orange juice

Combine ½ cup flour with next 6 ingredients; mix until fruits and nuts are well coated. Mix and sift remaining ½ cup flour with spices and baking soda. Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Then add egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Blend in chocolate. Add flour-spice mixture and fruit juices alternately, stirring just until smooth. Stir this mixture into fruit-nut mixture. Beat egg whites stiff; fold in. Chill until light cake batter is ready.

Light Cake Batter

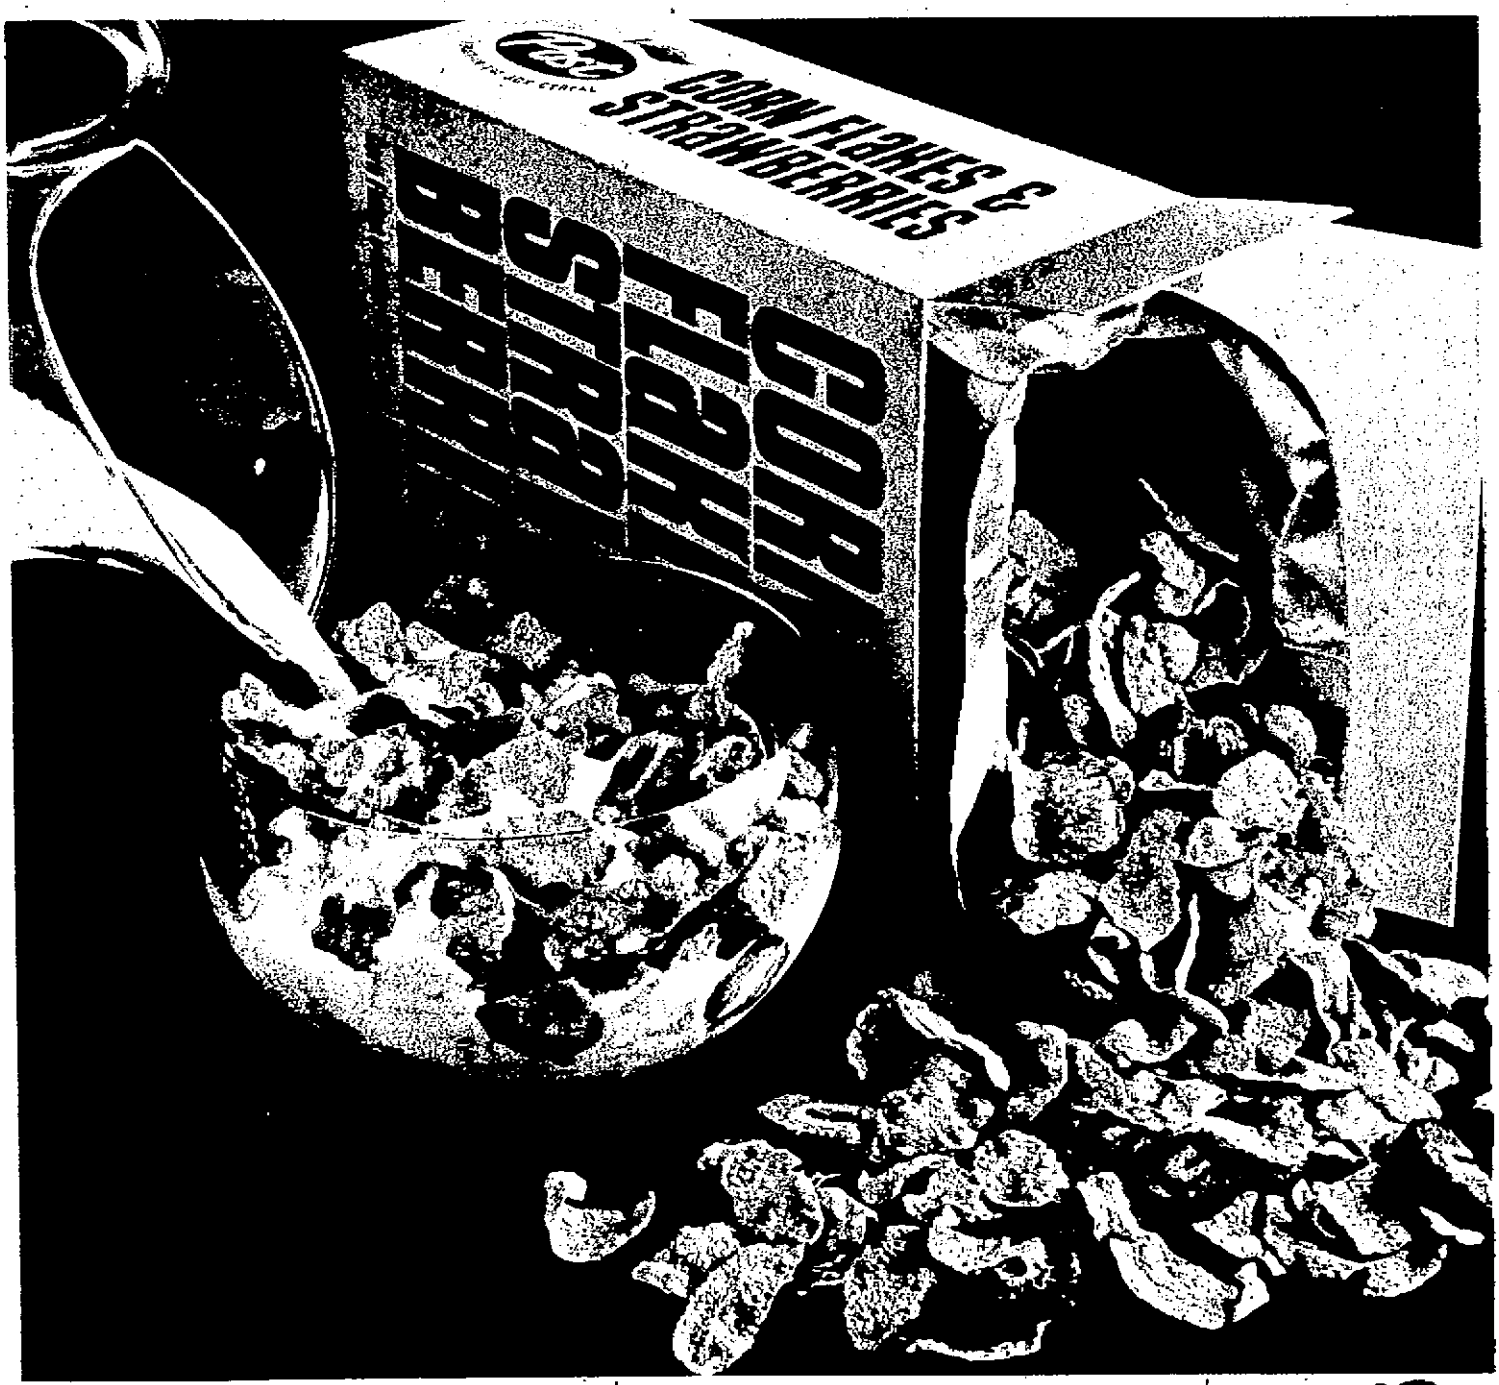

¾ cup blanched, slivered almonds
½ cup thinly sliced green preserved pineapple
½ cup quartered candied cherries
2 tablespoons flour
1 package (1 lb. 1 oz.) pound cake mix

Combine first 4 ingredients; mix until fruits and nuts are well coated. Prepare pound cake mix as directed on package; stir into fruit mixture.

To combine:
Grease 2 loaf pans 8 x 5 x 3 inches. Line bottoms with wax paper. Grease paper. Divide dark batter in fourths. Put one fourth in each pan. Top with half the light batter. Finish with layer of dark batter. Bake at 325° about 1½ hours or until cake tester comes out clean. Cool in pans on wire rack ½ hour. Loosen edges; remove loaves; peel off wax paper; cool completely on racks. Wrap tightly in foil; refrigerate until ready to use or freezer-wrap and freeze. Decorate with confectioners' sugar icing and preserved or candied fruits and nutmeats. Makes 2 loaves.

FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.

It looks as if the battle to save one of America's scrappiest and most beautiful species of trout from extinction is being won. And the person responsible for it is an unusual Arizona woman who is applying her motherly instincts to a man's job.

Wearing a work jacket, trousers and rubber boots, Minnie McFarland works for the Arizona Game and Fish Department. She oversees the hatching of trout that are stocked in Arizona waters. Mostly she tends hearty, easy-to-catch rainbows. But for the last three years she's watched over some wild survivors of another species—the olive green and gold dark-spotted Arizona trout, which has been within a fin's breadth of joining some 75 species of wildlife that have disappeared from the face of the earth.

As more and more fishermen began to demand more and more fish, the highly desirable rainbow was stocked heavily in Arizona streams. It invaded the habitat of the native trout, and the pure strain of native soon gave way to a rainbow hybrid.

The prospect of the disappearance of the Arizona trout was a tragic one to sportsmen, naturalists and the staff of the Game and Fish Department. From one of the last remaining habitats, Ord Creek on the Ft. Apache Indian Reservation in east-central Arizona, the department obtained 78 wild, stunted brooders. In ten-gallon milk cans, the trout were transported by pack horse and truck to the small state hatchery at Sterling Springs, just south of here, and turned over to Minnie McFarland.

A LOVE FOR LIVING THINGS

Diminutive, widowed Mrs. McFarland is a quiet woman with a rare love for the out-of-doors and for all living things. She accepted without hesitation the task of keeping them alive.

The natives were slipped into a covered "raceway" at Sterling Springs and for a starter refused to eat the prepared hatchery food. When all else failed, Minnie McFarland dug some worms out of her own yard and tossed them into the raceway. This natural food disappeared in a swirl of darting fish.

Mrs. McFarland knew she could never provide a steady diet of worms on that scale. She began mixing worms with chopped liver. As soon as the trout were accepting the liver, she mixed it with the hatchery food and slowly withdrew the liver.

Seventy-four trout survived all this. When the time came, they were milked and the spawn of 300 eggs placed in an incubator. Then a construction blast rocked the area, and all but 109 of the eggs were ruined.

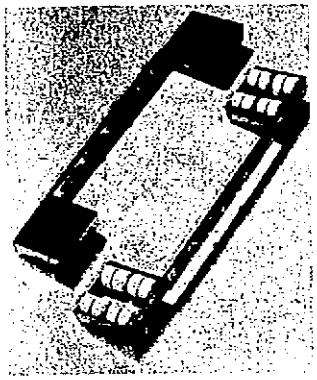

For about a month Mrs. McFarland worried over the baby trout 18 hours a day. They had to be fed every hour. When problems developed in the water system, she sat up with them all night.

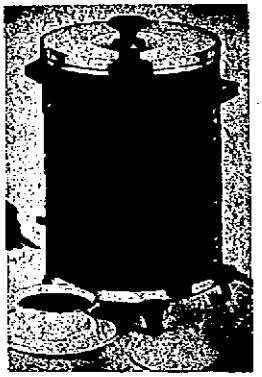

But only 11 were lost. At the end of a year the population was up to 200. When the brooders were milked again, 1000 fine fingerlings were produced.

To Minnie McFarland, saving a species is all in a day's work. Nobody knows her age. She's been with the department 11 years and for 20 before that worked with her late husband as a fishing guide on the Colorado River. And she wants nothing more than to be left alone, out in the open by her fish tanks.

TAKE A LOOK AT THESE NEW IDEAS FOR YOUR HOME AND FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

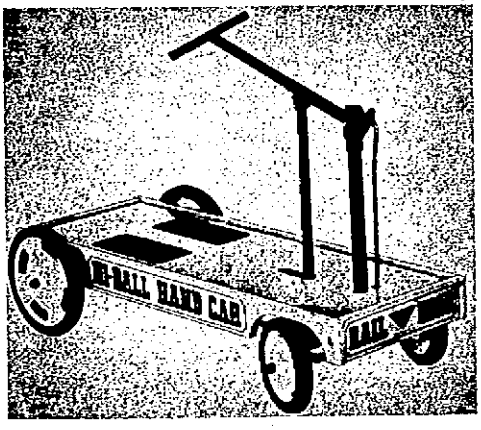

Appliance dolly: If you'd like to be able to move heavy appliances easily for cleaning or retrieving lost items, you can mount this adjustable dolly (above, left) permanently under any free-standing refrigerator, freezer or range. It raises the appliance only 1½", keeps it in balance, and the nylon wheels can roll up to 650 lbs. without marking your kitchen floor covering. $9.95 per pair. Delta, Dept. PP, 1404 E. California Ave., Glendale, Calif. 91206.

Party percolator: This automatic one (above, right) brews 30 cups and is insulated to keep coffee hot without being plugged in. Use it also to keep iced beverages cold for hours. Copper-glo enamel finish. About $20 in stores. West Bend Co., Dept. PP, Box 278, West Bend, Wis. 53095.

For your car: Easy way to keep it shining is with a new waxer-polisher you can plug into the cigarette lighter socket. It has a long cord that lets you reach all around the car—and a long handle that makes it easy for you to reach the middle of the roof. It quickly buffs to brilliant finish without running down the battery. $9.95. Dynamic Classics, Dept. PP, 220 E. 23, New York, N. Y. 10010.

Hand car: Here's fun for kids (above)—a hand car for sidewalk use similar to the kind used on railroads. It steers and pumps with the same handle, has chain drive, nonslip foot pads, semi-pneumatic tires, weighs 30 lbs., measures 40" x 20". Yellow with green trim. $24.95, express collect. Hobi, Dept. PP, Flushing, N.Y. 11352

Fire smother: Handy to have in your kitchen, basement, garage, a new 3' x 4' asbestos blanket can be dropped over accidental small fires and quickly helps smother flames. It cannot burn, smoke or char. $1.59. Midland Trading Dept. PP, 316 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

TEFLON® FINISHED MIRRO NO-STICK COOKING
NO-SCOUR CLEANUP

All that glitters is not gold. And all that says "non-stick" is not MIRRO.

Du Pont TEFLON® is truly a miracle. Nothing sticks to it, even burned-on foods. And it rinses clean, without soaking or scouring. But, to provide this miracle, month after month, TEFLON must be properly applied, on a properly prepared surface.

Some materials won't take a TEFLON finish at all. Fortunately, the finest cooking material of all . . . even-heating aluminum . . . acts like it was made for it. And MIRRO, the finest aluminum, earned the first Seal of Approval that Du Pont awarded, for doing the job right.

Certainly you want no-stick cooking and no-scour clean-up. To be sure you get it, make extra-sure you get TEFLON-Finished MIRRO. There's a complete selection of range-top utensils, ovenware and electric fry pans, wherever the finest aluminum is sold. They're the finest to give . . . finest to own.

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

■ Audrey Hepburn and Peter O'Toole are filming a movie at Boulogne Studios in Paris, entitled How to Steal a Million Dollars and Live Happily Ever After. Over the weekend a safe was broken into at the studio. Robbers escaped with $14,000 in pay for extras. When the robbery was reported to the Paris police, they made several wisecracks about publicity and the title of the film, and the wiles of American press agents. Finally persuaded that the robbery was genuine, they sent men to investigate. When the police walked onto the set, director William Wyler grew furious. "Get those extras," he yelled, "the hell out of this scene." ■

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

BRITISH DOCTORS LEAVING. Medical doctors in the U.S. earn more money than any other occupational group. So claims the Department of Labor in analyzing the earnings of men in 321 occupations, using 1960 census data. Overseas, however, doctors are not nearly so fortunate. In Europe they average less than $10,000 a year, largely because all of Europe offers its people socialized medicine. In England doctors carry such a tremendous work load in return for the limited sum the government pays them that one in four new doctors is now quitting the United Kingdom. Most are coming to the U.S., Canada, other nations of the British Commonwealth.

GHOST WRITER DE GAULLE. Charles de Gaulle believes in the grandeur of France and the glory of Charles de Gaulle. The French President has just authorized the republication of a military tract he wrote in the middle 1930's. Its title: France and Its Army. Originally this work was conceived by the late Marshal Pétain. No writer himself he assigned the job to a Captain de Gaulle who labored on it long and hard before he turned it over to his superior. Pétain thought it excellent but insisted upon "revisions in my own style." After several years de Gaulle grew impatient, published the book in 1938 under his own name. From that point on relations between Pétain and de Gaulle deteriorated. When World War II broke out the following year, the breach between these two was irreparable. De Gaulle castigated Pétain for his old-fashioned tactics, and Pétain ignored de Gaulle. Next year when the book is published again, the original dedication to Pétain will be omitted. In 1938 the dedication read: "To Marshal Pétain who wished this book to be written...."

ITALY AND DIVORCE. One of Italy's major social problems is how to legalize divorce. Italy is the only Common Market country and one of less than a dozen in the world that does not permit divorce. Now a bill to recognize divorce is being sponsored by the Socialists in the Italian coalition government. The Socialists claim that there are 50,000 broken marriages in Italy each year, that the couples from these broken marriages cannot remarry, that many of them live in sin, that Italy's high illegitimacy rate, 6% of all births, is in part a result of the antiquated divorce prohibition. Loris Fortuna who is sponsoring the bill claims it would not clash with the Roman Catholic Church which does not recognize divorce. Fortuna points out that civil divorce is permitted in other Catholic countries such as France and Belgium. In the last 80 years there have been ten attempts to introduce a legal divorce law in Italy, and each has been killed. This time, Fortuna hopes, his bill will pass.

WAR AIMS. We are fighting a war in Vietnam to help the Vietnamese help themselves. Consider the tragic history of these tragic people. The French occupied their land for 100 years, exploited the people and the resources. In 1940 the Japanese moved into Vietnam, occupied the country.

When World War II ended the French returned to restore their colonial regime. The Communist Party under Ho Chi Minh formed a guerrilla army called the Vietminh to throw them out.

The Vietminh fought the French for ten years. They employed the same guerrilla tactics they are now using against us. The French threw everything they had, including their famed Foreign Legion, against the Vietminh. Victory still escaped them.

Bitter and frustrated the French stupidly decided to lock forces with the Vietminh in a decisive battle at Dien Bien Phu, believing that their army would demolish the guerrillas once they came out of the jungle. In 1954 the French Army of Indochina under brave but stupid generalship was itself demolished on the blood-soaked battlefield of Dien Bien Phu.

Vietnam was then divided. The Communists took control of North Vietnam above the 17th parallel. Below the 17th the Free Republic of Vietnam was formed with a population of 14 million, 80% of them industrious but illiterate peasants with no background in self-government.

The Viet Cong, the Communist party, then attempted to take over the Republic of Vietnam by force, infiltration, deception, tyranny, revolution, any possible means. The South Vietnamese fought back, and we came to their aid.

In time we will defeat the Viet Cong, but we cannot win the war. The only people who can win it are the South Vietnamese. To help them we must somehow build for them a genuinely popular and representative regime in South Vietnam which they will be willing and anxious to defend and preserve. At the moment they are not. Their present government is a military dictatorship, ostensibly headed by Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky who takes his orders from the real power behind the scenes, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu. The South Vietnamese have never yet had a stable, cohesive government. The peasants have never known a sizeable voice in government. The power blocs which have controlled the government are loyal first to themselves, then to their clans, then to their religions and lastly to their government, riddled by graft, corruption, inefficiency.

What we are faced with in Vietnam is the tremendous problem of native education. It has been suggested in many quarters that after our soldiers win the battles, they be transferred to the Peace Corps so they can truly help the South Vietnamese win the war. The times call not only for American military might but for mighty American statesmanship.

THE MOST ECONOMICAL LIBRARY-BUILDING SYSTEM EVER DEVISED: BOOK-DIVIDENDS

THE EXPERIMENTAL MEMBERSHIP suggested here will not only prove, by your own actual experience, how effectually membership in the Book-of-the-Month Club can keep you from missing, through oversight or overbusyness, books you fully intend to read; it will also demonstrate another equally important advantage enjoyed by members: Book-Dividends. Through this unique profit-sharing system Book-of-the-Month Club members can regularly receive valuable library volumes —at a small fraction of their price—simply by buying books they would buy anyway if they were not members.

IF YOU CONTINUE AFTER THIS EXPERIMENTAL MEMBERSHIP, you will receive, with every Club choice you buy, a Book-Dividend Certificate. Each Certificate, together with a nominal sum, usually $1.00 or $1.50 —occasionally more for unusually expensive volumes — can be redeemed for a valuable Book-Dividend which you may choose from more than a hundred fine library volumes whose retail prices now average $7. Since its inauguration the almost incredible sum of over $330,000,000 worth of books (retail value) has been earned and received by members through this unique plan.

Miraculous Recoveries as Two Liners Collide at 10,000 Feet

107 SURVIVE MID-AIR CRASH

NORTH SALEM, N.Y. (AP)—Two incoming airliners collided in gray autumn skies two miles above New York City's northern suburbs Saturday. One plane crashed and burned but the other stayed aloft, and the death toll was miraculously light.

Of 113 persons aboard the two aircraft state police said six were known dead.

The victims were on a propeller-driven Eastern Air Lines Constellation shuttle that went down after colliding with a Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 transcontinental jet about 50 miles north of New York.

Oscar Baake, regional director of the Federal Aviation Agency, surveyed the wreckage in a light snowfall that set in after the crash. He said of the death toll:

"That's unbelievable. All I can say is that it is fantastic that people walked away. This pilot must have done a wonderful job."

* * * *

THE jetliner's pilot, Capt. Thomas Carroll, 45, of Norwalk, Conn., declared:

"We saw the other aircraft just before we hit. We took evasive action."

Carroll failed to avoid collision. But his last-minute maneuver may have minimized the force of the sideswiping impact. Both planes were under the control of ground monitors at the time.

The jetliner reportedly was assigned to 11,000 feet altitude, while the Constellation was supposed to be at 10,000 feet. There was no immediate explanation of how they happened onto a collision course.

Pilots of both ships responded magnificently to the emergency, reminiscent of aviation's worst disaster, the collision of two airliners over New York in 1960 that claimed 134 lives.

* * * *

EASTERN pilot, Capt. C. White of Rye, N.H., en route from Boston to Newark, fought off a spin of his four-engined Constellation, alerted his passengers to their peril, then pancaked into an uninhabited hillside. The ship exploded in a burst of orange flame but most of the 54 persons aboard escaped with their lives.

"We've been hit by another plane and we're going to make a crash landing," White advised his passengers, giving them time to fasten their seat belts.

White was not listed among the survivors at any of the area hospitals.

An Eastern spokesman at Danbury said: "As far as we are concerned at this point, Capt. Charles White is missing."

The other pilot, Carroll, at the controls of a TWA jet flight from San Francisco, had 30 feet of his left wing ripped away and his brakes knocked out. But he made it to Kennedy Airport, after announcing over his intercom system:

"It's not as bad as it looks."

The TWA liner landed smoothly, using less than a third of the runway. The only injury among 58 persons

Waters, Reagan Trade Verbal Jabs at GOP Meeting

By BOB HOUSER
I, P-T Political Editor

Announced GOP gubernatorial candidate Laughlin E. Waters accused unannounced candidate Ronald Reagan of "political expediency and political dishonesty" Saturday for denying his candidacy when "the fact is, he is a candidate, has said so (privately) and has stated that if he were quoted publicly he would deny it."

"The unity didn't hold up very long," Reagan quipped. "I'll match my integrity with anyone in this room."

The room was the Biltmore Hotel ballroom in Los Angeles, filled with more than 400 members of the one-year-old California Republican League in weekend convention.

Reagan and Waters were among eight potential candidates at a CRL round table which featured individual speeches and then a session of questions from the audience.

* * * *

THE FORMER U.S. attorney's blast at Reagan was a pointed rejection of state GOP Chairman Dr. Gaylord Parkinson's party commandment against "speaking ill of any Republican." Parkinson had urged his code on CRL at the group's Saturday morning session.

Reagan replied that, obviously, when one goes as "far as I have, you have to operate on the basis that the answer will be yes. I have to assume that it will be (yes). I've said yes—on the basis of what I've learned so far, the answer is preordained. But I've also said I'd keep one font back in case the sky starts to fall.

"I think it's pretty logical to say that if the press were told this, I'd have to deny I said it. I don't think this is being dishonest."

Waters, after the round table ended, told newsmen he is now satisfied that Reagan is a candidate and that he not only has drawn in the foot

Refinery Boiler Explodes

An explosion shattered a cracking unit hydrogen tank and hurled it skyward late Saturday at the Union Oil Co. refinery, 1650 W. Anaheim St., Wilmington.

Police said the tank, described as about the size of two automobiles, was ripped apart about 9:50 p.m. The blast which occurred in the south-central sector of the sprawling refinery was heard for miles.

Four Los Angeles fire units were dispatched to the scene but police said there were no reports of a fire and no injuries or damage except to the boiler.

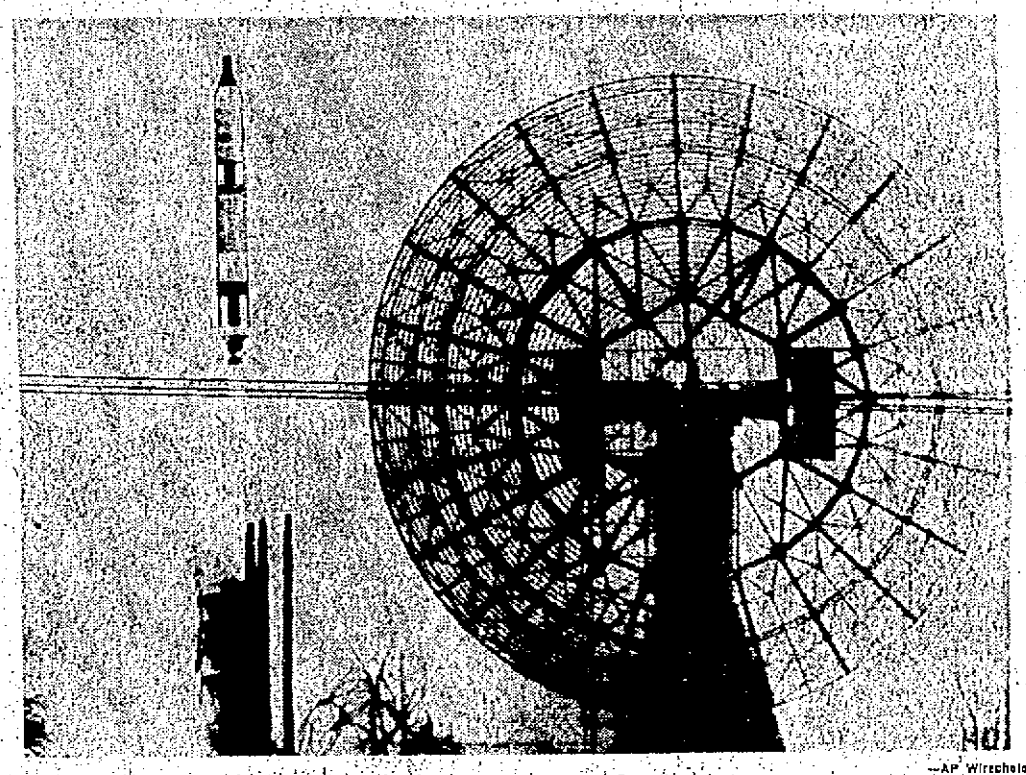

A valve that gave way was given as the cause of the explosion. The boiler was used in a cracking unit which breaks down crude oil in the process of manufacturing gasoline. All attachments in the field were shut down after the explosion to avoid the possibility of further blasts.

Mysterious Object Hits, Bounces Off Spaceship

HUGE TITAN 2 ROCKET IS 'CAPTURED' by giant tracking antenna as Gemini 7 two-week mission begins at Cape Kennedy Space Center in Florida in a near-perfect takeoff.

Officials Puzzled, No Damage Seen

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.
United Press International

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell soared toward new frontiers in space Saturday night, with nothing troubling them and a mysterious little incident to intrigue them.

Soon after a near-perfect takeoff from Cape Kennedy, a small object which apparently flew off the spacecraft bounced off Lovell's window on the right side of the spacecraft. Gemini officials had only a theory as to what it was—but it apparently posed no threat to the 14-or-15-day mission.

The astronauts flew on toward what space officials hope will be the highlight of the journey, a rendezvous with the Gemini 6 spaceship scheduled to head into the heavens on Dec. 13.

The "Spirit of 76," as the double space voyage has been called, was off to an auspicious start and more than making up for the disappointment of October when the last U. S. manned space effort was canceled because of the failure of an Agena target rocket.

Borman and Lovell, born just 11 days apart 37 years ago, leaped into space at 2:30 p.m. EST—

Space Dress Is So Far Very Formal

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 astronauts won't be able to savor the comfort of their spaceship cabin in their underwear until Monday morning.

Flight officials in preflight announcements got their signals crossed and reported erroneously that copilot James Lovell Jr. would take off his spacesuit Saturday.

On Monday, after Navy Cmdr. Lovell tries it out in his shortsleeved underwear for some 24 hours, Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman, the command pilot, will get a chance.

After that, during noncritical times, the two will take turns in the underwear dress.

Earlier, space officials decided caution was the better part of valor—and turned down a request from the astronauts to let them both strip off the new lightweight spacesuits at the same time.

Should there be a sudden loss of cabin pressure, an astronaut caught without his protective spacesuit on would be in grave trouble. But so far in Gemini flights, there has never been a loss in cabin pressure.

Besides comfort, the aim of the astronauts was to show their confidence in the Gemini spacecraft cabin integrity.

The new spacesuits are lighter, and more comfortable than the old ones. But the old ones are not out of the picture yet. They will be used on short flights and do offer better protection. Furthermore, any astronaut assigned to walk in space will need the heavier, more protective suit to shield him from the vacuum of space.

The human body, unprotected from the nearly complete vacuum of space, would literally explode.

The new spacesuit is a white nylon garment with two layers, and a soft hood that pulls down over the regular jet pilot crash helmet. The suit weighs 16 pounds, five pounds lighter than the old one. The helmet weighs three pounds.

Navy Capt. Walter Schirra Jr. and Air Force Major Thomas Stafford, who hope to pilot the Gemini 6 hunter spacecraft in pursuit of Gemini 7, Dec. 13, will wear the old suit. Their flight is scheduled for only 47 hours.

Flight Before Christmas

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Astronaut James Lovell used a line from a familiar poem about Santa Claus for punning purposes Wednesday night, reporting from space.

"We're still in the process of settling down for a long winter's flight."

A SOCIOLOGICAL TIME BOMB ON A SPUTTERING FUSE

Watts Riot Gave Compton Days and Nights of Terror

By SHERM WILLIAMS
Copyrighted 1965, Independent, Press-Telegram
(All Rights Reserved)

(First of Five Parts)

Alameda Street stretches Southward from Los Angeles like a fuse, dividing two worlds. Suddenly it plugs into the sociological time bomb that is the City of Compton, half-Negro, half-white.

In the cities north of Compton, the Caucasians to the east privately call Alameda "the asphalt curtain."

The Negroes to the west bitterly call it "The Alameda Wall."

It is the barrier between the white and black worlds and there is little gray to be found near it. It is one of the most dangerous streets in the United States because of the pent-up fury on its either side.

The fuse was ignited Wednesday night, Aug. 11, 1965, the start of the devastating Los Angeles riots. It burned southward throughout Watts, down through Willowbrook and into the heart of Compton.

Watts and Willowbrook were burned, battered and left bloodsoaked.

Negro frustration was vented in blind fury against the whites, raging in a firestorm in the ghetto that is

I. P-T SPECIAL REPORT

Watts and superheating emotions down the Alameda fuse.

The battle cry of the riots was "Get Whitey." You look at the map. Compton is right there, a stone's throw from Watts and adjoining Willowbrook. Half of Compton's 77,170 residents are Negro.

The rest, man, are "Whitey."

In the final hours of Friday, Aug. 13, officials of Compton were forced to a terrifying conclusion.

The emotional firestorm of the Los Angeles riots—just blocks away—was roaring into their city. Compton, it appeared certain, would be devastated in a matter of hours and probably in the worst racial bloodbath ever seen in America.

The conclusion was not a product of hysteria. It was drawn from a maelstrom of adverse facts.

Emotions in the city were superheated. Rioters roamed the streets. Fire raged through stores within the heart of Compton.

Unlike Los Angeles, which had shrugged at the thought of a Negro revolt, Compton leaders had become aware of the danger five years earlier and had worked to offset the possibility.

Facts that Los Angeles and the State of California belatedly are trying to learn now through the McCone Commission and a host of other agencies, official and private, already were known to Compton leaders.

Valuable social document that it is, the McCone Commission report still adds up to a "let George do it" rakeover of the ashes of the Los Angeles riots when compared to the more intimate and much more revealing knowledge of what can cause—and what can prevent—a riot, learned by Compton civic leaders, Negro and Caucasian alike.

The McCone report is to be given to selected newsmen today with the agreement it will be kept under wraps until 3 p.m. Monday.

What Compton has learned is a matter of daily discussion in that city—where the immediacy of the

Suicide Try at 82 Fails to Give Him 'Even a Headache'

Eighty-two-year-old Vito Maniscalco lives alone, has no relatives and few friends.

He decided he "wanted to make room for the younger generation," and brought out the revolver he had bought in 1929 and never used.

Maniscalco fired one shot into the ceiling of his room "to see if it worked," then fired five shots at his head. The bullets grazed the right side of his head and Maniscalco fell to the floor, bleeding profusely.

Some neighbors, getting no answer at the retired coal miner's door Saturday, called Chicago police, who broke in and found Maniscalco unconscious.

At a nearby hospital, Maniscalco was treated and released. He later was charged with disorderly conduct. Police asked if he was sorry, and he said, "Sorry? Yes, sorry I caused so much trouble."

Asked how he felt, Maniscalco replied, "I haven't even got a headache."

Ambassadress?

U.S. Sen. Fred Harris said Saturday in Oklahoma City that President Johnson should send his wife on a goodwill tour of South America to bolster U. S. relations with Latin-American nations.

The Oklahoma Democrat said Mrs. Johnson, upon her return, could give the President a "valuable firsthand assessment of the situation" there.

Johnsons' eldest daughter

He suggested that the Johnsons' eldest daughter, Lynda, make the trip, too.

Harris, who returned last month from a private, three-week tour of Peru, Brazil, Argentina and Chile, said the United States needs to adopt a fresh approach in its relations with Latin America.

Boeing Change

Radio KING of Seattle said Saturday "highly placed said Saturday, "highly placed sources" report that William M. Allen, 65, longtime president of the Boeing Co., will step down from the post next Monday or Tuesday, to be replaced by John Yeasting, a vice president and head of the company's airplane division.

Threat Seen

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) said Saturday in Milwaukee, it appears Red China could be a nuclear threat within five to 10 years.

"It depends on what magnitude of a threat you are talking about," Seaborg said in an interview before a symposium of four leading scientists. The symposium was part of the weekend ceremonies dedicating an addition to the Cutler-Hammer Corp.

Seaborg

"It is obvious that Red China's nuclear weapons are at present elementary," Seaborg said.

L.A. 'Torch' Dies

A 21-year-old Los Angeles youth died of burns over 90% of his body Saturday after a flammable liquid was splashed over him, apparently accidentally, and somehow ignited, police said.

Jesse Lopez Ayala re-gained consciousness briefly Saturday morning, officers said, long enough to tell police his name and indicate the incident was an accident. He was able to give no further details, they said.

Officers at first had thought he was set afire by a second man.

Hoffa Ally Safe

Anthony Provenzano, president of Teamsters Union Local 560 of Union City, N.J., since 1958, smashed two insurgent rank-and-file tickets Saturday, winning re-election by a 2-to-1 margin. He is an ally of Teamsters President James Hoffa.

Provenzano, still fighting a 1963 conviction for extortion, piled up a 5,231 to 2,631 plurality over George Phillips of the united ticket.

Provenzano

The second insurgent slate, also calling itself the united ticket, did not have a presidential candidate. The original candidate, Steve Harnos, withdrew in favor of Phillips. Former Harnos supporters nominated Anthony Castellito Jr., but the nomination failed to receive federal court approval.

The election was held in Secaucus, N.J., under U.S. Labor Department supervision. A federal court directed the Labor Department to conduct the election because of charges of fraud in the 1962 election.

In Hospital

Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol was in a Jerusalem hospital Saturday suffering from weakness and fatigue.

Officials said he would remain at least some days for medical tests and supervision. Prof. Moshe Rachmilewitsch, a leading heart specialist, announced Eshkol's condition "has already improved, but complete rest is required."

Eshkol

Eshkol, 70, has been active the past few days in negotiations to form a new government.

Caridnal Ill

Richard Cardinal Cushing, 70, was reported Saturday to have canceled all appointments until Monday because of a fever and was resting at his residence.

Republican League Hears Eight Gubernatorial-Nominee Aspirants

he was keeping back but, to use another Reagan phrase about edging toward the edge of the porch, "has now fallen off the porch."

Reagan was given another uncomfortable moment when panelist Joseph C. Shell, who matches Reagan's hard-line conservation, was asked about a Reagan commitment to support Shell's candidacy.

Said Shell, "It was my belief I did have such a commitment but maybe we understand the language differently."

* * * *

WATERS also told the delegates that reports he received on Reagan's offer from Birch Society public relations director John Rousselot was to support or oppose Reagan — whichever would help him most—was "deadly serious."

Reagan charged Waters had "dredged up a hassle about a facetious remark I made in San Francisco." He restated his position that he would not solicit Birch Society support and invited CRL delegates to read his 500-word statement on the society.

Observers had surmised Reagan would get a bad time at the hands of the liberal-moderate CRL, but he didn't fare badly on applause.

Counting both introductory and postspeech applause, here's how the panelists scored: former San Francisco Mayor George Christopher, 46 seconds; Lieutenant Governor Candidate Robert H. Finch, 43; Waters, 42; Assembly Minority Leader Robert T. Monagan, 35; Reagan, 31; Former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, 24; Los Angeles County Supervisor Warren M. Dorn, 19, and Shell, 15. Christopher used part of his panel time to urge other candidates to get behind his candidacy as two statewide polls show him to be the one most likely to beat Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

* * * *

CHRISTOPHER told newsmen that a couple of the contending candidates already have indicated a willingness to go with his candidacy.

Speaking in a hotel hallway directly to Waters, Christopher said, "If my own candidacy (according the the polls) were jeopardizing the ticket, I would drop out." Waters, near the bottom in state polls, laughed and traded a couple of friendly quips with Christopher.

There was not much new in the panelists' eight-minute speeches.

Christopher stressed good administration techniques to attack state problems, warned against extremism and intimated his following among minorities and San Francisco election experience make him the man who could get the necessary 23% of the Democratic vote.

Dorn outlined his commitment to passage of a "decency amendment" to restore local control in dealing with sex offenses and "restore morality and decency to our community."

* * * *

FINCH urged positive, vigorous alternatives and warned strongly against giving way, for political gain, to "racists or those who pander to emotional or psychic aberrations."

Knight proposed meeting burgeoning state education costs by charging tuition at the University of California branches and providing for loans to students unable to pay the five-years-after-graduation deferral on repayment of the loan.

Monagan charged the state Democratic administration is "fiscally and morally bankrupt" and cautioned that the fate of 163 elective offices in 1966 hinge upon the kind of gubernatorial candidate the GOP selects.

* * * *

REAGAN decried GOP family feuding and urged unity in helping depict the true picture of California's current troubles as opposed to the opposite and rosy picture the Democrats submit. He credited former governors Earl Warren and Goodwin Knight for beginning the water program which the Democratic administration claims for its own.

Shell compared Gov. Brown to a "spendthrift grandson" who ravages the wealth of a family that has been amassed through several generations.

Waters accused Brown of lying in pushing for legislative pensions and then deserting the measure when the public registered its shock. He made a scarcely veiled reference to Reagan in telling the GOP it cannot afford "a political switch-hitter, or a tyro, or one who appeals only to a minority even within our own party."

At the Saturday-night banquet, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., delivered the main convention address. He strongly denounced "activist right-wing groups" — the "out groups" such as the Free Society Association, whose honorary chairman is Barry Goldwater.

Penguinettes and Penguins at Firehouse

The Long Beach Fire Department was invaded by Penguins Saturday. There were a few Penguinettes in the crowd, too—little girl Penguins, that is.

But don't begin envisioning 23 of the squatty, Antarctic birds waddling around at 100 Magnolia Ave. The Penguins and Penguinettes are members of a Neighborhood Participation Program club for youngsters 6 to 12 years old.

The club's director, Mrs. Bernice Lowery, arranged the tour along with Fire Department Capt. Donald Culberison. It's another step forward in helping the youngsters to develop socially. And they are being educated in municipal operations, too.

McKeever Still in Coma, Condition 'Very Critical'

Mike McKeever, former University of Southern California football star, unknowingly is engaged in the grimmest battle of his 25-year-old life.

The identical twin brother of Marlin McKeever, Los Angeles Rams professional gridiron player, has been unconscious with severe brain damage since a predawn traffic accident Friday in Fountain Valley.

At Long Beach Memorial Hospital, where his pregnant wife, Judy, and brother, Marlin, remain close to his bedside, Mike late Saturday was close to death.

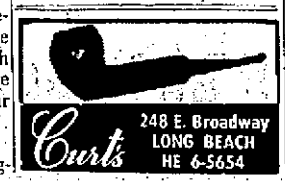

A tracheotomy was performed to aid his breathing, but no surgery had yet been attempted to repair or minimize the injury to his brain. His condition was "unchanged —still very critical."

106 Survive Mid-Air Crash

aboard was a stewardess who had a bloody nose.

Among passengers aboard the TWA plane was Bernard Donovan, superintendent of New York City schools, who said:

"Thank God, our pilots were expert and brought us in. I can tell you everybody on that plane applauded as we landed."

The two airliners collided at 4:28 p.m. EST on a day when American technology was able to safely dispatch two astronauts into space, but was unable to bring two aircraft safely through the traffic pattern of New York's metropolitan airways.

Passengers aboard the two planes reported momentary hysteria but no real panic as the pilots maneuvered them in the chilling moments that followed the collision.

The crash was the third in less than a month involving airliners coming in for what appeared to be routine landings. An American Airlines Boeing 727 went down near Covington, Ky., Nov. 8 with a loss of 58 lives, and on Nov. 11, a United Airlines 727 went down while landing at Salt Lake City, Utah, with 43 killed.

* * * * *

BETTY Owens, 24, of Boston, emerged unscathed with her 14-months-old son from the EAL Constellation after its fiery pancake landing. She said:

"The pilot told us over the loudspeaker to get ready for a crash landing. We had a chance to get our seat belts fastened. Everybody did.

"I don't know how we got out. I was in the back of the plane and it just broke open and I got out. People outside were hollering for the people to get back from the plane."

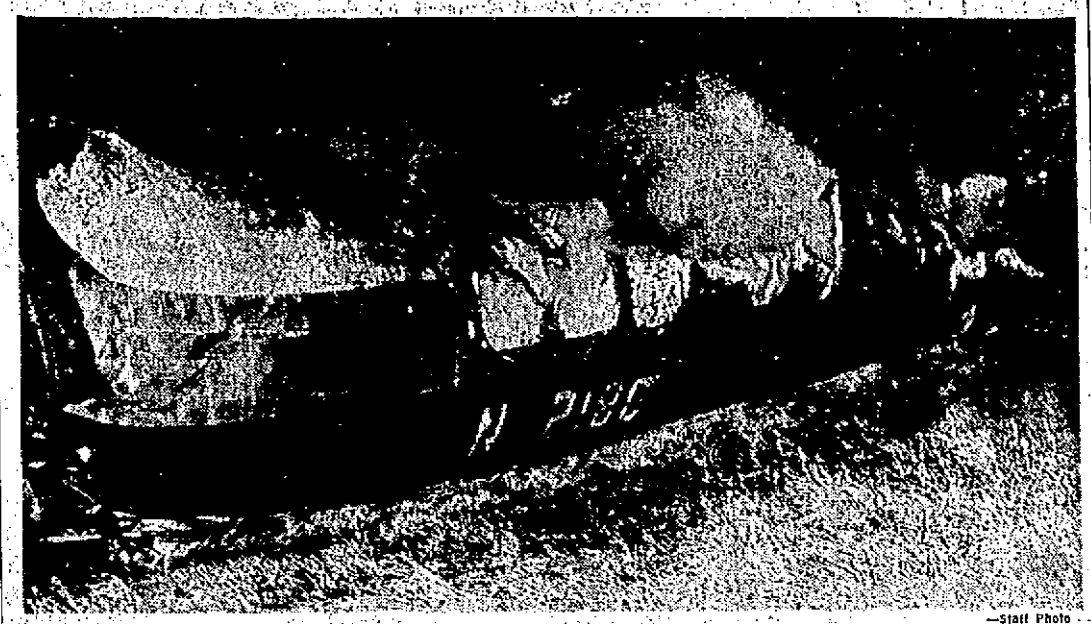

Fred Trenner, of Danbury, Conn., aloft in a small plane in the area, saw the EAL flight crash and declared:

"There was a terrific burst of flame. It didn't appear as if anyone could get out alive."

"Everybody put their heads down and prayed," he said after emerging unhurt. "I guess they prayed. I prayed."

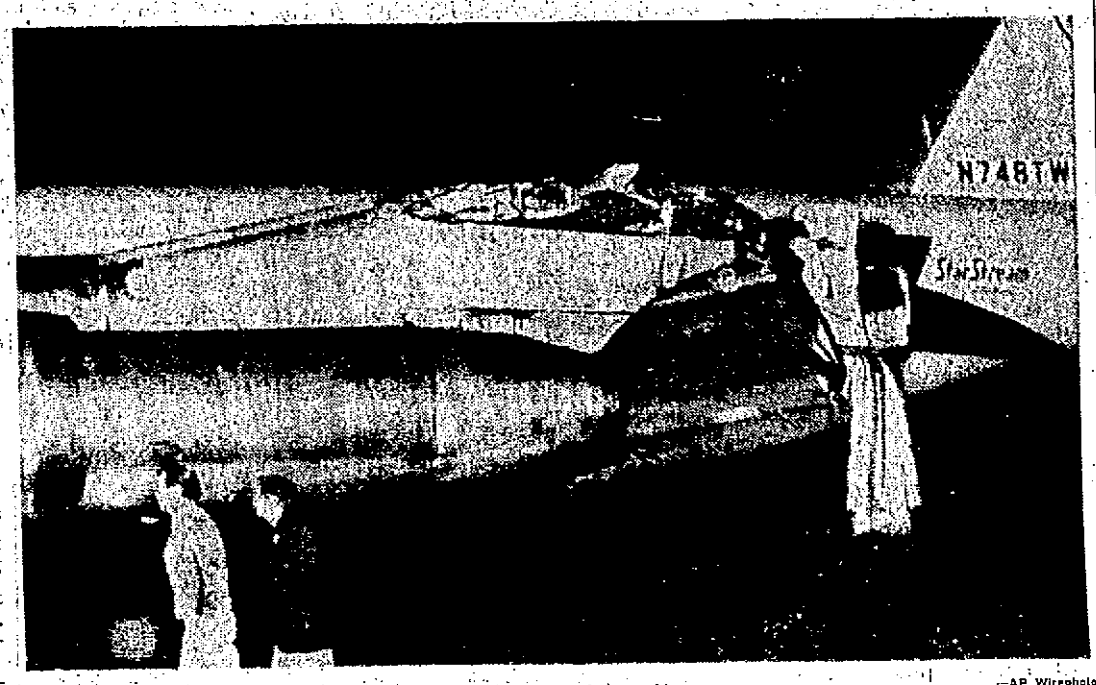

The EAL plane was a flight that left Boston at 3.30 p.m. and was due at Newark Airport at 4:45 p.m.

TWA's Flight 42 was nonstop out of San Francisco. It landed safely at Kennedy Airport at 4:40 p.m., ahead of its schedule.

Will Honor Law Officers

Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess will be the main speaker Tuesday at a special Law Enforcement Night program at the Lafayette Hotel in Long Beach.

The Los Angeles County lawman's talk will be part of the program sponsored by the Harbor Dental Society. In addition, the presentation will include displays and demonstrations of law enforcement equipment by the Long Beach Police Department, the California Highway Patrol, Federal Bureau of Investigation, United States Border Patrol and the Sheriff's Office.

'WE GOT HIT . . . HELP ME!'

2 in Fraternity Initiation Tell of Mid-Air Collision

MOUNT KISCO, N.Y. (AP)—"We had a camera and I was going to take a picture out the window when all of a sudden out of this cloud comes this plane. A red and silver plane."

That was the way 20-year old Bert Pietronski, a passenger on the downed Eastern Air lines plane, described Saturday's aerial sideswipe high over Danbury, Conn.

"Our pilot saw it first and he went up," said the Willington, N.J., college junior. "It was a movement like a draft and he hit us.

"I said to Jeff, 'We got hit by a plane!' and he said, 'We did?' And as soon as he said that the plane went into a kind of spinning dive."

Pietronski and Jeff Klein, both pledges at the Tau Kappa Delta Fraternity at Fairleigh Dickinson College, were aboard the plane as part of a fraternity initiation stunt.

They had been put aboard a plan to Boston with no money, and warned they would have to find a way back by Saturday night.

"Jeff was handcuffed to an attache case," Pieronski said. "It was part of the initiation. And he said 'Help me!' I loosened my seat belt and put my foot on it (the case), and he's a big guy and he jerked up and snapped it loose."

Another passenger, George Rhoads, 38, of Cranford, N.J., confirmed Pietronski's description.

"I can't tell you whether we took the dive first or hit the plane first," Rhoads said. "It knocked us out of control. He came at us from the right side underneath."

Both passengers said the pilot warned that the plane had been hit by another airliner, was out of control and would have to crashland.

"He flew us right into that hill," Rhoads said. "He pancaked it right into the hill. He was fighting it all the way down."

These three passengers escaped serious injury.

In the admitting room of the Danbury Hospital, several miles to the east in Connecticut, another survivor said of the collision:

"Suddenly it was real wild. Our plane went up and down and sideways and around. But we didn't feel hitting anything."

NORTH SALEM, N.Y. (UPI)—Even the terror of an in-flight collision and fiery crash cannot disturb the "cool" composure of some seasoned travelers, or halt their journeys for long.

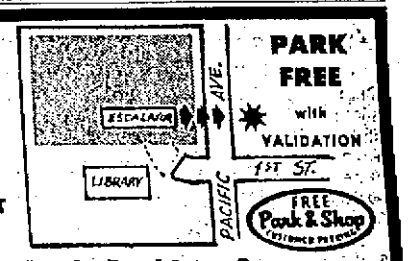

New York State Policeman Lawrence K. Clare said that one woman stepped from the wreckage of the crashed Eastern Air Lines Constellation Saturday night, declared she had tickets for a theater performance in Manhattan that she had to make, and set off on foot down the mountain from the crash scene.

Writer Stabbed

Charles O. Stewart, 48, a reporter and assistant city editor for the Metro-East Journal in East St. Louis, Ill., was beaten and stabbed by three men after leaving a nightclub in nearby Brooklyn, Ill., early Saturday.

Brooklyn Police Chief Carl Patton, said he believed the attack was provoked by gambling articles written by Stewart.

Orbiters Eager for Rendezvous

right on schedule. Late Saturday night mission-control officials at Houston were saying that everything was running smoothly, both with the machine and with the men.

At 10:30 p.m. EST, Gemini 7 began its 6th orbit.

At Cape Kennedy, on launch pad 19 where the Gemini flights began, technicians were working in the evening and throughout the night to get the pad in shape for the ambitous rendezvous attempt by Gemini 6. The first stage of the Titan 2 missile, which is to blast astronauts Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford into the skies, was being erected during the night.

The Gemini-6 capsule, already thoroughly checked out, was to be put atop the second and first stages at noon, and the final checks then can begin for what would be a precedent-smashing "turnaround" on the launch pad.

* * * * *

IF ALL goes well, Schirra and Stafford will pull their Gemini 6 spaceship within a few feet of Gemini 7 and Borman and Lovell on the fourth orbit a week from Monday.

After a stint of formation flying that would be of invaluable assistance to the future of the whole U. S. space program, Gemini 6 would come down on Thursday, Dec. 16. Borman and Lovell would land on Saturday morning, Dec. 18, in plenty of time to rejoin their families for a Christmas holiday that would be memorable for everyone involved.

The countdown for the launch Saturday of Gemini 7 was flawless. With minor problems, so were the initial orbits. There was trouble with the fuel cell, which crippled but did not stop the Gemini 5 flight of L. Gordon Cooper and Charles (Pete) Conrad. This was cleared out with a backup system installed since Cooper and Conrad carried out their trouble-plagued August flight that, up to the end of the Gemini 7 mission, held all space endurance records.

On top of this, Borman and Lovell had trouble with a system called the "Delta P"—a light indicating that something in the fuel cell was malfunctioning. After a series of tests, space officials decided that the trouble lay in the light itself, not the fuel cell.

* * * * *

IN ADDITION, the two rookie astronauts astounded ground officials by reporting that some object—perhaps a strap, a piece of paper, or tape—apparently had come off the spacecraft and hit Lovell's window.

Mission Control was inclined to believe that it was a piece of metal from the strap that, at the start of the mission, holds the Gemini spaceship to the second stage of the booster. When there is a clean separation of the two, the metal would break off. If the break were not clean, a piece could have been left over and broken off when the Gemini's maneuvering thrusters were fired, popping it past Lovell's window.

* * * * *

OTHERWISE, the flight proceeded smoothly. On the fifth orbit, as Gemini 7 sailed high above the Viet Nam battlefields, Command Pilot Borman was resting and Pilot Lovell was handling the controls.

The only mystery to date was the object that flew by the window.

Paul Haney, voice of the astronauts, said the report was "one of the bigger puzzlers" and "certainty was unusual and unexpected."

The incident occurred during the third orbit. It came after Borman and Lovell had fired maneuvering rockets to raise Gemini's low point in orbit. While reporting on this, they said something hit the window.

An incredulous ground communicator asked for details. The crew replied only that the object came from the rear of the spacecraft and bounced off Lovell's window. It apparently did no damage.

After reporting this, Borman and Lovell swept on en route to a record-breaking 206 orbits.

Flight Director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. told a news conference at 7:30 p.m. EST that Mission Control was pleased with the flight, and "I can't see anything at this time that would cause us any concern."

Space officials also reported that Borman and Lovell kept within 50 to 60 feet of their booster on the first orbit when they were practicing flying in formation with it.

* * * * *

THE TWO astronauts saw their booster many times. They also reported seeing another object in space, the identity of which was not known, and a bunch of particles — "very, very, many small particles."

As for the astronauts themselves, Dr. Charles Berry, the chief flight physician, said their status "has been really excellent from the time that they were awakened this morning."

Borman and Lovell, the second generation of U.S. astronauts, were all business early in their flight. It wasn't until the third orbit that Borman described what it was like on his ride, and this was in answer to a question.

"It's great," he said.

* * * * *

THE EARLY stages of the flight were devoted to a formation-flying maneuver with a burned-out section of the Titan booster, which they kept in sight for a considerable period, and several scientific experiments.

At 6:19 p.m. EST, Lovell took the control stick and, using the craft's small maneuvering jets, raised Gemini 7 into an orbit ranging from 138 to 204 miles above earth.

Purpose of the maneuver was to get the ship into an orbit high enough to guarantee a 14-day flight and to prepare Gemini 7 for the anticipated "rendezvous" arrival of Gemini 6.

To adjust the orbit, Lovell had to use slightly more fuel than originally planned. However, officials said, it was nothing to worry about.

Shortly after the flight started, Borman and Lovell reported another problem with the fuel cell, but solved this one by using a valve that had been installed in Gemini 7 as a result of the bad experience in the previous flight.

If all goes as planned, Borman and Lovell will come down in the western Atlantic at 8 a.m. EST two weeks from Saturday after almost doubling the space endurance record set last August by Gemini 5 astronauts L. Gordon Cooper and Charles (Pete) Conrad.

MARILYN Lovell is expecting her fourth child at some point during her husband's long stay in the heavens.

At her home in Seabrook, near here, Mrs. Lovell said she was thrilled to "have one launch off in the Lovell house."

"I'm speechless," she said. "When the launch went off, I felt I was part of Jim. This is the one challenge in life that he's been looking forward to."

The primary purpose of the mission is to test the effect of extended weightlessness on men in preparation for the flight in Project Apollo, the man-to-the-moon mission.

* * * * *

THE ACTUAL moon journey will last a little more than eight days, from takeoff on earth to landing back here, including a brief visit on the moon.

Before their rendezvous attempt with Gemini 6, Borman and Lovell will spend their time carrying out a series of scientific experiments. Two of the most important will involve their own physical condition.

One is to enable scientists to find out what happens to the body's red blood cells in extended flight. The other involves what amount of calcium is lost from the body's bones during a prolonged period of weightless flight.

VOICES OF THE GEMINI

Chitchat and Data from Outer Space

United Press International

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, speaking from space:

In third orbit, after object hit windshield: "looked like a strap, or piece of paper or something of that nature . . . no, it looked like it came from behind, it came up and hit right in front of the right window and bounced off again."

Earlier in the flight, after spotting both familiar and unfamiliar objects: "bogey at 10 o'clock high."

And: "we have the booster in sight . . . a brilliant object . . . it's ahead of us about 2 o'clock (ahead and to the right) and slowly tumbling."

And: "very, very many small particles."

Discussing an instrument light that gave false indication of a malfunction in the power supply:

"The Delta P light . . . is still on."

Three minutes into the flight, overriding takeoff noise: "look good . . . looks good . . . looks good . . ."

Just after seven minutes of flight: "the booster is venting."

Lovell, jokingly pretending that this is just a rehearsal in a flight simulator: "that's the best sim we've had."

Over the Pacific, the coastal sentry Quebec tracking ship asked, "Any plans for your sleep period?"

"We're giving it consideration," came back a voice from space.

Copilot James Lovell, father of three, remembered his Christmas poetry.

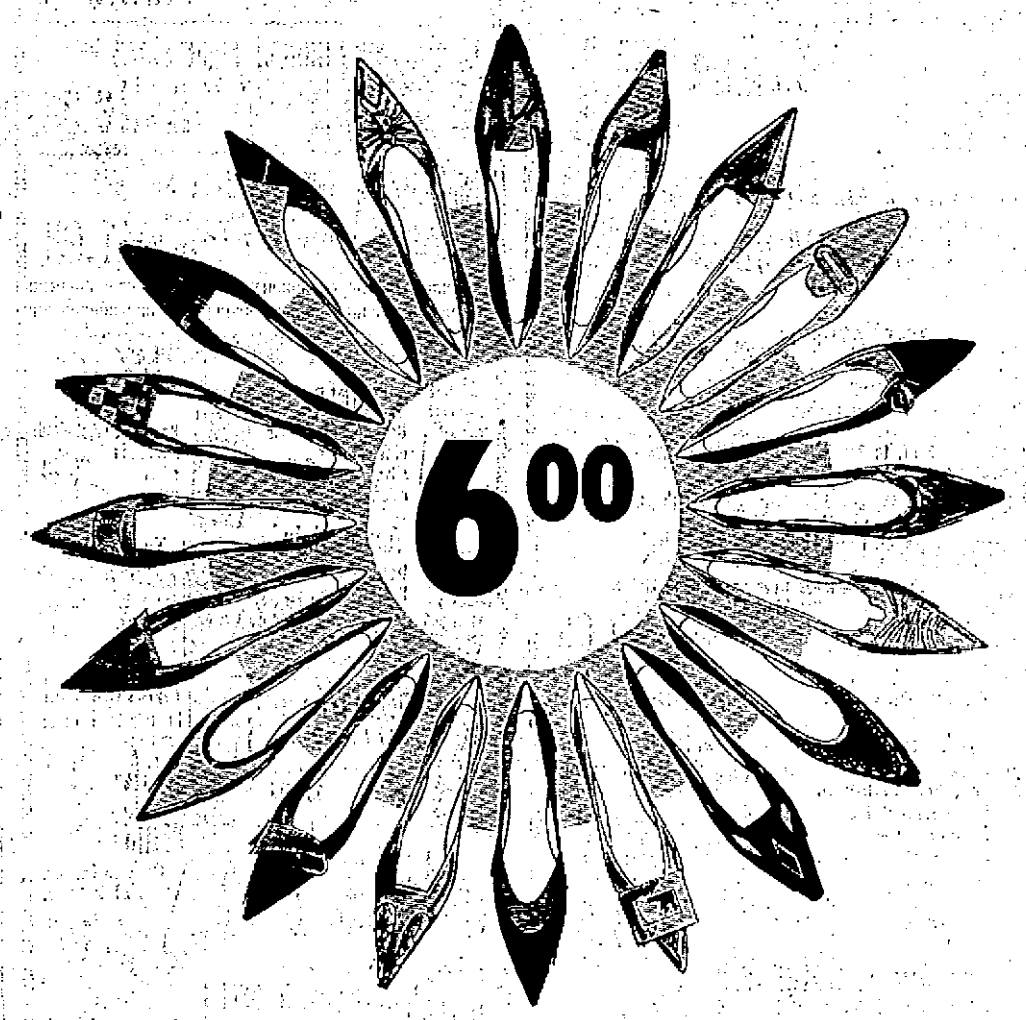

"We're still in the process of settling down for a long winter's flight," he reported in a take-off on Clement Moore's "'Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Wife's Ex-Mate Shot by Doctor

By BILL HAZLETT

A Long Beach doctor shot and seriously wounded his wife's former husband Saturday after the man forced his way into the couple's home.

Nurses at Community Hospital said Doyle W. James, 39, of 11033 Carson Drive, Lynwood, was in serious condition following three hours of surgery for a gunshot wound in his abdomen. James, who was placed under intensive care, also was wounded in the left foot.

JAMES

Patrolman Bob Carabine said the shooting took place shortly after 2 p.m. at the home of Dr. Frank G. Philo, 48, at 7146 Mezzanine Way.

Homicide Sergeants Frank Welch and Bob Castillo made a preliminary investigation, and no charges were filed.

Mrs. Joan Philo, 34, told Officer Carabine she was in the living room of their home when she saw her former husband approach the house, then heard him pounding on the door demanding entrance.

* * * *

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE said she went to her husband, who was lying down watching television, and told him James was at the door. Dr. Philo told Officer Carabine he dressed, placed a .32-calibre automatic pistol in his pocket and went to the door.

The doctor said he asked James to leave, then ordered him to get away from the house. James, according to Dr. Philo, ignored the warnings and barged into the home, advancing on the couple.

Dr. Philo told police he pulled the pistol from his pocket and again ordered James to leave. When James continued to threaten, the doctor said, he fired "two or three warning shots" into the floor.

* * * *

DESPITE the shots, Dr. Philo said, James pressed his advance until the doctor shot him in the foot. The wound only enraged James, Dr. Philo said.

In his statement to investigating officers, Dr. Philo said he was afraid James would harm either him or his wife, so he fired another shot.

The slug struck James in the stomach and he crumpled to the floor.

Officer Carabine said Mrs. Philo told police her former husband had been harassing her for several months. She said he was arrested Oct. 2, 1965, on charges of disorderly conduct and drinking in public. Records show James was found guilty and fined $50 on Oct. 18, 1965.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Advance Tip on Saigon Blast

SAIGON (UPI) — American authorities were reported Saturday night to have received an advance tip from Vietnamese intelligence on the terrorist bombing of a U.S. military billet and dispensary that killed 10 persons and wounded more than 175 others early Saturday.

A Vietnamese police source said Vietnamese intelligence agents learned of the Communist plan to bomb the Metropole bachelor enlisted men's quarters and informed American authorities of the plot 10 days ago both verbally and by secret memorandum.

An American spokesman denied the report, saying "we had no indication the billet would be bombed."

Plan to Topple Rhodesians

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—The 36-nation Organization of African Unity (OAU) drew up Saturday night a secret plan designed to topple the rebel Rhodesian regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Conference Chairman Kojo Botsio of Ghana announced a five-nation committee has been empowered to take "all possible means including the use of force to end the southern Rhodesia crisis." On the committee are Ghana, Egypt, Tanzania, Zambia and Kenya.

HHH Meets With VDC

MOFFETT FIELD, Dec. 4 (AP)—Vice President Hubert Humphrey met face to face behind closed doors Saturday with representatives of an anti-war group whose leaflets now are reaching U.S. troops in Viet Nam.

With newsmen barred at his request, Humphrey said he traded views and arguments for 20 minutes with six members of the Vietnam Day Committee, a group which has tried unsuccessfully to stop troop trains and march on Oakland army terminal, overseas sailing point for Viet Nam.

"They were very polite, they clearly expressed their point of view, but we did not agree," the vice president told newsmen after the meeting.

The meeting was hastily arranged only several hours before Humphrey left Moffett Field, near San Francisco, by jet for speaking engagements in Seattle.

Boy Friend Visits Lynda Bird

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—Lynda Bird Johnson, back from Mexico, got a tour of the central Texas hill country Saturday with a boy friend. The chauffeur: President Johnson.

The White House declined to identify Lynda's friend but natives who saw them on the highway described him as tall, dark and handsome.

This description happens to fit Hollywood actor George Hamilton, member of a millionaire Florida family.

GIs En Route to Bangkok

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI)—Two U.S. soldiers released a week ago after two years imprisonment by the Viet Cong will leave here today for Bangkok where they will report to American authorities.

An official source said Sgt. George Smith of Chester, W. Va., and Spec. 4 Claude McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn., would be accompanied by an Australian diplomat on an Air France flight to the Thailand capital.

Teachers Supported

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)— The Newark Teachers Union (NTU) whose members defied a court order and struck the city's public-school system Thursday, received support Saturday from the nationwide American Federation of Teachers.

The executive council of the 115,000-member federation, meeting in Chicago, unanimously passed a resolution calling for a "bona fide collective bargaining agent election." The NTU is the local unit of the federation.

* * * *

IN ANOTHER development Saturday, the superintendent of schools in Elizabeth, John E. Dwyer, confirmed that he had provided the Newark system with a list of substitute teachers "as a courtesy."

The president of the Elizabeth Teachers Union, Gerald Williamson, objected to what he termed "the Elizabeth board of education's compliance with the strikebreaking efforts of the Newark board of education."

WHEN WATTS RIOT RAGED

problem is as urgent as is the Los Angeles City Hall distant from Watts.

Compton, 13th largest city in Los Angeles County, is part of the intestinal knot of suburban communities which huddle on the underbelly of Los Angeles. It is the only integrated community within the immediate area of the Los Angeles riots.

Watts, part of Los Angeles, and Willowbrook, a densely populated but unincorporated county area abutting Compton, were under mob rule on Friday the 13th of August.

There were compelling reasons to believe a spark might be enough to explode the sociological time-bomb that was Compton. This was no spark. Mass hysteria directed in blowtorch fury and at point-blank range pressured blue flame at the frustrations in Compton. The city heaved in agony.

No one took the time to chalk up the facts on the board, but if they had, the situation would have appeared even more futile.

On the bad side:

1 — Some of Compton's Negroes live in dirt-poor poverty, owning little, daring to hope for little more and resenting their plight in an opulent society with a blind fury born of collective frustration. Their few contacts with Caucasians are unpleasant and often, into the raw wounds of their frustration is rubbed the salt of gratuitous denigration.

They would have, in their own minds, little, if anything, to lose by rioting and a chance of gain—if only to register their frustration.

2 — Even among the Negroes in Compton who have found their place under the sun—who have jobs, hopes for the future and a chance of maintaining personal dignity—not all was well. The burden of being a Negro is occasionally infuriating, often frustrating. "Even the white liberals put us down," says one Negro intellectual. "They speak often and eloquently about our rights and integration, but when we move into their neighborhood, they move out."

3—Caucasians in Compton had watched Negroes move into the city with growing alarm. Gradually, what some termed a "black tide" had moved across the city until now more Negroes than whites lived there. The change frightened off some investors. Compton business, some said, was stagnating because of the influx. Many whites had moved out of the city. Many of those who remained were bitter. Their way of life, they were convinced, had been disrupted.

On the good side:

1 — For more than five years, conscious attempts had been made to discuss Compton's problems openly and to broaden the middle ground in which Negroes and Caucasians gained understanding of each other. The program was aimed at melting the bigotry of either side.

2 — The Compton Police Department was integrated, as were the schools and many business houses in the city. Two Negroes served effectively on the City Council and a Negro city clerk recently had been elected. Compton Negroes, unlike their counterparts in Los Angeles, could find a ready audience for their problems.

3—Compton Negro leaders were determined to try to keep the city from becoming a Negro ghetto. They worked earnestly with Caucasians to encourage whites to stay in the city.

Compton had one notable plus factor lacking in Los Angeles: communications between Negroes and whites.

It also had a chilling fact missing in the Los Angeles riot area.

* * * *

THE BATTLE cry of the rioters, screamed frenetically into television microphones in South Los Angeles, Watts and Willowbrook was "Get Whitey." No Caucasians, though, could be found in Watts or Willowbrook. In Compton, though, it was different.

Whitey was there.

Los Angeles, the city they said couldn't blow up in racial rebellion was in massive explosion.

Compton, long recognized as a sociological time bomb, belched raw emotion.

* * * *

GLASS crashed in store windows. Fire sirens wailed in the night. Terrified, most residents locked themselves in their homes. Some had fled. Many businesses had been abandoned. Evidences of panic and the fury of mob hysteria were everywhere.

If the Negro community in Compton joined the revolt, Acting Police Chief Arthur Thomas knew, the city was doomed.

He told his feelings to other officials who agreed and asked hopelessly, "What can 96 policemen do against 40,000 persons?"

The answer was obvious.

PARADE'S CHRISTMASY, WEATHER ISN'T
An estimated 70,000 persons lined Compton Boulevard Saturday to witness the 15th Annual Christmas Parade in 82-degree weather more suited to summer. These Christmas cookies from Compton High School Drill Team were among 100 entries including movie and television personalities, bands and floats. The parade is sponsored by the Compton Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Santa Kept Rendezvous With Kids, His Chutist Aide One With Death

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UPI)—A crowd of 5,000 persons, mostly children, expectantly watched an airplance circle over the Northtowne Shopping Center Saturday.

The plane was carrying Santa Claus and his helper from the North Pole. Santa was to land with a bagful of toys in an open circle in the parking lot.

Whoops, screams and waves went up from the excited youngsters as the plane's door opened and Santa's helper appeared. He waved to the throng below and jumped from the plane.

As planned, Santa's helper released a smoke bomb tied to his body. All the kids could see was a small white cloud heading earthward.

A louder roar went up when Santa stepped to the plane's door and jumped. Santa was clearly visible as his parachute opened and he floated down to land amid the crowd. He waved and went into his Christmas shack.

At about the same time, the crushed body of Connie O'Rourke, 40, who played the role of Santa's helper, was found in the backyard of Dr. C. V. McIntosh, three blocks west and one block south of the shopping center.

Authorities said O'Rourke's chute failed to open when the rip cord became entangled in the smoke bomb rigging. He fell 1,000 feet while struggling to free the jam, they said.

Bill Fleming, 29, who was the parachuting "Santa Claus", could not believe it happened.

"Connie was a professional's professional. He had almost 1,000 jumps to his credit, he was experienced and safe. He's done this type of Santa Claus thing many times," Fleming said.

The crowd at the shopping center was unaware of the tragedy.

Home Burgled

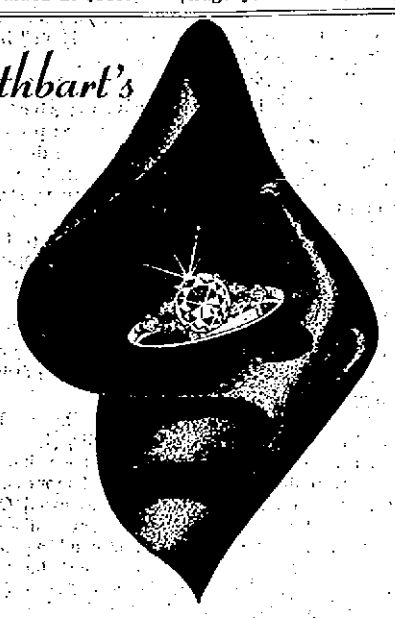

A prowler forced open a sliding glass door Saturday to invade the home of Douglas D. McFarlin, at 5659 Corso di Napoli. Police said the thief took a pair of binoculars, a radio, camera, pellet gun and clothing valued at $535.

A 60-year-old Long Beach woman was killed Saturday night in a two-car pileup at 14th Street and Pacific Avenue at 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Mildred A. Rehn of 1723 E. Wardlow Road was dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital.

She was the second person to die in a Long Beach traffic accident Saturday and the 53rd to die thus far in 1965.

* * * * *

TWO SEAMEN from the USS Princeton were treated at the same hospital for minor injuries resulting from the collision.

Patrolman Larry Ondrick said the driver of the other car, Michael D. Bland, 19, was jailed on suspicion of manslaughter after he admitted failing to halt for a stop sign and driving at an excessive speed. He said he speeded up in an attempt to avoid striking Mrs. Rehn's auto.

Donald L. Crammer, 19, who was riding with Bland, was released to Navy authorities, Ondrick said.

Police said Mrs. Rehn, alone in her car, was northbound on Pacific when Bland's eastbound car slammed into her vehicle.

EARLIER SATURDAY, a Harbor City man was killed when his auto hit a bus on Terminal Island and a Downey woman was critically injured when her car was hit by a train in Downey.

A headon collision late Friday night in Downey killed one man and injured two others.

Manuel B. Betancourt, 42, of 1223 255th St., Harbor City, was thrown from his car and killed when his auto slammed into a Terminal Island Transit Co. bus at 3:30 a.m.

* * * * *

DOWNEY POLICE said an auto being driven by Helen Joan Shipley, 43, of 9308 Dalewood Avenue, stalled on the Southern Pacific tracks at Downey Avenue and was hit by a diesel switch engine.

The victim underwent surgery at Downey Community Hospital following the 9:30 a.m. accident and was reported in critical condition late Saturday night.

The head-on collision occurred on Telegraph Road east of the Rio Hondo in Downey and Wilfred Aubit, 31, of Huntington Park, was pronounced dead on arrival at Downey Community Hospital shortly after 11 p.m. Friday. Police said Aubit's car swerved across the center line and crashed into a car driven by William Merle Evans, 41, of Pico Rivera. Evans suffered minor injuries, as did Edward Lawrence Cassidy, 26, of 8286 Telegraph Road, Downey, driver of a third car which was involved in the accident moments later.

Slain Oil Tycoon's Ex Weds

Mrs. Sara Bartholomae, of Newport Beach, former wife of the late multimillionaire oilman William A. Bartholomae, was married Saturday in Avalon Harbor to Emle L. Launder, a Whittier businessman.

The new Mrs. Launder, 47, received a $5.5-million divorce settlement in 1962 from the oil tycoon. Bartholomae, 70, was stabbed to death by his sister-in-law Jan. 5, 1964, at his palatial Newport Beach Home.

The wedding took place at noon aboard the late oilman's 97-foot yacht, Sea Diamond. A Thanksgiving Day ceremony had been planned. No reason was given for the postponement.

It was the bride's third marriage, Launder's second.

Haste Urged in Tidelands Development

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — World crude oil production from offshore installations now exceeds four million barrels a day.

This is equivalent to about 16% of total world production outside Communist bloc nations.

"The future undoubtedly will see this percentage substantially increased," Dr. Charles F. Jones, president of the Humble Oil & Refining Co., said this week.

He said about one-sixth of the world's proven oil reserves lie offshore.

Jones made his status report on offshore oil production trends at a New York City industrial seminar.

He suggested that oil and other industries intensify planning and research aimed at developing mineral resources lying beyond the continental shelf. Delay, he said, could mean possible loss of such resources to faster moving foreign countries and to foreign industry.

* * * *

THE RECENTLY ratified treaty of the international convention on the continental shelf grants the right to develop resources beyond the shelf "to those nations who first develop the technology to exploit them."

"We may be facing an international underwater treasure hunt with the winner's share going to the country with the best sea science," said Jones, holder of a doctor of philosophy degree in chemistry.

"Considering the social and economic potential of the ocean, this country's industry cannot afford to remain becalmed by indifference.

Humble, the domestic operator for the Standard Oil Co., completed its first offshore oil discovery in 1948 off the Louisiana coast. Since then Humble has pushed its explorations to a record water depth of 632 feet.

* * * *

JONES SAID explorations at this and greater depths will require devevelopment of new concepts that will challenge the imagination and creativity of businessmen.

"We are already drilling in deeper water than human beings can really effectively operate," he said. "The recent Sealab experiment will help tell us some of the things we must know, but there is much more to be learned."

Jones said ocean explorations offer many potential benefits in addition to possible discovery of oil and gas.

Humble's offshore explorations for oil led to the 1958 discovery of major sulphur deposits under 45 feet of water six miles from the Louisiana coast. The sulphur was found in the caprock of a salt dome 1,700 feet below the floor of the Gulf of Mexico. Much oil has been produced from such geological formations along the Louisiana and Texas coast, both onshore and offshore.

* * * *

JONES SAID industries should become more interested in the potential wealth that lies within ocean waters and below ocean floors with an objective of exploring "anywhere in any ocean in the world."

Such potentials, he said, include phosphorite and manganese.

A California scientist has estimated there is 1½ billion tons of phosphorite, a key component in fertilizers, from 200 to 1,000 feet off the Pacific coast.

"As an example of the potential value of metals on the sea floor, there are some concentrations of manganese modules on the bottom that may be worth up to $10 million a square mile," Jones said.

"At present, the United States imports almost all of the manganese used in steel."

Prison Ban on Beards Upheld

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that federal prisoners can legally be required to shave off beards.

The court said clean shaves provide for smarter appearance, better sanitation and frustrate any attempt to use a beard in an escape plot.

Meet to Discuss Use of A-Energy for Oil

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) —Use of nuclear energy in petroleum exploration and a report from a member of President Johnson's new public land law review commission will be top agenda items when oil and gas conservationists meet here Monday.

Members of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, a weighty, but powerless body which includes state regulatory officials and leaders of the petroleum industry, started registrations today for their annual meeting, which will last through Wednesday.

Attendants from 33 states is expected to exceed 700, including the governors of at least five states.

H. Byron Mock of Salt Lake City, Utah, vice chairman of the New Review Commission, will address the public lands committee of the interstate group on Monday.

* * * * *

PRESIDENT Johnson appointed Mock two months ago. The review commission will look into all laws affecting public lands. There has been some indication Mock and other commission members may broaden their studies to delve into oil imports and examine the industry's 27.5% depletion tax allowance.

Mock's appearance will be one of the first chances oil industry leaders have had to hear a member of the review commission. The body's actions will be of great interest to the industry.

Three representatives of the U.S. Bureau of Mines will appear at another Monday committee session to talk about "Project Gasbuggy," which will experiment with the use of nuclear explosions for the first time in search for gas or oil deposits.

The Atomic Energy Commission and El Paso Natural Gas Co. tentatively plan to carry out the Gasbuggy experiment next fall near Farmington, N.M.

De Gaulle Has Women Vote in Test Today

PARIS (UPI)—If President Charles de Gaulle wins re-election today he will have to take a bow and say "merci, mesdames."

Once again, the 75-year-old French leader will have carried the day thanks largely to the solid support of woman voters. A majority of French women have voted for De Gaulle since World War II.

Women outnumber men substantially in France. The interior ministry says that of the 28 million registered voters Sunday 15.5 will be women and 12.5 men.

The traditional feminine backing for De Gaulle has prompted his political opponents to turn all their charm on the women voters with promises of a better life for them if they help them get elected.

But De Gaulle seems to have a good start on his rivals, even the handsome leftist Francois Mitterand, 49, and Catholic moderate Jean Lecanuet, 45.

* * * *

MILLIONS OF women remember it was De Gaulle who first gave French women the right to vote in 1945 while the din of battle still echoed across Europe.

Until then, women had no equal political rights in a country which produced the 1791 Declaration of the Rights of Man. Pre-war governments, including the Communist-backed Popular Front cabinet of 1936, paid scant attention to women's demands for political and social equality, though in most other European democracies women were given the right to vote right after World War I.

Men were scarce and pampered in France after World War I in which 1.5 million Frenchmen were killed and 4.5 million mained. Men took precedence everywhere and an inferior political and social condition for women was an accepted fact of life in France.

The net result of De Gaulle's decision to let women vote and be elected has been steady support for him among female voters. Only the small Catholic Popular Republican (MRP) Party can claim the same large proportion of woman voters in its ranks as the Gaullist Union for the New Republic (UNR)—52%.

The proportion of woman voters is much lower among leftist parties.

* * * *

GAULLIST officials claim De Gaulle made a big hit with the women again this fall when he pushed through parliament legislation scrapping most of the humiliating subordination of French women to their husbands.

The law, which goes into effect Feb. 1, 1966, will for the first time permit French wives to do things their American, British or German counterparts have long been allowed to do. They will be free to open their own bank accounts, open shops without the prior consent of their husbands or seek prompt legal protection against a husband's wasteful spending of joint property.

De Gaulle's main political adversary, leftist Mitterand, seems to have gained points with French women when he entered the presidential campaign proposing to do away with legislation banning the sale of contraceptives in France. The government realized the danger and ordered the health ministry to produce an early report on the subject which so far has been taboo in France.

Peace Corps Entry Test Slated Monday

Peace Corps placement tests will be given Monday at 3 p.m. in room 2 of the Long Beach Post Office, Third Street and Long Beach Boulevard.

The test measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language, not education or achievement. The placement test takes about an hour and a half. An optional achievement test for applicants who have studied French or Spanish requires another hour.

SEEMINGLY IMPOSSIBLE SUCCESSES RECALLED

French President's Re-election Seen Almost Certain

By LARRY ALLISON
L.A. P-T Staff Writer

(While a resident correspondent in West Germany, Mr. Allison had numerous opportunities to observe the French political process.)

Charles de Gaulle, although his re-election today is almost a certainty, has been trimmed down to size somewhat in the past week. His countrymen, long deprived of any real variety in their political diet, responded immediately when their president's five weak opponents got their first chance at free time on French TV. The public opinion polls showed a sharp drop in De Gaulle's popularity with the voters, from 66% to 51%.

More than ever, the old general seemed to have become a political figure of heroic stature—bigger than life, but less than colossal.

* * * *

BUT IS THIS an accurate appraisal? If nothing else, the world ought to have learned by now to judge De Gaulle not from the happenings of the moment, but from a longer-range point of view. History may prove not only that De Gaulle was right in his major proposals, but also that everything he fought for—and against—was best for France, for Europe, and possibly for the world.

At the moment, history seems to be leaving the 75-year-old French president behind. He seems almost an anachronism—an obstructionist doomed to replacement by younger and more progressive leaders, battling pointlessly against the eager growth of the Common Market; opposing a NATO alliance that is supported strongly by all 15 members except France, and striving fruitlessly to hold back West Germany and Great Britain in their roles in Europe's destiny.

All his campaigns seem to be losing ones. De Gaulle easily can be made to appear a Quixotic character, incredibly detached from reality.

* * * *

BUT IT MUST be remembered that this was his first public image when he appointed himself leader of the Free French in World War II—and yet he emerged eventually triumphant, the very symbol of a liberated France. Again in 1962, his clash with some of his country's top generals on the Algerian crisis seemed at first suicidal for both him and France—yet both emerged unscathed, relieved of a crippling war that was leading nowhere.

Aside from his current image, is he in fact losing his various campaigns? The truth is, he may get exactly what he wants—a lessening of U.S. influence in Europe, a Common Market in which France is indisputably the leader; a NATO structure reformed to fit modern conditions rather than those of the era for which it was designed; and reduced influence for Germany and Britain.

* * * *

DE GAULLE has dragged his heels in the Common Market simply because he does not want France to be lost in any headlong rush toward formation of a United States of Europe. His motives were selfish, to be sure. But what other country should play the dominant role in such a transformation? Germany, although industrially more powerful than France, is hopelessly at a disadvantage so long as it remains divided—half of its territory in the hands of potential blackmailers behind the Iron Curtain. Great Britain, on the other hand, suffers from endless economic difficulties, its Labor government is operating from a position of numerical weakness, and its tradition in affairs of the Continent is too much one of separation—not involvement.

Now, with all the Common Market countries helplessly looking toward Paris for word when they can resume progress, De Gaulle is beginning to hint that he may relent and permit Britain to approach the market's bargaining table. This is merely the first clue that his opposition is not necessarily permanent.

As for NATO, De Gaulle is at least partly right in demanding changes. His challenge admittedly has sent a scare through Washington and other Western capitals. But at the same time, it has renewed other members' determination to salvage the alliance, and this is bound to have some constructive results. And though De Gaulle is slow to admit it publicly, he, too, knows the value of NATO's protection should grievous danger ever arise.

PERHAPS he is right, also, in opposing nuclear responsibility in the hands of West Germany. His unequivocal stand is embarrassing to Washington and is an agonizing turn of events for Bonn. But everyone, Bonn included, knows that the timing is not right for divided Germany to gain any real access to nuclear arms. Even a compromise along these lines makes for sticky going in efforts to shape a nuclear non-proliferation agreement.

Finally, De Gaulle has been ridiculed for what seems to be an attempt to keep Western Europe a collection of small and ineffectual states—to prevent formation of a political federation that could become a great world power. But are his tactics purely negative?

* * * *

IT SEEMS far more likely that De Gaulle, who never has lacked in foresight, actually visualizes some sort of European federation. For him, it probably is a simple matter of waiting for the right circumstances. France for seven years has weathered De Gaulle's first project—the strengthening of its governmental structure; it now has its own nuclear force, however small and impractical that force may be; it is trying on its own to reach a detente with the Soviet Union; West Germany and Britain have had to alter their ambitions at the whim of the French leader, the United States is being forced to reduce its European military presence, at least in France.

Now, with these feats either accomplished or in the works, why shouldn't De Gaulle permit a gradual movement toward a European federation, maintaining at least some semblance of national identities?

In this light, De Gaulle seems less puzzling, and the views of his political opponents are less dramatically in conflict with his. All of De Gaulle's past negativism and obstructionism suddenly takes on a positive hue, because, after all, if Europe ever does unite and realize its tremendous potential, the logical capital for such a federation—politically, militarily, economically and even geographically—might be none other than Paris.

TRIPLE FIRST

Three generations of the same family, by no coincidence, joined at Long Beach last week to participate in a special occasion—the first ride in a jetliner by James S. Douglas Jr., four-year-old grandson of Donald W. Douglas. The boy's father, right, is president of Dowalco, a Santa Monica manufacturing concern. The three Douglases were passengers on a twin-jet DC9 during a demonstration and test flight from the Douglas plant here.

Longest Suspension Span in Europe Nearly Ready

LISBON, Portugal, (AP) — Europe's longest suspension bridge is taking on a finished look. The 150-foot center section was put into place this week, leaving about 300 feet of side spans to be filled before the 3,323-foot bridge is complete.

It will cross the mouth of the Tagus River, linking Portugal's industrial north and agricultural south. Four traffic lanes will handle 6,000 vehicles an hour. A dozen ferries will be retired. Later the government plans to add a double-track railway to end a 180-mile detour around the estuary.

Total cost is $75 million. A contract with U.S. Steel was signed in 1962, incorporating a $55 million loan from the Export-Import Bank to be amortized in 20 years.

It's expected the bridge will be operating for Prime Minister Antonio Salazar's 77th birthday in April. It may be named for him.

Wilson Alumni Choir in Naples Event

Marking its 20th year as a participant in the Naples Caroling Parade, Wilson High Alumni Choir, made up of over 60 voices will join the festive "Christmas Afloat" on Dec. 18 and 19.

The choir was one of the first to appear in the traditional Naples Christmas Pageant when it was started 20 years ago. Phillip Ellithorpe and Robert Pachen direct the group.

This year floats for choirs are being especially designed by Mark McClure and his committee.

Other caroling groups appearing include: Dominguez High School Choir, Rancho Alamitos High School Choir, Wassail Singers, Savanna High, Sunset Singers, Artesia High Choir and Belmont Choraleers.

Radar Identifies Thrush 3 Mi. Away

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Glen Schaefer uses radar to identify a thrush at three miles.

Dr. Schaefer, a theoretical physicist born in Kitchener, Ont., built his personal radar at a cost of $560, utilizing army surplus equipment. It is on a farm, sunk partly below ground level to eliminate echoes from nearby trees and buildings.

"The blip which appears on my radar screen is of little use for identification purposes," he says. "But electrical impulses collected by the radar set from a bird in flight can be put through other electronic apparatus to show a very much magnified image.

"BY COMPARING this image with slow motion film taken of birds in normal flight, the species can be identified by its wing-beat pattern and other factors.

"I have no difficulty following a duck at five miles, and I can identify individual members of the thrush family quite easily. All the radar experts said it was not possible to get the wing-beat pattern by radar, but I have proved them wrong."

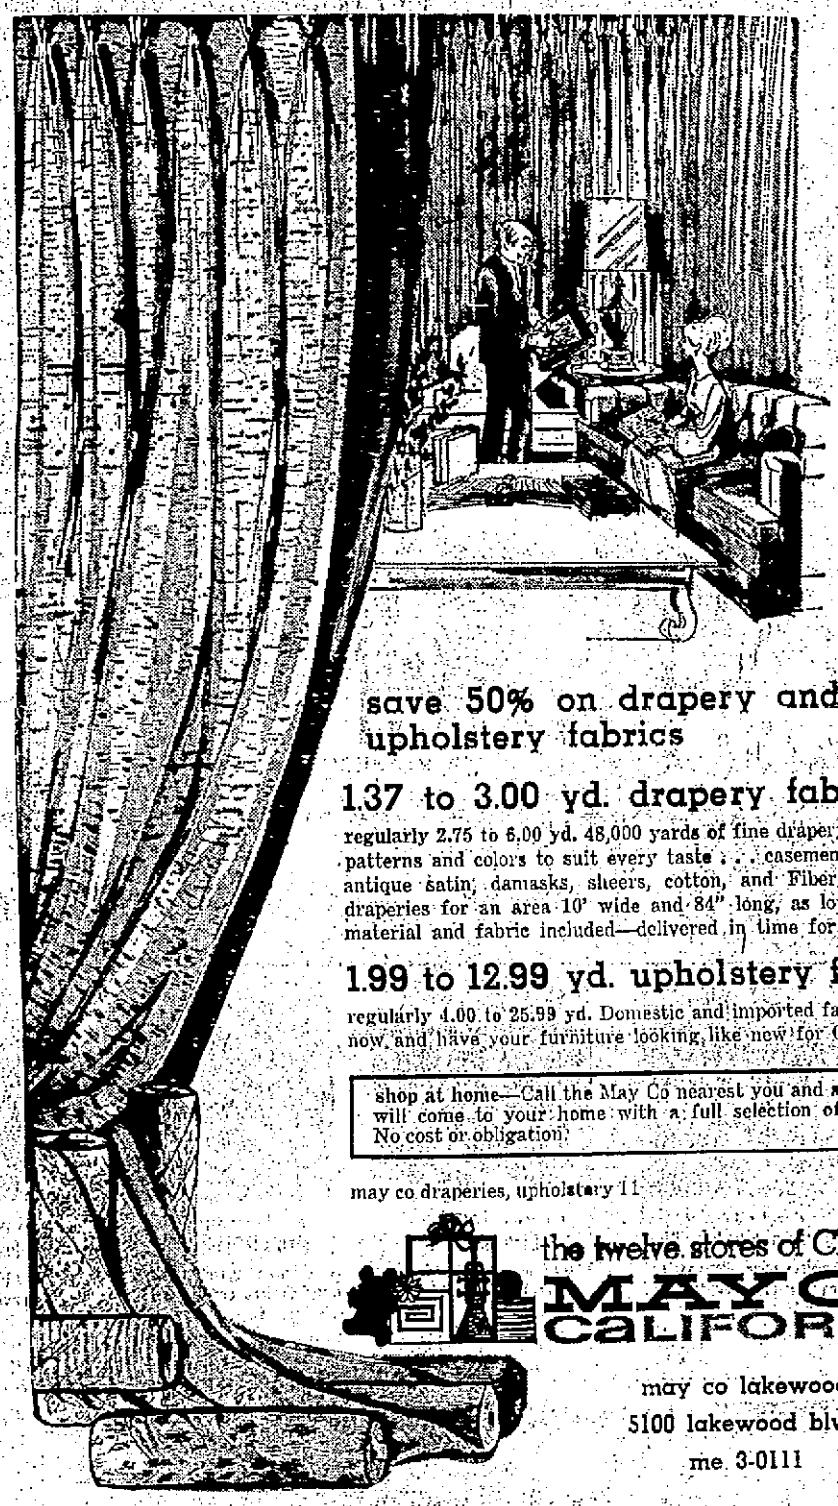

The aviation ministry is inquiring to see if this system might help with the problem of flocks that are a threat to jet aircraft at airfields. Defense researchers see a possible application in identifying missiles or satellites.

PROJECT CAMELOT STORY REVEALED

How Secret Pentagon Program Was Shot Down

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — It started as an idea in an obscure Pentagon office.

The idea: To study some five foreign countries to see if any patterns could be found that would help in predicting insurrection against incumbent governments and subsequent communist takeovers. Conversely, to see if there was any thing that might be done to foster constructive change in such countries to give them more order and stability.

It soon had a name: Project Camelot.

It soon had a name: Project Camelot.

But before it even got past the planning stage, Project Camelot was shot down in flames.

Why? It came to light in Cile. An allegedly communist newspaper, El Siglo (The Century), played it big and in a light calculated to embarass Uncle Sam.

It was an Army project, but the U.S. ambassador to Chile did not know about it. He complained to the State Departments.

The Chileans didn't like the idea, either, and the result was cancellation of Project Camelot.

* * * * *

THE WHOLE story—or as much as can be told now—is spread out in hitherto secret testimony published by a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee headed by Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla.

Fascell's group last July and August questioned Lt. Gen. William W. Dick Jr., director of the Army Research and Development Department, officials of the private university group they contracted with to perform the study, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The committee also made some recommendations, including "a focal point for the clearance of all foreign policy-related research in the behavioral sciences."

* * * *

THE COMMITTEE complained of interdepartmental rivalry and Fascell said during the hearings:

"I am more than distressed, of course, that (the U.S. ambassador to Chile's) wires and comments were leaked to U.S. Press . . . it seems clear that a steady stream of leaked material from State Department sources) was directed at cancellation of 'Project Camelot.'"

Rusk commented, "The indication that there was a leak is fairly strong."

Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., told Rusk "I am amazed to find that there was this great lack of coordination here in our own country with regard to this project."

Rusk said, "To be very frank, sir, I think this was a horse that got out before we realized that somebody ought to be thinking about the barn door. I needn't kid the committee . . .

"I would say this could have been handled better . . . I was not sufficiently aware of it . . .

* * * *

BUT DICK testified that his State Department counterparts were repeatedly briefed on the development of Project Camelot.

The planning was contracted out to the Special Operations Research Office (SORO) of the American University in Washington.

Dr. Theodore Vallance, who was in charge of it for SORO, said that before it ever got around to selecting actual countries to be studied, a colleague who was going to Chile anyway offered to make some inquiries in the academic community there about how it would be received.

Vallance said while there, he encountered, according to his later report, generally favorable attitudes toward the idea of this kind of research.

"He also, perhaps inevitably, managed to get his thoughts into the ears of some people who were skeptical and this led to a chain of communications which apparently got into the hands of people who were involved in the communist movement in Chile. This led to its appearing in the local newspapers. This then kicked up all the fuss."

Several committee members said in spite of the blowup they favor the idea of Project Camelot.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., said "I think the kind of research that has been projected, even the Camelot research, is very useful . . . (even though) it may have gotten off on the wrong foot."

* * * * *

JUST WHAT kind of information was the army after? Dick said:

"We are trying to train our people how to do their job amongst these people if and when we are assigned a mission."

When it comes down to the brass tacks of actually helping to fight insurgency in a critical situation, he said, "we cannot know too much about the social pattern and stresses within the foreign country . . .

"I cannot deny that there was an embarrassing incident in Chile due to the ambassador's not having been informed of certain things under way there. I would point out, however, that this is a deficiency in performance, not in planning . . .

At any rate, Dick summed up, "Camelot as it was conceived up to the moment of cancellation is totally dead."

Fascell commented, "I think the Project Camelot is dead. I don't think the purpose, the scope and the ambitions for the research are dead."

Dick: "They are not, definitely not."

Voters Free to Sign at Libraries

By DON BRACKENBURY
I-P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The second "voter registration night" will be held Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. at public libraries throughout Los Angeles County, including 18 in the Long Beach area.

Deputy registrars of voters, in most cases volunteers from the League of Women Voters, will staff the one-night registration centers.

A similar registration night was observed Nov. 1, and another is scheduled for early January.

Deadline for registering to vote in the June 7 primary election is not until April 14, but County Registrar of Voters Benjamin S. Hite urged all persons who are not registered to take advantage of the library registration centers.

* * * * *

COUNTY librarian William S. Geller said registration in no way will interfere with regular library service. County libraries and numerous city libraries, including Long Beach, are participating.

The local-area libraries where voters may register Monday night are as follows:

Long Beach — Alamitos Branch, 1836 E. Third St.; Bay Shore Branch, 195 Bay Shore Ave.; Brewitt Branch, 4063 E. Anaheim St.; Burnett Branch, 560 E. Hill St.; Bret Harte Branch, 1595 W. Willow St.; Dana Branch, 3680 Atlantic Ave.; Los Altos Branch, 5614 Britton Drive; North Long Beach Branch, 5571 Orange Ave., and Ruth Bach Branch, 4055 Bellflower Blvd.

Lakewood—Iacoboni County Library, 5100 Clark Ave.

La Mirada — La Mirada County Library, 15030 Luitweiler Ave.

Lomita—Lomita County Library, 24648 Narbonne Ave.

Carson—Carson County Library, 22102 S. Main St.

Torrance — Torrance Main Library, 1345 Post Ave.; North Torrance County Library, 3604 W. Artesia Blvd.; Isabel Henderson County Library, 4805 Emerald St.; El Retiro County Library, 126 Vista del Parque, and Walter County Library, 3815 W. 242nd St.

* * * *

AFTER JAN. 1, Los Angeles County fire stations in the unincorporated area and in contract cities will be open on a daily basis for voter registration.

Hite said county firemen currently are undergoing training as deputy registrars. They will staff the fire station registration centers during their standby time.

Dredge for Red China

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP)—A suction hopper dredge for Red China — called the "Golden Seahorse" — was launched this week at a shipyard in Schiedam, near Rotterdam, which has been building ships for China since 1902. It follows a freighter launched there earlier this year, and the Chinese charge d' affaires said the launchings showed Dutch-Chinese relations were still improving.

Circular Runway Tested

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's 1970, you're sitting in a jetliner, and it starts rolling around the runway.

That's right — AROUND the runway, in a 360-degree circle until it reaches takeoff speed and lifts off.

Impossible? Don't bet on it. The Navy has completed successful takeoff and landing tests on a revolutionary circular runway. The experiments showed enough promise to excite aviation circles on its possible adaption to civilian air travel.

* * * * *

THE CIRCULAR runway is just what the name implies. Think of a wheel with spokes. The outer rim is the runway. The spokes are taxiways. The hub is the airport control tower.

There is no such airport anywhere in the world, but pilots of the Naval Weapons Evaluation Facility used a General Motors automobile proving track near Williams Air Force Base, Ariz., for the test. The pilots actually landed and took off using a piston-engine Douglas Skyraider, a Douglas Skyhawk jet and a C54—military version of the four-engine DC4 commercial transport.

The circular runway would have to be banked —as is the GM track—to overcome centrifugal force. Obviously, pilots would have to learn new techniques, particularly in landing, because they'd literally be lining up with the runway with one wing low.

* * * * *

BUT THE advantages of the circular runway are numerous, such as:

—Theoretically there would never be an overshoot or undershoot because a circle is endless.

—The circular concept requires a much smaller overall area than the conventional airport (about one-third less for a major terminal facility).

—Traffic control would be simplified and more efficient, with the control tower parked in the center of the circle.

—The terminal building itself also would be in the center, lending itself to shorter walking and baggage-delivery distances.

—The circular runway allows unlimited flexibility in planning approach and landing corridors.

—At larger circular airports, as many as five or six takeoff or landing operations could be conducted simultaneously provided there was no wind factor, and the design in general appears to be wed to high density traffic.

* * * * *

THE CIRCULAR runway was patent by a late Navy pilot, Lt. Cmdr. James R. Conrey, who devised the concept in 1960 after encountering difficulties in landing at Lincoln, Neb., in a severe cross-wind. He figured the circular runway would allow him to land into the wind regardless of its direction.

Conrey won Navy approval to test his brainchild but before the tests could be run he was killed in a crash at sea in 1963. The Navy took over his idea and conducted the experiments last May. The results were disclosed by the Commerce Department information clearing house last week.

Champagne a 'People's Drink?'

BONN (AP) — German sparkling wine isn't a luxury any more, the industry contends, but a people's drink. The argument is being pressed by chairman Diether Hummel of the Union of German Champagne Cellars in opposition to a West Government plan to increase the tax from 1 to 1½ marks (25 to 37½ cents) per bottle.

Quake in Asia

MOSCOW (AP) — A mild earthquake struck Soviet Tadzhikistan in central Asia Saturday, Tass reported from Dushanbe. The official Soviet news agency said the quake was the 12th in the Tadzhik Republic thi syear.

NEXT YEAR IN WEST GERMANY

One Day of Rest for Every Two on job

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—West German workers will have one day off for every two days on the job next year, even as the government calls on them to work longer.

Hard work, once a proverbial characteristic of this nation, has ceased to be a principal aspect of the affluent German "economic wonderland."

Chancellor Ludwig Erhard has expressed deep concern about the long-range effects of this change in attitude, especially for the future of a country chronically ailing from a labor shortage.

He fears that more leisure will spell the end of the boom that has become a sort of national institution.

"There is no other way out," he told parliament. "Either we trim our demands or we must work harder."

* * * * *

HE SUGGESTED THAT the present 40-hour work week be extended by at least one hour. His urgings were displayed by all newspapers. Almost at the same time, the press carried compilations that Germans will average 128 days off in 1966, including national and religious holidays, weekends and a paid vacation averaging 19 work days.

Erhard himself reported a positive response from the public to his proposal. But trade union and press reaction ranged from skepticism to outright condemnation.

The Metal Workers Union, with 2 million members, said the appeal was an "unheard of provocation of all working people." It charged that Erhard was trying to incite public opinion against labor.

* * * * *

AN EDITORIAL in the usually pro-government Die Welt reflected a typical line of newspaper comment:

"Erhard is harvesting what his government has planted, a mentality based on the motto 'Everybody caring for himself and the state caring for all.'

"If consumption is proclaimed as the ultimate goal, then one must not be surprised when a consumers' society emerges which is exclusively dedicated to enjoying life."

A private German polling institute found that 62% of all Germans were willing to work longer hours if this would insure a continued boom. But there was a hitch.

* * * * *

LABOR representatives pointed out that wage agreements permit extension of the work week by up to eight hours—provided the extra hours draw overtime pay which is 50% higher.

Thus, most German employers rely on more automation and on continued recruitment of foreign labor rather than greater readiness by their countrymen to work harder.

"The saying once made the round in Europe that there would be fewer wars if Germans would work less hard," quipped a Frankfurt contractor. "If that is right, we are likely to face a long period of peace."

A Frankfurt mail order house was mindful of the German love of leisure when it looked for women to help in the pre-Christmas sales rush.

Large ads promised a special lottery among all housewives and girls willing to work for a couple of months. The jackpots are 12 vacations in Spain, all expenses included.

Hospital Expansion to Open Variety of Jobs

The opening of Memorial West early next year will provide job opportunities in a variety of fields, according to Betty J. Greer, director of personnel at Memorial Hospital of Long Beach, 2801 Atlantic Ave.

Miss Greer said the hospital will be accepting applications during December and hiring will begin in January.

Positions to be filled include registered nurses, licensed vocational nurses, experienced nurse aides, experienced orderlies, maids, janitors, food service workers, clerks for the department of nursing and other specialized skills such as medical transcriber, plumber, etc.

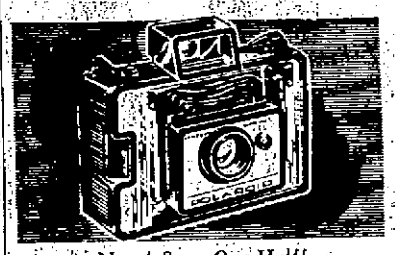

Memorial West will provide a new concept of hospitalization for Southern Californians, one that will reduce the cost of hospital care.

The Memorial West project actually consists of two parts. First of these is an attached, expanded 30,000-square-foot rehabilitation medicine facility. The second part of the $2,500,000 expansion will be Memorial West itself, an 86-bed advanced care unit designed to speed the recovery of patients not acutely ill so that they may return to their normal daily activities with a shorter period of hospitalization and at less cost.

THEY GET A BIG KICK OUT OF IT

Yank Airmen With Yen for Old Rolls-Royces Rate 'Lordship' Attention by British Citizens

By THOMAS A. REEDY

ALCONBURY, England (AP)—They call them "their lordships."

They're about as well known as anyone in these parts of England where anything different is appreciated so long as it's orderly.

Their lordships—two American airmen—accept the attention modestly but down deep get a big kick out of it all.

"You've got no idea how you feel when a pedestrian steps back out of your path, or a policeman waves you on, or a car pulling out from a side road sees you and stops respectfully," says Staff Sgt. Kenneth K. Godden.

"He's right," echoes Airman Duard Estep. "You feel like you're floatin' on air."

Their lordships are airmen at the big Alconbury base which houses the U.S. Air Force's 10th Tactical Wing. What makes them different is how they get around when on the ground.

Each owns a somewhat antiquated Rolls-Royce.

THEY DRIVE their fabulous-looking old giants around the countryside, down into Huntingdon, and a bit further south to the university town of Cambridge. The glistening monsters can be seen often parked at roadside pubs. Inside their lordships probably are hoisting a pint of English beer and taking the locals on at darts.

Godden, 32, is a camera repair expert in the tactical wing and has been in the U.S. Air Force for 10 years. Born in Eastbourne, Sussex, he followed his parents to San Francisco, met a girl there, married her, and became Americanized in most ways. Except his taste for motor cars.

Transferred to England, Sgt. Godden looked around the Alconbury area, pondered how to house his wife Evelyn and their three children and how to transport them around. He went out first and bought a 1927 Rolls-Royce Phantom Shooting Brake, which Americans would call a station wagon. It's bigger than a truck and can hold a family much larger than the Goddens contemplate.

"Then I advertised for a garage with a house around it," Godden said, with a big grin. "I found a farm where they had a barn big enough for the car and we were settled in."

The sergeant paid 170 pounds ($475) for his 38-year-old Rolls.

ESTEP was learning to be a mortician when he was drafted. The Rolls probably will see service in funeral processions and has the low key quietude to fit.

This is Estep's second Rolls. He swapped the first one in for the racier-looking Sedanca model and altogether has 400 pounds invested.

FAMED FOR THEIR ROLLS

Their Rolls Royces flank SSgt. Kenneth K. Gedde, left, and Airman Duard Estep at the American air base in Alconbury, England, where they are stationed. They are called "their lordships" as they ride around the countryside.

Lawyer Gives Congress Blame for Growth of Executive Power

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Washington, lawyer-writer suggested Saturday that Congress is to blame for the growth of executive branch power and influence.

"A major reason why the executive has been able in recent years to gather power at the expense of Congress is the superior ability of its agencies to develop effective liaison with and 'service' the greater public," Edward De Grazia wrote in one of three studies made public today by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

De Grazia said that "largely as a result of this bureaucratic-public contact, the impression has steadily gaining ground that congressmen can no longer satisfactorily represent the people's interest."

Therefore, he said, to "regain full status and function as the representative of the people's interests, the congressman will have to offer more efficient services to his constituents than he is able to do now."

College Tuition Fees by 1967 Seen for State, UC Systems

By ROBERT WILCOX
I-P-T Education Editor

One of the state's most powerful legislators in education declared Saturday that tuition should be charged for the first time in the state colleges and University of California system.

However, Charles B. Garrigus, D-Reedley, chairman of the Assembly Education Committee, said that some other arrangement should be made for students who couldn't afford to pay.

Garrigus' remarks led some political observers to forecast that tuition in the college systems is no farther away than 1967. They excepted 1966 because it is an election year.

The legislator's comments came at the end of a two-day hearing at Long Beach State College of an assembly education subcommittee of which he also is chairman.

GARRIGUS SAID that two main conclusions came out of the session.

"We must definitely and unavoidably have a re-evaluation as to how higher education can be adequately financed," he said.

"Secondly, a student who can afford $200 to $400 (per year) tuition should pay."

Then, the assemblyman added, some way should be found to take care of those qualified students who can not afford it.

Most lines taken at the hearing had either been drawn previously or were predictable.

AGAINST TUITION were both higher education systems—UC and the state colleges—the junior colleges, faculty groups, the influential California Teachers Association and the California Federation of Teachers union.

Their arguments ranged from the philosophical ("We cannot afford to waste these human resources") to state college Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke's flat statement that he felt the state would be able to afford the increasing cost of higher education.

Tuition is nothing more than a "tax" on students and parents, declared Dr. Willard Spalding, director of the State Coordinating Council of Higher Education, an advisory body to the governor and legislature which is fast-rising in influence.

SPALDING DID NOT directly oppose the tuition "tax," but said that it should be used only as a "last resource."

Leading the tuition advocates was Alan Post, state legislative analyst, who pointed out that California already is deeply in debt and estimated that the debt will increase by $90 million a year for the next four years.

At the same time, he said, higher education will more than triple in cost to $1.25 billion a year by 1980.

Post was seconded by some assemblymen, the State Chamber of Commerce and two statewide taxpayers organizations.

In testimony it was variously stated:

—The present no-tuition policy actually "subsidizes" the wealthier students, as, for instance, only 4% of the state college students come from families who earn less than $4,000 a year.

—However, the tuition would have to include the junior colleges or else they would be flooded with "free" students after the 4-year schools started to charge.

—Part of the tuition receipts could go into scholarships for low-income students—or a sliding tuition scale, ranging, perhaps, from nothing, could be set up.

—A complete lend-and-pay-back-later plan, depending on future earnings, as proposed by subcommittee member John Collier, R-South Pasadena, could be established.

Saturday's testimony was highlighted by the California Teachers Association's opinion that if students are charged for their college education, then convicts should be required to pay back their state-supported stay in the penitentiary.

The smaller, rival California Federation of Teachers union not only opposed tuition but urged abolishment of the present "incidental" student fees of $220 per year at UC and $76 at the state colleges.

ROBBER CLOBBERED

Cleaver, Real Gun Foil Store Holdup

By ART VINSEL

This is the story of a man and the trouble he's seen just trying to rob a little neighborhood market in Los Angeles.

At least that, say Firestone sheriff's deputies, is what he was apparently trying to do about 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Deputies said James E. Morris, 34, of 2420 Lewis St., Long Beach, walked into the Miya Maket, a chrome-finish plastic cap pistol half-concealed under his coat and declared: "This is a holdup, mister!"

Market owner Mas Miyasaki, 54, 5-feet, 6-inches tall, glanced up at the 6-foot, 2-inch Morris. So did his tiny wife, Ann. So did customer William Reddick.

* * * *

MRS. MIYASAKI reached under the counter for a .32-caliber revolver and handed it to her husband.

Morris stared at the weapon. It was the real thing.

A running account of the ensuing moments is furnished by Deputy Richard Anderson.

"The suspect ran to the rear of the store, chased by Miyasaki and Reddick, where he picked up a meat cleaver.

"Reddick wrestled him to the floor and Miyasaki hit him over the head with the revolver, which went off.

"Morris, disarmed, leaped up and ran out of the store. Miyasaki caught up with him and knocked him to the sidewalk.

* * * *

"MORRIS, his head streaming blood, jumped up again. Miyasaki fired two shots into the air—then grabbed the suspect and they began wrestling.

"Miyasaki hit him with the gun again — twice. Then he held him, pending the arrival of officers."

The groaning suspect was then taken to Oak Park Hospital for a badly needed patching up — then transferred to the prison ward of Los Angeles General Hospital for treatment of multiple lacerations, a fractured jaw, a concussion and booking on suspicion of attempted armed robbery.

As for Miyasaki? It was back to business as usual at the Miya Market.

To Address Clergy

Dr. Edgar Palarea, cardiologist, will be guest speaker in the monthly "religion and health" series for ministers Thursday in Memorial Hospital from 8:30 a.m. to noon.

Tax Deadline Friday; Penalties After That

Property owners face a deadline this week at county and city tax collection offices.

First-installment bills will incur delinquency penalties unless paid or postmarked no later than Friday.

Long Beach adds 8% to the unpaid amount overdue. The county penalty is 6%.

Deadline for payment of second-installment bills is April 10, after which the city levies 3% more and the county repeats its 6% assessment.

Payments on city bills were running ahead of last year's rate by dollar volume but slightly lower in percentage comparison.

The latest count by Treasurer-Collector William M. Ramsell showed $1,592,415.74 collected against a total current levy of $12,261,326.26. On the corresponding date last year the collections were $1,581,364.39 from a levy of $10,618,636.59.

Drug Would Aid Planning of Births

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Discussion of a new medication aimed at making the rhythm system of birth-control more accurate brought conservative but hopeful reaction Saturday from theologians, physicians and priests at an international symposium sponsored by the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

The experimental drug called clomiphene citrate is not a contraceptive but causes ovulation in women to occur at the same time every month. Thus the rhythm method, which requires abstinence between man and wife during the 12-day ovulation period, can be more accurately followed. The Catholic Church does not oppose the rhythm method but forbids the use of contraceptives.

Representatives of the Catholic Church at the symposium agreed that if the chemical is found to be both safe and effective, there will be no moral question involved in its use.

* * * *

THE Rev. John J. O'Sullivan, S.T.D., said that as long as there is no suppression of ovulation, there doesn't seem to be any moral problem. Father O'Sullivan teaches at St. Paul Seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John C. Knott said there is no moral issue involved except that the pill be pronounced safe. Msgr. Knott is director of the Family Life Bureau, National Catholic Welfare Conference, a sponsor of the symposium. The other sponsor is the National Federation of Catholic Physicians' Guilds.

Clomiphene citrate has been approved for testing by the Federal Food and Drug Administration but is not available to the general public.

Dr. John Boutselis, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Ohio State University, has conducted research on the drug for several years.

* * * *

HE presented a paper on the findings to date. Dr. Boutselis said research shows the drug does not affect ovulation except to regulate it. It does not interrupt the normal functions, he said.

The old method of rhythm involves the use of either the calendar or the thermometer to determine when ovulation will occur. The use of the thermometer means a daily temperature reading. A sharp increase for most women indicates ovulation.

Pope in Historic Interfaith Rites

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Setting an example for similar services throughout the world, Pope Paul VI prayed Saturday night with non-Catholic Christians in the first interfaith service ever attended by a Catholic pontiff.

Pope Paul called the non-Catholic observers of the Vatican Ecumenical Council, seated near him, "brothers, brothers and friends in Christ." He declared the work of the Vatican Ecumenical Council, now about to close, had produced hope that the problem of Christianity unity "can be solved—if not today, tomorrow. Slowly, gradually, loyally, generously ..."

He warned against haste in attempting to reunite all the churches of Christianity. He said the Roman Catholic Church was "neither insensitive nor haughty" and was ready and willing to ask forgiveness for "some errors."

* * * *

THE POPE praised the work of the council in bringing Catholics and other Christians closer together in understanding. He expressed sorrow that soon the council fathers and the non-Catholic observers would return homeward.

"Your departure produces around us a loneliness which we did not know before the council started and which now saddens us," he said. "We wish we could have you with us always."

The Pope joined with the council fathers and the observers in prayer after the council earlier in the day approved broader Roman Catholic contacts with all mankind.

AS THE council rushed toward its conclusion next Wednesday, the last controversies of the 3-year-old Assembly faded into the background and a spirit of harmony came to the fore.

Pope Paul and the 2,300 council bishops went to the Basilica of St. Paul Outside the Walls, the church where Pope John XXIII announced plans for the council in January 1959. There they joined in prayer with Protestant, Orthodox and Anglican observers to the council.

Spellman in Nuclear Argument

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York led a last-minute campaign Saturday to block the Ecumenical Council's condemnation of nuclear stockpiling.

With nine other archbishops, three of whom also are American, Cardinal Spellman circulated a letter saying such condemnation "will certainly hurt the cause of freedom in the world."

Lawrence Joseph Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore joined in circulating the letter, but later changed his mind and voted for the condemnation. He explained that he had joined the campaign hurriedly and had not had time to read the circular.

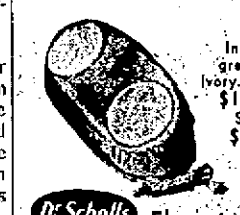

* * * *

"THE posession of nuclear arms has preserved freedom for a very large portion of the world," the letter said and urged the bishops to vote down the condemnation which some U.S. prelates felt was an attack on American nuclear policy.

The letter was circulated Saturday shortly before the council voted on the statement. Results of the vote were not announced, but council sources doubted that the lobbying campaign was sufficient to defeat the measure which appeared to have the support of most prelates.

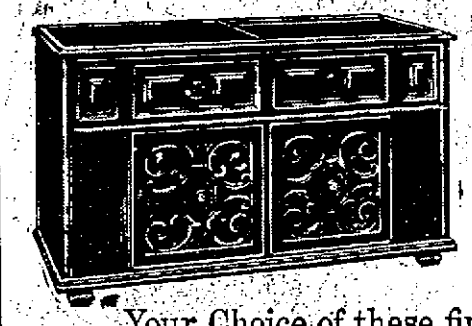

The statement does not mention the United States by name. It condemns in general terms the concept of nuclear threats to prevent wars.

MOST SPECTACULAR

Apollo Escape System Test Set

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP)—The final—and perhaps most spectacular—test of the escape system for Apollo astronauts is scheduled here Wednesday.

A two-stage Little Joe II, one of this country's most powerful solid propellant rockets, is to hurl an Apollo space capsule to an altitude of about 15 miles. Such a space capsule will house three astronauts during the first lunar trip.

If all goes well, a rocket on a tower atop the capsule will ignite during a simulated emergency and whisk the moonship away. The escape rocket is designed to do its job before an explosion of the giant Saturn V moon rocket could engulf the space capsule.

Wednesday's test is designed as the final qualification of the launch escape system. Subsequent firings early next year will see the Apollo moonship launched aboard Saturn II boosters from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

IT WILL BE the sixth escape system test at White Sands, in a series dating back to May of 1963, and the first test in which an actual Apollo moonship has been used. In previous tests, three of which involved Little Joe II, mockup capsules called boiler plates were used.

The firing also will present the usually reliable Little Joe II, economical imitation of the Saturn moonrocket, a chance to redeem itself.

Little Joe was to boost a boiler plate to an altitude of about 35 miles in a test last May but broke up shortly after launch and never even approached the desired test altitude.

The escape system rocket dramatically proved itself on that occasion, however, igniting automatically and pulling the boiler plate clear.

Cal. Personal Income Record

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Personal income of Californians has topped $60 billion a year for the first time, Gov. Brown said Saturday.

Brown said this indicates "that our economy is still growing and still very strong."

Department of Finance economists estimate the annual income rate at $60.3 billion on the basis of third quarter returns, Brown said.

Brown said the record figure represented an increase of $3.9 billion or 6.9% over the 1964 level and $1.3 billion or 2.2% over the revised 1965 second quarter estimate.

"I am especially gratified at the gains in employment in the aerospace industries, although substantial gains were noted for almost all industries with the exception of construction," Brown said after reading the department's quarterly report.

Mystere Jets Sold to South Africa

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa's air force plans to buy small French-made Mystere jet transport planes in undisclosed numbers, for training and transportation of important personnel, the newspaper Die Beeld reported. They carry eight passengers. The Air Force now uses French mirage fighter-bombers.

BIRMINGHAM BOOSTS VIET FIGHTERS' MORALE

City Adopts 1st Infantry Division--The Big Red One

By JAMES SPOTSWOOD

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) —"What can we as patriotic Americans do to boost the morale of American fighting men in Viet Nam and offset the draft card burnings, the marches and other anti-Viet Nam demonstration?"

City fathers of this steel metropolis asked themselves this question and came up with this answer: Officially adopt the 1st Infantry Division — The Big Red One— which is in the thick of the fighting.

The idea caught on and the Army liked it so well it sent the No. 1 enlisted man in the division—Sgt. Major William O. Wooldridge—to Birmingham to accept the adoption officially.

How well did it work?

* * * *

THE PROUD city fathers reflected on these expressions of recognition for the sergeant major today:

—Seventy thousand persons attending the Auburn-Alabama football game stood and applauded wildly while Wooldridge, a striking figure in his blue uniform resplendent with gold stripes, walked the length of the football field to salute the Stars and Stripes.

—A shy Avondale School sixth grader looked up at the big sergeant when he visited her school and asked: "What can we do for the Big Red One?" It was a question repeated a thousand times.

—More than 705 persons including Gov. George Wallace turned out for the adoption ceremonies.

* * * *

BIRMINGHAM'S official and civic leaders had watched the demonstrations with mounting indignation while many Alabama families received telegrams reporting the deaths of sons, husbands and fathers fighting in far-away Southeast Asia.

One platoon leader from Birmingham who died on a search and destroy mission had written his young wife: "I know I am working for the protection of our country—you and the boys. I'm willing to sacrifice towards that end. What is wrong with America today? Can't they see?"

Birmingham's response was community-wide. The quickly formed Adoption Steering Committee included among its members Crawford Johnson III, president of the Birmingham area Chamber of Commerce; Donald Stafford, president of the Birmingham Labor Council (AFL-CIO), and Dr. John Nixon, president of the Alabama Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people, who is a local dentist.

* * * *

PLANNERS HAD a major break. Maj. Gen. William A. Cunningham, commander of the Fourth Army Corps with headquarters here, was a former Big Red One chief of staff. He also was a West Point classmate of Maj. Gen. Jonathon O. Seaman, commander of the First. Together, they cut a lot of red tape.

Adoption planners flew the sergeant's wife and three of his five children — the others couldn't leave school —to share the reception for Wooldridge.

"I thought I would be met at the airport by one or two officials and that would be it," Wooldridge said later. "I was overwhelmed."

Instead a crowd of several hundred cheered. City Council President M. E. Wiggins and County Commission President Cooper Green headed dignitaries greeting him.

Dianna Foster and Laurie Thompson of Brownie Troop 552 presented roses to Mrs. Wooldridge and letters of encouragement to the sergeant. Yes, everybody was there.

* * * *

THE PROUD professional soldier had to get one thing straight as he accepted with appreciation the adoption of the Army's oldest division, which he served in World War II and most of his 25 years in service:

"We're the best equipped and armed Army in the world and we eat well," he assured his audience. "We have a kill ratio of better than 10 to 1 against the Viet Cong. When they stand and fight, we whip them."

Seaman sent a tape-recorded message for the First which said, in part, "We, of the First Infantry Division, are greatly honored and deeply touched, for both our military and our civic action efforts here in the Republic of Viet Nam has left its mark on the heart of every man who wears our shoulder patch, The Big Red One."

Mrs. Wooldridge said before she returned to Junction City, Kan., that she would like to live here when the sergeant retired. And Wooldridge shouted as he hurried aboard an airliner for his return to war in Viet Nam, "I'm coming back."

Birgingham will wait for the Wooldridges.

ODD TITLES

Kiss Setter and Mud Man 'In'

By JACK VANDENBERG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you're a "Squeak, Rattle and Leak Man," a "Kiss Setter," or a "Mud Man," chances are you're in. But if you're a "Beachcomber," "Sheet Music Plugger" or a "Rumble Seat Assembler," you're out.

That's the word from the Labor Department, which has just issued a new "Dictionary of Occupational Titles" which contains descriptions of 36,000 modern occupations.

The two-volume dictionary lists and describes what a worker does in each job, how he does it and the level of skill required to perform the job efficiently.

* * * *

MOST OF the 6,000 new occupations have technical titles such as "Nuclear Medical Technician," "Gamma Facilities Operator," and "Radiation Monitor."

But the new titles also include some picturesque job descriptions, like that "Squeak, Rattle and Leak Man." Motorists who have been annoyed by irritating noises in their cars probably have used the services of a "Squeak, Rattle and Leak" man and never known it.

He is an auto mechanic who specializes in taking a car out for a test run to determine the origin of a squeak, a leak or a rattle.

A "kiss setter"? He's the man who shapes candy kisses by hand. And the "mud man" reclaims rubber particles from sludge in the rubber industry.

* * * *

SOME OF THE other more colorful job descriptions in the new dictionary include:

Bug Duster: A man who follows after a coal digging machine in a mine and shovels up the dust and chunks left behind.

Pulpit Man: A person who stands on a high platform to operate the controls of a rolling mill in the iron and steel industry.

Cat Doctor: A repairman for catapillar tractors in the logging business.

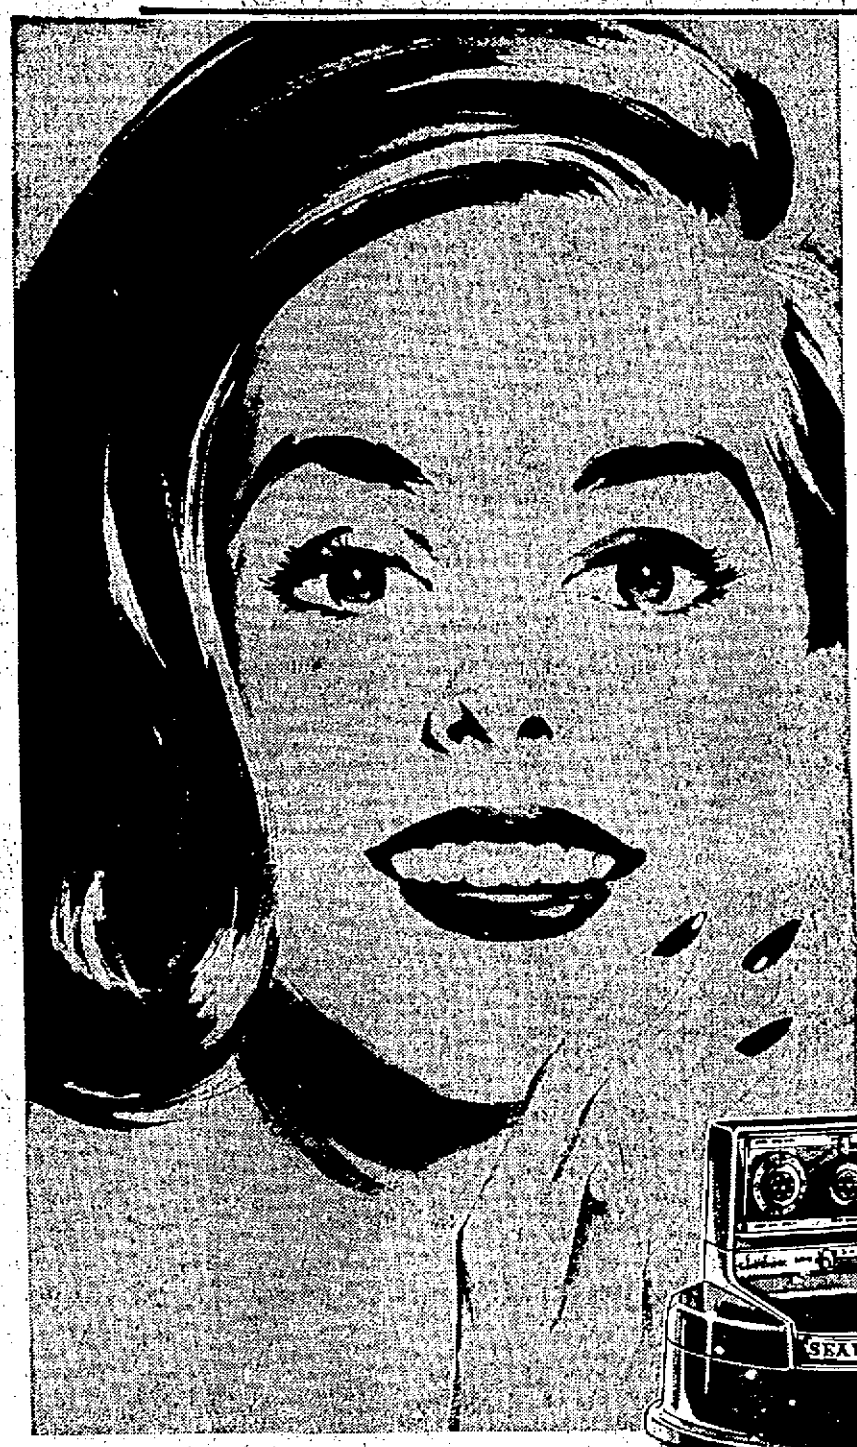

Pillar Robber: A person who removes the pillars of salt, coal or ore left as supports in a mine during production mining.

Broke Man: A person who removes wastes from papermaking machinery.

* * * *

WHILE MODERN technology brought these titles to the nation's vocabulary, some others were dropped from the dictionary as obsolete. Beachcomber, which since has taken on a new meaning was among the victims of changing occupations.

Ghoulish Vandals Strike

Sunnyside Cemetery foreman Jack Lakin surveys more than $500 damage done early Saturday by vandals who tipped over 50 to 75 gravestones, scattered trash and flowers and bent water pipes at the cemetery at 1095 E. Willow St. Running water from faucets which were turned on caused some graves to sink. Police said vandals entered through unlocked gate.

RIGHTS COMMISSION SAYS

Voting Aid for Southern Negroes Is Still Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Rights Commission said Saturday night that "in many areas of the South there is full compliance with the Voting Rights Act of 1965," but still there is a need for more federal registrars.

The commission, in a report to Congress and the President on implementation of the new law, said federal registrars should be named in all counties covered under the act where state procedures are inadequate to register all Negroes who apply, or where literacy tests still are being used.

* * * *

IN a briefing on the report, Staff Director William Taylor estimated that registrars may be required in as many as 32 more counties. The attorney general already has sent registrars into 32 counties.

Taylor estimated that some 200,000 additional Negroes have been registered in the South since the act took effect, about a quarter by federal registrars.

"In most areas tests and devices which have been used in the past to deny Negroes the right to vote have been effectively suspended," the report said. "Several problems remain, however, including the continued use of literacy tests in some counties and delays, in areas with limited numbers of registration days."

Although progress has been made, the commission said, there has been a drop in registrations in some areas after the first surge, and registration is only a preliminary step.

The final test, the report said, is whether Negroes vote in elections next year in large numbers, and it added, "Resistance to Negro voting can be anticipated."

Intimidation is a factor in slowing registration in some areas, it said.

The commission made four recommendations:

—Appointment of federal registrars in all counties covered by the act where literacy tests still are being used or no adequate effort is being made to register Negroes who apply.

—An information program by the Civil Service Commission which supervises the registrars, to notify all unregistered persons of the qualifications required to register and when and where they may register.

—Creation of a federal program to encourage registration by informing people of registration requirements and educating them to a better understanding of the rights and duties of citizenship.

—Effective preparation by federal officials for invoking all possible enforcement procedures during elections, including appointment of poll watchers.

"In counties with examiners (federal registrars) and in counties where state registration officials are allowing Negroes to register freely, there has been a sharp decline in the high initial rate of Negro registration," the report said, adding:

"This suggests that there will be limited Negro exercise of the franchise unless affirmative steps are taken to inform citizens, heretofore excluded from voting, of registration and voting procedures and the importance of participating in all elections."

The commission said Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach moved slowly in designating counties for federal registrars in the first weeks of the new law, acting only where there was strong evidence of intentional and flagrant violation of the act.

"His more recent actions suggest that he will certify the need for examiners whenever applicants cannot register on the day they attempt to do so," the commission said.

Malaysia Smashes Red Underground

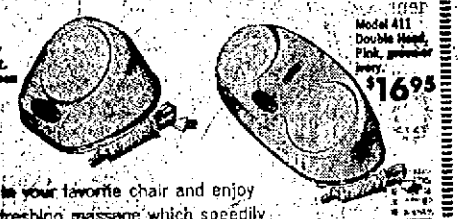

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP)—Police smashed a Communist underground organization this week that covered three districts in Sarawak, a government spokesman announced Saturday.

The discovery was made following the arrest of 15 suspects, including five women. A large cache of Communist documents also was uncovered, the spokesman added.

STILL FACE PRISON

3 Klansmen Freed on $10,000 Bonds

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Three Ku Klux Klansmen, convicted in an unusual civil rights case in the death of a white woman, were freed on $10,000 appeal bond each Saturday and returned to their homes.

Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 22, of Fairfield, and Eugene Thomas, 42, and William Orville Eaton, 41, both of Bessemer, were convicted by an all-white jury Friday on federal charges of conspiring to violate civil rights in connection with the slaying of Viola Liuzzo, a 39-year-old Detroit housewife.

* * * *

THEY WERE sentenced to 10 years in prison under an 1870 law written to protect Negro slaves freed in the Civil War.

Their attorney, former FBI agent and Birmingham Mayor Art Hanes, had bonds approved by U.S. Commissioner Tim Morris in Montgomery.

The convictions of the three Klansmen and that of another Alabaman in the nightriding slaying of a Negro, came within a 24-hour period unmatched in recent Alabama history of civil rights or related crimes.

Hubert Damon Strange, 25, remained in an Anniston, Ala., jail cell in lieu of a $10,000 bond on a 10-year sentence in a state court for the slaying of Negro laborer Willie Brewster.

Strange was one of three men charged in the July shooting and was convicted by an all-male white jury that took 20 ballots before finding him guilty of second-degree murder.

Lewis Blevins, 26, and Johnny Ira Defries, 25, face trials early next year in the same case.

Gov. George Wallace challenged a report that the convictions were the only ones involving civil rights crimes in recent Alabama history. Wallace said, as a circuit court judge in 1955 he presided over the trial of a white man who drew a life sentence for the shotgun slaying of a Negro in Eufaula, Ala.

Wallace said the foreman of the jury was Al Lingo, then an Eufaula businessman and recently retired head of the Alabama Public Safety Department.

* * * *

Dr. John Nixon, president of the Alabama National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, also praised the court actions but said he was still "a little skeptical" about Alabama justice.

He questioned, in the light of maximum sentences, "if this is a genuine effort to give justice in Alabama courts, or is it a device to circumvent pending (federal) legislation?"

Judge Halts Southern Rail Strike

ATLANTA (UPI)—Railroad attorneys got a federal judge out of bed before dawn Saturday to halt a strike that threatened to shut down the 10,400-mile Southern Railway in a dispute over the little red caboose.

The walkout, called late Friday night by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, curtailed some passenger service on the line that serves major cities from Washington to New Orleans.

Union spokesmen said it was triggered because the railroad was operating some trains without cabooses and because the equipment in the cabooses that were being used was in poor condition.

They accused the railroad of refusing to arbitrate the dispute.

But L. G. Tolleson, assistant vice president in charge of Southern's labor relations in Washington, countered that the trainmen had called an illegal walkout and that union officials had demanded cabooses be "fitted out in much fancier style than has been customary" when "the trainmen they represent style have any use for cabooses anymore."

* * * *

SOUTHERN spokesmen in Washington said the strike caused it to cancel out two passenger trains. It cancelled six other trains bound for points in the South but revoked the cancellation after Federal Judge J. Robert Elliott signed a temporary restraining order against the union.

The two trains Southern referred to, apparently were stopped en route from Washington to Atlanta and the several hundred passengers were transferred to buses, an employe in Spencer said.

Elliott was awakened by attorneys about 3:30 a.m. at his home in Columbus, Ga., and signed the order about 6:30 a.m., some eight hours after the strike had been called and pickets were thrown up at such major Southern Railway points as Washington, Atlanta, Charlotte, N.C., Memphis and Nashville, Tenn., Richmond, Va., Spartanburg, S.C., and Asheville, N.C.

Elliott set a hearing on the restraining order for Jan. 13 at Columbus.

Santa Claus Arrives With (Ho! Ho!) Thud

LOMPOC (AP) — If Santa Claus wants to return to his conventional reindeer-drawn sleigh, the residents of Lompoc can sympathize with him.

A crowd of 500 persons watched Saturday as Santa made a forced landing on top of two cars when his helicopter developed trouble.

Neither Santa or the pilot was injured, but damage to one of the cars was described by officers as extensive.

The pilot of the helicopter — which was supposed to drop Santa on the roof of a shopping center — refused to comment on the nature of the craft's trouble.

Santa, undaunted, hauled his toy sack out of the downed craft, walked onto the roof of a car, and with a hearty "Ho, Ho, Ho . . . Whew!" started dispensing his gifts.

Thieves Raid Store for Cigarette Haul

Burglars showed a complete disregard for the surgeon general's report on smoking in their raid Saturday on Lucky's Market at 2120 Pacific Ave.

Officer J. D. Holbert said the thieves, forced a rear door, took 12 cases of cigarettes valued at $1,190.

POP-OUT SATELLITES

Twin OVI satellites pop out from their double pod to go their separate ways into orbit, carrying scientific space experiments with them in this artist's conception of the twin space shot scheduled for Jan. 20 at Vandenberg Air Force Base.

TWO-IN-ONE

Obsolete Missile to Be Employed in Space Shot

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

An obsolete Atlas missile will be used by the Air Force to fire a unique two-in-one space shot Jan. 20 at Vandenberg Air Force Base.

The old Atlas, retired from the Strategic Air Command inventory, has been modified for its role in boosting into space two scientific satellites at one time.

Also aboard in the economical launch will be a scientific passenger pod riding on the side of the Atlas. The pod contains experiments not designed to reach orbit.

* * * *

THE TWIN OVI-4 and OVI-5 satellites will study optical radiation in space, thermal coating characteristics and the effect of a zero-gravity environment on photosynthetic organisms and small vascular plants.

The OVI satellites were built by General Dynamics Convair of San Diego for the Air Force's Office of Aerospace Research under the Aerospace Research Support Program.

After their ejection from the booster, the satellites will use self-contained propulsion systems for boosting themselves into orbit.

The OVI-4 will attain a circular orbit of 480 nautical miles, while the OVI-5 is designed for a circular orbit of 550 miles. Both satellites will be placed into retrograde, or east-to-west, orbit.

VICTIMS OF DOWNPOUR

Neighborly Present for Needy Tijuana

What can you make with 600 pounds of beans, 400 pounds of potatoes and 35 cases of canned milk?

You can make life easier for some 1,000 families of Tijuana, B.C., whose homes were destroyed by torrential rains and flooding two weeks ago.

And that's just what a loosely-knit organization of Long Beach area residents is doing this weekend.

A caravan of cars and trucks left Saturday for the border city to deliver foodstuffs and more than $100 in cash donations to families who lost their homes.

"Everyone has been so wonderful," declared Mrs. D. B. Gomez, an organizer of the drive. "We are just loaded!"

Mrs. Gomez and her coworkers said response from the public after their story was published in The Independent and Press-Telegram has been overwhelming.

Several Los Angeles County labor unions donated cash and a number of markets gave food for the flood-stricken families. An auto rental agency is charging the group for mileage alone on a truck to transport the mercy supplies, instead of taking its usual use fee.

Mrs. Gomez said she was able to buy 600 pounds of beans at a discount and when the dealer learned how they would be used, he tossed in 400 pounds of potatoes.

$1.2 Million Paid to Raisin Growers

FRESNO (UPI)—The Raisin Administrative Committee has mailed checks representing the ninth payment for the 1964-65 surplus raisin pool, the committee announced Saturday.

The payments, totaling $1.2 million, went to 2,832 raisin growers and three cooperative associations. They were in the amount of $18 per ton on each grower's deliveries of Thompson raisins for the season through July 31, bringing the cumulative payments to a total of $183 a ton.

New Texas Wells

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Texas drillers completed 108 oil wells and 73 gas wells this week, the Texas railroad commission reported Saturday.

New Church Leader

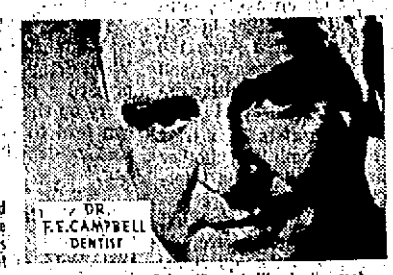

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Dr. James A. Moak of Lexington, Ky., was installed Saturday as president of the Conference of State and Area Secretaries and Board Chairmen of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

Visiting Dentist Dies in Skin Dive Mishap

An Alherton, Calif., dentist died off Santa Barbara Island Saturday while skin diving.

The Coast Guard identified the dead man as 51-year-old Dr. August J. Kaferata. Kaferata was dead on arrival at the Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance at 11 a.m. after being airlifted from the deck of a charter boat.

Hospital attendants said an autopsy would be conducted to determine the exact cause of death.

Dr. Kaferata, the father of 3, was one of the 17 passengers aboard the 50-foot Holly B, a Norm's Landing Charter vessel from San Pedro. Harlan E. Bowles, 59, owner-operator of the Holly B, said Kaferata and a friend were diving in 30 feet of water off the east coast of the island about 10 a.m. when the dentist disappeared.

A few minutes later, Kaferata surfaced, after apparently dropping his weight belt. He was pulled aboard the boat, where attempts were made to revive him while a Coast Guard helicopter was summoned. The copter made a pickup and rushed Kaferata to the hospital.

Lectures Slated

Formerly scheduled on Tuesdays at the Alamitos Branch Library, a weekly World Affairs discussion group conducted by Long Beach City College will be held Mondays from 1-4 p.m. in the Eixby Park Social Hall, beginning this week.

Other admission-free programs announced by the LBCC forums office:

MONDAY

The Literature of Ideas — John Robert Clarke, "Is Joy Your Avocation? . . . A Story of Kahlil Gibran," 7:30 p.m., Rogers Junior High School auditorium.

WEDNESDAY

Teens Visit Symposium

Students representing six Long Beach-area high schools were among more than 600 teen-agers participating in the Third Annual March of Dimes Teen Medical Symposium Saturday at the Los Angeles Trade-Technical College.

Sponsored by the Los Angeles County March of Dimes, the event featured work of the Birth Defects Treatment Center at Orthopaedic Hospital, which is supported by all of the organization's Southern California chapters.

The center's March of Dimes coordinator, Dr. Oliver Nichols, reported on the "team approach" method utilized in overcoming birth defects, and on increasing success in cases of children born with open spines—once considered hopeless for treatment.

Sam Zackheim, principal of Compton's Centennial High School, served as symposium master of ceremonies, and actor Paul Peterson, national chairman for the 1966 March of Dimes campaign to be conducted in January, headed the list of TV and film personalities on hand.

Long Beach chapter guests from Progress School and from Jordan, Lakewood, Millikan, Poly and Wilson High Schools attended, along with little Tina Tidwell of La Mirada, the county's poster child.

Appeal to Test Reversal in Murder Case

The state attorney general's office will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court a decision by the State Supreme Court which overruled the first-degree murder convictions of two Los Angeles men.

Last October the state's high court, on the basis of the Dorado decision, nullified the convictions and death sentences of Ronald H. Polk, 26, and George A. Gregg, 25, who were found guilty Jan. 9, 1963, of slaying a Norwalk sailor.

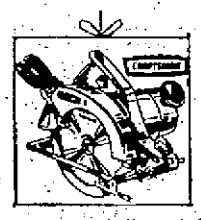

The appeal would test a technical legal point in the timing of the decision March 31, 1964, in which the Supreme Court first upheld the men's conviction, with the date of the Dorado decision, June 22, 1964.

Bombing of Billet Shatters Viet Fighting Lull

Combined Wire Services

A pre-Christmas lull in the fighting in Viet Nam was shattered early Saturday when Viet Cong terrorists set off an explosion at an American billet in Saigon. There were some 170 American, Vietnamese and New Zealand casualties, including at least 11 dead.

The terrorists also tried to toss a bomb into another American billet—the International—just a short distance from the blasted and heavily damaged Metropole enlisted men's quarters. This attempt was about 30 minutes after the first bomb went off and it was reported that the military guards at the International shot the Viet Cong terrorist dead on the spot.

IN OTHER war developments:

"We have stopped losing the war," said Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara as he concluded a 30-hour visit of inspection to South Viet Nam.

But, he added, the size and intensity of recent Viet Cong assaults "expressed a determination to carry on the conflict which can lead to only one conclusion—it will be a long war."

* * * * *

THEY CAME OUT of communist captivity after two years and announced that they would campagin to get American troops out of Viet Nam.

"The United States has nothing to gain from the war in Viet Nam Nam, for the Viet Cong are the people," they told a news conference in neutral Cambodia.

It sounded strange for they were American soldiers themselves, Sgt. George E. Smith of Chester, W. Va., and Spec. 5 Claude D. McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn.

An agent of the Viet Cong who accompanied them to Cambodia said they had been released "because of the popular movement in the United States against President Johson's policies."

Smith and McClure were two of four Americans captured Nov. 24, 1963 when the Viet Cong overran their U.S. Special Forces camp 25 miles from Saigon.

One of the others, Sgt. Kenneth M. Roraback, also of Chester, W. Va., was executed last September. The fourth, Sgt. Isaac Camacho of El Paso, Tex., escaped in August.

Why had Smith and McClure changed their minds about fighting the Viet Cong? Although they denied it, the betting was that they had been brainwashed by their captors.

ON THE RACIAL front, the apostles of violence in segregation received set backs in two Alabama courtrooms.

An all white jury in Montgomery convicted three Ku Klux Klansmen on a federal charge of conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo of Detroit, shot to death last March.

The three—Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 22; Eugene Thomas, 42, and William O. Eaton, 41, Alabamans all—were sentenced to 10 years in prison under an 1877 law.

Previously, Wilkins had been acquited on a state charge of murder in the death of Mrs. Liuzzo, a civil rights worker who was shot in her auto in the aftermath of the Selma demonstration march.

Earlier in the week, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference had already announced a rally to protest the predicted acquital of Hubert Damon Strange of killing a Negro.

But the all white jury in Anniston upset the plan by convicting the 23-year-old filling station attendant of second degree murder in the shotgun death of William Brewster, 38. Strange, too, got 10 years.

Since 1960, by count of the Southern Regional Council, there have been 34 "civil rights murders" in the South. Until last week, only one person had been sent to jail in connection with them.

THE FIRST person off plane for some reason," Olazabal Dalgado, 74. She carried a battered purse and a big doll. There were others who carried much less.

"I was afraid that I might not be allowed on the the plane for some reason," one woman told newsmen, "so I did not bring anything with me."

Thus began the great airlift of refugees from Cuba to the United States.

The first plane carried 75 refugees to Miami, 51 of them women and children, ranging in age from a 6-month-old girl to the 74-year-old Mrs. Dalgado.

Within 2½ hours of their arrival, some of the refugees were released to the care of relatives and sponsors around the country.

Only 19 of the 75 were sceduled to remain in the Miami area, where 90,000 other Cuban exiles have settled. And strong sentiment exists against accepting any more.

The refugees had to leave almost all their belongings behind in order to board the escape plane. Many were bitter. "In Cuba, communism and slavery are synonymous," said one man.

Eventually, it is expected that 3,000 to 4,000 refugees a month will be airlifted out of Castro's Cuba until all those who wish to leave are accommodated.

And how many is that?

"Three million people want to leave Cuba," said one of last week's arrivals.

* * * * *

BRITAIN TOOK a cautious step to maintain a foothold of possible force in defiant Rhodesia. British Prime Minister Harold Wilson dispatched Royal Air Force units to nearby Zambia to take action if Rhodesia should seek to interfere with a power station in the Zambia colony.

Both sides have been sparring warily as a result of Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence which has racial overtones and may stir up trouble in the troubled continent of Africa.

JOHN V. LINDSAY was only the mayor-elect of New York City but already found himself in the middle of the biennial quarrel between the city and its subway workers.

The contract between the transit workers union and the transit authority expires at the end of the year and the TWU's irascible Mike Quill wanted Lindsay in on negotiations for a new pact.

Lindsay, who will not be sworn in as mayor until Jan. 1, wired the TWU that he would be glad to help negotiate "when it is evident that both parties are prepared to engage in good-faith collective bargaining."

Whereupon Quill, who has never called a subway strike in 30 years as head of the TWU, threatened to call one on Dec. 15—"just in time for the Christmas shopping rush. Let Mr. Lindsay get out of that one."

* * * * *

INFLATION returned to the nation's economic vocabulary this week when living costs rose to an all-time high.

President Johnson took immediate steps at his Texas ranch to reassure the American business community. He predicted that the economy would boom to new heights next year and that the upward trend would be stabilized.

Icarus Heading Toward the Earth

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About this rumor that a hunk of space rock big as the moon is rushing this way and will bump us in a couple of years:

It just isn't true—not in all respects, at least. There really is a big rock out there, it really is headed this way, and it is confidently expected to arrive in the earth's neighborhood on June 15, 1968.

But it is nowhere as big as the moon and, unless astronomers have unaccountably miscalculated, it will come no closer than 4 million miles.

This is a near-miss by space distance standards. But, say the astronomers, it is a near-miss fraught more with interest than with doom.

* * * *

THE ROCK is little old Icarus, one of thousands of asteroids or minor planets in orbit around the sun. It is only about three-fifths of a mile across, compared to the moon's 2,160-mile diameter.

Still, if Icarus should hit the earth—a most unlikely event, mind you—the effect would be as though a million or so one-megaton H-bombs had exploded at the point of impact.

The rumor that an errant moon was on collision course with the earth was first reported in Philadelphia. It may not have spread much.

But some amateur astronomers called the United Press International bureau in Philadelphia to ask what on earth, or in the cosmos, was going on. Just what triggered their alarm was not apparent. It may have been a misreading of an article in an astronomical magazine.

* * * *

ANYWAY, to get back to innocent little Icarus: It was discovered in 1949, and astronomers with their big telescopes were able to keep it in view long enough to plot its orbit around the sun and the relationship of that orbit with the earth's.

Asteroids range in size from considerably less than a mile to about 500 miles in diameter. They may be chunks of matter which failed for some reason to join up into planets when the solar system was created 5 billion years ago. Or they may be fragments of a subsequent catastrophic collision between a couple of planets.

Some few conceivably are the heads of big comets which for some reason lost their tails.

Most asteroids travel in paths lying between the solar orbits of Mars and Jupiter. Only about 1,650 asteroids have been spotted, but astronomers believe they number in the scores of thousands.

* * * *

COULD ICARUS conceivably get off course, as astronomers have plotted it, and smash into our planet? In calculating Icarus' 1968 fly-past of the earth, astronomers took into account the orbit-perturbing influences of all the other planets—except tiny Pluto out at the edge of the solar system.

Pluto's influence may be too feeble to count. But, as astronomer Robert S. Richardson has pointed out, it would take only a slight change in course to put Icarus and the earth at the same point in space at the same time. This would be disastrous for both.

The chance of this happening, according to Richardson, "is extremely small." But it is "not so small that it can be totally ignored."

SPECTATORS INSIDE Cape Kennedy space center gaze skyward as the Gemini 7 spacecraft, carrying astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell aloft, heads for outer space on the projected 14-day orbital flight. These spectators rate special invitations which permitted them to watch takeoff from within the space center. Thousands of others watched from vantage points along Florida's coast.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

ALCOHOLICS Anonymous is holding a public meeting at 2 p.m. today at the Municipal Auditorium and this prompted a grateful beneficiary of this program for the drinking sick to drop by my desk to relate his experiences.

Frank H., like many others who through the AA have escaped entrapment, wants to spread the word, not just among alcoholics, but among those who may have relatives or friends who can benefit as he did.

He points out that alcoholism is the third greatest killer in the country—running behind heart disease and cancer—and, hence anything that can be done to control this disease is a matter of immense public importance.

Frank H. made his first contact with AA through something that happened on his 19th wedding anniversary. As is the case with many alcoholics, he didn't know he was one. On that day, when he failed to come home as promised, and was expressing his remorse afterwards, his wife gently suggested he might try Alcoholics Anonymous.

Frank H. is a successful Long Beach business man. Among recovered alcoholics are any number of prominent and successful people. One of the speakers at today's meeting will be a judge, identified only as Dick H. Alcoholism strikes all kinds; Alcoholics Anonymous has been found to be the way out by all kinds.

THE only requirement for membership in AA is a desire to stop drinking—a desire born out of a realization that in one's particular case, drinking is disaster.

AA has no dues, is not allied with any sect or political group. It is a fellowship of men and women who share their experience, strength and hope to solve a common problem.

It's the spirit of mutual helpfulness that makes this a remarkable organization. People with a problem can call AA and a "recovered" person will talk with them. They feel that personal recovery depends on AA unity.

At the meeting today, or from any member of AA, a person can obtain a questionnaire containing 20 pertinent questions about your experience with drink. The questions were prepared by Johns Hopkins University; one affirmative answer indicates the tested person may be an alcoholic; two that he probably is, three that he definitely is.

Samples: Do you lose time from work due to drinking? Do you crave a drink at a definite time daily? Do you ever drink alone? Do you drink to build up confidence?

The results of the quiz can be a shocker to people who have no idea they're in trouble. That's the point — the alcoholic is the last person to know he is.

IN ANSWER to my inquiries, Frank H. said he serves drinks to friends in his home, never objects to anybody else drinking, is not an advocate of prohibition.

AA is concerned only with personal recovery of people who turn to it for help. It does not engage in research, medical treatment, education or propaganda.

Frank H. recognizes that most of the people he knows can drink without a problem. He wants those who can't to know about AA. I can think of no other reason he came to tell me of his experiences with the suggestion that something would be said about it in this column.

I was impressed. Among my acquaintances over the years were people with this tragic problem. I agreed with Frank that if a word about the AA program here might help people like them, it ought to be said. And I close this little report with a final word of warning to those who think it's not a matter of concern to them or those they care for. It's the third biggest killer.

WHILE MRS. FRANK BORMAN bows her head and tightly grasps hand of one of her two sons, the boys, Frederick, 14, left, and Edwin, 12, gaze skyward as the rocket carrying their father, astronaut Frank Borman, roars into space at Cape Kennedy.

SOFT LANDING: James Lovell, 10, son of Astronaut and Mrs. James A. Lovell, drops from a tree perch to a bed of pine needles in the yard of family home at El Lago, near Houston, Tex. Playmate Jim Wilcox, 11, watches the flight.

SCAG Does Help Retain Home Rule

A HUE AND CRY is being raised by rightwing groups in Long Beach and the state against the newly-formed voluntary Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG).

The issue will come to a precise point here Tuesday when anti-SCAG factions will ask the City Council to withdraw from SCAG.

The Southern California Association of Governments is designed, in the words of Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, "to deal voluntarily with numerous common problems at the local level and without giving up any home rule powers."

The organization is visualized as encompassing the county governments of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura and Imperial counties as well as the local governments of the 142 cities in those counties.

MEMBERSHIP is voluntary. Any government may withdraw at will. SCAG cannot legislate, levy taxes, issue bonds or exercise power of eminent domain. In short it is not a government. It is two things: a research organization and a forum for discussion of common area-wide problems. It can recommend courses of action. It cannot impose or enforce ideas or actions.

Representation on SCAG's general assembly and executive committee will be elected officials from the governments joining. Expenses will be shared on a pro-rata basis among the member governments.

With this background in mind, it is amazing to learn that SCAG is being attacked by the right-wing groups as a plot of the federal government and numerous national associations of local, state and federal officials to take over local city government.

It is charged that SCAG is a first step toward Metropolitan (Metro) government and that ultimately it is part of a communistic or socialistic plot headed toward world domination.

A book, pamphlet and news letter have been provided our editors by an opponent of SCAG with an explanation that these documents provide a proper background for opposition.

THE THREE documents, bearing the imprint of local area bookstores which handle much John Birch Society and other right-wing publications, do not mention SCAG. Instead they attack a whole series of organizations and the individuals who support them as part of a vast Communist-tainted conspiracy to do away with local government through imposition of Metro government.

The attacks are centered around a building at 1313 E. 60th St., Chicago, which houses some 23 national associations such as the National Municipal League, International City Managers' Association, Conference of Chief Justices, Governors' Conference and groups dealing with such things as building, planning, public works, public welfare, assessing, mental health.

One of the books, "Terrible 1313 Revisited" by Jo Hindman of Inglewood, points out that overt leaders of Metro (that is, the supporters of these associations) are not identified as "card-carrying Communists" but that "Metro's hidden leaders quite possibly could be." It then refers the reader to a list of some 200 persons "behind Metro," a list which contains such names as Barry Goldwater, Herbert Hoover, George Christopher, Republican candidate for California governor, Anthony Celebrezze, George Gallup, Norris Poulson, Robert Wagner and numerous mayors and city and state officials.

THE IMPLICATION behind providing this material as a reason for not supporting SCAG is that SCAG is designed to foster Metro government.

Nothing could be further from the truth. SCAG is specifically designed to prevent the spread of regional forms of government at the expense of local control.

The vast problems facing the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area won't go away. The public will and is demanding solution of such things as air and water pollution, transportation, flood control, urban sprawl, etc. No individual city can deal with these problems. If the cities work cooperatively, they may be able to solve them. If not, some higher form of government will. SCAG, as Mayor Yorty said, can provide a voluntary way to solve the problems without losing home rule.

We are for that.

Stuck With It

Dividing California into two states would be worse than changing the name of Arkansas. It just wouldn't work.

Let's face it. We are stuck with the greatest state in the Union. About all that will happen to the proposal made by Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, who revived the two-state idea, is that he will get his name in the paper a few times.

California has everything from the best to the worst. People long have referred to portions of this state as Southern California and Northern California. But if things came to a showdown, they would fight for all of California—and continue to be mighty proud of it.

Your recent editorial about Marine Corps boot camp had to be written by a former Marine who had been through it all. Otherwise he wouldn't have known what it was all about.

Thanks for explaining our situation in your paper. Those of us in the corps know that when this country calls on us to perform in combat, we are expected to be successful. Boot camp is the key to that success.

Appeals to Long Beach

EDITOR:

Having read George Robeson's recent "Nightcap" column, it brings to mind when our son started at Long Beach State College and was asked to join a fraternity.

My husband and I tried to discourage him, but when we found out that one had to maintain a better than average grade to belong, we decided it would be good. He joined a fraternity, and we found that the older members would take turns coming to our home to teach him how to study. We became acquainted with these fine gentlemen; and as they did not have a meeting place, our home, like those of other parents, was open to them. Their parties and meetings were enjoyed by us, because we knew our son was associating with boys and girls of whom we could be proud.

I joined the Mothers Club and found they were of the same caliber. We, the mothers helped raise money so that the boys could buy a home, but alas, where were they welcome? Many of these boys lived many miles from school and the dorms were overflowing.

So, I too, agree—why doesn't Long Beach make room for our college students, who now number 20,000 strong at Long Beach State, not even counting City College.

The merchants of Long Beach should help: clothing, cars, food, gasoline and many things are bought by these young people in your town, and their parents buy there also.

The raid on that particular night was an outrage.

Critical of Policy

EDITOR:

I am dismayed at the position taken by the United States against the government of Rhodesia, an anti-Communist friend.

The position taken by Rhodesia, that of independence, is not the concern of the United States, but only of Rhodesia and Great Britain.

At a time when we are fighting the Communists in Asia, we also become entangled into fighting our allies. The Communists are endeavoring to conquer the world and involve us in their strategy to obtain their goal. They are clever and we are acting very stupid and naive.

This is just another example of United States involvement in the United Nations, which guides our foreign policy. The United States doesn't have any solid foreign policy, only that of the United Nations.

We are again using double standards. As a crusader for civil rights and liberty, where were the United States and the United Nations in 1956 during the Hungarian uprising; the infamous Berlin Wall which has been a scene of death for scores of fugitives from Communist tyranny?

If we are going to belong to a world organization, let us use it to our advantage as has the other nations. Let us stop condemning our friends and aiding our enemies. Let us stand for our principles of liberty and justice, not for some, but for all.

Scott Raps Goldwater, Platform

BOB HOUSER

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania came west over the weekend to commend the new California Republican League (CRL), a sanctuary for moderate Republicans who felt uneasy in the state's volunteer GOP groups which turned abruptly right about three years ago.

CRL objectives, said Scott, "are what I always thought was the central direction of the Republican Party." He suggested that the GOP "resume its normal centrist Trend and take back what was ours until Lyndon Johnson preempted it last year."

The way, he said, is to offer candidates and programs "responsive to the late-20th Century aspirations of the American people." The future of California, for example, can't be met, he said, by adherence to past concepts or to the idea that all federal programs are socialism.

ACCEPTABLE and realizable alternatives to the Democratic Party and following the central ground is not me-tooism, said Scott. To parrot this accusation is to fall prey to the flying cliche, he said. To support the Democratic administration when it's right is not me-tooism. In the law of average, the other fellow is apt to be right a fair amount of the time. "It's honesty to say so. If you're free to praise when they're right, there's more credence to your case when you say you believe they are wrong."

Johnson, when he was Senate majority leader "spent many hours me-tooing Eisenhower, and I thought it was great."

The John Birch Society — Educational or political organization?

"I DON'T think it's political," said Sen. Scott; "It's a virus. It defames or praises according to its own warped ideology. To profess to be anti-Communist doesn't make you all right, as the ghost of Adolf Hitler will remind you. I don't know of any crowd that's more anti-Communist than the Republican Party.

"The Birch Society has no place in the American political system. I don't think you can be a good Republican and a good John Bircher at the same time."

On Barry Goldwater, Scott said he feels th sentiment in the Republican Party today "is more than 80% against the viewpoint espoused by our 1964 candidate and as perpetrated in the more horrid sections of our 1964 platform.

"The Goldwater candidacy and that platform cost us 13 Senate seats in 1964 and 38 in the House."

Scott said he feels Californians will react in the 1966 elections as most other Americans, realizing that in our own best interests the country needs a strong two-party system. "The whole government is flashing red lights and tilt signs with Lyndon Johnson in control of all three branches. This can only lead to arrogance, and recklessness in the preparation of legislation and ruthlessness in its enforcement."

Demonstrators Turn to 'Grass Roots' Tactics

CAPITAL CHATTER

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sponsors of last week's anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations have begun shifting their pressure from the executive to Congress.

Participants in the march have been urged to get busy in their home areas to organize campaigns directed at their representatives and senators.

Demonstrators were given "what to do next" leaflets as the march neared its conclusion. Among other things, the broadsides urged the participants to visit their congressmen, "preferably as part of a delegation," and urge the solons to hold Viet Nam hearings in their districts.

THE SHEETS also urged that those opposed to the Viet Nam conflict actively locate and back congressional candidates who would campaign "in support of a peaceful settlement in Viet Nam."

Such a grass roots campaign probably would have its greatest effect in New York, since a "voice poll" conducted of the crowd at the Washington Monument grounds indicated that most of its members were from the Empire State. Responses from the Upper Midwest and West Coast states were almost negligible.

DIPLOMATS have long been famous for their enigmatic behavior and statements. Like the Delphic oracle, they can often say nothing in the most impressive way.

For instance, the other day one of these reporters was chatting with a diplomat who had served a long stretch in Moscow. The subject of the controversial Penkovsky papers came up. Those are the asserted papers of a Russian colonel who was spying for the West. Considerable doubt exists as to whether the papers were in fact written by the colonel. At all events, the diplomat was asked whether he thought Penkovsky had written the papers. After long thought, the diplomat replied: "Well, they are like what Penkovsky would have written if he had written them." Take it from there!

SPEAKING OF the Penkovsky papers we were chatting about them with a man who early in the Kennedy administration had access to the very top top secrets. We asked him whether he had known about Penkovsky. "Not by name," he replied, "but I knew we had someone high up working for us over there (Moscow)."

"But," he added, "I can tell you one thing. The reports I saw from him at that time were not like the published papers. His reports were not nearly as well organized or clean cut as the published papers make them appear."

Fire Hazard to State Crime Files Could Give Convicts 'Last Laugh'

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Convicts are getting the last laugh on the state.

Newspaper accounts have filtered into state prisons how a goof-up has placed in peril of fire or flooding all 2.7 million files on California criminals.

The files are stored on open stacks in folders on library-type desks in a $16,000-a-month rented building in Sacramento.

"Clever officials turned off the sprinkler system so no one would accidentally trigger a flood, but now they're violating the fire code. Somebody gimme a match," says a column in the San Quentin Prison News.

While convicts snickered, the state hastily announced it was moving all the criminal files to a new building in a few months. Meanwhile, state officials must fret, whether they personally will wind up in the criminal files—for violating the municipal fire code due to the disconnected sprinkler system.

AND AS IF troubles with convicts and law men weren't enough, there's also an Indian Historical Society uprising in the works.

The society wants California history books changed, contending present textbooks are inaccurate in stating that Indians received paternal care at the old California missions.

The society asserts that some Indians were held at the California Missions against their will in serf-like bondage. The State Curriculum Commission is looking into the controversy.

Law men and the State Curriculum Commission aren't the only ones taking their lumps these days. There also are the legislators.

The furor over pensions for redistricted lawmakers well may have killed any chance for boosting the $500-a-month-pay of legislators.

THE LEGISLATORS had tried valiantly for two years to build public confidence in the legislative process—the type of public acceptance that would create a climate for more pay.

But in one blow—give-away pensions for redistricted legislators—the legislature may have destroyed that public confidence.

The Constitutional Revision Commission had planned to submit five state constitutional amendments to the 1966 legislature. One of them would have allowed lawmakers to set their own pay.

Until the pension uproar, there was an excellent possibility the electorate would approve the constitutional changes. Persons close to the commission now concede that the whole reform program may have been undermined.

L. A. C. SAYS

When Radicals Use Party Labels

THE TWO-PARTY system in this country is being weakened by the wide publicity given when some radicals take over control of some party unit and thereby weaken the effectiveness of the party as a whole. Latest episode in Long Beach was Young Republicans electing as their president a 32-year-old man who had been charged with being active in militant groups such as California Rangers. For a short time he was a member of the Birch Society, but apparently thought it too conservative for him.

THIS ACTION by the Young Republicans was taken by less than a score of its members. His resignation has been called for. It is charged he is anti-Semitic and generally a danger to the moderation of the great majority of people who look upon themselves as Republicans. It is one more blemish on the party that must be carried in its fight for sound government.

However, it should be recognized that the Democratic Party has even more blemishes on its record. It should be understood that the great majority of Ku Klux Klan members are in the Southern states where 80% of the people are registered as Democrats. The largest per capita Democratic votes come from this area where the greatest violation of civil rights is found.

THE MOST powerful organization of the Democratic Party in California is the California Democratic Council, CDC, which has long been the greatest supporter of the governor and members of his party. Since 1960 that group has advocated abolition of the loyalty oath and the Un-American Activities Committee of Congress. In general, it has been about as far left as any group in the state. But this year its president went too far in supporting the anti-Viet Nam demonstrations—so the governor demanded its president's resignation. But the organization refused to take such action.

These are the burdens both parties carry. It is evident one is as heavy as the other. But the Republicans get the greatest publicity as these radical groups—made up of very few members—use the party label for their activities. There are just too many separate organizations using one of the two party labels. It is time for both parties to purge their statewide organizations of groups that do not properly reflect the fundamental principles on which the state and national parties are based.

THIS DOES NOT mean any local or fringe group should be denied the right to debate and propose changes in the party. But it should mean those that go against the principles of the party—as set out in their state and national conventions—should be denied the right of using the party label. If that is not done it means the end of the two-party system as we have known it over the years. If the CDC adopts programs in opposition to principles of the Democratic Party it should be denied use of the term "Democratic." If the Young Republicans elect men to their offices who have records of racial hatreds or armed militants they should be denied use of the term "Republican." It is time to eliminate these groups as members of the national party organizations.—L.A.C.

France Is Troubled by Memories

(Editor's note: Based upon his recent trip to France, Drew Pearson diagnoses the political situation there, as the French people vote today on the reelection of President de Gaulle.)

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—What is troubling France today is memory—either too much or not enough.

De Gaulle remembers how Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower failed to consult him regarding the Normandy landing until the day before it started; but he doesn't remember that without that landing he would not be where he is today.

De Gaulle recently told a member of his staff: "If there is another war, French troops would be commanded by an American. I should command those troops."

What De Gaulle doesn't remember is that aside from a brief period when he was a tank commander in World War II, he hasn't commanded troops since 1916 and war has changed a lot in 50 years. But he's pulling France out of the carefully built-up machinery of NATO so a Frenchman can command French troops.

WHAT DE GAULLE also doesn't remember is that when a Frenchman did command those troops, France was pushed into the sea.

He doesn't remember how Winston Churchill picked him from a crowded hotel lobby in Bordeaux when the Nazi armies were only a few hours away and when Frenchmen were taking to small boats to cross the channel; and how Churchill took him, De Gaulle, back to London to groom him as the savior of France.

Especially De Gaulle doesn't remember how France and Britain pulled at cross purposes before Hitler struck and how, if they had cooperated, Hitler couldn't have successfully struck.

De Gaulle doesn't remember how in March 1936 the British cabinet debated all day as Hitler marched into the Rhineland. He doesn't remember that Hitler's troops had two sets of marching orders, one to advance, the other to retreat—if there was any resistance. A show of resistance would have tipped the scales, might have prevented World War II. But the British cabinet debated, the French government wailed.

* * *

AT THE END of one day it was too late. Hitler had taken the Rhineland and the Ruhr, had the iron and steel of France and World War II was certain.

The Old Man of France, according to his friends, has an elephant's memory. He remembers how Eisenhower sent Gen. Omar Bradley the night before the Normandy landing to tell De Gaulle belatedly that the Allies were about to retake his country.

But De Gaulle doesn't remember how Bradley later delayed the American entry into Paris for one day so De Gaulle could march at the head of Allied troops. And he doesn't remember how President Truman deliberately made a place for France at the Potsdam Conference and gave France a zone of occupation in Germany though France had done no fighting for three years.

De Gaulle also does not remember that the best way to insure American non-cooperation is to alienate American public opinion; and that once American opinion starts swinging isolationist and anti-French, it is difficult to reverse the trend.

TODAY American opinion is strong for NATO, sold on the protection of France, reconciled to keeping American troops in Europe. But it was not always so.

The Old Man of France remembers the lonely days in London which he spent trying to keep together the scattered, defeated remnants of the French Republic. Those were bitter days. He was completely dependent on the United States and Britain, and he vows to make France so independent that never again will it be in this humiliating position. What he wants is to take advantage of our missiles yet have his own missiles too.

It will be interesting to see how much support the French people give him at the polls today.

Johnson Seen Concerned Over Inflation Factors

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Thanks to rapid advances in the technology of interpreting White House statements, it is now possible to state with some assurance that President Johnson is quite worried about the possibility of inflation. The key fact is that the White House "Lone Star Branch" says he is not.

In the new technology this fact is "cranked in," as we bureaucrats say, to an assortment of other data. There is, for example, the fact that President Johnson released aluminum from the stockpile to cause a roll-back in an announced price increase. This is identifiable as a fact because Mr. Johnson declined to admit this was his purpose in turning the metal loose.

IN THE SAME "universe" of data, as we social scientists say, are a roll-back in copper prices, a road block in the path of a bread price increase, a "routine extraordinary" meeting of the President with his economic managers, his personal intervention to obtain a steel wage settlement within shooting distance of anti-inflationary guidelines, and his sturdy announcement on Thursday that we can have our prosperity and eat it too "at prices subject to change without notice" — while mounting a bigger war in Viet Nam.

All that the President has to fear, of course, is an inflationary psychology. This pathological phenomenon has sources in the neurotic behavior of the cost of living index, which reached a new high in October with the help of an accelerating rate of rise; in the misguided zeal of the Viet Cong, obliging us to spend more money on weapons and men; in the curious wish of business men to maintain profit margins; in the insatiable appetite of the working class as manifested at super-market check-out counters.

FREDERIC COLLINS

THERE IS an auxiliary source in the perfectly normal desire of Mr. Johnson to make everyone happy in a large economy size society "costing only pennies more," and another in his normal worry that a few more fractional points on the index might be bad political news in 1966 and perhaps even 1968. You can't blame the head of the house for thinking about such things.

Perhaps it was because he recognized the factor of neuroticism in the inflationary psychology that Mr. Johnson pursued for so long the kindly course of permissiveness rather than discipline. He would have looked like a cross-patch indeed if he had stomped on the wage increases in the automobile and construction industries earlier in this administration, or in the aluminum industry last spring, or on what an uncertified private accountant might have regarded as automobile price increases early this fall.

BESIDES, there was that blessed consensus, firm, symmetrical, a handsome thing to behold, a shelter under which business men were sleeping like babes in the same bed with a Democratic president and the labor unions. It was so quiet around the house! If one of the sleepers stirred he could always make himself drop off again by counting profits, or fringe benefits, or votes.

It would obviously serve little purpose to wake everybody up just because somebody is running off with the parlor furniture, and President Johnson is not one to be at a loss for a better way of dealing with the situation. Obviously, one better way is to make a statement that no one is running away with the parlor furtniture.

And if that doesn't work, there is always "voluntary cooperation," which means that if anyone is caught running away with parlor furniture he claims is his, the president refurnishes the parlor out of the strategic stockpile of what-nots and credendas, and thus takes all the fun and profit out of the caper.

'A Whisky Boat's in Port'

SAN PEDRO—Not all streets along the waterfront are big, shining boulevards.

There are side streets where sunshine never seems to drive away the shadows. And there is old Beacon Street, gone to ruin in a three-block stretch.

In those dreary streets, men loaf who have known better times, times when they could walk into a bar and name a brand—and even pay for the drink.

Now, it's mooch it or stay dry. They sit on steps of a skid-row mission. They doze across locked doorways.

Every week or so, however, an event happens which sends an electric rumor through the listless ones.

"There's a whisky boat in again!"

* * * * *

THEN THE weary ones stand up and stretch and they limp along the shabby side streets to the harbor's edge. They watch a freighter moving in.

"Old 86 Proof," one says.

The eyes glow, watching that ship. They glow, and then they dull again. The ship ties up at a berth across the channel. Even from so far away, the watching men can see uniformed guards patrolling the wharf.

"Not a drop for us," says a watcher. And the weary ones limp back along the dirty streets to the mission steps.

The ship opens her hatches, and load after load of cases of whisky are hoisted out and lowered to the wharf. Longshoremen trundle the loads into a warehouse and stack the cases 15 feet high.

Armed guards keep watch. There are guards everywhere. The old days of dropped cases, of leakages which cheered the waterfront shadows—those days are no more.

There aren't really any more "whisky boats" in the old-days' meaning of "whisky boat." Such a ship was a chartered vessel full of nothing but whisky, like the British Prince which brought over an all-time record cargo of 290,000 cases back in 1957. That's 3,480,000 bottles of Scotch!

* * * * *

CARGOES OF Scotch come into this port now, every few days, along with other cargo on big freighters. The Scotch averages 35,000 cases per ship in early months of the year, but picks up to 50,000 by fall, when buyers are stocking shelves for the holidays.

Facts about the flood of Scotch were summarized by the public relations department of the Port of Los Angeles. The port's spokesman noted that in 12 months, ships brought in 20,165 tons of distilled spirits. Tons—not bottles, or even barrels!

"Mostly Scotch, with a wee bit of gin," he said.

Even in their dreams of bygone prosperity and high living, the side-street weary ones cannot imagine such an ocean of alcohol.

"The distilled spirits," the spokesman said, "averaged 50 cases to the ton."

Fifty cases of 12 fifths each, or 600 bottles times 20,165 tons—why, put it all down and the resulting hangover if laid end to end would reach from the 400-block of Beacon Street where the weary ones sit, all the way back to Scotland by way of the moon!

L.B. Independent Business Group Headed by Wade

By BUCK LANIER
Naval Affairs Reporter

Harry E. Wade, a founding member, is the new president of the Independent Business Men's Association. Wade, a registered representative with Waddell and Reed Mutual Funds, succeeds Don Phillips of the Chicken Pie Shop.

The Navy-oriented group was started March 19, 1952, and annually sponsors the Whitehat Award Banquet honoring the outstanding enlisted men on Long Beach-based ships and shore facilities.

Other officers are Floyd Ayers, Weber Baking Co., first vice president; Jerry Tollefson, CPA with King, Tollefson and Bunch, second vice president; Lee Horwitt of Julius Horwitt Tailors, secretary; and Cliff Love of Paine-Ebright Insurance Co., treasurer.

* * * * *

"WE ARE going to join with other city groups in making the welcome for the USS Long Beach one of the outstanding events in the city's history," Wade said. The nuclear-powered missile cruiser is expected to tie up here for the first time sometime in March.

The board of directors includes Frank Fisher, president of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard Employes Association; Art Moore, president of the Fleet Reserve Association; Al Warhurst, president of the U.S. Naval Weapons Station Employes Association; Radell Moore, president of the Long Beach Postal Employes Association.

Also Buddy Gilman of Douglas Aircraft Co. and president of the 11th District Navy League; Bill Koester of Sears Roebuck Co.; and Robert McNulty, president of Diamond Cab Co.

U.S. Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, was present at the election meeting and complimented the IMBA on its outstanding work for the Navy.

Rep. Hosmer is captain in the Naval Reserve and has just concluded a duty tour with the 7th Fleet.

New Warehouse

Ground will be broken at 3 p.m. Monday for a new Mayflower Van Lines Co. warehouse at 3701 Industry Ave., Lakewood. Company and city officials will take part in the ceremony.

Bus Passenger Revenue Drops

Passenger revenue of Long Beach Public Transportation Co. decreased 2.1% last fiscal year, but the firm was able to continue replacing obsolete vehicles with the aid of the annual city subsidy.

An operating deficit of $61,909 was converted into $332,541 net income after the city's payment of $394,450. The subsidy came from a special tax levy authorized by a voter-approved charter amendment.

Revenue from passengers dwindled from the previous years' $1,942,969 to $1,901,749, according to an annual report just released by City Auditor Murray T. Courson.

* * * * *

THE DECLINE was a continuation of a general trend. However, company officials noted the passenger loss is beginning to level off. It also is far below the rate of decline under the previous ownership.

Charter revenue moved up from $95,678 to $118,896, and advertising income gained from $23,197 to $36,864. Thus the 1964-65 total revenue was off only $4,335 from the previous year's figure of $2,061,844.

At the end of the fiscal year the company had taken delivery on 62 new buses, and 16 others were recently acquired. The purchase of 18 more will complete the replacement of the obsolete fleet taken over by the new company in September, 1963, from its predecessor, Long Beach Motor Bus Co. Only 15 of the vehicles acquired at that time were of modern design and vintage.

A major reason for the operating deficit, a company spokesman pointed out, is that the rapid replacement of buses has increased the accounting charge for depreciation.

NEW MASTER

H. Douglas Lemons will be installed Worshipful Master of Bixby Knolls Masonic Lodge 699 at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Masonic Temple, 3610 Locust Ave.

Meet Set on Civil Defense

More than 100 civil defense officials will meet Friday in Long Beach for an all-day series of discussions of disaster recovery activities.

The bi-monthly conference of the Southern California Civil Defense and Disaster Association will convene at 9:30 a.m. in the Edgewater Inn.

Among the speakers will be Col. Melville I. Stark, Riverside County CD director, who will head a discussion of emergency resources management, and Adam Wiley, radiological defense coordinator of the Los Angeles County Air Pollution Control District, who will tell plans to cope with day-to-day peacetime radiation problems.

Presiding will be Elmer Kell, Beverly Hills CD director and president of the association. Sessions are open to the public.

Vet Service Office

COMPTON—The Compton branch of the Los Angeles County Veterans Service Office, 212 S. Acacia St., will be open Wednesday of each week from 9 to 5 p.m., according to Arthur H. Tyron, county service office.

John C. Shaffer, veterans claims officer, will assist veterans in filing claims for benefits.

Building Is Slowed by Rains

I P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Heavy rains during November apparently slowed construction, and the month's building volume totaled only $29.4 million in the area served by the county's Building and Safety Division.

County Engineer John A. Lambie reported the month's figure brought 1965 building volume in the unincorporated area and the 30 cities served by the division to $376,040,274.

During the same period of 1964, the total was $455,420,373, Lambie said.

* * * * *

THE record high for any November was the $45.1-million volume recorded in 1962. Last November, the total was $30.5 million.

Lambie reported 1,968 building permits totaling $22.6 million were issued by the division for construction in the unincorporated area. In the 30 cities served by the division, there were 815 permits issued for $6.6 million.

Because the engineering department is changing its data processing system no breakdown of figures for the cities is available this month.

U.S. Junior C-C Award to L.B. Unit

The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce has presented the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce its Jaycee Community Development Award.

The Long Beach Junior Chamber won the award for updating and modernizing the 130-page Long Beach Traffic Ordinance. The new traffic ordinance went into effect Dec. 5, 1964.

The award states: "Whereby, in examining the community and designing action project to alleviate needs found by analysis of that examination, this Chapter did give its membership and the public an increased awareness of the local problems and did thereby contribute to the over-all growth and development of the community."

Avalon Men View L.A.'s 'Gate' to Isle

Avalon city officials had a preview of the $1-million sea and air facility that will serve Catalina Island on a Saturday tour of the "Gateway to Catalina" terminal under construction in San Pedro.

They also were the first to make use of the amphibian-aircraft ramp at the facility, under construction beneath the Vincent Thomas Bridge, when they arrived at noon from the island.

Greeted by Charles Stilwell, operator of the steamship Catalina, were Mayor Fred Hochberg, Vice Mayor Herbert Wegmann, Councilmen James Burke and Bert Guthrie, City Manager Cal Conrad and Don Haney, editor of the Catalina newspaper.

* * * *

THE PREVIEW flight was piloted by Bob Hanley, president of Catalina Seaplanes Inc., which will share the facilities with the steamship operators.

Stilwell said it was expected the facility would be ready for use by Feb. 15, but the Catalina will not begin its summer season schedule of runs from the terminal until May.

The facility is being constructed by the Port of Los Angeles to replace the present terminal building in Wilmington, which has been condemned.

New Congregations Planned by Lutherans

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The American Lutheran Church announced Saturday it has voted to start 62 new congregations.

The church's Board of American Missions estimated cost of the 1966 program, including capital fund loans to new congregations, at $8,033,000. Loan funds for the new churches will average $125,000.

EFFICIENCY WINS MEDAL

Air Force M/Sgt. Imon B. Mills receives Air Force Commendation Medal from Col. Leslie C. Stockton Saturday in ceremonies at 2347th Air Force Reserve headquarters at Long Beach Municipal Airport.

ACTOR HEADS JUDGES

Boat Parade Dec. 18

Actor Preston Foster, a motion-picture and television waterfront character, will head a panel of judges at the third annual "Christmas Afloat" parade of lighted boats in Los Angeles Harbor Dec. 18.

An officer in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve and featured player of the TV series "Waterfront," Foster will judge the parade along with George D. Watson, president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, Los Angeles; Capt. Roger M. Dudley, USCG; Col. Mark F. Brennan, commanding officer of Ft. MacArthur; Maj. Lawrence H. Shutte, commander of the 670th Radar Station, USAF; Capt. M. H. Lytle, commander Naval Station, Long Beach, and Dr. John R. Goode.

There will be three classes of judging: individually decorated boats, group decorated boats and boats entered by communities.

Route of the parade, which begins at 7 p.m., will be from the East Basin, near the Matson Terminal in the Wilmington district, down the Main Channel along the San Pedro waterfront to the Outer Harbor at Cabrillo Beach, returning to the Main Channel and disbanding near the Vincent Thomas Bridge.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Blue Chip Stocks Down as Market Remains Dull

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue chip stocks continued to drift lower last week while a handful of secondary shares and special situations captured most of the buying interest.

Prices started off on the wrong foot with a 1.23 drop in the Dow-Jones industrial average on Monday and followed up with another 0.22 deficit on Tuesday. A modest 0.89 gain was wrung out Wednesday but a 3.01 drop on Thursday further swelled the loss on the week. A special hand from autos and a few other issues boosted the indicator 1.51 in the final session.

Wall Streeters generally ignored the incoming news this week and seemed to concentrate more on finding special situations in the list. While this "hunt-and-buy" method produced several interesting highlights it left the over-all list with a dull tone.

* * * *

HOWEVER, THE majority of analysts feel the present situation is more or less normal for this time of year—the tax season—and that tax selling and switching may keep the list churning for awhile. Some of the experts said they would not be surprised to see some further backtracking in view of the large gains run up since June.

Once the tax season is over and things get back to a condition resembling a normal market, the experts see a brisk year-end rally. Forecasts of a 1,000 breakthrough for the Dow Jones industrial average are still being maintained and some of the chartists have found encouragement for their beliefs in the recent bullish action of the rail barometer.

Dow-Jones industrials slid 2.06 on the week to 946.10. Rails, however, jumped 1.37 to finish at a new peak of 243.70. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index slipped 0.76 to 91.27.

TRADING TOTALED 15,136,880 shares compared with 28,373,660 shares in the four sessions a week before and 23,339,632 shares in the same week last year.

This was the broadest weekly market on record with 1,553 issues traded. There were 716 losers in the list, 112 at new 1965 lows, and 608 gainers, 280 at new highs.

Fairchild-Hiller topped the active list with a gain of 4¼ at 21 on 767,300 shares. Pan American World Airways took second place with a gain of 3⅞ at 47⅛ on 648,400 shares.

Electrical & Musical Instruments placed third with a gain of ¼ at 5 on 632,400 shares. The company said this week it expects its first fiscal half profits to approximate the year ago level. Sperry Rand advanced 1⅛ to 19⅝ on 577,200 shares in fourth spot. Sperry this week introduced a new system as its first entry into the super computer field.

* * * *

SCM CORP. was also active. It jumped 4 points after the directors declared a 10-cent cash payment, its first since 1959, and a 2½% stock dividend.

General Dynamics climbed 6½ points in active dealings. On Friday the Defense Department announced plans to go ahead with production of the F111 Air Force reconnaisance plane. General Dynamics will do the work on the contract for which $12 million has been authorized for initial development.

Autos were soft with General Motors down 1¼, Ford 1 and American Motors ¾. Chrysler tacked on ⅛. Steels were mostly fractions lower. Chemicals were also easier with Union Carbide down 1½ and Eastman Kodak and Du Pont off fractions.

* * * *

ELECTRONICS were heavily sold this week with most of the downward pressure apparently stemming from profit-taking. IBM sank 29 points after it said it expects that its profit gain from 1964 may narrow in the present quarter.

Motorola tumbled 8½, Beckman 7⅛, Admiral 4⅜, Zenith 3¾ and RCA 2⅛, the last despite a dividend boost on Friday. Texas Instruments added 3⅛ and Honeywell rose 3¼. Fairchild Camera was a standout with a king-sized gain of 12¾.

Profit-taking was also seen in a few sessions in the airlines but the group finished mostly higher. Delta was ahead 5¾, United 7⅛, Western 4⅜ and National 4. KLM Royal Dutch shed 3, and Northwest eased 1¾.

North American Aviation and Boeing sold off, losing 3 and 1¾ respectively but United Aircraft jumped 7⅜, Douglas 3¾ and Grumman 3⅝.

* * * *

SCOVILLE MFG. rose 4 points on a dividend boost and plans for a 2-for-1 stock split. American Broadcasting soared 9⅝ after it announced it was holding merger talks with International Telephone. International Telephone tacked on ⅛.

Pennzoil sprinted 5 points and United Gas advanced 2 to 40¼ after Pennzoil said it was considering extending its original offer to acquire 1 million United Gas shares at $41 each to more than 4 million shares or about 38% of the total outstanding.

Buckingham rose 3⅛ on a dividend increase and proposed a 2-for-1 stock split. Paramount Pictures shed 1⅞ on news its third quarter profits had dropped sharply. Kennecott Copper advanced 5⅜. Kennecott said this week it will open a lead mine in Missouri.

Teen-age Girl Dies Following Drinking Party

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sheriff's deputies said a 16-year-old girl was found dead in her home Saturday after a teen-age drinking party.

The victim was Mary Frances Andrzejewski of Marchmont Riviera, a Sacramento suburb.

Deputies booked four teen-age boys on charges of lewd and lascivious conduct. They said the girl lost consciousness during a party at the home of a 17-year-old boy, whose parents were away.

The boys took the girl to her home, where her body was found by a younger sister.

Santo Domingo U.S. Troops Cut to 6,800

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — American armed strength in the Dominican Republic has been reduced to about 6,800 men from a midyear peak of about 25,000, a U.S. military spokesman reported Saturday.

This is the minimum level at which U.S. armed forces will be kept in this country—unless an emergency arises—until the Inter-American Peace Force is evacuated. The total strength of the OAS peace force now is about 8,000.

We've got a word of advice for all you dish slaves.

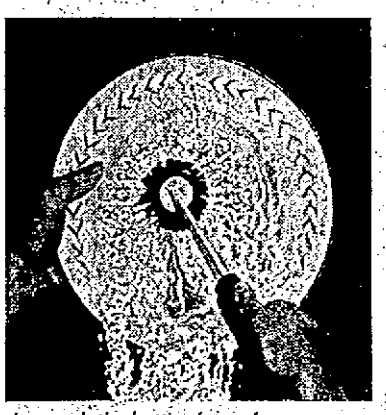

Be a dish master.

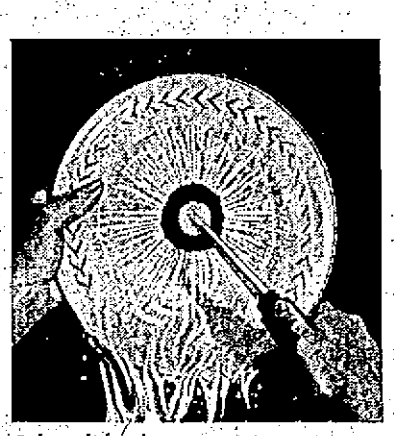

You don't have to put your hands in hot, soapy water three times a day. Or spend all that time, either. Not if you've got a new Dishmaster Imperial, you don't.

Dishmaster is ideal for husbands who hate to do dishes. And for wives who haven't been able to get their husbands to do dishes. It's quick. Simple. And very clean.

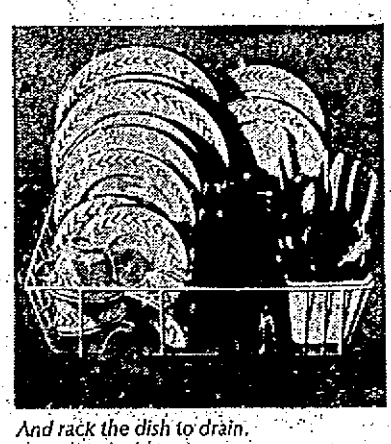

Don't be a dish slave. Be a dish master. Buy a Dishmaster at any of the leading hardware, plumbing, appliance or department stores listed below. It'll fit any sink. And for best results, be sure to pick up a bottle of Dishmaster concentrated detergent.

Just push the button for suds.

Release it for rinse.

And rack the dish to drain.

Y's Men Expect to Raise $25,000 From Yule Trees

The Y's Men of the Los Altos YMCA Men's Club are making their annual pilgrimage to their Christmas Tree lot at Atherton Street and Bellflower Boulevard Dec. 4.

If all goes as expected, end of the Christmas tree season will see the Y's Men close their books on another $25,000 gross — the amount raised last year.

While this has the jingle-jingle bell sound of commercialism—and fund raising is a big activity of the Los Altos Y's Men — the goals are about as far from commerialism at Christmas that you can get.

The money raised goes to keep the more than 3,000 youngsters in more than 200 youth groups at the Los Altos Y functioning in a wide variety of activities throughout the year.

(Christmas tree sales are not the only fund-raising activities of the Y which has 6000 members. Other activities include an annual carnival ($3000) and pancake breakfast ($1200-$1500); membership enrollment ($100,000 over the past five years.)

• • • •

A STABLE GROUP, the Y's Men is composed of about 60 members. It was established five years ago and has been led by Don Berger, Bruce Kerr, Leon Forman, Leon Smith and at present, Ken McKee. They meet the first and third Saturdays of each month for a 7:30 breakfast, and carry out a highly intensive program of service to youth, to the Y and the community.

Its youth activity program — one of largest in the nation — works with boys and girls from the first grade (Indian Guides) through high school age. A college youth program now is in the making.

Among other activities, the men drive buses and are camp counselors; provide officials or sporting activities; arrange recognition programs for outstanding boy and girl members each month; help sponsor students at various conferences in other cities and countries, sponsor and host youth from other areas; support scholarships for students whose college careers are YMCA service-directed.

• • • •

THE GROUP pledged $36,500 and this year will make the final $9,000 payment on the outdoor swimming pool at the Y. It provides leadership and manpower for the membership campaign to the Y, organized in 1958.

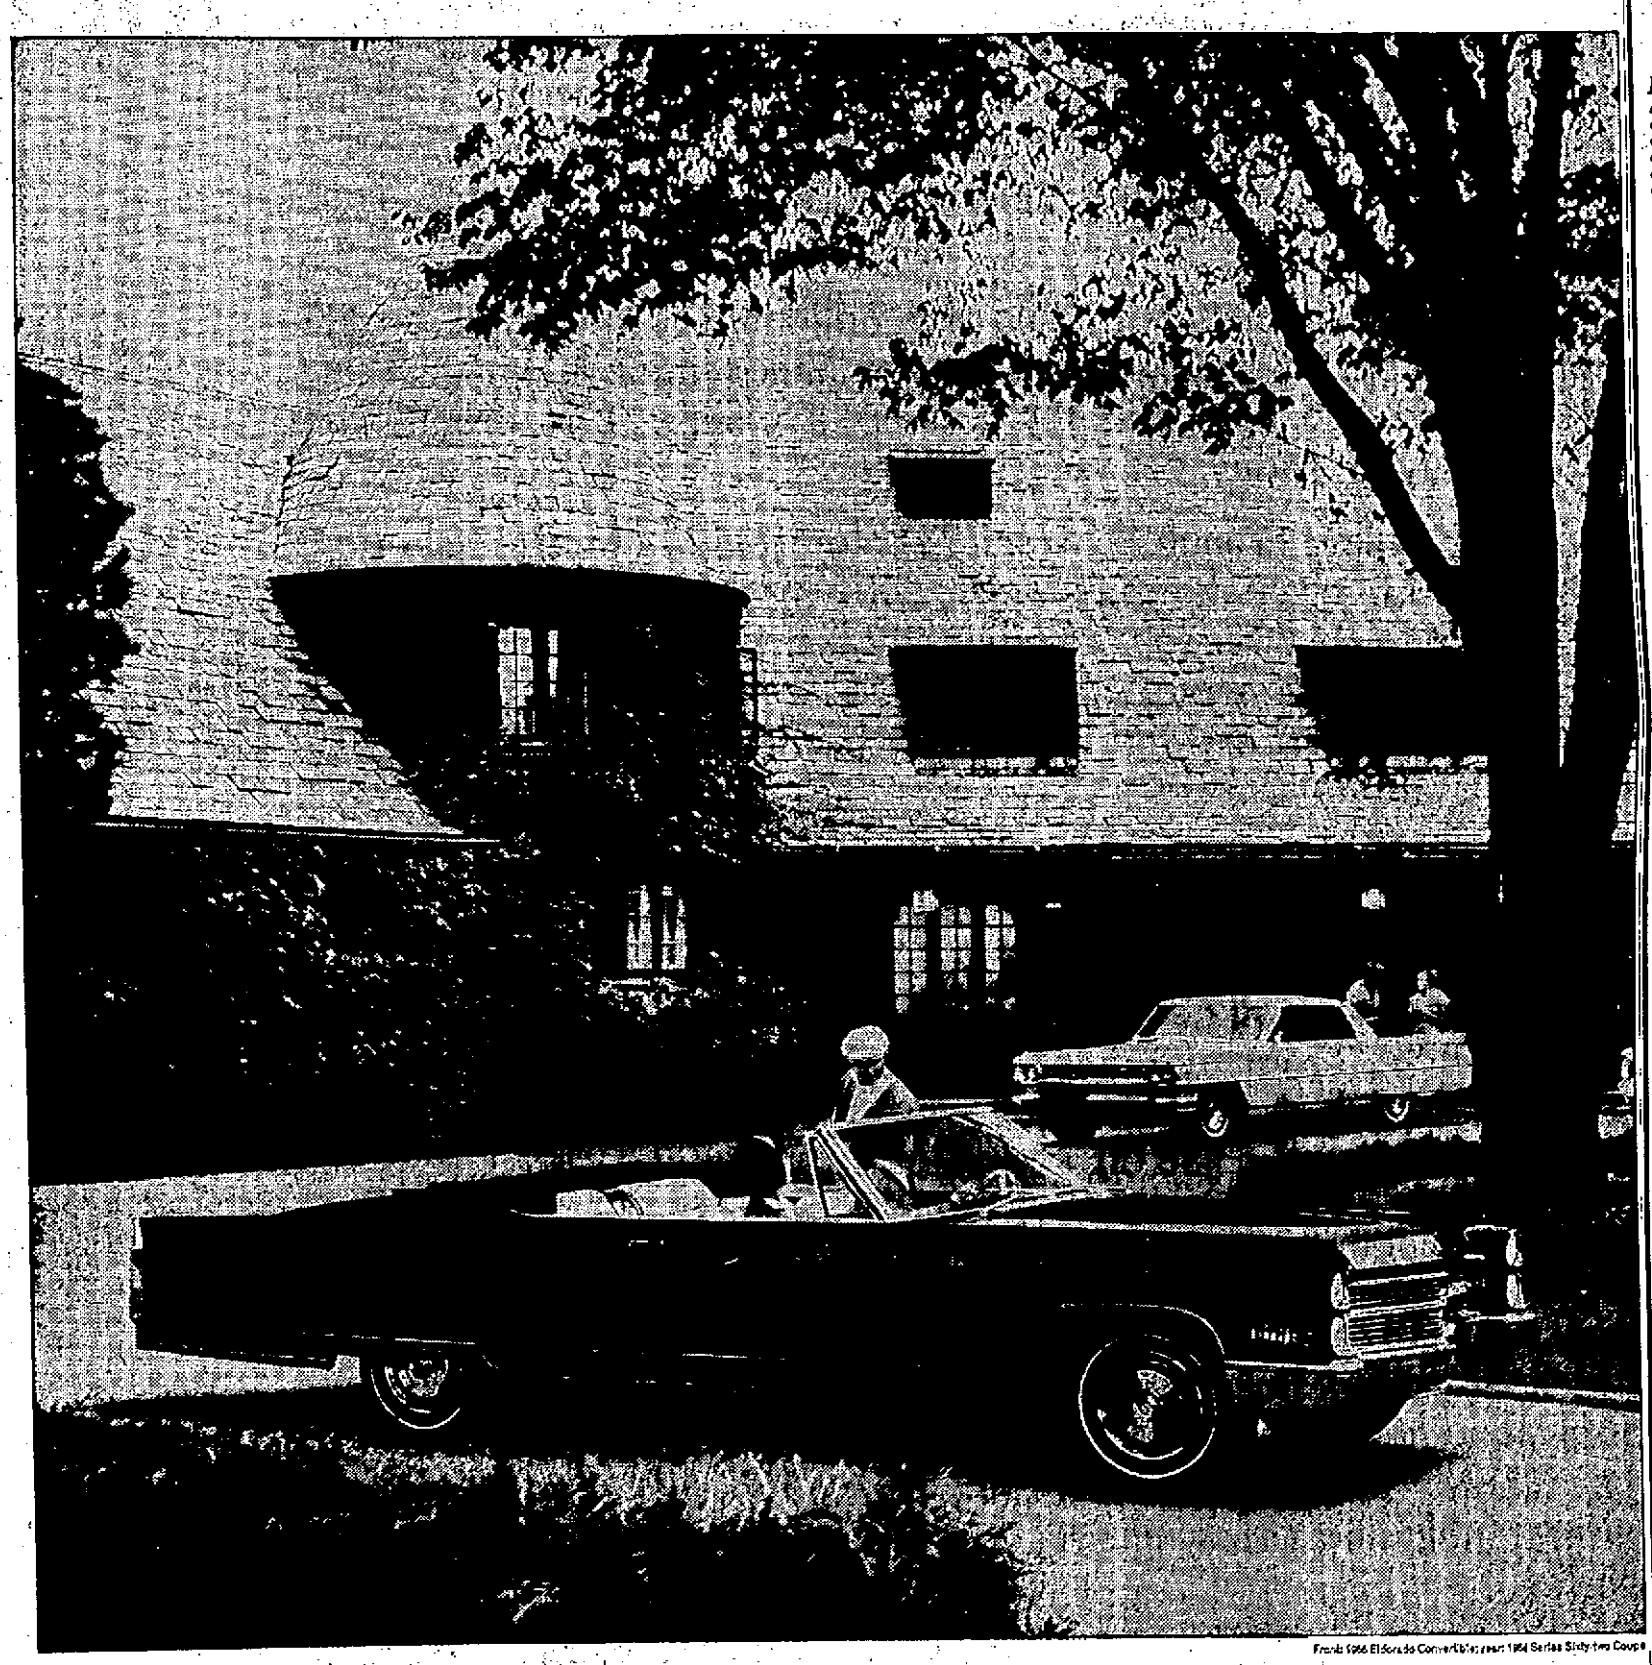

Its community service program includes recognition for local athletes who have performed in the best interests of the greater Long Beach community and participation in community programs.

A TREE lot is growing in Los Altos and proceeds from sales of the yule trees will benefit area YMCA activities. Examining a prime specimen are (from left) Anne Chorpenning, Artie Melton and Ken McKee.

VOLS FLAG DOWN BRUINS, 37-34

Prothro Rips Refs, You All

By JEROME HALL
I. P-T Staff Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—It was homecoming day for a favorite son here Saturday and it was, in the vernacular of the territory, plum distasteful for the coach of the Rose Bowl-bound UCLA football team.

Touchdowns were stacked high along the levee of the Mississippi River that flows near Memphis Memorial Stadium as the University of Tennessee Volunteers applied a 37-34 defeat to the record of the team that soon will carry the West Coast banner against national champion Michigan State.

The Volunteers, who averaged six pass completions a game in compiling a season record of 8-1-1 that earned a place in the Bluebonnet Bowl, ripped the Pacific Coast champions apart with aerial stuff in this one.

Tennessee's sophomore substitute quarterback Dewey Warren completed 19 passes for 274 yards in a back-and-forth battle that had the crowd of 44,495 standing, shouting and waving their arms through much of the final quarter as the teams traded leads. In Tennessee the fans are accustomed to 10 points a game, not 10 touchdowns.

The Volunteers tallied the deciding touchdown on a fourth-down line prod by Warren with 39 seconds remaining.

To call it "plum distasteful" to Prothro is a gross understatement. After the game he lashed out at the officiating, "I'm embarrassed I'm a Southerner," said Prothro, a high school hero in Memphis before he became a college hero at Duke.

"I was proud before today, but I'm not sure anymore." He admitted his team did not have one of its better days. "We have played a lot better, but not in this type situation," he blurted.

"The pro All-Stars couldn't have won out there today. The officials gave Tennessee three extra time outs in that last drive. They (Tennessee) threw a lateral (which UCLA recovered) and the officials called it an incomplete pass. I won't single out any one play (for poor officiating) because I could be here all night," said the coach who seldom in his long career has criticised game officials. "The Southern officials were determined to win it and they did."

Prothro, who usually speaks softly and slowly in a drawl, shouted and snarled along the sideline as the Volunteers drove the length of the field in the waning seconds to recapture the lead that UCLA had moments before recaptured with some spectacular passing and running.

Prothro charged onto the field on a 20-yard pass interference penalty against his team that was the key play of the drive and was, even by Southern viewpoint, questionable.

And, as the game ended, there were some punches thrown by players from both sides in front of the UCLA bench. UCLA assistant coach John Cooper, another Memphis native, was knocked down in the melee.

It was a match of the nation's fifth-ranked team, UCLA, against the nation's seventh-ranked team which is headed for a match against Tulsa two weeks hence in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Tennessee was supposed to possess one of the two or three best defenses in the nation, having allowed but one touchdown a game on the average. But the Bruins ran for 233 yards and passed for 130 in tallying five times.

Bruin sophomore quarterback Gary Beban completed eight of 15 for the 130 yards and he got another 84 running. He broke the UCLA one-year total offense record. He scored three touchdowns, one of them on a beautiful broken-field run of 36 yards, but the Bruins couldn't come up with the so-called long bomb that they used to pull out the game against USC.

The only long pass connection of the day, a 65-yarder from Beban to end Kurt Altenberg, was watered down by an official's falling flag on a clipping penalty.

So the Bruins take a 7 wins, 2 loss, 1 tie record against the monsters from Michigan State New Year's Day. The Bruins learned two things here this day—they can run against a strong ground defense and (2), they have serious problems stopping a hot passer when he has hot receivers.

Tennessee had both as the sub QB, Warren, threw while he was falling down and his targets caught the ball either standing up or falling down.

If the Volunteers play this way against Tulsa, the NCAA passing record smashers, on Dec. 18, it will be a game worth watching.

UCLA got the game's first touchdown and it was deceptively easy. When the Tennessee runner fumbled away

S.F. Prunes Vikings With 2nd-Half Rally

Mistakes Cripple LB, 40-20

By GARY RAUSCH
I. P-T Staff Writer

SAN JOSE — City College of San Francisco converted a half-dozen Long Beach City College mistakes into a 40-20 victory Saturday in the third Prune Bowl.

Before a crowd of 4,500 in Spartan Stadium, the Rams poured across 28 points in the second half to nullify a 20-point Viking second quarter and two eight-point LBCC leads.

The boys from North Beach swept all the awards and the Vikings treked home without even a wrinkled prune to show for their efforts.

* * * *

HALFBACK O.J. Simpson scored three touchdowns and gained only 81 yards rushing, far below his 136-a-game average, but was named "Back of Game by the press."

Actually no vote was taken nor were ballots distributed. Teammate Mike Taylor, a 258-pound tackle, was tabbed the games top lineman—a worthy choice—but Simpson's award was a railroad job.

Sportswriters, by vocal acclaim, unanimously felt LBCC's all-America quarterback Greg Barton was the best back on the field.

The flat-topped Millikan High graduate saved his best for last. He completed 20 of 36 passes for a school-record 271 yards and three touchdowns.

His favorite receiver, Ron Drake, bowed out as a Viking with an equally impressive afternoon. Drake caught 10 passes for 105 yards.

* * * *

HOWEVER, Long Beach mistakes proved costly. Six of Barton's passes were dropped, two in the end zone. The Vikes lost three fumbles and were docked 92 yards in penalties, the costliest coming from the defense.

Still LBCC had standout performances from linebackers Don Sam, Steve Swanson and Reggie Fielder, the latter playing nearly 60 minutes, plus the offensive line of John Lolliffe, Fielder, Rich Van Winkle, Doug McKenzie, Clark Wright and Rick Bartnett.

The pass protection for Barton was exceptional with the

THAT TAKES CARE OF BIG TEN

UCLA Blitzes Illinois

By DAVE LEWIS

With little Mike Warren supplying the vital offensive spark, UCLA's national basketball champions came charging from behind for the second straight night to defeat Illinois, 97-79, Saturday before 12,265 fans in Pauley Pavilion.

Warren, the 5-10 sophomore whiz from South Bend, definitely established himself as a worthy successor to Walt Hazzard and Gail Goodrich of UCLA's two title teams as he led the Bruins with 28 points.

Pattern of the game pretty much followed that of Friday night's 92-66 win over another Big Ten foe, Ohio State.

However, for a time it appeared that Dec. 4 would become an infamous date in UCLA basketball history before the Bruins shook off their half shooting jitters to turn back the Illini for their second official victory of the season.

* * * *

IT WAS just a year ago on the same date that Illinois defeated UCLA, 110-83, in the season's opener before the Bruins rebounded to win their second consecutive NCAA crown.

Illinois was on the verge of knocking the Bruins out of it at one point in the first half with a fast break that consistently threaded UCLA's full-court press. The Illini pulled out to a 12-point margin at 45-33 with two minutes left in the half.

Just when things looked darkest the Bruins exploded with one of their patented rallies. They scored eight straight points in the last 1:42 to cut the count to 45-41 at intermission.

Warren led off the rally with an eight-foot jumper, Randy Judd followed with another eight-footer, Mike Lynn dropped in two free throws and Don Saffer capped the surge with a 20-footer just 10 seconds before the buzzer.

UCLA quickly tied the score as the second half got under way and finally forged into its first lead at 51-50 on Don McIntosh's tip-in. The Bruins were now picking up steam and less than two minutes later they lengthened their lead to five on back-to-back 15-foot jump shots by Warren.

In the preliminary game, 7-1½ Lew Alcindor was the big noise for the UCLA Frosh once again as he scored 27 points, grabbed 28 rebounds and blocked five shots in leading the Bruhabes to a 94-64 victory over Pierce JC.

49ers, Cold at Foul Line, Hand San Diego 66-64 Win

By DOUG IVES

Long Beach State overcame an 11-point deficit midway in the second half, then couldn't stand prosperity and handed San Diego a 66-64 victory in the first game of a double-header at Los Angeles State Saturday night.

The 49ers missed seven of their last eight free throw attempts, which won't win any close games, and also couldn't get their run-run offense going against the slow-motion San Diegans.

"We had every chance to win and couldn't," moaned coach Dick Perry, whose club now is 1-1 without the aid of star guard Carl Washington, the wheelhorse in the team's fast break. Washington has a sprained ankle.

Trailing 48-37 with 11:28 left, the 49ers outscored the overrated Toreros 14-3 in three minutes to gain a 51-51 standoff, then shot out by 57-53 on a tip by John Broeske, Chuck Hagen's long jumper and John Chambers' 15-footer.

* * * *

THE FINAL 6½ minutes was all frustration, however. Pat Holmes, who helped spark the second-half rally, missed three free throws; Hagen, the best player on the court with 22 points, failed on two foul tries; and reserve George Seeley made only 1 of 3.

On five occasions the 49ers went to the line with the bonus situation in effect — that is, if you make the first shot, you get the second. Four times they failed, and once Seeley hit one.

Ironically, San Diego won with accuracy from the line, sinking 4 of 5 in the last two minutes, including two by sub center Dan Wightman with 19 seconds left that made the score 66-62. Chambers scored at 0:12, but LBSC never again touched the ball.

Six players fouled out, three on each side. A bad pass by Chambers with 27 seconds remaining kept the 49ers from a chance at the tying basket.

Twogood Sees Bright Spots as Trojans Bow

By AL LARSON
I. P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS — Basketball's scoring tempo has picked up considerably since USC and St. Louis University last met. The Billikens played the Trojans in 1932 and won that lone meeting, 32-20.

Saturday night the Bills shook off the Trojans' second half comeback to score a 77-72 victory before 7,630 fans at Kiel Auditorium.

The defeat marked USC's second intersectional setback in as many nights, but coach Forrest Twogood saw several bright spots.

"It's mighty tough winning on the road, but I think I've got a pretty good line on our kids after these two games," said Twogood, who saw his Trojans bow to Butler, 77-75, Friday night.

"Maggard (Mike) has got to play," continued Twogood. "He came off the bench and did a fine job (12 points and eight rebounds before fouling out) and Bill Westphal gave us the good shot the second half.

"Block (John) was in foul trouble the first half (with four), but helped up late in the game during our big spurt and looked good. I know I'll have to let Harvey (Dillon) play. He'll make a lot of mistakes as a sophomore, but he'll be a great one. The battle for the other guard spot will be between Doug Bolcom and John Bacon."

The Bills threatened to run away the first half, dashing to a 14-point lead, 43-29, and led at intermission, 46-34. However, after his boys had

Stadium on the 'Half Shell'

Personal opinions, of others:

"Dear Hank: The Board of Directors of this organization, representing some 250 leaders in the construction industry, has gone on record favoring the earliest possible completion of Long Beach's 'half shell' municipal stadium.

"This action was NOT motivated by any expectation of personal gain from the construction work involved, but rather because the directors feel that Long Beach needs and deserves an outdoor sports facility worthy of its rank as California's fifth largest city and the second largest metropolis in Los Angeles County.

"The time has come for Long Beach to 'grow up', not alone in its skyline but in its community thinking. Civic 'myopia' has too long obscured its vision in respect to need for an adequate stadium.

"It may be fashionable to serve oysters on the 'half shell', but something more is needed to satisfy the appetites of the sports fans who constitute a large and important segment of the population in the Greater Long Beach area." (signed) Jack Horner, manager, Builders' Exchange of Long Beach, Inc., 1423 Walnut Ave.

(Comment: With the powerful Builders' Exchange now on record also as backing the vital Veterans Stadium improvement drive, isn't it just about time the City itself moves into the picture immediately? Many people other than myself think so!)

A GENTLEMAN whose son is an athlete and therefore wishes to remain anonymous elaborates on a well-taken point by our Doug Ives about the insanity of college all-Coast selections.

"Have you noticed the really far-out choice that UPI gave us the other day? This was the nomination of USC's Tim Rossovich as all-Coast defensive end. Tim started the first game against Minnesota at defensive end and played so poorly that he was replaced by Jim Walker for the balance of the season. The only other time that I recall him getting into a game except to kick, was for a few minutes at OFFENSIVE end against Wyoming when the score had mounted beyond recognition.

"How can he have been an 'all-Coast' choice when he didn't even play a whole game all year? This is especially bad because it is a fairly local deal, not a nationwide thing like the all-American where no one sees the players anyway. Also, it is picked at the end of the year, not after the third game like some A-A teams.

"I could make some other remarks such as the fact that Jeff Smith who made all-Coast linebacker was not even the second-best backer on his own team, but why bother?

"All-star teams are meaningless, perhaps, but not to the kids involved."

(Comment: The issue of "all-something" teams has been a source of irritation to this department for years. We previously commented on a non-existent Long Beach State player named to an all-star team, the fact that USC's Mike Garrett was placed on a magazine's pre-season DEFENSIVE club, and that 15 years ago an USC player was given honorable mention status after one game's play and following his death while in service . . . something the "selectors" couldn't know when the team was picked in OCTOBER! Suffice to say when the pros draft they pay little attention to college "all-star" outfits.)

AN OPEN LETTER from Howard Hillman, formerly of Long Beach, who has headed the Academy of Sports Editors for five years:

"The method of selecting the new baseball commissioner leaves much to be desired and is against the best interests of baseball and the general public. A baseball commissioner was not selected, but rather an executive director.

"It appears that the new commissioner will be under too much control from the baseball club owners. Why General Eckert? His background is impressive when one looks at his three stars—by no means an easy achievement. However, specific qualifications are needed for the specific office of the baseball commissioner.

"We must honestly ask ourselves whether there exist other men more qualified. I think so. Among the qualified is William A. Shea, a man who has won the editorial support from many of you (sports editors). If we wanted a general, what about Gen. James Gavin who has proven his love and support for sports, not to mention his exceptional administrative ability.

"Many qualified men exist for the position, but why General Eckert? The answer seems simple enough. General Eckert would more likely yield to the influence of the club owners who chose him.

"YOU, the editorialists, should have aroused the fans to prevent the baseball club owners from trying to get away with a secret meeting that named the new commissioner before his name was placed in nomination before the conscience of the American public."

(Comment: We, the editorialists, had no knowledge of a secret meeting. Certainly, Gen. Eckert's appointment as baseball's No. 1 man came as a surprise to most of us. My selection would have been Joe Cronin, American League president and a former baseball star. But the owners didn't ask me to vote. In the meantime, let's give Gen. Eckert a chance. After all, he may change the balk rule to the liking of Walter Alston.)

Poly, Millikan Triumph

Defending CIF champion Poly and fellow Moore Leaguer Millikan both pushed their season records to 2-0 with easy triumphs Saturday night in non-league contests.

St. Anthony, the only other L.B. school with a game, bowed to Burroughs, 62-42, despite an 18 point performance by center Kirby Gordon. The Saints are 0-2.

Poly, which has won 24 in succession, scored over 100 points against Chaffey for the fourth time in three years while winning, 107-59. Trent Gaines, an all-CIF guard, paced the Rabbits with 30 points. Forwards Chuck Moore and Shawn Johnson each added 17.

Millikan used a crushing defense and a good offense to blast visiting Edgewood, 63-38. Forward Bob Davis paced the Rams with 15 points.

Prudhomme Wins Drag

For Don Prudhomme this is the year of the Snake. Even Tom McEwen (Mongoose) McEwen is convinced.

Prudhomme never worked up a sweat in dispatching the dreaded Mongoose two straight in Saturday night's Lions Drag Strip feature match race.

The curtain began to draw for McEwen in round one as the Yeakel-Chrysler refused to stay lit because of an air bubble in the fuel line. Prudhomme singled at 207.84 miles per hour in 8:09 elapsed seconds.

Round 2 was a carbon copy, McEwen having barrel valve problems and again losing the fire on the line.

22 FOR RUSSELL

Duke, Michigan, St. Joseph's Romp

Combined Wire Services

Nationally-rated basketball teams had little trouble Saturday in routing their collegiate foes as Duke, Michigan, St. Joseph's, BYU, Minnesota and Iowa waltzed to easy victories.

Stocky Bob Verga poured in 22 points, mostly on driving lay-ins to pace the slow-starting Blue Devils to an 83-68 win over Clemson.

Cazzie Russell (22), John Clawson (22) and Craig Dill (21) led well-balanced Michigan over Bowling Green, 108-70.

Seventh-rated Minnesota spurted in the final three minutes to thwart Iowa State, 80-69, as Paul Presthus scored 20 and Lou Hudson added 18 for the Gophers.

* * * *

IT TOOK an all-around performance by Iowa's George Peeples to shatter Evansville's 35-game win streak, but the Hawkeyes raced to an 80-73 win over the NCAA small college division national champs.

Peeples scored 29 and had 24 rebounds to overshadow Larry Humes' 27 points for the Aces.

Dick Snyder scored a career high 40 and Dave Schellhase collected 35 to propel Davidson and Purdue to easy victories.

Davidson humbled Bucknell, 90-48, and Purdue outlasted Detroit, 82-75.

* * * *

WISCONSIN used superior height to overpower Notre Dame, 97-79, but Villanova's scoring ace, Bill Melchionni didn't fare as well and Providence tamed the Wildcats, 69-59.

High-scoring Oklahoma City and BYU continued to win, but the Southwest team had trouble with St. Bonaventure before taking a 79-71 verdict. BYU romped past Houston, 111-85.

Dave Milam's two free throws with 22 seconds gave Northwestern a 62-60 win over Ohio U.; Arkansas thumped Missouri, 75-62; Western Michigan upset Michigan State, 85-82 and Texas broke open a see-saw affair with Mississippi, to win, 80-71.

Former NBA great, Bob Cousy, now in his second year of college coaching, was rewarded with a 107-85 win over Dartmouth by his Boston College team.

St. Joseph's (Pa.), regarded by many as the top team in the nation, rambled to a 100-74 win over Fairfield, and Oklahoma held off a torrid Indiana rally to nip the favorites, 83-82.

O. J. Simpson, San Francisco halfback, was named "back of game" after aiding Rams' to 40-20 Prune Bowl victory over Long Beach City Saturday. He gained 81 yards overall but was stopped here by defensive end Larry Schakel (85). Too late to assist is Ram fullback Dennis Sullivan.

No Seal Bark, Blades Embark on 'Win' Skein

By RICH ROBERTS

San Francisco's Seals might have a justified complaint, but the Blades couldn't be happier about Saturday night's 3-0 victory at the L.A. Sports Arena.

Brilliant goal keeping by Ed Johnston and scores by rookie Bill Orban, Warren Hynes and Cliff Pennington lifted the Blades from last place in the Western Hockey League into a tie for fourth with the Seals to the cheers of 6,518.

Johnston, who gave the Seals only one goal up north Friday night in his first start since arriving on short-term loan from the Boston Bruins, took credit for the Blades' first shutout of the season. It was the third time the Seals had been blanked.

* * * *

JOHNSTON had to make 31 saves but was on top of the puck every time San Francisco turned on the pressure.

The Seals played the last period under protest when general manager Bud Poile, seated next to the I. P-T reporter in the press box, disputed a rule interpretation by referee Barry Balance. The rule book proved Poile right.

"He blew it," Poile charged, adding that he knew the protest "won't be allowed. I never heard of it in hockey anyway."

The protest arose after the Blades' second goal near the end of the second period. Hynes took a long lead pass from Camille Bedard, had the jump on defenseman John Gravel, faked goalie Jack McCartan to the ice and dumped it into the net at the last instance.

* * * *

WHEN LINESMAN Jay Evans skated toward the net to retrieve the puck, McCartan complained that Hynes had been offsides and inadvertently bumped the official down, drawing an immediate 10-minute misconduct penalty and automatic $25 fine. Evans was cut above the right ankle. But WHL rule book states (Rule 32, Sec. D) that the time must be served by a player who was on the ice to be designated by the guilty team.

Instead, Balance designated forward Gerry Brisson, usurping the Seals' privilege. Poile announced the protest as the second period got under way, the Blades leading 2-0.

* * * *

JOHNSTON recalled three shutouts with Boston last season — two against Montreal and one against Toronto.

"My best save tonight was on a screen shot by Gravel from the point in the second period," he said. "I just did get my glove up to deflect it. Otherwise, the club played real well in front of me."

He also agreed that the only Seal goal in the 2-1 win Friday night was a fluke. A shot by Jean-Marc Picard bounced off George Swarbrick's chest and into the net.

The Blades' first goal Saturday was scored by Orban late in the first period. He nudged a dying shot by Ray LaRose through McCartan's legs.

The final goal came from Pennington, an off-balance shot from an angle around defense man Larry McNabb.

The Blades now take their longest rest since the season opened. Their next game will be at home Friday night aaginst the Hershey Bears of the American League.

* * * *

BLUE LINES: Since the Blades got Johnston, Seal general manager Bud Poile is wondering just who has the working agreement with the Boston Bruins, supposedly. It's the Seals, but when the Bruins had to send Johnston somewhere to get in shape after his knee injury, apparently they figured the Blades needed help most . . . or Blades coach Lynn Patrick held more influence . . . Winger Willie O'Ree was back for spot action after missing four games, but defenseman Jake Hendrickson missed both the Friday and Saturday games with his puck-struck ankle . . . Rookie Bobby Schmautz was christened twice at San Francisco Friday, four stitches in the head and three in the elbow.

FIRST PERIOD—1, Los Angeles, Orbas (LA—Rose) 19:08. Penalties—Wilson (LA) 5:37; McNabb (SF) 17:20.
SECOND PERIOD—2, Los Angeles, Hynes (Bedard) 18:19. Penalties—Wilson (LA) 2 1:37, 12:02; McCartan (SF) major, 18:19.
THIRD PERIOD—3, Los Angeles, Pennington (Balfour) 14:37. Penalties—Johnson, (LA) 1:43. Odrowski (SF) 6:27.

Webfoots End 9-Game Drought

SEATTLE (UPI) — Nick Jones' field goal from the key with only five seconds left brought Oregon a 63-61 basketball victory Saturday night over Washington and ended a nine-game drought for the Webfoots.

The lead had changed hands 13 times in the second half when Bob Johnson pulled Washington into a 61-61 tie with a goal from the side as the game entered its final minute.

Oregon went into a fast-moving ball controll game to bleed seconds off the clock until Jones was in the clear for his winning basket.

Falcons End Year Unbeaten

By BRUCE YOUNG
I. P-T Staff Writer

BAKERSFIELD — The 18th Shrine Potato Bowl game is over and all intelligent guessers say the final score of Saturday night's tussle was Cerritos 41, Boise, Ida., 12.

But that is only an intelligent guess.

The game was played in fog so thick that the field was not visible from the stands at Bakersfield College's Memorial Stadium and maximum visiblity on the field was two yards.

Some 12,180 fans, however, were there for the start, but only a handful of spectators, who could do nothing but listen to the description by the public address announcer, were left at the conclusion.

* * * * *

CERRITOS College took advantage of the pea-soup blanket to complete its first undefeated season. The rout kept the Falcons, who finished with a 10-0 record, in the running for the national championship.

Freshman Dan Laskowski took individual running honors as the 168-pound bullet scored two touchdowns on spectacular 92 and 59-yard runs in which he got lost in the fog and suddenly reappeared in the end zone.

Second string quarterback Reid Braden shared the spotlight as the former Mayfair High star tossed three touchdown passes. He also threw two conversion passes.

FIRST QUARTER

Boise took the opening kickoff and marched to its 34 before Jim Evenson fumbled and linebacker Jeff Lancaster recovered for Cerritos with 13:30 remaining.

Jerry Davis marched the Metropolitan Conference champions to paydirt in seven plays, capping the drive with a 25-yard pass to end Bob Biggs in the end-zone.

SECOND QUARTER

The Falcons took over on their own 16 before fumbling the ball over to Boise on the 45. But Cerritos regained the ball two plays later when Gary Bernstein picked off Bill Ingram's pass on his 31.

Four plays later the Falcons moved to the 41 and then 167-pound speedster Dan Laskowski turned right end and outraced the secondary to the end zone.

Danny Scott's conversion was wide and Cerritos opened its advantage to 13-0, which it took into the dressing room at halftime.

THIRD QUARTER

Cerritos wasted little time in the second half as Laskowski ran the opening kickoff back 92 yards for a touchdown. The conversion attempt failed and the score jumped to 19-0.

Braden took over at quarterback and marched the winners 85 yards in 9 plays. Braden, from the Boise 28, somehow saw Scott all alone in the end zone and hit the freshman sensation to give Cerritos a 25-0 advantage.

FOURTH QUARTER

The fourth quarter turned into a wild scoring fiasco as both teams tallied at will on the dumbfounded defenses which could barely see across the line of scrimmage.

Boise	0	0	0	12—12

stood around the first half, Twogood informed them, "don't take any prisoners," indicating that unless they got tougher and knocked the opposition around in return they might as well pack their bags.

Maggard and Ron Alleman provided the backboard push and the Trojans whittled away until they finally edged ahead, 60-59, on Maggard's basket with 6:49 remaining.

Bob Cole, a high-bounding 6-1 junior from St. Louis, slipped in a pair of free throws to put the Bills back on top.

Bolcom's free throw tied the game, 61-61, with 5:52 to go but then the proverbial roof caved in. St. Louis outscored USC during the next four minutes, 16-7, to kill the invader's rally.

Inside Straight

WYNN

The AFL's a Wynner

By RICH ROBERTS

"A football player is a standard commodity. They're so big, they're so fast, they've had so much experience and coaching. So the question is: Do teams have as many good players in the American Football League as they do in the National Football League? I say, on the San Diego Chargers, definitely yes."

As turncoats go, Jerry Wynn isn't a bad fellow.

It's just that such rash statements about the "other" pro football league don't sound like the Jerry Wynn we used to know. Only a year ago he was an objective journalist reporting the Sunday struggles of the Rams for the I, P-T.

Now he's spreading the glory of the Chargers far and wide, and you wouldn't know it was the same guy. He even thinks the Chargers could beat the Rams.

Come to think of it, the rest of San Diego does, too . . . not to mention a sizeable portion of the sports populace up this way.

"This is more or less a matter of prejudice," Jerry says. "You want your team in your town to be the best and to root for the best team in the best league. I was the same way.

"When the AFL scored a lot of points they said —and I was one of them—'Well, they don't have good defense.' And now that we're playing strong defense they say, 'Well, they don't have quarterbacks'."

WYNN THINKS it's about time that the two leagues end their petty bickering, sit down and settle their differences, especially in the acquisition of talent which has thrown the bonus system completely out of hand.

"I think all reasonable people in both leagues would like to see this. It's just a question of how do you do it. I'm not going to knock the NFL or (commissioner) Pete Rozelle, because they're the ones with the most power and they don't want the power to get out—only on their terms.

"Actually, though, it's been kind of childish and impractical. These owners of the teams, in both leagues, are outstanding businessmen. And yet the way they're throwing away money is ridiculous."

Fat television contracts, of course, have given both leagues a lot of extra money to throw around.

"All pro football needs television—not just the AFL," says Wynn. "Sure, the NFL existed without it for years, but the great upsurge in pro football is tied to the fact that now it's brought right into the living room. We're up 25% in AFL attendance this year."

THE AFL IS ABOUT to emerge from a transitional period into full bloom as a pro football league, Wynn figures. For years, the league was regarded as strictly offensive—particularly to Rozelle, perhaps—because most of the coaches thought of fense.

Also, Wynn concedes, "It was held against the AFL that most of our quarterbacks were retreads or castoffs—Blanda, Parilli and Dawson and so on. But they're fine quarterbacks, and if we want to argue the point, well, Y. A. Tittle and Frank Ryan and Earl Morrall—these are all castoff quarterbacks, too.

"What we're going through now in the AFL is a cycle of young quarterbacks. John Hadl, strictly an AFL product, has taken our quarterback job . . . Joe Namath in New York, Don Trull in Houston, Pete Beathard in Kansas City.

"Now these quarterbacks are young and it's going to take them a couple of years before they have the experience and poise of the Blandas and Parillis, and in the meantime the defense has come along."

IF THE AFL IS MATURING, then, so is San Diego, Wynn feels.

"It's somewhat on the lines of Long Beach in being prosperous and wanting to get ahead but not sure of how to do it. And now with this vote for a $27 million stadium there's been a tremendous upsurge in sports.

"We have a city delegation down in Florida working on a major league baseball team. They've broken ground for a new sports arena, so we'll have Western League hockey, and they're going after an NBA franchise. In a great part, the Chargers are responsible for this."

Charger owner Barron Hilton agreed to keep the club in San Diego for at least 10 years—if the stadium bond issue passed.

"It hadn't been decided," Wynn says, "but we probably would have gone to Dodger Stadium or Anaheim. Pro football today can't exist with a poor stadium. The press did a great job of spelling this out, like, 'We're not building this stadium for Barron Hilton or the Chargers. We're building it for San Diego'."

When the bond issue passed by a 72% majority, Wynn says, "Everybody was flabbergasted."

ALTHOUGH JOHN HADL may not live to see it, Wynn thinks that someday the Chargers will play the Rams—or rather, that the NFL will permit the Rams to play the Chargers.

"It's not in their league policy yet. But even if we played them today we don't start with any deficit. We have more experience. The Chargers' average experience is 3¾ years and we have six first stringers in the sixth year with the team. The Rams have two.

"Also, we have Lance Alworth, who's the best end in football . . . Paul Lowe, the best running back . . . Keith Lincoln, probably the best all-'round player. And our offensive line is as good or better than any in pro football.

"We have good football players. Just because we're in the American Football League doesn't mean that our players are inferior."

H-HOUR IN WESTERN CONFERENCE

Tab Colts Over Bears

By Associated Press

It will be H-hour in the National Football League's Western Conference today. H stands for George Halas' hot and hard-nosed Chicago Bears and the hurting and home-team Baltimore Colts, which meet in the key game.

Should Baltimore win and Green Bay lose to Minnesota, then the Colts will repeat as conference champions.

But if Baltimore loses and Green Bay wins, then the Colts will be just one-half game ahead of the Packers and 1½ in front of the Bears with two games remaining.

One of these two games has Green Bay at Baltimore Dec. 12.

Other games today feature the mad scramble for second place in the Eastern Conference.

Washington is at Cleveland, which has clinched the eastern crown; Pittsburgh is at New York; the Rams play at St. Louis; Dallas meets the Eagles in San Francisco.

New York, St. Louis and Washington are tied for second with 5-6 records while Dallas and Philadelphia are one game back.

* * * *

IN THE American League, Buffalo plays at Houston and Denver is at Oakland in the only games.

The Colts, who handed Chicago its only loss in the last eight games Nov. 7, are 4½-point favorites to win again.

However, they are not as healthly as they were Nov. 7. Linebacker Don Shinnick was lost for the season in the first Bear game, which the Colts won 26-21 after leading 17-0, and quarterback Johnny Unitas has been bothered by a bad back ever since.

Defensive end Ordell Braase, who missed one game and was in for only two plays in the 24-24 tie with Detroit on Thanksgiving Day, again is a doubtful starter.

* * * *

THE CHAMPION Browns won't be lacking for incentive since it will be their last appearance before the home folks this season, and their great fullback, Jimmy Brown, is nearing another record.

Jimmy has 19 touchdowns and needs only two more to break the season mark of 20 set last year by Baltimore's Lenny Moore.

Rams Seek to Dampen Card Playoff Hope

By AL LARSON
I. P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS —For a team that's lost five of its last six games, the St. Louis Cardinals have displayed remarkable buoyancy in the Eastern Conference standings.

The Cardinals, of course, will have to change their ways today when they meet the Rams if they expect to return to sunny Florida for another date in the Playoff Bowl.

LARSON'S LOSER
Rams 27, St. Louis 21

Today's televised contest from Busch Stadium begins at 11:05 a.m.

With three weeks remaining in the 1965 campaign Cleveland already has the Eastern Division locked up, but if the big red can regroup and hang defeats on Los Angeles, Dallas and the Browns, it would assure St. Louis of second place and the accompanying trip Jan. 9.

* * * *

DUE PRIMARILY to a conspiracy of failure among the teams below them, the Cards have sunk no deeper than a three-way tie for second spot.

The Rams have no such worries about playoff dates, and despite a season of frustration, they can point with pride to one significant achievement: they have the finest record in the NFL in defending against the running game.

The Rams have held enemy rushers to an average of 3.3 yards a run, lowest in the league. Each week they have been steadily cutting down the figure, culminating in last week's 21-10 victory over Green Bay when they held the onetime power-packed Packers to 22 yards rushing — three yards minus in the second half.

* * * *

ST. LOUIS backs Bill Triplett and Willis Crenshaw will find little daylight running against Davis Jones, Merlin Olsen, Lamar Lundy and Rosey Grier, consequently quarterback Charley Johnson will come out throwing.

As their promising 4-1 start has deteriorated to its current sad state of 5-6, the Cards have had to emphasize the pass and now lead the NFL in this department. Johnson and his back-up man Buddy Humphrey have thrown 357 times, four more than Bill Munson and Roman Gabriel.

This is the first regular-season meeting between the transplanted Cards and Rams since 1960, when St. Louis won 43-21 behind the aerial work of Johnny Roach and receiving of Sonny Randle and David Crow. For the first 61 seasons in the league, the Cards set up shop in Chicago. The club moved to the banks of the Mississippi in 1960.

The Rams, 2½-point underdogs, have dedicated the game to end Marlin McKeever, who is remaining at his brother's side in Long Beach.

Namath Wrecked by Chargers, 38-7

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —John Hadl won a personal duel with New York's Joe Namath by throwing three touchdown passes Saturday as the San Diego Chargers smashed the Jets 38-7.

The win placed the Chargers one victory away from their third consecutive American Football League Western Division title, while New York is tied for second with Houston in the East.

Hadl, unfavorably compared with the rookie flash after several mediocre performances, hit for 13 of 19 passes, including scoring throws of 25 yards to Keith Lincoln and 46 and 36 yards to Lance Alworth.

Namath, retaining his poise although strongly rushed, hit 18 of 34 passes including a 21-yard scoring toss to Don Maynard. Three of his passes were intercepted, however, and he lost the ball once on a fumble.

San Diego broke the game open in the second quarter, scoring 17 points—all set up by New York mistakes.

Lincoln capped a 61-yard drive by plunging one yard for the Chargers' first score after a Jets' field goal attempt was blocked. Lincoln scored minutes later on Hadl's first scoring pass which was set up by Ken Graham's first interception of the day.

* * * *

NAMATH fumbled the next time New York got the ball; Earl Faison pounced on it and Herb Travenio booted a 36-yard field goal to give the Chargers a 17-0 halftime lead.

Graham intercepted his second pass of the game and dashed 51 yards down the sideline on the first scrimmage play after the half to give the Chargers a 24-0 lead.

Morgan St. Wins Blossom Classic

MIAMI (AP) — Russell Jolivet led Morgan State to a surprising 36-7 victory over Florida A&M in the 33rd annual Orange Blossom Football Classic Saturday night.

Scoring in every period, the powerful Bears from Baltimore, Md., made their 1965 record 9-0 and took home what is billed as the national Negro college football championship.

Miscues Help Lions Defeat Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)— Penn State capitalized on its own mistakes and Maryland's too Saturday to score a 19-7 football victory in a game which shared national television time with the Gemini space shot from Cape Kennedy.

The Nittany Lions turned a pass interception into a touchdown in the first quarter. Fullback Dave McNaughton smashed through the Maryland line on three successive five-yard carries after Dick Gingrich had intercepted and returned the ball to the Maryland 15.

Michigan State Players Champs in Studies, Too

CHICAGO (UPI)—National champion Michigan State placed four men on the Big Ten's annual all-academic football team, it was announced Saturday.

Players must have a B grade average or better for eligibility to the academic team. Spartan quarterback Steve Juday was the leading selection, named by 34 of the 35 electors.

Other Michigan State players on the team were end Jim Proebstle, tackle Don Bierowicz and halfback Don Japinga.

Others on the first team were end John Wright and fullback Jim Grabowski, Illinois, tackle Ken Ramsey and guard Mike Beinor, Northwestern, center Ray Pryor and guard Bill Ridder, Ohio State, and halfback Gordon Teter, Purdue.

TOUCHY WIN: PRINCETON OVER VASSAR

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP) — The boys beat the girls 30-18 Saturday in an enthusiastic game of two-hand touch "almost anywhere" football.

The boys, from Cannon Club of Princeton, overcame countless distractions and a few innovations in the rules to defeat Vassar College's Noyes House lasses in their first get-together.

Vassar sophomore Caroline Pfrommer skirted the Cannon Club line for two touchdowns, but the girls couldn't handle Cannon's Foster Flint, who flipped five touchdown passes for the winners.

Sooner String Snapped

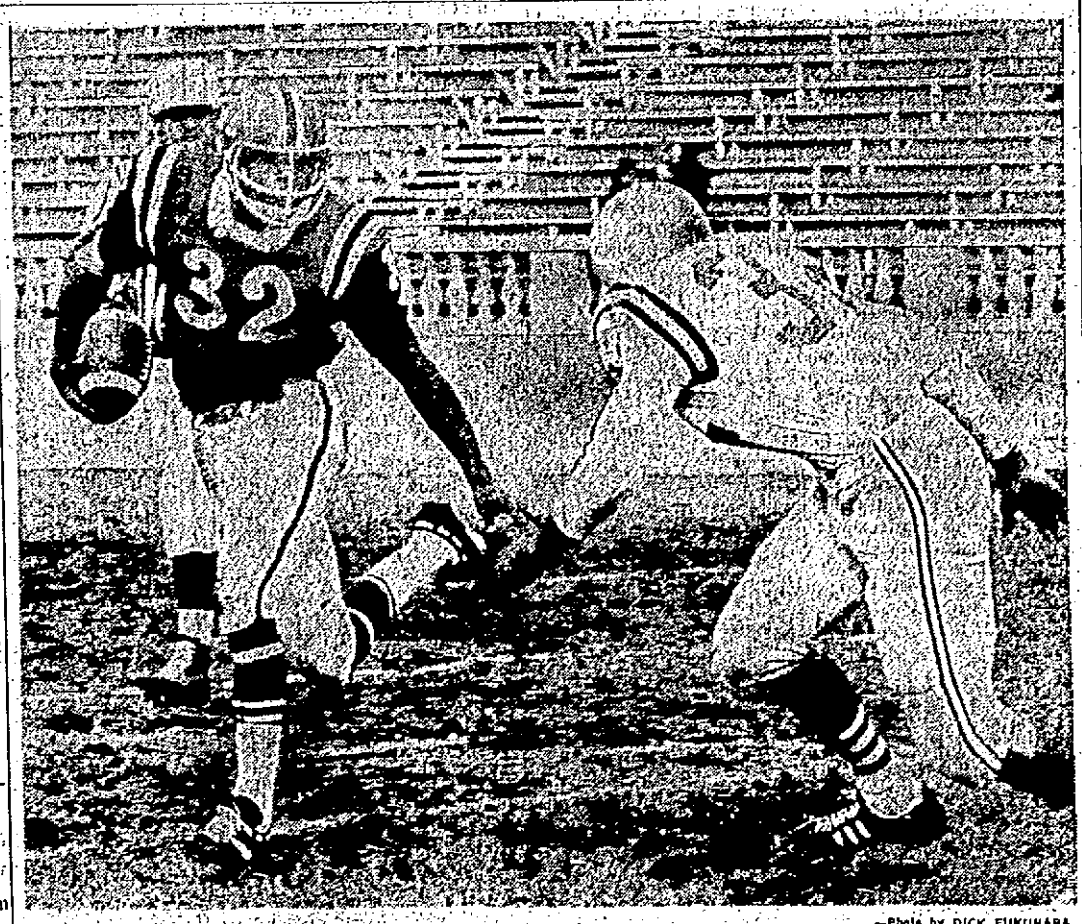

NORMAN (AP) — Little football frustration for the Cowboys.

Charles Durkee kicked a 35-yard field goal in the final two minutes Saturday to give Oklahoma State a 17-16 victory over traditional rival Oklahoma and end 19 years of Durkee's field goal gave the Cowboys their first victory over the Sooners since 1945 and nullified a brilliant effort by Oklahoma's Ron Shotts.

Cassius Has The Potential

There are many reasons why boxing fans have taken such a dislike to Cassius Clay—his brash attitude and his affiliation with the Black Muslims among other things—but one should not deny that he may well be the greatest heavyweight fighter of all time.

Veteran boxing men are now slowly and begrudgingly beginning to admit that Cassius "at least" has the potential to become the greatest.

"After he beat former champion Patterson so convincingly a few days ago, Harry Markson, Madison Square Garden's veteran boxing director, admitted that "Clay would be able to hold his own with the great heavyweights of any era . . . all the way back to John L. Sullivan and including Dempsey and Louis."

As Markson conceded, "Clay is the fastest big man in ring history, can punch from any position and has remarkable reflexes. I can't rate him yet with Louis for power, but he has everything else and perhaps in time he may even show us consistent power punching."

And as we pointed out in a pre-fight column, ex-champ Jersey Joe Walcott, who refereed Clay's second fight with Liston, is the authority who first said that Cassius "could beat Dempsey, Louis, Charles, Marciano and a guy named Walcott. He's too big, punches too fast and hard and moves much too quickly for any of the old-timers."

WALCOTT DISMISSED ALL THE OTHER champions in the past, too, except possibly Gene Tunney, the conqueror of Jack Dempsey.

In fact, Tunney is the one man veteran observers keep going back to as the one who possibly might have made the best showing against a man of Clay's size and speed.

Tunney was perhaps the cleverest of all the heavyweights and, much like Clay, was under-rated because of his unpopularity. The boxing world never took to him because he had beaten the idol of the times—Dempsey.

Gene is remembered as a boxer, but his record shows 41 knockout victories in 76 bouts . . . and most people forget that he quite likely would have knocked out Dempsey in their second fight if it had been scheduled for 15 rounds instead of 10.

While the fight is recalled as "The Battle of the Long Count" when Gene was given a 14-second count following a knockdown in the seventh round after Jack refused to go to a neutral corner, Tunney came back to floor Dempsey and had the Manassa Mauler virtually out on his feet at the final bell.

THE ONE THING THAT STANDS against Tunney in comparison "on paper" to Clay in size. Gene 6 feet ½ inch and 190 pounds. Cassius is almost 6-3 now, weighed a solid 210 for Patterson and with maturity should be able to carry around 220 in another two or three years without losing any of his quickness.

Most of the heavyweight champions were not as big as many people picture them.

Jim Corbett, who defeated John L. Sullivan in the first title bout under the Marquis of Queensbury Rules, weighed only 180 pounds. Sullivan himself stood only 5-10½ and weighed 190. Bob Fitzsimmons, who ultimately beat Corbett, was only 167.

Many think of the legendary Jack Johnson as being a giant of a man, but he stood only a quarter of an inch over 6 feet and weighed 195 in his prime. Also, he was not the tremendous puncher present-day fans may have been led to believe by some historians. He rarely ended a bout early, gradually wore down opponents.

Dempsey was 189 in his best days; Max Schmeling, 185; Jim Braddock, 192; Charles, 182; Walcott, 194, while Rocky Marciano was only 5-11 and 184.

WHEN CLAY DEFEATED LISTON twice, he beat one of the bigger heavyweights who ever held the title. Sonny is 6-1 and his best fighting weight is around 210-212.

Max Baer was 6-2½ and 220 and Primo Carnera, of course, 6-6 and 260, but neither have been rated among the greats because of their shortcomings.

Joe Louis stood 6-1½, weighed 195 early in his career, 206 at the peak and around 212 at the end.

Outside of Tunny, the men most popularly mentioned in connection with "whipping" Clay are Dempsey, Louis and Marciano.

Here is how Cassius might be compared with them:

MARCIANO—Rocky had more heart and determination than ring ability and would have had great difficulty reaching a man as quick as Clay with his short arms. Cassius could move around at long range with his tremendous reach advantage and pepper him with left jabs; possibly winning via a TKO after cutting him. Marciano was a notorious "bleeder" who cut easily. Almost lost title couple of times that way.

DEMPSEY—JACK'S GREATEST victories were over slow-moving, standup fighters like Jess Willard. Tommy Gibbons, only 5-9½ and 172 pounds and one of the more clever fighters of his era, carried him 15 rounds in their famous fight at Shelby, Montana. And Tunney beat him twice with a style similar in many ways to Clay's.

LOUIS — Joe, one of our all-time favorite sports figures, had the power to take out a man quicker than any other heavyweight, but unorthodox styles confused him. Tommy Farr, Arturo Godoy and later Walcott all went 15 rounds with him, Jersey Joe almost winning the decision in their first fight. And the speedy Billy Conn had Joe beaten for 12 rounds, then refused to listen to instructions to "stay away" and went out to slug with him in the 13th, promptly was knocked out. Most fans forget that the Brown Bomber lacked great speed and that he was knocked down several times during his career. But he made up for his shortcomings with his great punching power once he got into range.

Whether we like it or not, it must be conceded that Clay's size, speed and style would have been vital factors against any of the past champions. And he hasn't reached his peak yet!

SKATING EXHIBITION SET MONDAY

Members of the Arctic Blades Figure Skating Club will skate exhibitions Monday night at the Iceland Arena in Paramount as a preliminary to the forthcoming Pacific Coast championships.

Included on the program, which will be without admission charge, will be Johnny Moore, the 1966 Southwest Pacific senior men's champion, and Julie Holmes, '65 national ladies novice champion.

Other champions of the program will be Ken Shelley, Sharon Davisson, Richard Battenschlag, along with several runners-up in the recent Southwest Pacific championships, at which the Arctic Blades won the total-points team trophy.

COOL CHAMPION Johnny Moore, the 1966 Southwest Pacific senior men's figure skating champion, will be among members of Arctic Blades club performing exhibitions Monday night at Paramount Iceland Arena. Moore is from Dairy Valley.

added beef of Elwood Stewart and John Kafka in the same backfield.

CCSF broke the scoring ice with 4:22 elapsed, moving 65 yards in 11 plays. The Rams went to the air only 15 times all day but their seven completions were worth their weight in gold.

An 18-yard toss from Bob Lee to Reeves Moses got the first Ram march going and Lee capped it with a 21-yarder to Ron Fassler. The Rams flooded a deep zone and Fassler went the last 12 yards untouched.

Long Beach had planned to shot the works on its passing game and started with a bang on its next series. Barton hit Rich Croson (14 yards) and Jim Cross (20) and then Croson again (21) to reach the Ram 12.

* * * *

BARTON went to Cross for the TD, the freshman taking the ball on the 1 and, with Eural Smothers draped around him, diving for the goalline.

The Vikings scored twice more in the period, the next tally coming on a 20-yard Barton to Drake combination with 9:47 remaining. Al Nichols set up the go-ahead tally (14-6) with a 39-yard gallop with a screen pass.

An exchange of fumbles deep in Viking territory in the final two minutes gave CCSF possession on the 13. Simpson took a pitchout, sped around right end, shook off a good tackle by Mike Battle and scored standing up.

Long Beach made it 20-12 at intermission when Barton guided a 65-yard drive that consumed nine plays—six of them passes.

* * * *

IT WAS the Vikes' most perfectly executed drive of the entire season. Virtually every pass was a sideline shot that saw Barton milking the clock for 60 seconds.

Barton never saw the TD toss. He was laid low after unloading in the direction of Battle, sliding along the end line. Battle made the 17-yard grab with 22 seconds to go.

Simpson scored from eight yards out on a power sweep and Long Beach had the ball for only six plays in the third period.

The final 15 minutes were futile for the Vikings.

Bill Gianquinto lost seven yards on third down but LBCC was offsides and instead of fourth-and-13, the Rams were third-and-1 from their own 39.

* * * *

SEVEN PLAYS and a 31-yard pass later, O.J. dove over from the 2 to get CCSF the lead for keeps (26-20).

Swanson caused a fumble and Larry Schakel recovered to get the Vikes in gear minutes later. Barton hit Drake for 12 yards and what would have been a first down on the Ram 33, but holding was detected and when Larry Dixon punted three plays later, it was fourth-and-47 from the Vike 18.

A piling-on penalty and a 19-yard, fourth down rollout pass from Lee to Moses for the TD kicked the score to 32-20 with 1:44 left.

Only 20 seconds later, disaster struck again as Smothers smothered a Barton screen pass and sped 42 yards to paydirt. Lee's PAT pass to Moses upped the final count to 40-20.

Prothro: 'Ashamed I'm Southerner'

the opening kickoff the Bruins were just 34 yards from the goal.

The Bruins got the TD in eight whacks on the ground and the Volunteer defense that was second strongest in the nation this season looked bendable.

Fullback Paul Horgan got the touchdown on a half-yard plunge.

When the Vols were forced to punt as soon as they got the ball again, the Bruins began another goalward march. From their own 32 they smashed through the Vol linebackers until they had a third down and one on the Tennessee 39. It seemed the place for Horgan or halfback Mel Farr to crack the ground defenses for the first down but the decision was made, presumably by Beban, to try for a touchdown pass.

* * * *

BEBAN THREW a step too long to end Kurt Altenberg and the Bruins were forced to punt.

It proved to be a bad mistake. Tennessee took over the ball and kept it most of the rest of the half and instead of a two-touchdown lead, the Bruins found themselves staring at a scoreboard that read 20-7 for the home team.

Reserve quarterback Dewey Warren, filling in for the injured regular, mixed his calls well as he completed 9 of 13 passes—7 in a row,— in putting together drives measuring 65, 59 and 51 yards.

* * * *

THE TOUCHDOWNS were by halfback Hal Wantland on a 19-yard pass from Warren, by Warren on a 1-yard plunge and by Wantland on a 26-yard pass from Warren.

One might suspect the Bruins had a mint julep or two during the halftime intermission, for it was a hopped-up bunch that took the field for the second half.

In a span of 35 seconds at the outset of the third period the Bruins scored two touchdowns and regained the lead, with the help of Kurt Zimmerman's conversions.

The Uclans took the second half kickoff 86 yards in eight plays as Beban, who had completed but one pass in the first half, a six-yarder, took to the air.

With sideline passes and Farr's bursts through the middle the West Coast team moved to the Tennessee 36. From there Beban took it all the way in one play on a fine run, utilizing three blockers to the maximum.

* * * *

THEN, on Tennessee's first scrimmage play of the second half there was a fumble on a plunge into the line and safetyman Tim McAteer grabbed it in midair and galloped 35 yards to a touchdown that put the Bruins back in the lead.

UCLA got a third touchdown in the third period on a 75-yard drive that ended with Beban sneak-plunging the final half yard and Zimmerman made it 28-20 with his placement.

On the second play of the fourth period Tennessee scored on a seven-yard run by Walt Chadwick and, trailing by the margin of a missed conversion kick, the Vols tried for a two-point conversion. Warren's pass fell incomplete and the Vols were down by two.

Midway through the final period Dave Leake, the Vol placement specialist, sent a 20-yarder through the uprights that added three points to the scoreboard and seemingly gave the home team victory, 29-28.

* * * *

BUT IT WAS far from over. There were still nine minutes to play and several scoring threats to be accomplished.

The Bruins scored with 3½ minutes left by going 74 yards in six plays, the big gainer a 65-yarder thrown by Beban to Altenberg that went all the way on a picture play, but was partially cancelled on a clipping penalty and the Bruins were given the ball on the 21.

Beban ran three times and passed once on the scoring drive. He ran over the goal line from the four for a 34-29 UCLA lead and the try for two extra points was not good.

Tennessee promptly marched the length of the field for the winning touchdown and there was southern comfort all over the stadium.

L.B.'s Garrison Signs Chargers Contract

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The San Diego Chargers of the American Football League Saturday announced the signing of offensive end Gary Garrison of San Diego State, their first draft choice as a future in the 1964 draw.

Terms were not disclosed.

Garrison, 6-1, 195, from Long Beach, caught 70 passes for 14 touchdowns this season, although he missed two games because of injuries.

Other signings:

NFL—

Cowboys — Defensive halfback Lewis Turner (14th) of Norfolk, Va., and offensive guard Sid Otten (free agent) of Weber State of Utah.

AFL—

Patriots—Fullback Bob Cappadona (future) of Northeastern.

Bills—Ends Greg Lashuta (16th) of Ohio State and Ken McLean (20th) of Texas A&M.

ROCKETING TRIALS WINNER

Suleo's Rocket, with jockey Charlie Smith peering over to make sure he has plenty of margin, hits finish line nearly a half-length in front of favored Miss Gold Angel in second division of Los Alamitos Futurity Trials Saturday. Suleo's Rocket had the fastest qualifying time of the 24 contestants. A length back is Vandy Jay Reed.

By DON HARDIN

There'll be a lot of figuring and head scratching during the coming week by quarter horse followers as they try to determine who will win the $160,100 Los Alamitos Futurity next Saturday.

Three trials were run Saturday to find the fastest 10 of 24 two-year-olds to contest the rich Futurity. The winner in each of the 350-yard sprints was timed in :17.9, which is traveling fast in any league and the swiftest three times posted in any race.

Go Rebel Go, off at 14-1 on the board, got his head in front of 2-5 favorite Rocket Vandy in the first division of the Trials with about 40 yards to go and kept it that way for a $30.40 win payoff. Bomblin Rocket, out with the leaders all the way, was another head back in third place.

* * * *

SULEO'S ROCKET had it easiest in the middle division as Charlie Smith, who failed while astride Rocket Vandy, guided Suleo to a one-half victory over Miss Gold Angel, the 4-5 favorite, who broke badly but still defeated Vandy Joy Reed by a length for the second spot.

Suleo's Rocket paid $5.80 as the strong second choice.

Rapid Volley, bet down as the heaviest favorite of the meeting at 1-5, swerved inside coming out of the gate in the third division but Kenneth Chapman got the filly straightened in a hurry, quickly caught the early pacesetters, Go Gayle, Pappy Bar and Moore Go and held off a strong bid by the latter to win by a neck.

Rapid Volley paid $2.60, $2.20 and $2.20 and created a minus show pool of $679.

* * * *

THERE WERE 11,000 fans on hand by the time the Trials began. More than $100,000 was wagered on each division. The total crowd on a warm day when the track was lightning fast was 13,336 and a whopping $965,614 was bet through the mutuels. The crowd and handle were the second highest for a fall meeting day.

Go Rebel Go, ridden by Harley Crosby, is owned by the H&H Ranch and trained by Gene Chambless. Suleo's Rocket is owned by Z. Wayne Griffin, who also owns Rocket Vandy, and is trained by Calvin Mims. Rapid Volley is owned by Fred R. Beckham of Anaheim and trained by Dave Newby.

* * * *

RAPID VOLLEY will go into the Futurity with a bankroll of nearly $95,000 and Go Rebel Go and Suleo's Rocket each have won over $40,000. The Futurity winner will get $72,897.

The first deadheat for win occurred in the first race when the cameras couldn't separate Bamason and Sullivan's Silk, resulting in two daily double payoffs to Beau Regards, the only three-time winner, in the second race.

Fly Away Faila won the $5,000 Monita for two-year-olds and Go Josie Go, last spring's Derby winner, won the $5,000 Josie Bar for older horses to climax the big racing program.

AUHSAN BAY MEADOWS WINNER

Flag Raiser Scores Sixth Stakes Victory by 7 Lengths

Combined Wire Reports

Flag Raiser took an early lead and romped to a seven-length victory in the $61,200 Stuyvesant Handicap at Aqueduct Saturday.

The 3-year-old colt, top-weighted at 121 pounds and part of a three-horse entry trained by Hirsch Jacobs, was ridden by Bobby Ussery. His time for the one mile was 1:35 3/5.

Turn To Reason, a stable-mate of Flag Raiser's, was second and Cupid third in the large field of 15.

Flag Raiser came out of the extreme outside post and was taken into a quick lead by Ussery, with Turn To Reason and the third member of the entry, Isle of Greece, right behind. Ussery hustled Flag Raiser to the rail and the colt steadily lengthened its advantage. By the top of the stretch it was all over.

Flag Raiser now has won six stakes and eight races over-all this year. His first-place in the Stuyvesant was worth $39,780 for owner Isidor Bieber and Jacobs.

The entry paid $8.00, $6.40 and $4.60. Cupid was $8.40 to show.

Celts Win Despite Russell's Injury

Combined Wire Services

The Boston Celtics, playing without Bill Russell for three periods, still managed to defeat the St. Louis Hawks, 100-94, Saturday night in an NBA game at St. Louis.

Russell injured his right leg at the start of the second period and had 10 points before being sidelined. Sub Mel Counts accounted for 18.

Eddie Miles jumped in 36 points as the Detroit Pistons whipped the Baltimore Bullets, 130-119, and snapped a three-game losing streak and ended a three-game Baltimore winning skein.

Grief-Stricken 76ers Postpone Pair With Knicks

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Grief-stricken members of the Philadelphia 76ers Saturday agreed to postpone two weekend games against the New York Knickerbockers because of the death of Ike Richman, co-owner of the 76ers.

Saturday night's scheduled contest at New York and another slated for here today will be played at a later date, announced Irv Kosloff, Richman's partner in the operation of the Philadelphia team.

Funeral services for the 52-year-old attorney-sportsman, who died Friday night while watching his team play the Boston Celtics in Boston Garden, will be today.

Utah Scalps Loyola, 113-81

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Redskins of Utah scalped the Loyola of Los Angeles 113-81 Saturday night in a free-shooting romp.

Utah's Richart Tate scored 28 points and teammate Jerry Chambers added 23. It was the second time in two games this season Utah has scored more than 110 points. Utah beat Montana State 121-71 Thursday night.

GRIFFITH 12-5 PICK IN FRIDAY TITLE GO

NEW YORK (UPI)—Emile Griffith, boxing's most active champion, Saturday remained a 12-5 favorite for his world welterweight title defense against Manny Gonzalez of Odessa, Tex., at Madison Square Garden next Friday night.

Gonzalez gained a unanimous decision over the 26-year-old champion from the Virgin Islands in a non-title bout at Houston last January.

Griffith and his co-manager, Gil Clancy, called the Houston verdict a "home town decision," and the oddsmakers apparently agreed.

Gonzalez, also 26, has fairly good credentials—37 victories in 55 pro fights, including 10 knockouts. He has six draw decisions on his record and he has been stopped only once.

Preceding the title fight, former middleweight king Sugar Ray Robinson will formally retire in the Garden ring.

Randy Turpin, Bobo Olson, Gene Fullmer, Carmen Basioli and Jake Lamotta—the men from whom Robinson won five middleweight titles—will be present for the special ceremonies.

BAY MEADOWS RIDER STILL UNCONSCIOUS

SAN MATEO (UPI) — Phillip Grohs, the 30-year-old hard-luck jockey spilled from his mount during the second race at Bay Meadows Friday, was still unconscious and in serious condition Saturday at Mills Memorial hospital.

Grohs, the father of four young children, was in the hospital's intensive care ward and was under constant observation.

Dr. Gordon Morrison said Grohs "suffered some brain damage which has left him partially paralyzed on the right side but there is reason to believe he'll recover."

Money Mark Established by Nicklaus

PALM BEACH GARDENS (UPI) — Beefy Jack Nicklaus walked away with the biggest pot of money ever collected by a professional golfer in one year of competition on the tour in 1965 when he corralled $140,752.

Nicklaus' total which was compiled in 20 official tournament appearances surpassed the NICKLAUS previous high established by Arnold Palmer's winnings of $128,230 in 1963. Big Nick also won $11,494 in unofficial money for an overall total of $152,246.

Tony Lema had his finest year in 1965 winning $101,816 officially and $108,869 over-all, marking the third straight year that two players have soared past the $100,000 figure in official earnings.

Consistent Billy Casper just missed making it a threesome as he wound up with $99,931 ($126,462). Doug Sanders $72,182 ($83,079) and Gary Player $69,964 ($71,060) rounded out the first five.

* * * *

IN ONLY four years on the tour, Nicklaus has earned $415,945 in sanctioned tournaments, placing him third on the money winners list in a period dating back to 1947. Only Palmer and Casper have amassed more in that time.

And, at age 52, Sam Snead wound up his biggest financial year on the tour—$36,889.

As leading money winner, he collected $31,593 in official tourneys in 1949 and $35,758 in 1950.

Viking Poloists Dunked in Finals

State water polo champion Foothill College successfully defended its title Saturday afternoon, dunking Long Beach City College, 11-2, in the Viking pool.

Earlier in the day, Long Beach had edged Southern California champion Fullerton, 6-5, to reach the finals. Hank Bensel got the overtime score that beat the Hornets.

The Vikings, Metropolitan Conference champions and runners-up to Fullerton in SoCal action, finished the season with a 21-10 record.

FIGHT KO'D: 5 KNOCKOUTS IN 6 LOSSES

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A fight card scheduled next Tuesday was called off Saturday when it became known one of the boxers was under suspension in California for getting knocked out too often.

The fighter was Gabriel Hernandez, who lost six of his last seven fights, five by knockouts. He had been signed as a substitute to meet Rafiu King of Nigeria in the main event.

He was to have filled in for Richard Sue of Portland, who hurt a knee in training.

'Termites' Chief Pests to Texans

By BRUCE YOUNG

The Henderson, Texas Cardinals may have to be more than good football players to beat Fullerton College in next Saturday's Junior Rose Bowl. They also may have to be termite exterminators.

Coach Hal Sherbeck and the Hornets have 11 pests running around on the field, which they laughingly call the "Termites," while opponents woefully refer to them as the best junior college defensive unit in the nation.

Fullerton, which waltzed to a 9-0 regular season record, has a unique defense. Usually the emphasis is on big men for defense, but Sherbeck has been successful with a squad that has only three men over 200 pounds and only three who are six-footers or taller.

* * * *

THE TEXAS squad, which was the first team from the Lone Star State to go undefeated (10-0) since Tyler did it in 1960, holds a six-pound per man advantage over Fullerton's defensive starters.

Over the front five, Henderson's advantage is a whopping 22 pounds per man.

This hardly comes as a shock to Sherbeck's Termites, who have been outweighed, but never outplayed this season. Statistics are proof positive.

In nine contests, the Hornet defense allowed only 872 yards rushing and tossed its hefty foes for 364 yards in losses. Net rushing yardage against the Termites is 508, or 56.4 yards per game.

* * * *

FULLERTON has yielded only 46 points all season, with four consecutive shutouts to its credit. Most points scored off the stingy Hornets was 14 by San Diego in the season opener.

The opposition has averaged 120 yards total offense against the Eastern Conference champions to Fullerton 416. And the Hornet secondary has yet to surrender a touchdown through the air.

What is the secret of Fullerton's amazing defense?

Coach Sherbeck says its "quickness and pursuit. They are also very, very proud." Citrus coach Dave Peterson, who was routed 55-0 by Fullerton, sighed, "They are so quick and react so fast at times I think they even surprise themselves."

* * * *

ANOTHER coach shook his head in amazement after watching the Termites swarm through to dump his passer. "They have exceptional balance and agility. They reacted so fast one time that they knew where we were going even before we did."

Middle guard Rick Crog anchors the line, which averages 200 pounds. Crog, a former all-Orange County star, is flanked by tackles Jerry Gatewood, who is the heavyweight up front at 222 pounds, and Bill Peterson. Peterson tips the scales at only 195 pounds, but runners say he hits with the impact of a 295-pounder.

The flyweight ends are 183-pound Dennis Lightner, and 180-pound Billy Vasquez. Lightner was all-Eastern Conference the last two years.

Key to the lightweight defense is all-America linebacker candidate Richard (Boogie) Carrillo. The 208-pound, ex-Anaheim standout calls the defensive signals.

Carrillo and his sidekick, Fred Warren, give the Hornets a pair of the nation's best linebackers. Warren was honorable mention JC all-America last year at Santa Ana.

The secondary is led by the squad's tall men, 6-2, 193-pound cornerman Dave Clayton. He teams with Bob Abbott, an all-league quarterback last year at Anaheim, to give Fullerton what rival coaches describe as the fastest secondary in jaycee ranks.

Mike Greenwald, a converted end, and Bill Drake, a freshman who stepped in when Jim Cluckl was injured, complete the Termite defense at safety.

The Cardinals will have another tall tale for the folks in Texas when they return to claim they ran into the largest Termites in captivity.

HORNET DEFENSE—IT STINGS AND IT'S STINGY

Fullerton's record-setting defensive squad will be outweighed, as usual, in Saturday's Junior Rose Bowl Game against Henderson, Tex. But the "Termites" are tough and have credentials to prove it. They've held opponents to an average of 56 yards on the ground. Front row (from left): Dennis Lightner, Bill Peterson, Rick Crog, Jerry Gatewood and Billy Vasquez. Linebackers are Fred Warren and Richard Carrillo. Hornets had 9-0 record during regular season.

3 All-Americas Named to South Sr. Bowl Squad

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Three all-America players head the South squad announced Saturday for the 17th annual Senior Bowl football game in Mobile, Jan. 8.

They are Alabama center Paul Crane, Florida end Charley Casey and Tennessee linebacker Frank Emanuel. In addition, Auburn linebacker Bill Cody, Kentucky tackle Sam Ball and Mississippi guard Stan Hindman, all second-team all-Americas, were selected.

Of the 27 players on the squad, 19 were drafted in the top five rounds by teams in the National and American Football League.

The South will be coached by the New York Jets' Weeb Ewbank.

The North squad, to be coached by Mike Holovak of the Boston Patriots, will be announced next week.

CRA Driving Title on Line

Hal Minyard of Crestline, Paul Jones of Torrance and Bob Hogle of Buena Park will settle the 1965 California Racing Association driving championship when they take on a 50-car field in this afternoon's 100-lap CRA sprint car Pacific Coast championship races at Ascot Park.

Racing starts at 2 p.m., preceded by time trials at noon.

Only 58½ points separate the top three drivers in the 1965 CRA point standings, with 100 points going to the winner of the day's 100-lap main event.

ALL-AMERICA IN ACTION TODAY

Orange County forward Manuel Abaunza, a 1965 all-America selection, will perform in final game of tripleheader as soccer comes to Veterans Stadium today. Abaunza is a Nicaraguan who learned his soccer in Costa Rica. He's one of lightest players in Southern California, also one of leading scorers.

THEY MAY HIDE HIS SKATES, BUT . . .

Captain Marc Can't Stay Away

By RICH ROBERTS

The athlete who boasts, "I never get hurt," is a liar. They all do.

The difference is that some won't admit it, even to themselves. An injury doesn't count as long as you can play.

Marc Boileau, the Blades' right wing, is 33, an age where even the healthy participate in a tough, demanding sport look forward to a day off like an Arab welcomes an oasis.

For most of this season Boileau has been playing with a pulled groin muscle that puts him through agony every time he hustles, which for Marc is most of the time.

"I could hear him moaning every time he skated past me," referee Bill Papp said after a recent game.

Nevertheless, Boileau showed up for the Blades' first practice in three weeks last Monday ready to work.

"He said he'd had a shot and the muscle was frozen," coach Lynn Patrick explained. "But, hell, I don't want him to skate because he can still tear it more, even if he can't feel it."

Boileau always has been that way, but this year he feels an even deeper responsibility to the team. He's the captain, and captains aren't quitters, especially when things are going so badly.

Last season he strained some lower abdominal muscles. The pain was so bad that he could hardly straighten up to walk, let alone skate.

The doctor prescribed complete rest, and Marc did sit out a few games. But when the mental anguish of missing the action got worse than the physical pain, he was back in there again.

A couple of weeks ago he and Willie O'Ree, another right wing, suffered the same type groin injury at about the same time.

O'Ree still is shelved, and Boileau admitted at the start, "I probably shouldn't be playing, but with Willie out, well . . ."

Patrick does not relish the task of telling Marc he can't play, but he's seriously considering hiding his skates.

THE BLADES' visiting goalie, Ed Johnston, confirms previous reports brought back from the National Hockey League about Bobby Hull, the Chicago Black Hawks' super shooter.

"You hear a lot about his slap shot," Johnston says, "but he can wrist it just as hard, he's so strong. He has to have all his shirts specially made big in the biceps. His arms are like a normal man's legs."

Johnston saw Jack Norris knocked cold by a Hull cannonball after the Blade goalie was called up to Boston last season.

"That's probably what made him puck-shy. He'll get over it. Hull's hit me a couple of times, too. When he's driving from 30 or 35 feet you don't have a chance. Even if you aren't screened you can't really see it."

Golf Clubs Bring $3,000

BERKELEY (AP) — Clubs used by some of the world's most famous golfers, including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, are bringing high bids at a charity auction here.

Bidding reached $3,000 Saturday for the 18 clubs and 45 autographed golf balls in the second day of a week long auction to raise money for Childrens Hospital Medical Center of Oakland.

Included are clubs used by Bobby Jones, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Ken Venturi, Gary Player, Walter Hagen and Gene Littler. Golf balls include autographs by Bob Hope and Bing Crosby.

The event, the Golf Tree Auction, is a successor of last Christmastide's Willie Mays baseball tree auction, which raised $3,500 for the hospital.

Soccer Tripleheader at L.B. Stadium Today

Big time soccer football comes to Veterans Stadium today with first-round elimination games for the U.S. Open Cup.

A tripleheader is scheduled today, beginning at 10:30 a.m. The opener matches Los Angeles of the Continental League and the Costa Rica-Ticos Club, one of the top teams in the Greater L.A. League.

The Long Beach Pirates of the Continental League meet the all-Italian Gladiators of the L.A. League at 12:30 and at 2:30, unbeaten Orange County faces Montebello.

Beginning Sunday, Jan. 9, all games of the newly formed, semi-pro Continental League will be played at Veterans Stadium.

Members of the Continental League are Long Beach Pirates, Orange County, Los Angeles, Hollywood Stars, Beverly Hills, Montebello and Lynwood Falcons.

THE LEAGUE includes five all-Americas, topped by Orange County's Abaunza brothers, Manuel and Bayardo. Freddie Cameron is another all-America with the power Orange County club.

Hollywood player-coach Helmet Bicek and Albert Zerhusen, of the L.A. Soccer Club, also were named to the 1965 all-America team. Zerhusen has the distinction of being the only American-born all-America.

The Orange County-Montebello contests is today's feature. Orange manager Bob Florin has a team composed mostly of Latins, three Europeans and one Canadian. Montebello's standouts are Armenian.

In case of ties after the regulation 90 minutes, there will be overtime periods of 15 minutes each, up to a maximum of one hour.

Other U.S. Open Cup games today:

Rancho Cienega Stadium (LaBrea at Rodeo Rd.)—10:30, Scandia vs. Greenwhite; 12:30, Maccabees vs. Hollywood; 2:30, Guadalajara vs. Lynwood.

Aparicio Good for Five Years; Astros Want Him

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Paul Richards, Houston Astros general manager, said Saturday that Venezuelan Luis Aparicio could play in the majors for another five years at least if he wanted. He said he would like to acquire Aparicio from the Baltimore Orioles.

Richards was commenting on recent statements by Aparicio that he plans to stay in Venezuela after playing the winter ball circuit there and would retire from the majors definitely.

Aparicio currently is playing for the La Guaira Sharks of the Venezuelan professional league.

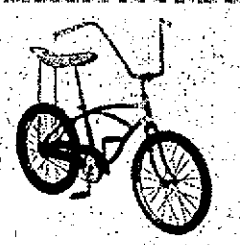

PASTURES WERE GREENS

Equestrians were blamed for some $1,500 worth of damage to two golf courses in Griffith Park Saturday.

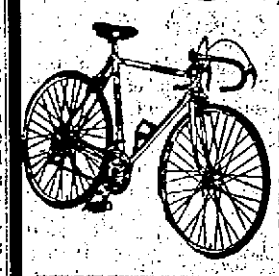

Park officials said someone had ridden over greens on the first and 16th holes of the Harding course and the 15th and 18th holes of the Wilson course.

The green on the first hole at Harding was so badly damaged it may be out of service for nearly a month.

Rapid Growth for Crowley Trout

Biologists of the Department of Fish and Game sampled trout in Lake Crowley last month and discovered that the subcatchable rainbows planted after the lake's closing July 31 had grown from 8.1 inches to 10.6 inches and had increased in average weight from 4.1 to 9.7 ounces.

Once, again, this sampling proves that Crowley is one of the best lakes in the nation for trout growth. Thirty-nine fish were taken in September and 53 were taken in the gill netting operations in late November.

Of particular significance to the DFG biologists was the fact that 18 of the 71 rainbow trout taken in the November set were carryovers from the 1965 subcatchable plant. Those carryovers were about 17 inches long and weighed an average of two pounds.

That fact refutes the oft-heard argument that the relatively poor angling season at Crowley this year was due to a scarcity of fish.

Also caught in the gill nets were seven brown trout from 16 to 25 inches long and ranging in weight up to six and a half pounds. All the fish taken were trapped in two small nets, 8 by 100 feet each.

DFG biologist Phil Pister said, "When you get so many darn fish that they more than fill a washtub, you can't help but wonder what the population of Crowley really is."

THERE WAS SOME FANCY shooting at the Long Beach-Dominguez Gun Club Thursday afternoon when the Southern California Tuna Club had its annual trap-skeet-duck tower shoot. Just because the men belong to the SCTC, don't sell them sort when guns are involved.

For instance, Ken Sperry, Bert Paul and Carter Boswell tied at 22 each in the duck tower event. (I couldn't even hit the tower, much less those tiny clay pigeons zooming over your head from behind). There was a shootoff and Ken and Bert tied at 18. Then there was a second shootoff and Bert finally won, 18 to 12.

Dr. Robert McCoy Jr. had a perfect score (25-25) at trap, and Russell Pray was the winner of the skeet events with 25 in the handicap division. Arthur Macrate was the over all handicap champion with 71 out of 75. He and his brother, William, are two of the best trap and skeet shooters in this area.

The SCTC also had its annual sportsmen's dinner Friday night at the Virginia Country Club with loads of smoked marlin, other ocean delicacies, venison, ducks, geese and other tempting morsels.

All of the wild game and fish were donated by members of the club and prepared by the chefs at the Virginia. It is a banquet that is long remembered by the members and guests.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — The tables virtually groaned the other night when the Long Beach Yacht Club awarded its trophies for the year. As Commodore Robert Pierce put it: "The only trouble we are having here this evening is a complaint from the National Hardware Association that we have gone into competition with them."

The club was filled with diners and it seemed that everybody got a cup for something, mostly sailing feats. The club will install its officers Jan. 17, with William T. Dalessi taking over as commodore.

Marion J. Bailey, 6508 El Roble St., Long Beach, has complained to the Utah Department of Fish and Game about a violation for which he was fined $30 for not punching his deer tag. This is not the first time this has happened to California hunters. Bailey says the instructions fail to mention that the tag should be punched. He said that seven other violators from California paid the same amount that day.

Merlin A. Robbins, 1951 Knoxville Ave., Long Beach, also has a complaint about the State Division of Parks. He says that on a recent trip to the Salton Sea, there was a sign "NO VACANCIES" at the entrance to the state park. He informed the ranger on duty that he merely wanted to drive his family around and show them the park. He was, permitted to do so, but observed several empty camp sites. He wonders if the sites were being saved for the 30-day "nomads."

NEW BOOKS—Arnold Gingrich, publisher of Esquire magazine, has written a book, "The Well-Tempered Angler," a delightful collection of stories about trout fishing, light tackle, fishing cronies, as well as chapters filled with advice on taking of trophy trout on the tiniest of flies. He has one chapter on Ernest Hemingway that is worth the price of the book. The book is published by Alfred A. Kropt., Inc., 501 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

Doubleday & Company, Inc., 277 Park Ave., New York, N. Y., has two new volumes on the market, "Above and Below," by Tom Shelnick with Ray Cristina, and "The Gunner's Bible," by Bill Riviere.

"Above and Below" is a fantastic collection of the experiences of the internationally known diver, Tom Shelnick, and those adventures are excellently told by Ray Cristina. Shelnick has worked on such diving jobs as the La Guardia jet wreck, Andrea Doria salvage and many others. He is retained by the Secret Service, the FBI, U.S. Navy and many private organizations.

"The Gunner's Bible", is just what the title implies. Riviere has done a masterful job in putting together a complete guide to sporting firearms and their accessories, with more than 200 photographs of guns and gunning. There is hardly any subject in the world of guns that isn't detailed in his book.

Twilley First Catch, Point King

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Twilley, Tulsa's little end with the big list of records, is the first player to win the major pass receiving championships in the same season.

TWILLEY

The All-America end, who stands just 5-foot-10, scored 127 points and caught 134 passes for 1,779 yards and 16 touchdowns in 10 games.

Statistics released Saturday by the NCAA showed Floyd Little, Syracuse's breakaway halfback, second in scoring with 114 points while Chuck Hughes of Texas Western was the runner-up in receiving with 79 catches for 1,519 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Besides his touchdowns, Twilley got his points on 23 of 29 conversion kicks and four two - point conversion catches. Last year when he also won the receiving crown, then missed the scoring title by one point.

The senior from Galena, Tex., also set eight major-college pass - catching records. They are:

Most passes caught in a game, 19; caught in a season, 134; caught in a career, 261; touchdown passes caught in a game, 5; season TD receptions, 32; pass-receiving yards in a season, 1,779; and career pass receiving yards, 3,343.

TWILLEY TOP UPI LINEMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tulsa end Howard Twilley Saturday was named United Press International's "lineman of the year" for 1965.

Twilley, who established eight major college pass catching marks while winning all-America honors this year, was a one-sided choice in the balloting of a national cross-section of writers and broadcasters, garnering 90 votes compared to 27 for Texas linebacker Tommy Nobis and 15 for Notre Dame guard Dick Arrington.

Graebner Stuns Stolle, Gains Victorian Finals

MELBOURNE (AP) — Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, upset Australian Fred Stolle in straight sets Saturday and went into the final of the Victorian Tennis Championships against Wimbledon titleholder Roy Emerson.

Graebner never lost a service and controlled the match all the way as he cut down Australia's No. 2 Davis Cup ace in 75 minutes 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

Emerson, beaten by Graebner in the recent New South Wales Tournament at Sydney, crushed a fellow Australian, John Newcombe, in the semi-finals 8-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Nancy Richey of Dallas gained the women's singles final with a 6-0, 6-1 triumph over Gail Sherriff of Australia. The little Texas girl will play Margaret Smith, the Wimbledon and American champion, who ousted Mrs. Clark Graebner, the former Carole Caldwell, 6-2, 6-8, 6-1.

Miss Richey and Mrs. Graebner gained the women's doubles final by beating Jan Lehane and Madonna Schacht of Australia 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. They will play Miss Smith and Lesley Turner.

AAU Seeks Authority as Govt. Delays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union adopted guidelines Saturday for participation of its athletes in open track and field events until the government acts to settle the dispute between it and colleges.

At its annual convention, the AAU voted unanimously to require that all open competition be conducted exclusively under its rules and procedures.

It held further that athletes will not be authorized to compete in open meets unless they are legally approved by the AAU.

President Clifford H. Buck, in presenting the guidelines for approval, said they were required because the government has failed to appoint a board of arbitration to settle the longstanding fight between the AUU and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Senate approved a resolution several months ago calling on Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to appoint a five-member arbitration panel. Buck said he had been informed Humphrey might appoint the panel by next week.

War Casualty Considered for Sullivan Award

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fourteen athletes, including one killed in Viet Nam, were nominated Saturday by the Amateur Athletic Union for its 1965 James E. Sullivan Award, presented to the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

Among the nominees was Ronald Zinn, of Orland Park, Ill., the national race walking champion, who was killed in action in Viet Nam on July 7.

Other nominees: Ralph Boston, world broad jump champion; Princeton basketball star Bill Bradley; Cathy Ferguson, women's breaststroke swimming champion; weightlifter Gary Tubner; track star Gerry Lindgren; Randy Matson, world record holder in the shotput; Marine Lt. Billy Mills, long distance running champion; swimmer Dick Roth; Martha Randall, holder of the women's world swimming record for the 400-meter freestyle; James Ryun, America's fastest miler; Wyomia Tyus, women's world record holder for the 100-yard dash and 100 meters; Nera White, 11 times AAU all-America women's basketball player; and Earnie Wrightson, men's diving.

Champ Returns

Pedro Morales, the heavyweight champion, takes on El Mongole Tuesday night at the Municipal Auditorium wrestling matches. A tag team match is the semi-main event.

Angry Rockets Oppose Angels at Blair Field

By CHUCK MEDICK

Three weeks of rain and an extra inning loss are not the ingredients to make a happy baseball team.

Therefore, it will be an angry group of Long Beach Rockets who take Blair Field at 1:30 today to meet the L.A. Angels.

Manager Lou Weidman brings to town one of the best hitting ball clubs in the semi-pro Winter League. John Demko, John Bacher, Nat Dancy are L.A.'s leading sluggers.

With but five games to go in the regular league schedule, the playoff seems far away for the Rockets, who have dropped three and are in second place, 1½ games from the top.

Butch Hughes, Larry Killingsworth, Terry Richards, Steve Ellingson and Don Rowe will be ready for mound duty.

L.B. Trio Sparkles in Iron Man Meet

Dick Pearson, Harvey Loya and Jeff Breithault ran away with honors Saturday in Los Altos YMCA's fifth Iron Man Invitational cross country race for junior high schools at Long Beach State College.

Pearson, of Jefferson, raced to a 3:27.1 clocking on the three-quarter mile course, longest run by junior high boys in Long Beach, to establish a ninth-grade record. Loya, from Stephens, was the eighth-grade champ and Breithautt, of Hill, took the seventh-grade title.

Top 5 Finishers

7th Grade-Pearson (Jefferson) 3:27.1 (course record); Bill Penn (Hughes); Dave Lea (Lynwood); Jeff Jacobson (Hughes); Martin Curtain (St. Anthony).

8th Grade—Loya (Stephens) 4:00.4; Bob Buckley (Stanford); Jan Pengra (Willmington); Jim Dare (Hill); Fred Balliste (Hughes).

7th Grade — Breithault (Hill) 4:07.9; Steve Shaw (Hill); Dave Sheppard (Hill); Craig Kelley (Marshall); Gary Johns (Hughes).

D. Lawson Jr. Wins Virginia Sweepstakes

Dick Lawson Jr. fired a 73-8—65 to win class A low net honors in the weekly sweepstakes at Virginia Country Club Saturday. Kelly Kirkwood and Dr. D. Mefford deadlocked with net 71s for the class B title.

Class A: Low Net—Lawson Jr., 73-8—65; John Walter, 72-6—66; Blind Beery (74)—John F. Craig II, Harry Bouchier, Bill Montgomery, Jim Edwards, Al G. Davis and Pete Drake.

Class B: Low Net—Tie between Kirkwood, 91-20—71 and Dr. Mefford, 88-17—71.

Blind Beery (88)—Edward P. Lely, Les Hale, John McWhinney and Carlos Gates.

Japanese Volleyballers in 2 Exhibitions

The Japanese national men's and women's volleyball teams will appear twice in Southern California next week.

They will play the U.S. all-stars at Cerritos College in Norwalk Monday, Dec. 13, and at UCLA's new Pauley Pavilion, Dec. 14.

Japan's women are defending Olympic champions. They have not lost an international match since 1963. The men's team finished second to Russia in the Tokyo Olympics, and second again in the recent World Cup tournament in Poland. The Japanese were the only ones to win a match from USSR in Poland and now are rated No. 1 in the world.

Jim Montague of Long Beach is trying out for the U.S. men's team.

Elorde Weathers Cut Eye, Retains Junior Title

MANILA, (AP) — Ring veteran Flash Elorde weathered a cut eye in the first round Saturday and kept his world junior lightweight boxing title with a unanimous 15-round decision over 20-year-old Korean challenger, Suh Kang Il.

The 30-year-old champion, making the ninth defense of his title, was ahead all the way and never was seriously bothered except for the cut under his right eye that twice brought the doctor into the ring.

DORIS DAY

Magic Name At Boxoffice

HOLLYWOOD — The little blonde, freckled girl who first won the hearts of movie fans by belting out pop tunes in musicals has progressed through suspense pictures, volatilely dramatic roles and domestic romances to a position of being the screen's foremost comedienne of today.

Only Doris Day fits all of these facets of a busy and highly successful career. Currently, she is starring at MGM with Rod Taylor and Arthur Godfrey in a picture titled "The Glass Bottom Boat," the plot of which is generously sprinkled with pure farce and shades of slap-stick.

When critics and analysts get around to cataloguing Miss Day's forte these days, they ultimately come up with the comparison of her with the beloved Carole Lombard — a shapely, glamorous, modish and beautiful star who throws caution to the winds when it comes to working for a real belly-laugh.

Through the past dozen years in Miss Day's career, she has remained the acknowledged number one boxoffice star of the world. This has been chiefly during the time she was becoming an expert in comedy, having graduated from light frothy musicals into emotional singing roles such as her Ruth Etting part in "Love Me or Leave Me" through spectacular song-and-dance films like "The Pajama Game" and "Calamity Jane" and side excursions into fare like "The Man Who Knew Too Much" and "Julie" in which both audiences and heroine Doris were scared to death from start to finish.

Then, suddenly, Doris found the niche that has put her on top of the heap. It began with "Pillow Talk" and has extended right through "Do Not Disturb" for Christmas release to "The Glass Bottom Boat."

DORIS DAY . . . Drama to Slapstick

UNAFRAID OF LOOKING ridiculous, Miss Day has her face smeared with cake frosting for scene with Dom De Louis in "The Glass Bottom Boat."

EVERYTHING goes wrong for Doris in "Do Not Disturb" during a day in Paris.

'Holiday on Ice' Opens Tuesday

"Holiday on Ice," starring ice-spin king Ronnie Robertson, opens a 13-day, 19-performance engagement at the Pan-Pacific Auditorium, Los Angeles, Tuesday.

Featured in the cast are Charlotte Balauff, Alfredo Mendoza, Eric Waite, Jane Morris and Harry Blackstone Jr., son of the late Harry Blackstone, who carries on the famed magical tradition of the family in a production number, "Aladin and His Wondrous Lamp."

Prominent throughout the United States, "Holiday on Ice" was the first American ice show invited to perform in Moscow as part of the Cultural Exchange program and last year accepted a second invitation to appear in the Russian capital.

USC Prof's Novel to Become Movie

"Seek Out and Destroy," a novel dealing with the current war in Viet Nam, has been purchased by Stanley Kramer as a future film production for Columbia Pictures release.

The book, to be published in England in March, was written by Irwin R. Blacker, professor of Cinema at USC.

Blacker served with the Army Engineers in Africa during World War II, performed intelligence work for the Army during the Korean struggle, and a few years ago wrote a book called "Guerilla Warfare—Irregulars and Partisans," published by Simon and Schuster.

Actress Hill Unimpressed by Presley

MARIANNA HILL

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—There are people brave enough to think and mostly they are young . . . and one is 21-year-old Marianna Hill who plays Elvis Presley's leading lady in a film but cannot be induced to say that Elvis is a great acting talent.

And many of the so-called "in" people and places are "frauds," "wasteful," and "dissipating," alleges she.

Long-haired Marianna, grandniece of New Jersey police boss Norman Schwarzkopf, has recently filmed "Paradise, Hawaiian Style," with Presley.

"They kept asking me," Marianna says, "'Hasn't he got talent?' That was when the picture was starting.

"I said, 'He's a show business phenomenon.'

"When we were finishing the picture, they said, 'NOW hasn't he got talent?'

"I said, 'I still say he's a show business phenomenon'."

"Did you ever have a date with Elvis?" I asked Marianna.

"No," she squirmed. "You see, he's got his entourage, and they go over to his house and eat popcorn and watch television."

AFTER BRUSHING off Elvis, Marianna took after the restaurants of San Francisco where she once lived (she also grew up in Santa Barbara, La Jolla, Vancouver and New York).

"I think New York's restaurants are superior to San Francisco's," Marianna said.

"Here it's alive! San Francisco's restaurants are cliquish . . . it's very old San Francisco society . . . and everybody's looped. If you drink a bottle of liquor a day, you're one of the social group."

"Did you live there long?" I asked Marianna.

"Till I was 5."

"And you learned those details about San Francisco restaurants before you were 5?"

"I have a 165 IQ!" she said. "I am going to challenge Jill St. John to an IQ test. She keeps bragging about her IQ. She doesn't look all that bright to me."

DISCOVERED by Howard Hawks while at New York's Neighborhood Playhouse, after graduating from Montemar Girls School in San Diego at 18, Marianna was cast in Hawks' picture "Red Line 7000."

"I refuse to go along with all the nonsense about the 'in' places being great," she says. "As a creative person, I find them wasteful. The places and people in them are not for real.

"They have to rush in to every party and be a knife. Slash right through to the center of everything. I know one actor who has absolutely nothing. But he works all the time because he horns his way in everywhere and has endurance.

"He's successful because he lacks perception and awareness and is able to live with his blindfolds on, in a dream factory. Oh, so many people are frauds. The ones I respect are Kim Stanley, Marlon Brando, George C. Scott, Julie Christie, and Anne Bancroft."

"People start drumming their fingers on the table when I say these things. They start acting nervous. They think I'm a trouble-maker."

THE STARS

What They're Doing . . .

By M. E. GEORGE

George C. Scott, Virna Lisi and Tony Curtis will star in "Not With My Wife, You Don't!" (former title, "The Big Brass"). Shooting starts in February.

Warren Beatty and Sandra Dee have been signed to star in "Kaleidoscope" to be photographed in England, France and Switzerland starting in January.

Cary Grant, in "Walk Don't Run": "We're playing to a young audience in theaters today. They don't want to see me making love. I solve that in this picture by getting the two young people together." The young people are Samantha Eggar and Jim Hutton.

Wayne Boozer debuts in "Madame X"—that's right, as a drunk . . . Honor Blackman, who plays a man-chasing female in "Moment to Moment", co-starring Jean Seberg and Sean Garrison, described her role as that of a gold-digger — a human gimme pig".

Sophia Loren, star of "Lady L," won the British Film Institute's first Alexander Korda Award. On hand for the ceremony were Peter Ustinov who directed, and David Niven and Paul Newman who co-star in the film.

Robert Redford, star of Broadway's "Barefoot in the Park" will do the movie version next year . . . Glenn Ford and Stella Stevens have started work in "The Rage" in Mexico . . . James Mason and Alan Bates are starring in "Georgy Girl," filming in London . . . James Coburn gets the title role in "Eli Kotch" set for filming next year.

Tab Hunter, Doris Dowling, Arthur O'Connell and Edward Andrews moved from Hollywood, Calif., to Hollywood, Fla., for a sequence for the Soupy Sales starrer, "Birds Do It." . . . Michael Connors, Dorothy Provine, Terry-Thomas and Raf Valone returned to Rome from Brazil where they completed jungle scenes for "Operation Paradise."

Ruth Warrick Shines in O'Neill Play

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

With tall, stately Ruth Warrick of "Citizen Kane" distinction and "Peyton Place" popularity turning in a priceless gem of a performance as the mother, Mary Cavan Tyrone, something wonderful happened at the Warner Playhouse, Los Angeles, Friday night to Eugene O'Neill's immortal "Long Day's Journey Into Night."

The production, a thoroughly professional job, in which Repertory Unlimited debuts, brought a new, strangely magnificent illumination to O'Neill's fog-lost people in their summer home on that memorable August day in 1912.

Under co-founder-director Barry Baungarten's piercing and meticulously detailed craftsmanship, the Tyrones' place home magically becomes a huge stage on which each Tyrone only calls home because he hangs his own private fantasy—not his hat—there.

* * * *

USUALLY "Journey" meanders into hardcore realism trimmed with diffuse touches of illusion as the story of an embattled Irish-American family. Emotionally it is quite moving when done this way; but also quite morbid, making some of it rather hard to endure in one setting.

In place of everyday emotions, the new production brings the theatrical elixir of highly skilled disciplines. Each member of the family including the lowly maid, acts out his fantasy in the public manner of actors who are onstage every moment of their lives. And one begins to understand why O'Neill draws so largely on theatrical memory—some of it in snide references ("Enter Ophelia")—in his play.

* * * *

"LONG DAY'S Journey . . ." is more than a thrust into the emotional hideaways of the heart. It is the story of human survival purged through art.

This is the bright, new illumination the new repertory company brings to this long, yet masterly written play. And their final achievement is astonishing.

The company starts out with a top o' the morning heartiness in which everybody laughs and method-gestures just too much. But this is only a bait set by brilliant actors who know how to build slowly and surely.

After the light opening, Miss Warrick moves into her superb technical work as the dope-ridden mother trying to con even "my Blessed Virgin" with sweet prayer. Miss Warnick's massive interpretation eschews sentimentality. It does not beg the heart; it begets it. Her recall of being fitted for that famous wedding gown as the romantic, well-bred girl in love with the matinee idol of coarse origin is so graphic it makes everyone relive the scene in its entirety.

ARTHUR MILLER'S modern classic, "Death of a Salesman" at Long Beach City College auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Avenue, features (from left) Barbara Ritman, Ron Boussom, Robert Sprott and Randy Mozingo, at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

JEAN ANOUILH'S modern love story, "Romeo and Jeanette," is at Actor's Circle, 29 39th Pl. Bonnie Gallup and Larry Verdugo are shown in scene from the show playing at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

SANDRA SHAWN and Clay Dietz in Off-Broadway Theater, 211 Lime Ave., production of Tennessee William's "A Streetcar Named Desire" at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday, Saturday.

LESLIE TAYLOR and Roger Ernest in a scene from William Wycherley's "The Country Wife," at 8:30 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday, in the Long Beach State College campus theater.

PAT LANG and Joe Daguman in Harbor College, Wilmington, Starboard Theater production of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" playing at 8 p.m. nightly Tuesday through Saturday.

On Stage

Moorehead at Marymount

Agnes Moorehead will be presented in a program of classical and contemporary readings at 8:30 p.m. Friday at Marymount College, Palos Verdes.

A five-time winner of the New York Film Critic's Award and three-time Academy Award nominee, Miss Moorehead has been appearing professionally on stage and screen since she was 10.

She said she will determine which selections she will use on the program after she has had a chance to sense the mood of her audience.

AGNES MOOREHEAD

'Las Posadas' at Padua Hills Theater

CLAREMONT—"Las Posadas," the story of Christmas in Old Mexico, currently is playing on stage at Padua Hills Theater.

The play is staged at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Saturdays and at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and Fridays.

The theater is located three miles north of Foothill Boulevard in Claremont.

SURVEY

THE HALF DECADE AHEAD

The next five years may well be the most exciting and significant in Metropolitan Long Beach's history. To tell this story, in advance, is a challenging newspaper project, one which we believe will be the most widely read and eagerly discussed edition we have ever undertaken.

It should be read by every member of our community, by students, by our representatives in government, by influential people everywhere.

Thousands of extra copies of "Survey/the Half-Decade Ahead" will be printed for nation-wide distribution. You will want to watch for it, save it, order extra copies for family, friends, and business contacts.

Unsheltered From Fallout, Rain, Taxes

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

A Santa Monica woman who complained that the fallout shelter in her yard doesn't even keep out the rain, has found out it is no protection against the county assessor, either.

Mrs. Jane G. Carey, who lives in Santa Monica Canyon, had petitioned to have the assessment on her land reduced from $4,800 to $3,700, and the assessment on improvements lowered from $3,000 to $2,300.

A leaky fallout shelter could hardly be called an improvement, she contended.

A county tax appeals board held, however, that the assessor had made a fair evaluation of her property and denied her petition.

N. LONG BEACH ACTION

Fire Is Boy-Scouted

Two North Long Beach Boy Scouts remembered the Scout motto — "Be Prepared" — Saturday afternoon when they spotted a fire in the storm sewer at 49th Street and Virginia Avenue.

Bruce Pietrzak, 12, of 104 W. 49th St. and Mark Mulholland, 11, of 4925 Virginia Ave., wasted no time in bringing buckets of water to douse the flames.

A passing policeman helped them make sure the fire was out, then commended their alertness. Accumulated gases in drains and sewers can sometimes explode, he pointed out.

Jack Shivel, neighborhood commissioner for the boys' Troop 153, passed the incident along but didn't say whether it would eventually count toward two firefighting merit badges.

Only Ford Motor Company offers you all these station wagon firsts:

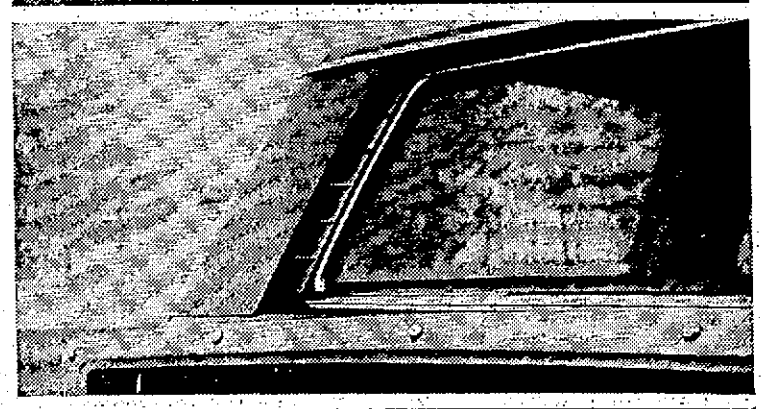

a tailgate that swings open like a door (for people)

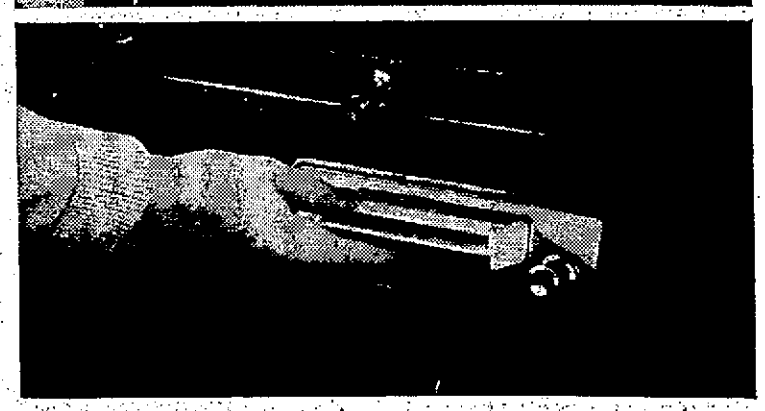

or lowers like a platform (for cargo)

side-facing rear seats (that make room for a family of 10 or fold down flush with the floor)

deflectors that air-wash back window—automatically (air streams help clear away dirt, dust, and snow as you drive)

a Stereo-Sonic Tape System (over 70 minutes of your favorite music with no static, no commercials)

That's why you've bought more new Ford Motor Company station wagons these past nine weeks than in any similar period since we built the first one in 1928. Why all the enthusiasm?

New ideas. More smart, swinging ideas than all the others put together.

REGISTERED NURSES
FOR CIVILIAN POSITIONS IN VIETNAM

Difficult, possibly hazardous, working conditions; long hours, great responsibility, in remote locations. To work with international medical teams in provincial hospitals of South Vietnam, treating civilian war casualties and villagers needing medical attention, as part of U.S. AID program. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit, 25 to 45 years of age (exceptions for outstanding qualifications) with a minimum of two years experience in patient care or ward management, willing to serve abroad without dependents for at least 18 months. Mothers of dependent children not acceptable.

Salary range: $6,000 to $12,000 plus 25% overseas differential, housing allowance, other benefits.

AREA DEVELOPMENT
OFFICERS — VIETNAM,
THAILAND AND LAOS

The Agency for International Development (AID) is seeking dedicated and skilled American men to advise provincial, district, and village officials in Vietnam, Thailand, and Laos on locally administered projects in the public works, agriculture, education, health, and sanitation fields. Candidates must have a genuine interest in the welfare and future of the people of Southeast Asia and be willing to serve in remote areas under conditions of hardship and personal risk.

A minimum of a bachelor's degree in the social sciences or agriculture fields is required as well as several years experience in local government public services, rural development, and/or the coordinated management of financial, personnel, and material resources.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens of above average physical fitness, and be willing to undergo separation from their dependents for up to 18 months if selected for Vietnam.

Salaries range from $6,000 to $15,000, plus up to 25% differential, housing allowance, and other benefits.

PROGRAM ECONOMISTS,
VIETNAM AND FAR EAST

Difficult working conditions, long hours, great responsibility, in a challenging environment with considerable personal career growth potential. To work under the direction of the Program Officer in AID Missions abroad in the preparation of large scale economic aid programs, with responsibility for providing Missions with the input of economic information, analysis and recommendations necessary to formulate, change, implement and evaluate Mission programs. Applicants should have a Ph.D in economics or comparable training/experience, or a M.A. with at least two years experience in economic analysis or teaching of economics at the college level; applicants should be highly trained in economic theory and especially competent in developmental economics. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit and willing to serve abroad with their families for a minimum of two years at a time (in Vietnam, at least 18 months, without dependents).

Base salary, related to present earnings: $8,500 to $18,000 plus overseas differential, housing allowance, and other benefits.

ASSISTANT PROGRAM
OFFICERS, VIETNAM
AND FAR EAST

Difficult working conditions, long hours, great responsibility, in a challenging environment with considerable personal career growth potential. To work under the direction of the Program Officer in AID Missions abroad in the preparation of large scale economic aid programs and to assist in program planning. Applicants should have a M.A. in political science, international relations, or economics, or an A.B. degree with additional experience and executive potential. At least 12 hours in economics, and some analytical experience required. Management/administrative experience desirable. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit, and willing to serve abroad for a minimum of two years (in Vietnam, at least 18 months, without dependents).

Base salary, related to present earnings: $7,000 to $16,000 plus overseas differential, housing allowance, and other benefits.

OVERSEAS AUDITORS
— VIETNAM AND THE FAR EAST

Challenging career opportunities in the Office of the Controller, in AID Missions in the Far East, in audit activities of major economic assistance programs. Applicants should have personal growth potential, a bachelor's degree from a recognized institution with a major in accounting, and have a minimum of two years experience in public accounting and/or internal auditing in private industry or government. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit, and willing to serve abroad for 24 months (in Vietnam for 18 months without dependents).

Salary range: $7,000 to $12,000, plus up to 25% overseas differential, housing allowance, and other benefits.

AGRICULTURAL ADVISORS VIETNAM

Difficult, possibly hazardous, working conditions, long hours, great responsibility in remote locations.

Applicants should have a B.S. degree in Agriculture or Agricultural Education. A minimum of five years experience as a County Agricultural Extension Agent, Vocational Agriculture Teacher or a similar position. However, a specialist with practical experience and farm background is acceptable. Career opportunity.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens, physically fit, and willing to serve abroad without dependents for at least 18 months. Language training prior to assignment may be provided.

Salary range: $7,500 to $15,000, plus 25% overseas differential, housing allowance, other benefits.

PUBLIC SAFETY ADVISORS

Limited number of overseas positions available for Public Safety Advisors in programs of the U.S. Government. These assignments are of the greatest importance to U.S. objectives, to assist police forces of the Free World.

Applicants must be willing to serve anywhere in the world. Five years minimum experience is required at executive/supervisory level in Federal, state, or local law enforcement. Degree in Police Administration or allied fields, and overseas experience desirable. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, may be up to age 45, and must be physically fit.

Salary range: $8,500 to $12,500, plus overseas differential if applicable, housing allowance, and other benefits.

TO APPLY

An AID recruitment team will be at the U. S. Court House, Room 1517, 312 North Spring Street, Los Angeles, the week of December 6 to interview candidates. Call 688-5678 (collect, if out-of-town) for an appointment.

INTERPRETER-STAFF ASSISTANTS FOR VIETNAM

Difficult, possibly hazardous, working conditions; long hours, great responsibility in remote locations.

Young college graduates to be trained as civilian interpreter/staff assistants for Vietnam. Demonstrated aptitude in learning a foreign language is required. Preference will be given to applicants now fluent in a Far Eastern language or French. Language aptitude test will be given. Minimum of bachelors degree is required. Applicants must be U.S. citizens between the ages of 21 and 35.

After one year of Vietnamese language training in the U.S., selected personnel act as staff assistants to U.S. A.I.D. officials in coordinating programs with Vietnam Government officials.

Applicants must be male, physically fit, and willing to serve abroad without dependents for at least 18 months. Salaries will range from $6,000, plus 25% overseas differential, housing allowance, other benefits. Assignments have A.I.D. foreign service career development possibilities.

TO APPLY

An A.I.D. recruitment team will be at the U.S. Court House, Room 1517, 312 North Spring Street, Los Angeles, the week of Dec. 6 to interview candidates. Call 688-5678 (collect if out-of-town) for an appointment.

OPPORTUNITY
SEMI-SKILLED

We are now offering an opportunity for semi-skilled men to learn a trade. Our trainees are available for shift work, as well as weekends. They are men who are willing to put in a hard day of work because of the rewards and experience they gain.

Our apprentices know that reliability and effort are recognized through increased earnings and rapid promotion. They are men who are more concerned with the future than the present. They also prefer permanent work, as opposed to being laid off every other month. If you are type of man we are looking for then come in today and talk employment possibilities with us.

Help Wanted (Men) 24B

This MAN IS A "Security Risk"!

Age 29. Married. Two children. High school education. Active in lodge, church, veterans organization. Employed by large manufacturing concern. Earns $102 a week.

Sounds like an Average Joe. And he is. Too average! He's got a job. It pays fairly well. He's satisfied.

But here's the catch. With the right kind of training, this young man could be stepping into better jobs. He could be making $7-$8,000 a year. He could be cashing in on those sparetime hours he now wastes. As it stands now, he's stuck in his job. Can't seem to make any headway. He's reluctant to try. So he just hangs on.

—This man is a "Security Risk" to his wife and children. His family probably will never enjoy the comforts, the prestige, the good living that could be theirs.

If hard times come, they are almost sure to be hurt. For an Average Joe can't compete with trained men when the chips are down.

A man like this would do well to start a planned program of self-improvement. In his spare time. In a field related to his interests and abilities. Right NOW!

Don't You be a "Security Risk"

Prepare now for professional career. Opportunity unlimited. Free R.E. School & Training.

INTERPRETER-STAFF ASSISTANTS FOR VIETNAM

Difficult, possibly hazardous, working conditions; long hours, great responsibility in remote locations.

Young college graduates to be trained as civilian interpreter/staff assistants for Vietnam. Demonstrated aptitude in learning a foreign language is required. Preference will be given to applicants now fluent in a Far Eastern language or French. Language aptitude test will be given. Minimum of bachelors degree is required. Applicants must be U.S. citizens between the ages of 21 and 35.

After one year of Vietnamese language training in the U.S., selected personnel act as staff assistants to U.S. A.I.D. officials in coordinating programs with Vietnam Government officials.

Applicants must be male, physically fit, and willing to serve abroad without dependents for at least 18 months. Salaries will range from $6,000; plus 25% overseas differential, housing allowance, other benefits. Assignments have A.I.D. foreign service career development possibilities.

TO APPLY

An A.I.D. recruitment team will be at the U.S. Court House, Room 1517, 312 North Spring Street, Los Angeles, the week of Dec. 6 to interview candidates. Call 688-5678 (collect if out-of-town) for an appointment.

OPPORTUNITY
SEMI-SKILLED

We are now offering an opportunity for semi-skilled men to learn a trade. Our trainees are available for shift work, as well as weekends. They are men who are willing to put in a hard day of work because of the rewards and experience they gain.

Our apprentices know that reliability and effort are recognized through increased earnings and rapid promotion. They are men who are more concerned with the future than the present. They also prefer permanent work, as opposed to being laid off every other month. If you are type of man we are looking for then come in today and talk employment possibilities with us.

This MAN IS A "Security Risk"!

Age, 29. Married. Two children. High school education. Active in lodge, church, veterans organization. Employed by large manufacturing concern. Earns $172 a week.

Sounds like an Average Joe. And he is. Too average! He's got a job. It pays fairly well. He's satisfied.

But here's the catch. With the right kind of training, this young man could be stepping into better jobs. He could be making $7-$8,000 a year. He could be cashing in on those sparetime hours he now wastes. As it stands now, he's stuck in his job. Can't seem to make any headway. He's reluctant to try. So he just hangs on.

This man is a "Security Risk" to his wife and children. His family probably will never enjoy the comforts, the prestige, the good living that could be theirs.

If hard times come, they are almost sure to be hurt. For an Average Joe can't compete with trained men when the chips are down.

A man like this would do well to start a planned program of self-improvement. In his spare time, in a field related to his interests and abilities. Right NOW!

Don't You be a "Security Risk"!

Prepare now for professional career. Opportunity unlimited. Free R.E. School & Training.

All-electric apartments from $80 per month!

Why rent anything but a Flameless All-Electric Gold Medallion Apartment when it's so easy to afford today!

The Gold Medallion Award tells you your new apartment is completely flameless—the easiest ever to care for—and fully equipped for the best of living.

Enjoy flameless electric heating—more comfort than you've ever known. Clean and quiet as sunshine too. Helps furnishing, drapes, carpets stay bright and new far longer.

Flameless electric water heating—the carefree way to have hot water instantly—without a hot, burning pilot light.

A modern all-electric kitchen—the cleanest and coolest!

Full "Housepower" wiring with all the circuits and outlets you'll ever need.

Fully insulated for maximum soundproofing, comfort and economy.

Move in now to cleaner, quieter, easier living in an all-electric apartment.

AMERICA'S LARGEST TRANSMISSION SPECIALISTS
Invite you to investigate one of the world's most profitable franchises! Compare these facts with any other franchise available:

• AAMCO has 200 franchised shops from coast to coast, and offers a national, exclusive lifetime guarantee.

• AAMCO Shops average $100,000 annual gross, with best shops grossing $250,000, making possible personal income of $30,000 to $50,000 per year. In addition, AAMCO shops are unaffected by seasonal slumps and recessions.

• AAMCO maintains a distributor school and training directors, field representatives, and a consulting division to train you thoroughly in the most advanced management and merchandising techniques, then makes sure you have all the help and advice you need for continuing success.

No automotive experience is necessary; your own ability is put to work for you. Modest, easily financeable investment of $12,500 to $23,000, depending on territory. Please furnish complete personal details. Write, wire or call Robert Morgan, Vice President

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS
Before you buy or sell that lot, investigate it's potentials. If it is zoned for apartments or not, we will make a survey without obligation to you, to determine if it is advisable for you to build or to sell. We check your lot size, zoning, vacancy factor & rent schedules in your area, we advise as to what is best suited to the neighborhood, what we think belongs on your lot, and what it costs to build. We show you how it can be financed, what your income & expenses will be and how much cash income is yours each month. If it makes 3 cents to build, we can provide 100% financing for the entire project.

QUALITY MAKES THE DIFFERENCE
A successful business must have two things: a quality product and quality salesmen.
It is an unbeatable combination where one thrives on the other and both become successful.
Harbor Chevrolet has this combination.
Since 1923, our records prove it is the successful way to sell automobiles.

Fifty years ago, a small band of elated Seal Beach residents was basking in the glow of national publicity.

Their enthusiastic prediction: 20,000 population within two years.

The national spotlight had swung onto the mile-square resort city because of the daring of Mack Sennett and a silent bathing girl movie filmed in Seal Beach.

But 1916 and 1917 sped by and the predicted growth did not materialize.

Short post-World War I depressions, the questionable reputation of some establishments in the community's amusement zone and prohibition all helped to quiet the citizens' enthusiasm during the years that followed.

A half century later, the population prediction came true.

Seal Beach again is in the spotlight—the home of important naval facilities, a vast North American Aviation complex where the Saturn second stage booster is manufactured and as an ever-growing recreational and residential community.

City Manager John Williams and Thurman Earhart, building department head, say these moves now are at hand for the expanding 10-square-mile city:

1. A 1,700-home development, by the S&S Construction Co., in the newly annexed area east of Los Alamitos Boulevard and north of the Garden Grove freeway.

2. North American Aviation's plan for a multistory engineering headquarters building on its newly acquired Hellman Ranch site south of Garden Grove Freeway and west of Bay Boulevard.

3. The Fred H. Bixby Ranch Company's plans for a private country club and golf course between the S&S Construction Co. residential development and Los Alamitos Boulevard.

4. A "several hundred thousand dollar" improvement to the Seal Beach pier, including erection by the lessee of a restaurant, boat landing and refueling station.

The S&S Construction Company plan calls for a $51 million investment, adding an estimated 6,500 persons to the city and $20 million annually to the area's income.

The firm's New College Park Unit will be on one of the last remaining large parcels of the historic Bixby Ranch, according to S&S principals Nathan Shapell, David Shapell and Max Webb. Model homes will be ready early next year, they said.

Officials of the Fred H. Bixby Ranch Company, in revealing plans for the golf course, also said a commercial complex and—perhaps later—apartment buildings are under consideration.

Estimated investment in this project: $10 million.

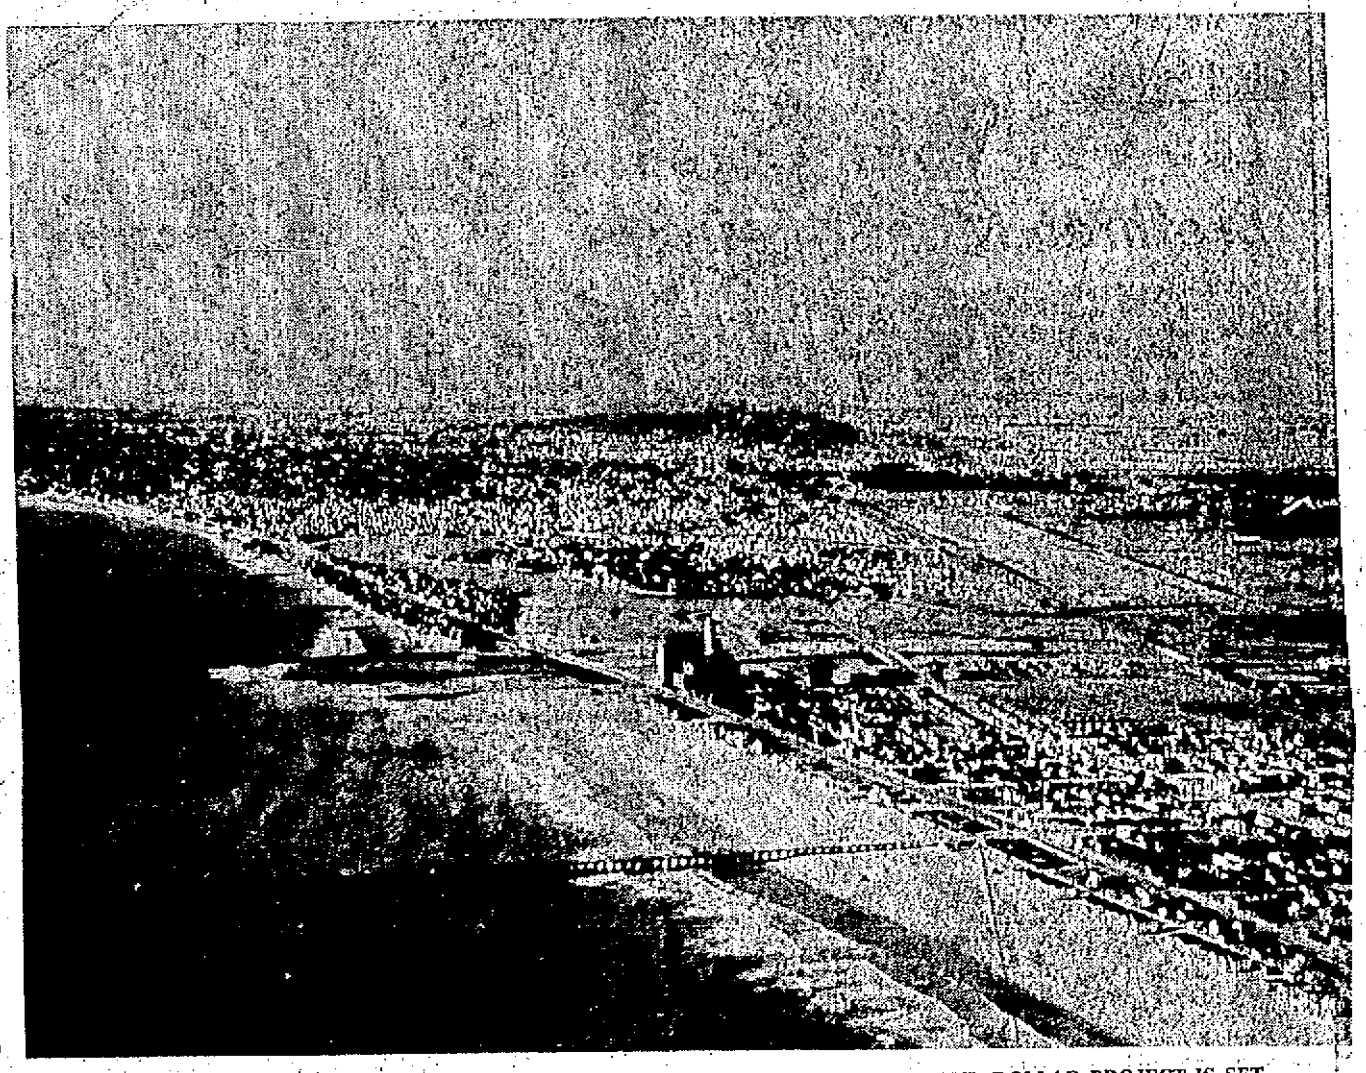

North American officials plan an attractive multistory structure on or near the site of the old Hellman ranch house to serve as a headquarters for its engineering and quality control staffs connected with the Saturn project.

Spokesmen said administrative offices also will be included.

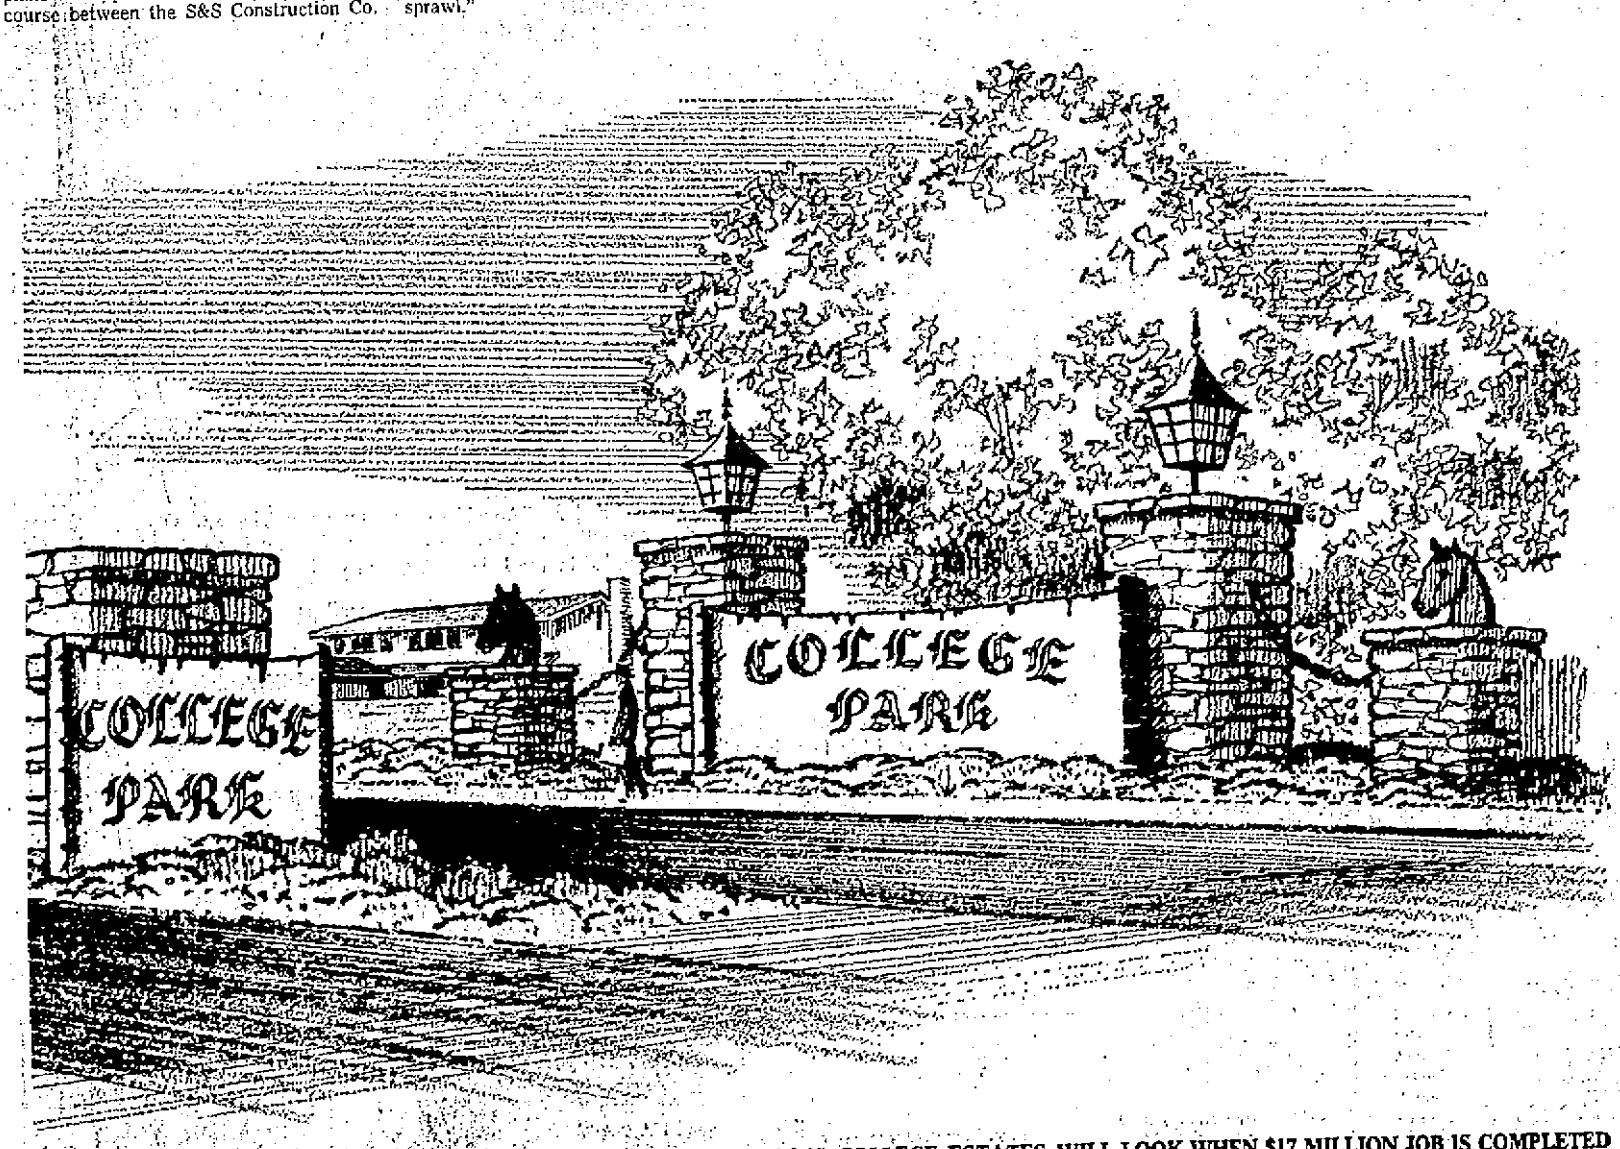

At least 2,000 workers will be transferred to the new facility immediately upon its completion with the total expected to reach 5,000 by the end of 1966.

City Manager Williams has his own Seal Beach population prediction: 58,000 by 1985.

"We must," he warns, "maintain and capitalize on our community's identity. We must maintain our unique separateness. We must not be lost in the metropolitan sprawl."

THE REV. LEROY DOTY . . . Manor Will Be Ready in October

ON PACIFIC AVENUE

Low Cost Total Care Is Brethren Manor Feature

Food, shelter and medical care—all for less than $125 per month.

These are the goals of Long Beach Brethren Manor, a $3.1 million low cost senior citizen housing development now under construction in Long Beach.

Sponsored by the First Church of the Brethren in Long Beach, the manor will consist of 297 Gold Medallion (all-electric) apartments and provide housing for 400 to 450 persons.

Studio, one-bedroom and two-bedroom apartments will range in rents from $60 to $105 per month and include utilities.

Although each apartment will feature a compact kitchen with wall oven, built-in range, refrigerator and waste disposal, tenants may elect to take their meals in a central dining facility for an additional $52 per month.

In addition, for just $10 per month, a group insurance program will be available to each Manor resident to supplement the national Medicare program and provide complete medical and hospital care.

The Rev. C. Leroy Doty, pastor of the Church of the Brethren and chairman of the board, Long Beach Brethren Manor, said the goal is to provide a facility for senior citizens of modest income.

"We started this project to provide adequate shelter, food, medical care and other services for elderly citizens or pensioners with low income. The Manor will meet these goals because it is truly a low-cost housing project sponsored by a nonprofit organization," he said.

H. G. Hanawalt, Southern California Edison Company district manager, reported that the total-electric concept of the Manor will help reduce construction and maintenance costs.

Located at 3333 Pacific Ave., the six-story, reinforced concrete building will feature glass-walled recreation lounges with color television and outdoor terraces on each floor. Additional recreation area will be located on a landscaped roof-top garden.

Other facilities will include hobby shops, a library, community dining hall, elevator service and parking for 227 cars.

Long Beach Brethren Manor, designed and engineered by Daniel, Mann, Johnson & Mendenhall, features planning throughout to meet the specific needs of the elderly.

Each apartment will have electric baseboard heating with individual thermostatic control. In addition, wall-to-wall carpeting, nonskid floors and bathtubs, and drapes.

Automatic coin-operated electric washers and dryers as well as sewing facilities will be provided in a utility room on each floor.

All apartments, unfurnished, will be available on a rental basis. The Manor is expected to be ready for occupancy by October, 1966.

Oltmans Construction Co. of Monterey Park is the general contractor of the development.

"Governor Brown's Citizens' Advisory Committee on Aging has gone on record with the statement that this project represents a major breakthrough in the field of senior citizens housing," Rev. Doty said.

Rev. Doty discussed plans for the Manor with members of his church—Willard Harris, Lowell Reed, Robert Walker, Homer Fike and Frank Howell. Fund-raising drives and private gifts and donations kept the project alive until proper financing could be obtained.

The Manor now is financed by a direct loan from the HHFA Community Facilities Administration. It represents the largest loan commitment in the southwest for a senior citizens housing project and one of the largest such commitments in the United States for a church-sponsored project.

Douglas of Canada Taps New Officers

New officers of Douglas Aircraft Company of Canada, Ltd., have been announced as Douglas Canada assumed responsibility for the productions of DC-9 components at Malton, Ont.

Donald W. Douglas Jr., chairman of Douglas of Canada and president of the Douglas Aircraft Company, Inc., of Santa Monica, said Jackson McGowen, group vice president-aircraft of the Douglas Aircraft Company, had been elected president of the Canadian subsidiary.

* * * * *

OTHER OFFICERS are W. L. Whittier, vice president-general manager; C. R. Gollihar, vice president-financial management; W. H. Jackson, vice president-administration, and A. W. Baker, vice president-operations.

Douglas and de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, Ltd., announced in October that Douglas Aircraft Company of Canada would lease and operate that portion of de Havilland's Malton plant devoted to production of components for the DC-9 transports.

Douglas of Canada will manufacture four sets of DC-9 wings and tail sections a week, amounting to more than $2 million a week in U.S. dollars. Employment will be provided for approximately 6,000 Canadians including those working for subcontractors.

* * * * *

DIRECTORS OF Douglas of Canada are Donald W. Douglas Jr., McGowen, Whittier, A. V. Leslie, Edward Curtis, M. B. Hunt, H. E. Showalter, Jack Hall and B. F. Coggan.

Twenty-three airlines have now placed a total of 370 orders and options for the DC-9, the latest in the long line of Douglas transports. Among these airlines is Air Canada, which has eighteen DC-9s on order.

The DC-9 entered commercial service last week with Delta Air Lines.

NEWEST LONG BEACH BANK . . . To Occupy New Boulevard Building

ELEVEN DIRECTORS NAMED

Bank of Long Beach, N.A., to Open Doors About March 1

Organizers of the Bank of Long Beach, N. A., last week elected 11 of 13 directors and approved the bank's Articles of Association in an organizing session attended by 150 of the bank's 496 shareholders.

George A. Hart Jr., a Long Beach attorney named chairman of the board, announced concurrently that the bank will open about March 1 in a new building at 4201 Long Beach Blvd.

* * * * *

ALSO ELECTED directors were the 10 men who helped Hart organize the bank:

Dr. William Ballhaus, president of Beckman Instruments, Inc., Fullerton; Mel Burns, president of Mel Burns Ford; Maurice Carl, owner of Carl's Furniture & Carpets; George S. Denbo, real estate developer; F. A. Hagelberg, formerly vice president and controller of Van Camp Sea Food Co., now retired; J. S. Jacobs, president of J. S. Jacobs & Co., an electrical contractor; D. L. Marlett, vice president of Great Lakes Carbon Corp., a New York-based industrial and real estate company with local offices; Jerome Moss, a real estate developer; M. A. Nishkian, president of M. A. Nishkian & Co., consulting engineering firm; and H. H. Ridder, publisher of the Independent, Press-Telegram.

* * * * *

HART SAID two additional directors will be named later, bringing the total to 13 as approved by shareholders. Also to be named later are operating officers of the bank.

Capitalized at $1.5 million as an independent national bank, the Bank of Long Beach initially will occupy the first floor's southerly 8,000 square feet in its quarters at the intersection of San Antonio Drive and Long Beach Boulevard, Hart said.

The building will be known as the Bank of Long Beach Building, he added.

Tennis Court Contract Set at $90,000

One of the laregst tennis court contracts in Orange County history was signed last week with developer George M. Holstein and Sons naming the Ben F. Smith Company of Los Angeles as court contractors for the Newport Beach Tennis Club complex.

The contract was for in excess of $90,000, with grading and land preparation to get underway immediately at the site on Eastbluff Road at Vista Del Oro in the Eastbluff area of the Irvine Ranch.

Drafty Windows Can Be Expensive

Your house may be breezier than you think. Studies show air infiltration accounts for approximately 37% of the total heat loss from a typical five-room, well-insulated bungalow.

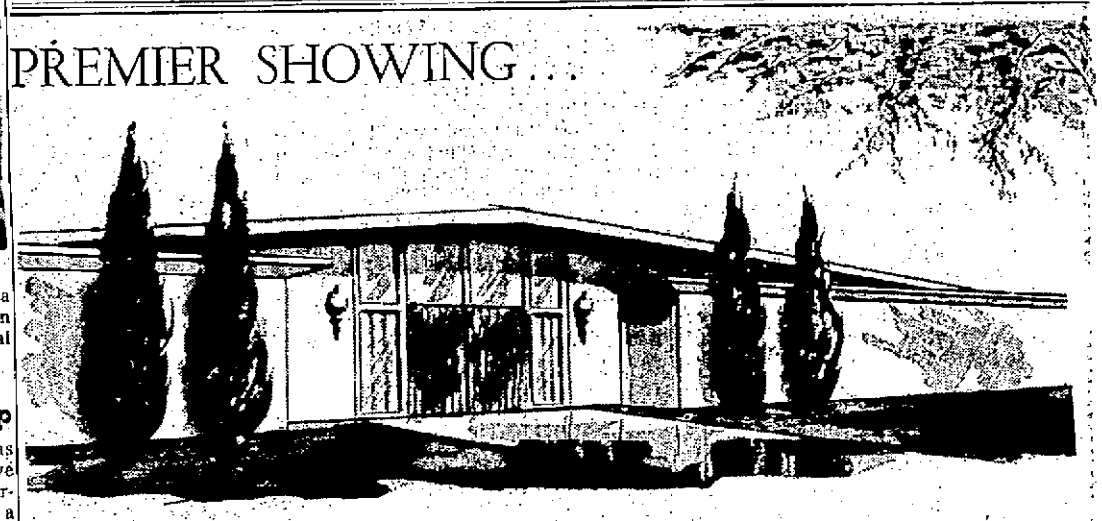

A study by the University of Minnesota's Institute of Technology found that the use of weatherstripping on windows, such as the factory-installed weatherstripping provided with stock windows of ponderosa pine, can reduce infiltration losses to 17% of the total heat loss from a house, with a corresponding saving of approximately 24% of the total fuel cost.

William R. Brooks Elected to Office

William R. Brooks of Long Beach has been elected to a one-year term as district vice president of the Society of Industrial Realtors.

Other officers elected at the society's annual meeting at Chicago included William B. West of Cleveland, president.

SHOULD YOU LIVE IN AN ADULT COMMUNITY?

If you're an active adult we think you'll be interested in our new concept in living for people without children. Huntington Bay, located just 3 minutes from the ocean in Huntington Beach offers adults a unique, rewarding way of life.

NOT A RETIREMENT COMMUNITY

Huntington Bay is not an "old folks home." Some of our residents are in their early thirties . . . most are in their forties and fifties . . . all are people who prefer adult associations and an adult atmosphere. Sales are limited to families with children 14 years of age or more.

MAKE NEW FRIENDS OR KEEP THE OLD

Huntington Bay residents are a sociable lot with most of the families active in the community's planned social and recreational program. If you're new to Orange County you'll have as many friends as an old timer before you know it.

For the established residents the built-in privacy and the private club recreation facilities are perfect for entertaining old friends or for quiet seclusion.

Regular activities range from parties at the private clubhouse to bridge, square dances, pot luck breakfasts and pool parties. At Huntington Bay you live the way you prefer.

MORE LEISURE TIME— NO MAINTENANCE CHORES

When you move to Huntington Bay you leave your lawn mower behind. All lawn care and exterior maintenance is done for you by professional maintenance crews. This means extra hours every week to do as you wish. And, when vacation time comes around you just pack up and go knowing your lawn will be cared for in your absence. For those with a green thumb there's ample opportunity for gardening within your own fenced garden patio where protected tropical plants grow in profusion. Even shopping is more convenient at Huntington Bay with many stores and shops within walking distance.

YOU GET A COMPLETE HOME

Gone are the problems so often posed when purchasing a partially equipped home. Your Huntington Bay home is complete in every way with built-in Frigidaire oven and range, Frigidaire washer and dryer, disposal and deep pile wall-to-wall carpeting. Your garden patio is completely fenced for privacy. A wide selection of 1, 2 and 3 bedroom designs, both one and two stories, enables you to choose the plan that suits your needs best.

LIVE JUST 3 MINUTES FROM THE BEACH

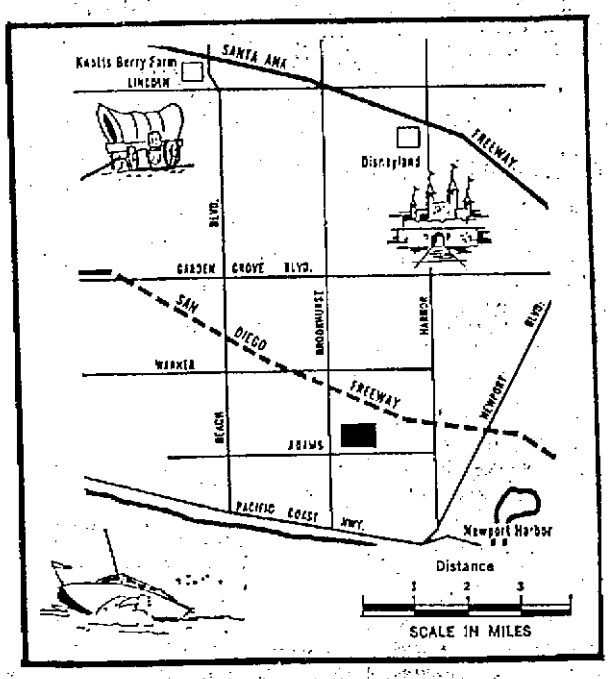

At Huntington Bay you'll enjoy the fresh, clean ocean air every day of the year. And, if you enjoy boating, fishing and other water sports, you're just a 3 minute drive from Newport Beach.

SAVE MONEY FOR THE THINGS YOU WANT MOST

After seeing the luxurious features and the complete facilities of Huntington Bay, you'll be amazed by the low cost of these beautiful homes. You not only enjoy new comfort and convenience but you save money every month through lower payments and tax advantages plus one of the best opportunities for appreciation of your investment. Payments for a spacious one bedroom home are as low as $92 a month . . . 2 bedrooms $118.00 and a three bedroom home for just $125.00 a month. The money you save can be used for those trips you always wanted, for new furnishings or even form the basis for a sound retirement fund. No wonder so many residents consider their Huntington Bay home the best investment they ever made.

DEVELOPED BY AMERICA'S NO. 1 BUILDER

Huntington Bay is a development of Kaufman and Broad, the nation's largest publicly owned producer of popular priced homes. A combination of nation-wide experience and mass buying power bring Kaufman and Broad home owners unmatched quality and value and the assurance of a sound investment.

PROFESSIONAL APPROACH

Architects Do More Than 'Draw Plans'

Many persons consider an architect as a man who "draws plans" for a home. He does, but actually this is a minor part of his job. His real purpose is to save you time, money and anguish in turning your dream home into an actual structure.

His first step in stretching each penny of your building dollar may be to analyze your family's living habits and requirements and match them to your financial resources.

Too, he will assist in choosing a building site. Professional advice in this matter has become increasingly important since suitable land is getting so scarce.

The architect also can specify every item that goes into construction, down to the shape and color of ceramic tile. The value of his skill in preparing specifications is important because anything not covered may be considered an extra by the contractor, and charged accordingly.

NOTES OF BUSINESS, ECONOMY

Ocean, Not Moon, Offering Greatest Field for Venture

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

If and when man reaches the moon what will we really gain for the billions of dollars spent?

That was a question posed by Dr. Charles F. Jones, president of Humble Oil & Refining Co., when he spoke before the National Association of Manufacturers meeting in New York.

"Man in the sea should prove much more important to this country than a man on the moon," said Dr. Jones as he unfolded a story of great economic possibilities which may be waiting discovery beneath the oceans.

"It makes little economic and social sense to spend tens of billions on space exploration and to pinch pennies insofar as oceanographic research is concerned.

* * * *

"I AM NOT advocating a reduction in our space effort, but space is essentially void—the sea teems with food and energy."

EDITOR'S NOTE— Long Beach city and harbor officials are moving into developing oceanographic and scientific possibilities and recently named Lou Jobst, I. P-T marine editor, to direct such activities.)

"We need to know more about the sea before we can expect to get the kind of return from it in all areas that we should have," continued Dr. Jones.

"However, the potential rewards, in human and business terms, are vast and, so far, industry has barely rippled the waters."

There are substantial incentives for business to enter this field, he pointed out. The oil firm president quoted the estimate of one scientist that there is one-half billion tons of phosphorite, a key component in fertilizers, from 200 to 1,000 feet off the Pacific coastline.

And, he added, there are some concentrations of manganese nodules on the bottom that may be worth up to $10 million a square mile. Sea water contains some 60 dissolved elements in abundance.

* * * *

"WE MUST have ways to harvest these crops from the ocean and the burden is on business to find them," said the doctor.

He reminded his audience the oil industry recognized the value of minerals below the ocean floor three decades ago. Currently, he said, international offshore oil fields are producing more than 4 million barrels of oil a day, about 16% of the free world's total. In addition, large deposits of sulphur have been found.

"Irresponsible industrial practices could destroy the delicate balance of life in the ocean. We must make certain that we plan and not plunder," warned Dr. Jones.

"In many cases investments in the ocean won't begin to pay off for a long while. We must minimize our aquatic risks by prediction and planning."

* * * *

SOME OF THE key challenges relating to sea exploration outlined by Humble's president included: Greater knowledge about human engineering as it applies to men in the ocean, the use of materials like concrete and plastic in the sea, underwater lighting systems, mooring techniques and remote handling devices. Studies also are necesasry in such areas as marine microbiology, underwater metallurgy, soil mechanics and waste disposal.

In the transportation area, for example, "No one has yet developed the underwater equivalent of the jeep," he said.

Offshore Exploration Conference Slated

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

The Offshore Exploration Conference, scheduled to be held in Long Beach Feb. 21-23, is shaping into a technical and scientific masterpiece, according to M. J. Richardson, OECON coordination chairman.

"We are assured that the conference will be both qualitative and quantitative one of the finest in history," asserted Richardson.

The conference, first dealing with scientific and industrial developments in the increasingly important field of offshore exploration ever held on the West Coast, will attract leaders from the scientific community, the aerospace and petroleum industries.

* * * *

CONFERENCE officials estimate the three-day affair will be attended by 50,000 visitors to see the exhibits and 2,000 industry experts to hear the papers.

"We are especially gratified with our symposia and technical papers," said Richardson.

Forty major papers — in the fields of oceanography, electronics, subsea systems, fixed and floating platforms and management — have been accepted by the technical papers committee headed by Ray Walker of the Shaffer Tool Co.

These include a study "Determination of Design, Wind, Wave and Current Conditions for Offshore Structures" by Dr. Basil W. Wilson of Science Engineering associates of San Marino, and "The Exploration for and Production of Solid Minerals from Offshore Areas" by Dr. John L. Mero, Ocean Resources Inc. of La Jolla.

* * * *

THESE AND other papers will be of special interest to foreign and domestic oil producers in their possible application to development of subsurface petroleum deposits in the North Sea, an expanding enterprise that has galvanized the world oil industry.

The electronic papers will include works on "Deep Submergence Instrumentation," "Instrumentation and Automation in Deep Ocean Engineering," "Nuclear Power Sources for Underwater Applications," "Manned Submersible Operations" and "The Impact of Deep Submergence Capabilities on Offshore Exploration."

Deep-diving submersibles and major breakthroughs in human capacity to work on the ocean bottom is of tremendous import to development of sea resources, especially mineral recovery from the continental shelves, Richardson said.

* * * *

THE PAPERS on this subject include a work by B. F. Moore of Westinghouse Electric Corp., developer of the deep-diving submersible Deep Star.

Certain to attract worldwide attention is a paper by L. J. Danforth of Northrop Nortronics of Anaheim on "The Feasibility of an Offshore Deep Submergence Underwater Oil Drilling Platform."

* * * *

RICHARDSON said the conference planners are negotiating for a variety of demonstration equipment including submersibles, diving bells and deep-diving experiments.

There will be displays in the Long Beach Arena (conference and symposia will be held simultaneously in the Lafayette Hotel) of oil tool equipment, platform models, computers, and other sophisticated electronic gear, subs and diving bells, subsea wellhead equipment, photographic equipment, seismic instrumentation and even helicopter.

"We will have live demonstrations — televised to the surface — of undersea equipment in operation and men working on the bottom," added Richardson.

Another highlight of the conference will be a special Teen-age Science Seminar in which the leading science students from more than 50 metropolitan area schools will be guests at demonstrations and lectures.

* * * *

"WE ARE AIMING at interesting the talented youth, the scientists of the next generation, in the future of ocean exploration and all of its ramifications," said Richardson.

"It is a major aim of this conference to accomplish this."

Richardson said three "truly remarkable men" will be speakers at the conference.

They will be A. C. Rubel, former chairman of the board for Union Oil Co., on Feb. 22; A. W. Rose, president of Byron Jackson Division, Borg Warner Corp., on Feb. 23, and John Moore, president of Autonetics Division, North American Aviation, Inc., on Feb. 24.

Chairman of the conference is J. S. Russell, president of Thums, Long Beach Co., developer of the 1.2 billion barrel East Wilmington Oil Field.

Thums is a combine of Texaco, Humble, Union, Mobil and Shell oil companies.

New Santa Ana Electric Company Is in Operation

SANTA ANA — Formation of Wanlass Electric Co. has been announced by Dr. S. Dean Wanlass, president. The new Orange County firm will design, manufacture and market products for the power conversion industry.

Dr. Wanlass also announced Ernest R. Breech was elected chairman of the board of directors.

Breech, a nationally known industrialist since 1929, is chairman of the board of TWA and a director of Rexall, Ford and Lehman Corp. He was formerly top executive of a number of major American firms including chairman of Ford, chairman of North American Aviation, president of Bendix Aviation and a vice president of General Motors.

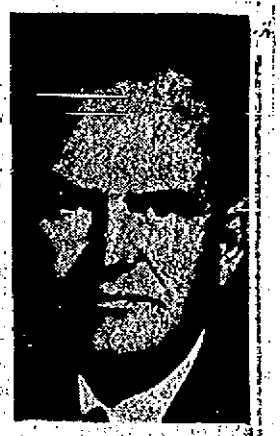

* * * *

DR. WANLASS said the company is based upon more than six years of independent research and development out of which grew a fundamental invention for the control and conversion of electrical power. The invention covers a new electromagnetic device which can electrically control A.C. power without using mechanical or solid state elements.

Wanlass Electric has already introduced several lines of voltage regulation equipment and power supplies at industry-wide trade shows. The firm will introduce several additional power conversion devices in the near future, according to Dr. Wanlass, including power inverters, D.C. converters and frequency converters.

* * * *

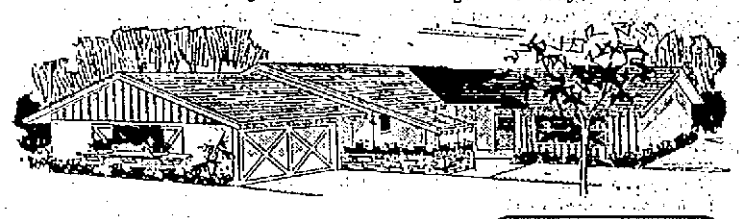

"WE ARE emphasizing power conversion and control equipment at the outset," Dr. Wanlass said, "because electrical power is of fundamental importance to all of industry. The first application of our patents will significantly improve today's electrical products, particularly from the standpoint of cost and performance. I firmly believe that this new company will contribute to tomorrow's technological breakthroughs in the power conversion field."

'Super Metal' to be Produced Near Compton

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
I. P-T National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Development of a "super metal" able to withstand ultra high temperatures has been announced by the National Aeronautics & Space Administration.

Initial production of the alloy is being undertaken by the Fansteel Metallurgical Company, 18201 S. Santa Fe Ave., near Compton.

Expected to increase the operating efficiency of rocket engines, the metal was developed under NASA contract by the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago.

NASA said the metal is an alloy of two uncommon elements, hafnium and tantalum, and is capable of resisting temperatures up to 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Production of the alloy is being speeded so that it may be used to coat rocket engine parts that are subjected to intense heat. High temperatures have caused malfunctions of rocket engine parts such as nozzles and throat inserts.

Scientists currently are studying the possibility the alloy may be used for things such as the leading edge of aerospace vehicles, where great heat is generated at high speeds in the atmosphere, and in turbine and ram jet engines.

The new alloy resists heat by forming an extremely hard scale when subjected to extremely high temperatures. This scale prevents further erosion of the metal. Virtually all other metals wear away under constant thermal pressure.

The alloy has an advantage of relative light weight in addition to its heat resistence.

The current alloy ratio is 80% hafnium and 20% tantalum, but other combinations are being investigated.

Hafnium, the rarer of the two, has been used for years for control rods in nuclear reactors. Tantalum, the more pliant, has had previous use in electrical systems.

Tantalum is mined principally in Brazil and Mozambique. Hafnium is more widely distributed, but is found in smaller quantities. The U. S. has substantial stockpiles of each.

Bellflower Realtors to Fete 2, Install Officers

Awarding of Realtor of the Year and Associate of the Year trophies will highlight the annual officer installation program of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors Wednesday night at the Edgewater Inn.

To be installed as president, succeeding Ray T. Smith, will be Robert Y. Prigmore.

Esta Rodgers takes over the vice presidency, succeeding Robert Reed, and Wayne Van Waveren replaces Grover C. Crisp as secretary-treasurer.

Smith, who was awarded the Realtor of the Year trophy in 1963 and 1964, will present the trophy to the 1965 winner and Esta Rodgers of the Burt Smith Company, 1962 and 1964 winner of the Associate Member of the Year award will make the presentation to the new winner of that trophy.

* * * *

BOTH awards are made on the basis of work in the community and on the local and state level in the field of real estate, and in the case of the Realtor of the Year work in the national association also is included for the judging.

First recipient of the Realtor of the Year award—in 1954—was Burton Smith, who on Jan. 8 will be installed as president of the California Real Etate Association at the Biltmore Hotel. Other holders of the award were Hal Goettsch, 1955; Med Cogburn, 1956; Prigmore, 1957; Vern Ligtenberg, 1958; Al Sykes, 1959; Floyd Marcusson, 1960; Wick Parker, 1961 and Thornton Ibbetson, 1962.

Previous holders of the Associate of the Year trophy, first awarded in 1957, are Linora Dutcher, Pauline Anfang, Thelma Puisys, Hattie Branham, G. C. Crisp and Wayne Van Waveren.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Food purchases by all food service establishments are estimated at $9.5 billion in 1965 by the National Restaurant Assn.

APPOINTED
Robert S. Ewing of Anaheim has been appointed installment loan officer of First Western Bank's Compton branch, Manager Walter J. Stark announced. Ewing, graduate of Long Beach State College, joined First Western last May.

SELECTED
Stanley Perry, of Wilmington, has been named a vice president of the J. L. Moyer Co. in Sherman Oaks, land developing firm. Perry will be in charge of Orange and southwestern Los Angeles Counties operations, including several condominium developments.

AWARD
William Stricklin, owner of Long Beach Maytag Home Laundry Center, has received the company's Red Carpet Service Award for service excellence, third of its kind to be presented to California dealers.

Taxpayers Face Many Changes in Next Year

New and revised income tax rules plus increased social security and self-employment taxes highlight the many 1965 federal income tax changes facing taxpayers when they start to prepare their annual tax returns, says Commerce Clearing House.

High spots of the changes, explained in the 1966 edition of CCH's "U.S. Master Tax Guide," show how this year's tax activity in Congress, the Internal Revenue Service and the courts will affect 1965 tax returns and 1966 tax planning, as follows:

Taxpayers will benefit from new lower tax rates effective this year. Individual rates now range from 14 to 70%. And while the normal corporate rate remains at 22%, the corporate surtax rate drops from 28 to 26% for 1965.

* * * *

THE self-employment tax rate, including the new medicare tax, rises to 6.15% in taxable years beginning after Dec. 31, 1965. Also, the earnings base for the self-employment tax is raised from $4,800 to $6,600, beginning at the same time.

Physicians become subject to the self-employment tax provisions also after Dec. 31, 1965.

For social security purposes, the 3⅝% tax on both employer and employee rises to 4.2% for 1966 to provide hospital insurance (medicare) coverage, and the taxable wage base goes from $4,800 to $6,600 in 1966.

* * * *

REPEAL OF many excise taxes initially levied as emergency revenue-raising measures during the Korean War, World War II or the Depression of the 1930s was provided by the Excise Tax Reduction Act of 1965.

Cash tips amounting to $20 or more per month received by an employe after 1965 in the course of employment by a single employer are considered wages subject to withholding, but the employer has to pay withholding tax only on tip income reported to him.

Lump-sum readjustment allowances paid Peace Corps volunteers upon completion of periods of service may be spread back over the period of actual service for tax purposes.

Gross income limitations under the optional method of reporting farm income for self-employment tax purposes are increased.

* * * *

THE INTEREST equalization tax — designed to stop the flow of gold out of the country — has been extended through July 31, 1967, and applies to acquisitions of foreign debt obligations maturing within one to three years.

Taxpayers who itemize deductions should examine the new 1965 state sales tax deduction guideline for each state. Sales tax laws were newly adopted in 1965 by Idaho and New York and are reflected in the guidelines. Also, increased sales tax rates are reflected in the guidelines for Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Mississippi, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Washington and Wyoming, and a new guideline based on "family size" has been adopted in Hawaii, CCH reported.

Rolling Hills Man Gets Promotion

Appointment of Raymond F. Pontious of Rolling Hills as superintendent of the industrial fastener department at Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Los Angeles plant has been announced by R. J. Tremblay, plant general manager. Pontious was promoted to succeed Leonard R. Gustin who has retired after 41 years with the corporation.

R. F. PONTIOUS

Big in Texas

Texas produces more asphalt shingles annually than all the wood shingles and shakes produced in the United States.

The asphalt shingle industry yearly uses a half-million tons of Texas petroleum products and pays $13 million in wages in the Lone Star State.

KING OF THE ROAD

High enough to serve as a garage roof for the auto parked under it, this 100-ton trailer, built to haul steel, is believed to be the largest single-axle unit ever constructed. The trailer, built by Freighter Industries of Australia, gets much of its height from the huge Goodyear tires, largest ever imported by Australia. Each weighs 1,557 pounds and stand eight feet high.

Families Pool Land for Better Housing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seventy-five families in the suburban Washington community of Scotland, Md., are pooling their land for a better life.

Like many another once-rural settlement near a big city, Scotland has lately become a suburban slum. The houses are run down and the residents, Negroes, haven't enough money to fix them up.

Most of Scotland's families have lived there for generations. Many would prefer to keep the community together instead of selling out bit by bit to suburban developers who are pressing in from every side.

* * * *

SO THEY'RE pooling their land in a non-profit organization, Scotland Community Development Inc. With the help of mortgages backed by the federal government, the corporation plans to build 75 units of new housing at Scotland.

Most of the houses will be semi-detached. A few will be detached and some will be town houses. Rental units will be financed with mortgages carrying below-market interest rates so that the monthly rent will be within the means of the families. Purchase units will have 40-year mortgages at market rates of interest.

Each family will get credit for its land and for whatever labor it puts in on the new housing. Many of the men in the community work in the construction trades.

Thus a family with half an acre assessed at $5,000 which contributes $1,000 worth of labor will need a $6,000 mortgage to finance a $12,000 house.

SCHEDULED IN MARCH

Long Beach Home-O-Rama Theme on Modern Living

"Showcase for Modern Living" has been selected as theme for the 1966 Long Beach Home-O-Rama scheduled March 2-6 in the Long Beach Arena under sponsorship of the Long Beach Builders Exchange.

Don Anderson is general chairman of the home show and Lou Anfinson, chairman of the 1965 show, will serve as co-chairman.

The chairman heads up a six-man advisory and planning committee including Anfinson, Noel M. Guertin, Paul Grefe, Marvin L. Davis and Palmer W. Power.

George Colouris, who has produced the show since it was started in 1960, said the theme of the home show comes from a new format adopted this year which will emphasize the showcasing of products and services of the construction industry.

Colouris said sectionalizing of exhibits will provide a modern merchandising concept for the home show.

Executive offices for the Home-O-Rama have been opened in Room 2-1 of the Arena.

POLL SHOWS

Apartment Renters Fussy About Size and Location; Dislike Noise

Size, location, and cleanliness, in that order, are what renters look for most when they go apartment hunting.

Secondary — but still important — considerations include storage space, on-site laundry facilities, and the condition of furnishings in furnished apartments.

Far down the list, at least for the bulk of renters, come such items as swimming pools, air conditioning, or steam rooms.

Source for these findings on tenant preferences in apartments is a new study completed with assistance from the Real Estate Education, Research and Recovery Fund by Associate Professor William H. Hippaka of the San Diego State College Bureau of Business and Economic Research. The findings should be applicable to tenants in most other metroplitan centers.

The report is based on 298 field interviews with renters, managers, and owners of San Diego apartment buildings.

* * * *

ON THE whole, tenants reported a high degree of satisfaction with their accommodations. Nearly nine out of 10 answered "yes" when asked, "Are you satisfied with your apartment?"

As to their reasons for preferring their apartment to a house, most answered that an apartment required less effort to maintain. "This definitely indicates," Hippaka observes, "that people living in apartments expect someone else (managers, owners) to do most of the work connected with maintaining and operating the property."

Respondents furnished a variety of answers when asked what they liked most about the location of their apartment.

* * * *

ALMOST one-third (there were 141 women in the sample) were pleased that the apartment was "close to shopping." Another one-fourth cited "closeness to work" and still another one-fourth listed "quiet neighborhood."

Hippaka considers tenant preferences on the question of location to be crucial to efficient property management. "No property manager can be successful in the maximum sense of the word," writes the San Diego researcher, "without knowing what tenants consider to be the basis of apartment location desirability."

Not all, however, was perfect where location was concerned. Almost one out of eight tenants in the survey disliked something about the area where his building was situated.

* * * *

OF ALL THE complaints voiced, the most common was "noisy." Next came "amount of traffic," an objection which might have some relation to the noise factor.

Most often, the disturbances came from outside the building, but in about one-third of the cases, it originated in adjacent apartments. Owners should take steps to eliminate such problems, Hippaka counsels, for "the noise factor is a substantial contributor to vacancies in apartment properties."

To Provide Plane Fuel

Two major contracts for aviation fuel to the Defense Department through facilities of Long Beach-Los Angeles, have been awarded by Defense Fuel Supply Center.

Richfield Oil Corp., through its facilities in the Port of Long Beach, will supply 54,600,000 gallons of aviation gasoline at a cost of $8,068,319.

Union Oil Co., through its port facilities in Wilmington, will provide 3,262,000 gallons of aviation gasoline at a cost of $1,452,621.

Tiny Device Operates Garage Doors by Radio

A palm-sized high-frequency radio transmitter which will operate garage doors by remote control has been introduced by the Alliance Manufacturing Co., Inc., Alliance, Ohio, subsidiary of Consolidated Electronics Industries, Inc.

Designated the "Alliance Genie Model AT-10," the new transistorized transmitter offers a greater transmission range — increased from 50 to 125 feet — and provides 21 channels instead of nine formerly available. It can be tuned to the complete RF frequency.

Housed in a case styled in tough, high-impact plastic, the tiny (3¾" x 2¾" x 1¼") transmitter weighs only nine ounces. It is powered by a single, low-cost 22½-volt battery to provide long service. The cast snaps open easily for battery access or service.

A new mounting kit includes a chromium clip for attaching the AT-10 to a sun-visor, and a black plastic holder for below-dash mounting.

Both the Alliance Genie AT-10 transmitter and its companion receiver, Model AC-10, are certified to meet FCC rules.

HOMES PLANNED FOR FUTURE

Two Stories, Three Garages

A LANDMARK HOME OFFERED IN CITY OF LA PALMA

R. C. Morrison, sales manager, says one of the features really appreciated at the East Lakewood Landmark homesite is the spacious three-car garages.

Preview homeseekers are invited to visit the model area in the city of La Palma now. Located at the intersection of Moody Street and La Palma Avenue, this newest Landmark Homes community will eventually comprise some 360 homes.

In the first unit there will be 144 homes. All homes will be two-story and offer over 2,222 sq. ft. Morrison adds that features will include: underground utilities, carpeting, fencing, landscaping, sprinklers, optional air conditioning, walk-in closets and the usual long list of Landmark Homes exclusives.

* * * * *

A GENERAL plan for developing La Palma as the community of the "Ideal American City" has been approved by city councilmen. The development of residential, commercial and industrial land is expected by 1975.

The master plan calls for 490 acres of low-density-residential housing, 88 acres in "town house" construction and 69 acres in high density apartments.

Other zone plans include commercial, 55 acres; civic center, 8; industrial, 166; schools, 112; churches, 18; special uses, 10; parks and green belts, 46; and flood control channels, 8.

* * * * *

FEATURES include: underground utilities, magnificent entries, spacious family rooms, deluxe built-ins, fireplaces, preparation for air conditioning, custom entry flooring, cultured pullmans, separate service areas, step-down living and family rooms, massive master bedroom suites and convenient dressing alcoves.

Prices at the homesite begin at just $27,875 with an excellent 5% down plan offered. Terms are flexible.

Don't Rush Visit, Says Home Firm

There is so much to see in new designs and features at El Dorado Park Estates that, if you're in a hurry, please postpone your visit, urges Dorene Smith, project sales manager for the builders, S & S Construction Co.

"This is not a psychological sales gimmick, either," Mrs. Smith avows. A possible lifetime investment deserves observation and contemplation. We invite detailed analysis—and comparisons."

El Dorado Park Estates, winner of numerous awards for excellence of construction, features three, four and five-bedroom homes in one-story, two-story and triple-level floor plans, priced from $33,100. Excellent conventional financing is available, with 10% down.

* * * * *

CURRENT HOMES are 1966 models, boasting advanced designs, new interior decoration, revamped landscaping and completely new interior furnishings.

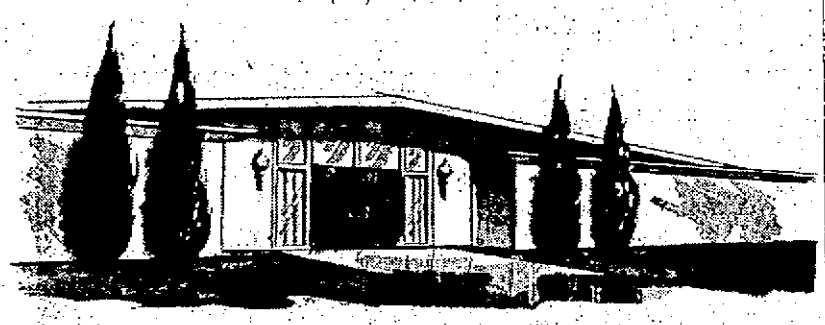

The homes are exclusively designed for ideal furniture arrangement—with the largest possible living room and bedroom wall expanses.

Greater efficiency in the kitchen and grander elegance in the formal dining room are included in the new designs.

Indicative of quality and value, Mrs. Smith says, is the use of lath and plaster construction, concrete driveways and walks, custom electrical fixtures, unique fireplaces, acoustical ceilings and many other items.

The luxuriously furnished models can be reached via San Diego Freeway to Studebaker off-ramp, north to Spring Street and right to "Avenue of Model Homes" at El Dorado Park Estates.

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP)—Burglars who carried off an empty safe from Franklin Oil Co. apparently don't believe in signs. Police said a notice on the safe read, "This safe is not locked — please use the handle."

Tougher Rayon Cord in Tires of Future

American automobiles will be able to receive an extra premium of safety, riding comfort and durability as a result of a new rayon tire cord development. "Dynacor" is the name given to the tough new Tyrex rayon tire cord which represents a major breakthrough in rayon tire cord development, it was announced by George I. Rounds, executive vice president, Tyrex Inc., New York, N.Y., the association of rayon tire cord producers.

The development of "Dynacor" is the latest move on the part of the rayon producers to provide the average driver with an even greater margin of performance and safety. Dynacor rayon tire cord has 50% more durability and 300% more adhesion qualities. Rayon tire cord has been used in the original equipment automobile tires the past eight years.

The new product represents another major advance in cellulosic chemistry affecting tire fabric materials since 1957 when Tyrex rayon became the first textile specifically developed for use in tires. Piles of rayon cord fabric are vulcanized into rubber compounds to give backbone and strength to automobile and truck tires.

It is estimated that over 200 million pounds of rayon tire cord with a market value in excess of $100,000,000 is used in automobile and truck tires each year.

Paper Use Up

NEENAH, Wis. (UPI—The country's consumption of household paper products is growing faster in dollar volume than its totals of disposable personal income and personal spending, reports Kimberly-Clark Corp.

Oil Leases Now Cover Vast Areas

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) reports a vast area of land in the United States is leased for oil and gas production or exploration.

About one-fifth of the land area of the nation now is under lease for future drilling or production or already is producing petroleum, the IPAA said. Of the 32 states that produce oil or gas, more than 25% of 13 of them is covered by leases for production or exploration.

Kitchen Plans Made Easier

Homeowners planning new kitchens can now get a quick and easy look at how the job will look when it's finished.

Building Supply News reports that a new template or work guide has been developed to enable the rapid sketching of L or U-shaped kitchen plans, with appliance and cabinets drawn in perspective. The device enables building supply dealers with home remodeling services to sketch the modernized kitchen right in the customer's house.

You'Hep' to Hip Roof?

Do you take the roof over your head for granted? Most people do. They know surprisingly little about roofing terminology.

Terms like "rafters" and "shingles" are relatively easy. For those who are uncertain, rafters are the timbers that form the frame of a roof. Shingles are a finished roof covering, such as asphalt shingles, which are laid in strips over the roofing boards.

But how many persons know what "cricket," "hip" and "rake" mean? Here is a glossary of common terms every roof-watcher ought to know:

Coverage—The number of layers of protective roof sufacing.

Cricket—A saddle-shaped board fastened behind a chimney where it intersects a sloping roof. The cricket diverts water, snow and ice.

Eaves—The lower part of a roof that projects beyond the face of the wall.

Flashing—Strips of metal or other material used in making watertight joints on the roof, such as around chimneys and vent pipes.

Hip—A sloping edge formed where two sides of a roof meet. A roof with this feature is called a hip roof.

Rake—The inclined edge of a roof.

Ridge—The uppermost horizontal line of a roof, where two inclines meet.

Roofers—Tongued-and-grooved boards that act as a roof covering over the rafters and as a base for the exterior roofing material.

Valley—The angle or channel where two slopes in a roof meet.

New Job for Exile of Cuba

MIAMI (AP)—Miami "hot tamale" man Nestor Lao, who before his exile was a prominent businessman in Havana, sells cold tamales. Frozen ones.

"In Cuba frozen tamales were unknown," said Lao, who owned a travel agency, a motion picture theater and the Actualidades Bar, well known to American tourists. All were seized by the Fidel Castro regime.

The exile, a former director of Havana's aristocratic Vedado Tennis Club and treasurer of the Friends of the Sea, an organization of boat lovers, is one of thousands who have radically changed their mode of living in exile.

* * * *

"I WORK from 7 in the morning until 8 at night," he said. "I make 500 to 600 tamales daily."

They are a modern version, placed in a laminated bag rather than wrapped in corn leaves.

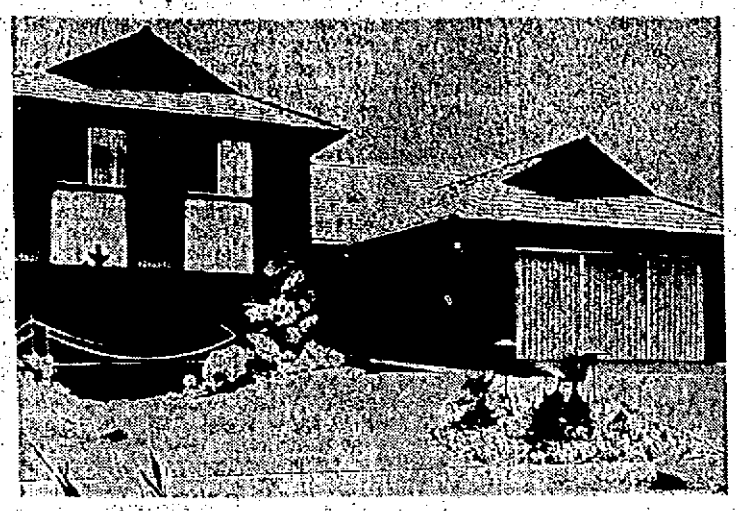

Lao mused: "What wouldn't they give in Cuba if they could eat my tamales. The ingredients are lacking there, nearly every food item is scarce. There is no shortening, no meat, few onions."

Would he and his wife, both came here in 1961, return to Cuba if the Castro government falls? "Yes, but I consider that an unlikely situation."

Time-Saving Tip

NEW YORK (UPI)—Remember it takes several months for a new home to settle into its foundation. So, don't waste time and effort repairing cracks resulting from the settling of the new house until the house settling has ended.

Tri-Level Home Appeals

AWARD-WINNING DIAMOND HEAD HOME IN BELLFLOWER

"The house-hunting executive is finding Bellflower Eastridge a real treat," comments John Joyce, sales director. "Because of the wide range of plans and exteriors, one more exciting than the other, some buyers are having difficulty making a choice."

Others, however, know just what they want. Having seen, for instance, the award-winning Diamond Head in other prestige developments by Master Builder Ray Watt, many prospective homeowners have sold themselves on it.

The Diamond Head is California's most honored home, having been selected by a panel of housewives as one of the five most outstanding home values in California.

THE POPULAR tri-level plan features four bedrooms, three baths and a rumpus room complete with wet bar. As do all the homes in Bellflower Eastridge, the Diamond Head features wall-to-wall carpeting, balanced power kitchens with O'Keefe & Merritt gas range, oven and automatic dishwasher and In-Sink-Erator food waste disposer. Utilities at Bellflower Eastridge are all underground, giving homeowners an unimpaired view of the surrounding countryside.

Since only 50 homes comprise the community, with 20 exterior elevations to choose from, each home has a "custom" look and an individual charm. Prices start at $34,000 and six furnished models can be seen on Hacienda Street at Grand Avenue in Bellflower.

Westminster Board to Hear Water Expert

Charles Trigg, new assistant water superintendent for Westminster, will talk to members of the Westminster Board of Realtors at their 8 a.m. breakfast Wednesday at King's Table Restaurant, 6471 Westminster Ave.

Trigg will include in his talk personal observations of conditions in Brazil.

Pays Dividend

Directors of U.S. Borax & Chemical Corp., meeting in Los Angeles, declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share on the 4,228,145 common shares outstanding. The dividend is payable Dec. 15.

Orangewood Homes to Have Own Park

In the newly opened development of Orangewood in Cypress, Don Wilson Builders have set aside an area in excess of two acres for a community park. Construction is moving rapidly, and the park will be ready when the first occupant moves into Orangewood.

This provides the residents of Orangewood with their own neighborhood park, which is walled for privacy from the flow of traffic. In the park, grass and trees have been planted, with a sprinkler system installed.

* * * *

HOMES IN THE development include the first split and tri-level models in the area. Accommodating the growing family, they also include the first step-down rumpus rooms, a spacious gathering place that is ideal for informal entertaining, or family parties. The wide range of styles and designs allows the buyer to choose just what he wants—whether it's traditional colonial or famous rambling California ranch. Featuring three, four and five bedrooms, each home has two custom baths. Living rooms are accented with custom designed fireplaces, and in every home sliding glass doors lead lead to patio areas.

Another of the quality additions is the efficiently planned kitchen with built-in O'Keefe and Merrit gas range and oven, and Waste King disposer.

Quality wall-to-wall carpeting and decorator wallpapers add yet another note of charm. Landscaping will include front lawns, with shrubbery. All utilities are underground.

One and two-story homes are priced from $24,950 with $995 down. Furnished models are now open and may be seen by driving on the Garden Grove Freeway to Knott Avenue, then north to Orangewood.

Builder Don Wilson is providing a two-acre park for use of residents in his newest development, Orangewood, in Cypress.

Second Four Seasons Unit of Homes for Fountain Valley

FOUR SEASONS HOME MODEL
Second unit of Four Seasons Homes has been started in Fountain Valley. Here is one model of the big homes now offered for sale.

Dike & Colegrove, Inc., has started construction on the second unit of their Four Seasons Homes, on Magnolia & Klis Aves., Fountain Valley.

The homes, 50 of them under construction are a duplication of tract No. 1 with the exception of a new four-bedroom one-story house. The rest have a few minor changes in the floor plans which was done after a complete survey of the purchasers in tract No. 1 and the opinion of the viewing general public as to their likes and dislikes.

The Four Seasons Homes are again offering 17 elevations and five floor plans of one and two-story homes, featuring contemporary classic, traditional Spanish, contemporanean, California Monterey, provincial ranch and colonial, on lots of 7,200 square feet.

* * * *

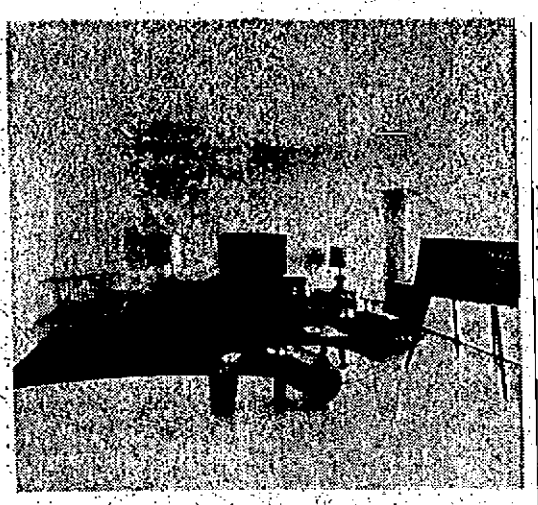

THESE HOMES have three and four bedrooms, two and three baths, living rooms with fireplaces, family rooms, dining rooms, breakfast nooks and the ever popular all electric look through kitchens, two and 3-car garages.

* * * *

ONE OF THE NEW features and wherever possible, a boat door has been installed in the back of the garage so that a boat can be towed through the garage and stored in the back yard. Each yard has an area for a swimming pool. The homes range in size up to 2,300 square feet of living space.

Models for the new tract are being held open in the No. 1 tract and are open daily.

Dike and Colegrove, Inc. offers broad financing plans of FHA—VA and conventional. The new homes are selling from $27,750 to $33,450.

PLAY ROOM AT PREMIER
Premier Homes "Premium Fun Area," a 17x22-foot finished and tiled room with plumbing roughed in for third bath or wet bar, is featured in fast-selling Huntington Beach development.

Buyers Attracted to Premier Homes

Premier Homes "4 Ways Better" formula and the surge of homebuyer interest in Huntington Beach has made possible the sale of over 160 homes the past year. So says Frank McFarland, sales agent, who reports that Premier is still able to offer immediate move-in on some models.

The extension of the San Diego Freeway last month to Hiway 39, has resulted in expanded homebuyer traffic at Premier, according to the realtor.

* * * *

PREMIER'S "4 Ways Better" formula includes better kitchens, better extras, better construction and better pricing and financing. Premier kitchens are all-electric, Bronze Medallion award units, featuring double oven, range, dishwasher, disposer, bench-mounted mixer-blender and foil and paper dispenser.

Prices start at $24,950. An "immediate move-in special" is offered on a four-bedroom, two-bath plan, with playroom, for $26,500.

Financing arrangements include 25 and 30 year loans at 5¾% and 6%.

Premier's model home display is on Terry Street, adjoining the south side of Fantastic Fair. Buyers may take San Diego Freeway to Hiwy. 39, then drive south of 39 to Terry Street and turn left to the models.

Hunsaker Trade-In Program Is Popular

More than $2.5 million worth of homes have been traded in less than one year under the Hunsaker Insured Trades (HIT) program, Duane J. (Sam) Summey, director of Hunsaker Realty, reports.

"Under HIT, Hunsaker Realty — a division of the building-development firm of S. V. Hunsaker & Sons Inc.— guarantees the resale of the homeowner's current residence," said Summey.

HIT applies to any of Hunsaker's single-family homes at Chatsworth, Covina, Duarte, El Toro, Fountain Valley, Lakewood, Newhall, and West Covina, or at the condominiums, located at La Puente, Stanton and Ventura.

* * * *

MANY HOMEBUYERS find a new home and want to move in as soon as possible, but are perplexed about selling their old home, he added. "With the formation of HIT, the firm assumes full responsibility for reselling the former home."

For example this is how the program works:

A couple selects a Hunsaker-designed home, and tells the salesman they want to be part of HIT. A staff of trained appraisers will evaluate the homebuyer's present property. After checking comparable values in the area, the property will be listed for the consideration of other buyers. If there are no buyers at the end of 90 days, the home will be purchased by Hunsaker Realty.

* * * *

OFFICES OF Hunsaker Realty are at 15855 E. Edna Place, Irwindale, and 1345 Anaheim Blvd., Anaheim.

Founded in 1932, the Hunsaker organization, is a subsidiary of publicly-owned Occidental Petroleum Corp. (NYSE), and has built and sold more than 12,000 detached single-family homes and 3,000 multi-units in more than a dozen California and Nevada cities.

Will Discuss Two Subjects

Two concurrent subject area sessions will highlight the Dec. 8 meeting of the Long Beach Chapter of the National Association of Accountants.

Discussion leaders will be Robert J. White Jr., Southern California Minerals Co. on "Accountants Role in Insurance Evaluation"; Robert J. William, Robertshaw Controls Co. on "Profit Measurement by the Product Lines." The sessions are designed to give members an opportunity to exchange experiences in specific areas of accounting.

The meeting will be held at the Elks Club, with dinner scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Fernhill Location Attracting Buyers

Fernhill's advantageous location, combined with the unique design features of the homes themselves have contributed substantially to the Huntington Beach planned development's success. In making this report, sales agent Gerry Lance of Pacific Shores Realty expressed the opinion that Huntington Beach is entering a new period of even greater population influx and general development.

Lance said that Fernhill's location on Warner Avenue just east of Bolsa Chica Road has attracted many buyers. The planned development adjoins Meadowlark Golf and Country Club. Huntington Harbour and Bolsa Chica State Park are one mile west of Fernhill. The new Douglas Space and Missiles Systems plant is 1¾ miles north of Fernhill. Residents have their choice of several nearby shopping centers.

* * * *

THE REALTOR said that Fernhill's popularity with buyers was due also to the planned development concept —there is no exterior maintenance performed by residents — and the unusual design of the homes within that concept.

Three floor plans are available, ranging from 1450 to 1600 square feet. Two and three-bedroom plans, with two baths are offered.

Two of the three floor plans are individual homes, with no common wall other than in the garage. One of the plans is a completely detached single home, with no common walls.

Price range is from $22,400 to $25,500, with 5% down and 30-year loans at 6¼%.

Visitors take the Bolsa Chica Road turnoff south from San Diego Freway to Warner Avenue and turn left to Fernhill.

Resources Up

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The California Banking Department reports the resources of California's state and national banks totaled $12.3 billion as the 1964-65 fiscal year drew to a close. This was 6% more than the previous year.

Big Building for Granny Goose Foods

Granny Goose Foods Inc., is building a large facility in Santa Fe Springs to be used for production and distribution of products in Southern California.

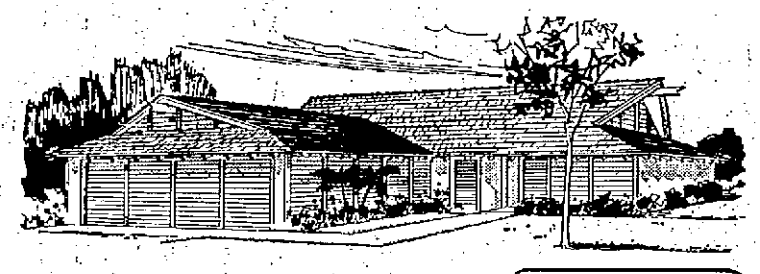

The firm, headquartered in Oakland, hopes to have the new plant completed next March. It will contain more than 100,000 square feet, and will be at 14044 Freeway Drive.

When the plant is completed Granny Goose will move from its present facilities at 6237 Maywood Ave., Huntington Park.

Granny Goose manufactures snack foods.

Home for Gracious Entertaining

INDOOR OR OUTDOOR APPEAL
Buyers of this Encanto model at Fairway Park in Cypress find the home is designed for both gracious formality in entertaining or for informal entertainment in the private patio.

Most buyers of the Encanto model at Fairway Park in Cypress, cite the home's possibilities for indoor-outdoor entertainment, reports W. Dean Hanson, vice president of marketing and sales for builder-developer Robert H. Grant & Co.

"The entire design was created for families who want a gracious formality, and also like to entertain," said Hanson. "Entertaining can be important, especially during the holiday season."

In the Encanto, a formal entry way leads to a step-down living room which is adjacent to a raised formal dining room with wrought iron railing.

* * * *

THREE SEPARATE areas at the rear of the home each have a sliding glass door, and the front entry is reached through an enclosed atrium planting area.

Designed by architect Earl G. Kaltenbach, AIA, the Encanto is one of five floor plans available in 18 exterior stylings.

One and two-story homes feature three to five bedrooms, up to three baths and formal family rooms, and are priced from $26,500 to VA, FHA or conventional terms.

Custom features include crystal chandeliers, wood-burning masonry fireplaces, cedar-floored wardrobes, Del Piso tile foyers, floor-to-ceiling mirrors and forced air heating.

Homes also have oak floors on raised concrete pillar foundations, a hallmark of the Grant organization.

Fairway Park is located across Cerritos Avenue from the Los Alamitos Golf Course, and is 30 minutes from downtown Los Angeles and 10 minutes from the heart of Orange County.

BUILT-IN RAINFALL
Ready for real rainfall, a model points to built-in rain at Westmont Homes in Fountain Valley. Landscaping and sprinklers are included in current units. Prices start at $25,600.

Westmont Gives Fast Occupancy

With sales now well into unit 23, some homes are now available for immediate occupancy at George M. Holstein and Sons' Westmont community in Fountain Valley the pioneer building firm reported.

Both three and four-bedroom homes with the big over-the-garage Bonus Room are complete in unit 22 and can be occupied in time for the Christmas holidays, the developers explained.

Westmont prices start at $25,600 and include, along with the big bonus room, landscaping, sprinklers and block wall. FHA, veteran, cold war terms as well as conventional financing are available at the community.

Westmont is about five miles from Huntington Beach State beach just east of Hwy. 39 on Warner Ave.

Casa La Palma Homes Appeal to Young, Growing Families

ATTRACTIVE INTERIOR
This view across the living and dining area of a Casa La Palma home shows how the kitchen adjoins the patio for outdoor-indoor living theme.

Young and growing families find the homes in Casa La Palma highly attractive because of the living space offered and the location close to schools for all ages, says Ray Patscheck, sales manager for the development in La Palma.

"Casa La Palma is virtually surrounded by schools. An elementary, junior high and high school border the project. Students can reach their classrooms in just a matter of minutes," Patscheck said.

Spacious three and four-bedroom homes provide ample room for growing families, he added. A two-story, four-bedroom model contains more than 2,280 square feet of living area, while single-story homes also are extremely large. All houses have big closets and lots of storage area.

* * * *

PRICES RANGE from $24,950 to $29,850, Patscheck reported, with several types of financing, including VA, FHA or conventional available on 30-year contracts.

Large fireplaces are found in the living rooms of some models, while others have fireplaces in the family room. Open-beam ceilings are another feature.

Built-in Waste King-Universal gas ranges and ovens, vent hoods, dishwashers, disposers, hand-trained hardwood cabinets and ceramic tile counter tops are integral parts of all "Balanced Power" kitchens.

Casa La Palma is a joint project of two homebuilding firms, Frank H. Ayres and Son and Warmington Construction Co. The two companies have nearly 80 years of building experience.

To reach Casa La Palma, take the Garden Grove Freeway to Valley View, proceed north on Valley View to La Palma, go left on La Palma to the models.

21,342 Miles of Pipelines Laid in Year

Pipeline construction, a booming industry for the last 20 years, shows no letting up, according to the yearly survey made by Pipeline Engineer international publication based in Dallas, Tex.

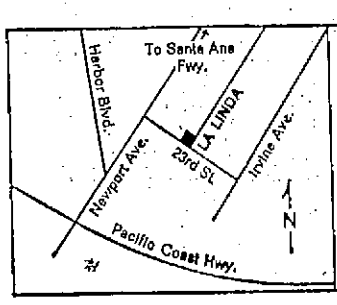

Statistical data show that 21,342 miles of pipelines were built throughout the world (excluding Russia) during the 12-month period prior to Oct. 1.

Planned for construction during the coming year are 24,306 miles of pipeline. Some of these proposals may not be built for various reasons—inability to obtain permission from the Federal Power Commission; overlapping projects which eventually require fewer lines being constructed, etc.

Wall Street Chatter

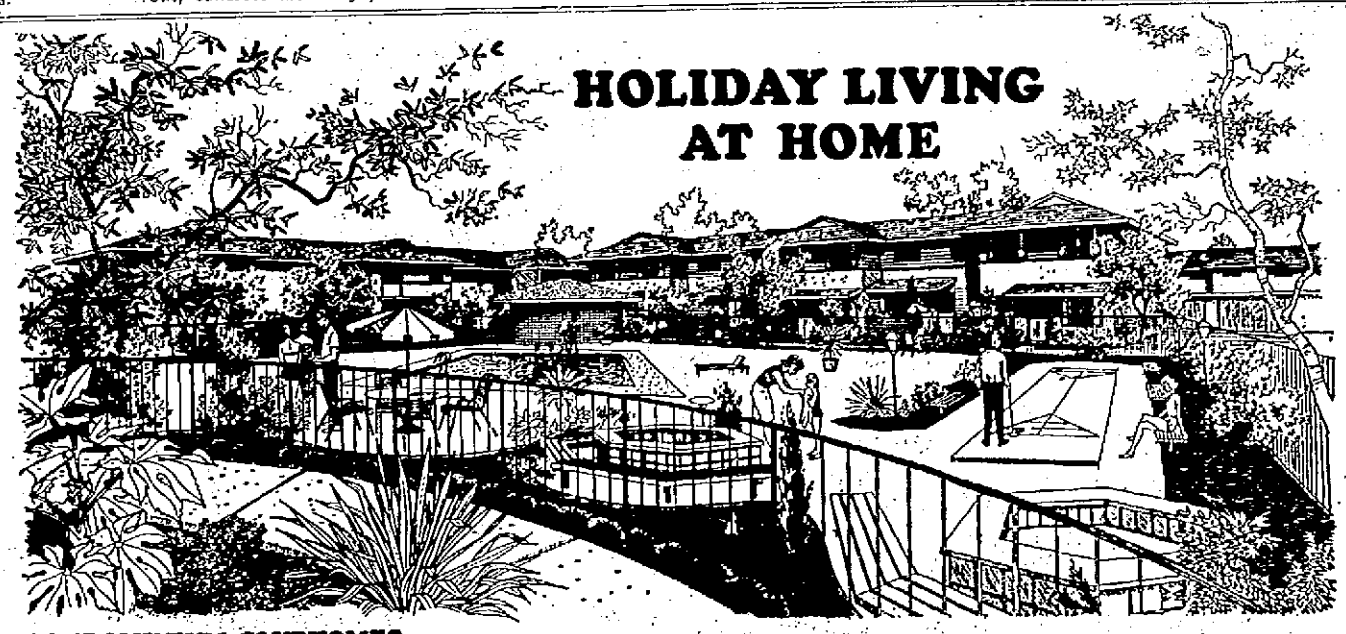

NEW YORK — Analyst James Dines advises clients, "trade if you are willing to accept high risks, but observe your stops closely so that you don't get caught."

Dines advises traders to stay out of the market for the moment if moves of 10 points in either direction on trivial news makes them nervous.

Leslie M. Pollack of Reynolds & Co. says that when consideration is given to the strong economic picture and the long primary uptrend, it seems the best course at this time is to stay on the positive side of the market.

Bache & Co. says it believes the strong economic underpinnings point to higher prices and, in its opinion, the recent reaction in industrials may be over and the year-end rally ready to get underway.

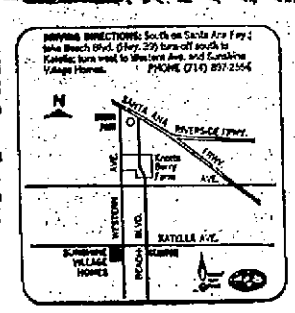

Tessel, Paturick & Ostrau Inc. says now is the time to arrange trading and investment portfolios to participate in what may be an exciting period of market history.

Spacious Pools, Lawns for Surfside Residents

RECREATIONAL FACILITIES PLENTIFUL

"Instant grass," more than 227,000 square feet of it, welcomes visitors to Surfside, flourishing townhouse community by the sea, in the Huntington Beach-Newport Beach area.

The term, as used by Ron Foell, vice president of Security Fore Corp., builders, refers to the special type of Turf Green Bermuda Grass sod used in the fast-selling community.

This natural carpeting provides lush lawns and green areas for immediate use by Surfside residents. They do not have to wait for seeding to sprout or be trampled.

QUICK AND EFFICIENT sodding is one of the well-planned reasons why more than 300 homes have been purchased at Surfside during this year. The new homeowners have moved in during the last four months.

There are some select-site homes still available in this first unit of Surfside whose location is just 1,500 feet from the Pacific.

In addition to complete landscaping, the modern community includes carpeting and drapes for each home. Exteriors, of which there are 12 different stylings, are in traditional Cape Cod and Colonial designs.

RECREATIONAL FACILITIES present a gamut of relaxation or athletic activity. Residents enjoy the pleasures afforded by a spacious clubhouse, cabana club, two large swimming pools, badminton, volleyball and basketball courts, plus fully equipped playgrounds for the children.

Each home has an attached two-car garage with room for workshop and extra storage space.

Five floor plans present from one to four bedrooms, and the dwellings are available for as low as 5% down.

Price range is from $14,950 with monthly payments starting at $116.50, including principal, interest, taxes, insurance and maintenance.

Five furnished model homes are open daily from 10 a. m. to sundown at 8176 Atlanta Ave., just north of the Coast Highway in Huntington Beach.

Christmas Trees Big Business

That Christmas tree you will buy this year, along with 34 million other American families, has created a gigantic industry.

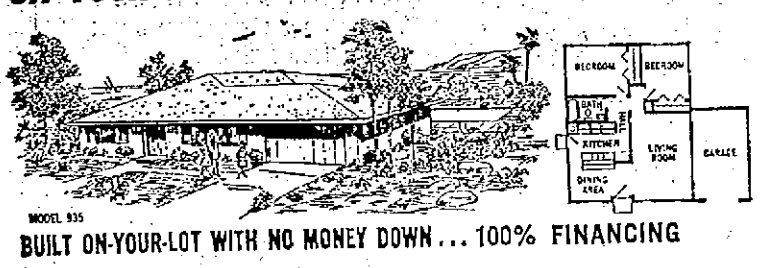

Until a decade ago, about half the trees purchased in the United States came from Canadian forests. Now the nation supplies the majority of its own trees each year, thanks to efforts of the U.S. Forest Service plus a few far-sighted state forestry departments.

Most of the trees this year will come from supervised "tree farms" in designated areas in almost all states. Even in the so-called desert states of the Southwest, at least 1 million trees will be cut commercially for use in nearby metropolitan areas.

* * * *

WHITE balsam fir will maintain the number one spot this year as the top choice of American tree buyers and cutters. Commercial tree companies say the balsam fir is tougher, holds its needles longer and can take more abuse in shipping.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, DEC. 5, 1965, SECTION W

LONG BEACH SKYLINE: BUILDINGS, BLUE WITH BRIGHT ACCENT, THRUST THROUGH DARK FOREGROUND.

NEW ART EXPRESSION

Essence of color, form

By ELISE EMERY

To see a completely new art form is rare and exciting.

Such a stimulating experience awaits visitors to "Impressions Through the Color Camera" show which opens today at Long Beach Museum of Art.

With commercially available materials, Roger Coar has devised what he calls a "variable optical system" that creates works of astonishing beauty—technically photographs, perhaps, but art that man has not seen before.

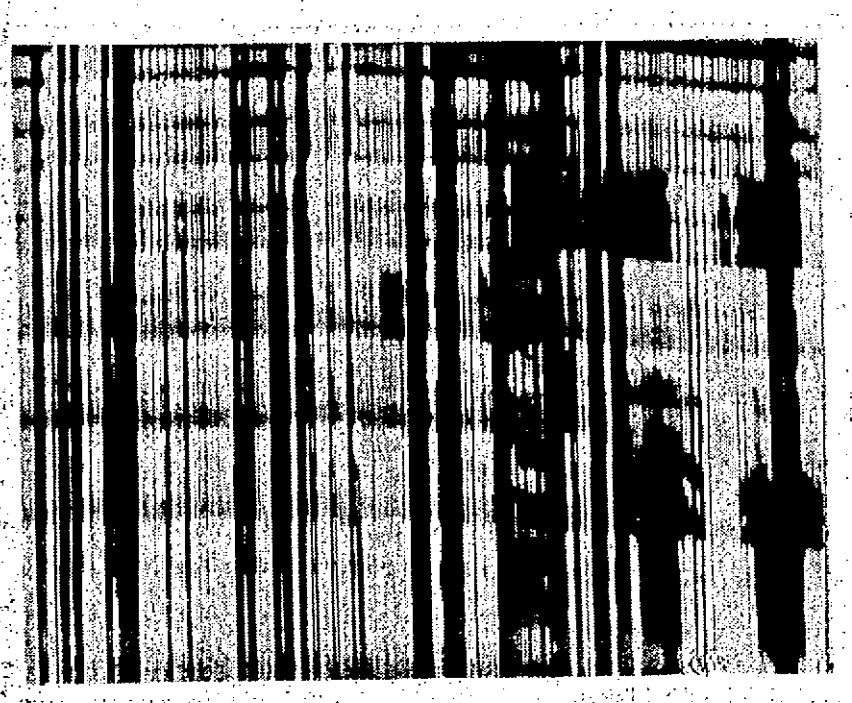

There is nothing new about color photography, but there has never been color photography like this. In colors ranging from brilliant oranges, blues, greens, reds to sombet browns and shady grays—all the colors of the spectrum—Coar has done much what the Impressionists did on canvas—imparted new directions to the tradition of representing objects and captured a fleeting impression, as though the subject were being seen for the first time.

There is a sense of mystery in the Long Beach skyline, dynamic excitement in the brilliant geometric lines of piercing color that reveal a high rise construction on Ocean Boulevard, a feeling of the essential loneliness of the individual in the picture of a solitary figure walking in the park—though it is dominated by blues, greens and flashes of bright yellow. A shoeshine scene in Liberation Plaza in Guadalajara is strangely moving with figures—forms only—and curving trees in blue.

COAR'S works are not the sharply delineated pictures of conventional photography—they transform the ordinary into the extraordinary with what he describes as a "system of variable distortion." He calls the system anamorphic, which Webster defines as "characterized by progressive complexity or changing to a form of greater complexity—producing or having different magnification of the image in each of two perpendicular meridians—used of an optical device or the image formed by one."

Coar, chief photographer for the Independent, Press-Telegram, began using this technique

PLAZA IN GUADALAJARA: SHOESHINE BOY AND CUSTOMER IN HAUNTING, TIMELESS APPEAL

CHRISTMAS TREAT

From Sandlarks for you

Tired of your tired old Christmas decorations? No time to create your own?

Sandlarks to the rescue with their 13th annual Christmas Fantasy. Fantasy is a display and sale of holiday decorations just right for home or office, all donated by local business firms, florists, individuals and clubs. Trophies and ribbons are presented winning arrangements. Free to the public, show opens at Elk's Club Tuesday at 8 p.m.; continues from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday; and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday. Everything is for sale and bargains are fantastic with proceeds all allocated to the Children's Home Society of California.

BEAMING their pleasure as they learn number of entries promised for Fantasy are Mmes. Francis Pard, Jack London. They're confident this year's show will be best yet.

TIME FOR laughter, too, during busy planning session as Mmes. Charles London, show chairman, Duke Stoddard break up over another's quip.

PICTURES of last year's fantasy are reviewed by Mrs. Dan Farnham (left), Mrs. Howard Jones. Entries in contest (all for sale) will be judged for originality, artistry, best expression of Christmas theme.

NOW, TIME is of the essence for Sandlarks with annual Christmas Fantasy set to open Tuesday at Elk's Club. Mmes. San Schaefer, Don Nutter help finalize myriad details.

WILD WAVES SAY

Yule race on--parties take lead

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Society Editor

ONE OF THE best things that will happen to a large chunk of December is that "Scrub" and Caye Elliott will be here from New York, where they moved in the fall of 1964.

They're due here Dec. 10 before going to San Francisco (he goes 14th; she on 16th) on business, after which both will return Dec. 18 for the holidays. They'll visit her mother, Mrs. Adah Suter, 272 Termino Ave., sister and brother-in-law, Gwen and Dick Martin, their daughter and son-in-law, Nancy and Gary Carter. Their son, Ens. Terry Elliott, will have have holiday leave from Navy duty in Hawaii—so this should be one of the better yuletides.

Lots of parties being planned for the popular ex-residents including a cocktail affair Sol and Cleone Deeble will have; and cocktails, dinner plus bridge to be hosted by Elva and Dick Lawson for the old crowd of regular shufflers, etc., etc., through a merry, swirly stay.

DECEMBER arrived with lovely drifts of white right here in Long Beach. The drifts were in the form of exquisite floral arrangements when Dorothy (Mrs. Dan) Dunlap entertained at a winter white themed tea in her home to introduce her daughter-in-law Pauline (young Dan's bride) to friends from throughout the Southland — Palm Springs to Beverly Hills, San Diego to Long Beach.

Snowy mounds of azaleas filled the hall while in the other rooms white spider crysanthemums and gardenias were used in profusion. It was as big a party as it was beautiful—377 invitations were issued! Pauline wore white as did those assisting—Verna Collins, Lillian Maggart, "B" Hancock, Doris Wood, Pauline Simons, Helen Jones, Mildred Wing, Helen Hamman, Artis Stevenson, Gennelle Neveau and Ethel Severson.

TODAY IS A-Day, meaning Arrival Date, of Capt. Jim Clinton, USA, wife Toy, and their daughters, Carie, Lynne, 6½, Tina, 5, and Laurie, 3. Jim and Toy will move into a home in Rossmoor, sight unseen before. They left it up to his mother, Marge and husband, Phil Hattery, to buy it for them.

The Clintons, who have been Army stationed various places for past four years, most recently have been at Ft. Benning, Ga., where he was head of instructor pilot's school. Jim's stay will be brief. He leaves Dec. 15 back to Benning and thence to restricted overseas duty as a pilot with the 1st Cavalry Airmobile Division.

That veiled expression, limited overseas duty, leaves little to the imagination at this time. There's no doubt where he's headed.

THE HOLIDAY season is now here officially. It must be, considering the Christmas parties which are popping up all over.

Harold and Katie Parks will have a Noel inspired cocktail buffet in their spacious home on Country Club Drive next Friday for a pot-pourri of friends from Virginia Country Club, Tuna Club. They plan to bring indoor comfort to the outdoors by erecting a big tent over the patio.

The division of party space will offer one more advantage: the Virginia golfers and TC fishermen can find separate retreats to spin tales of big ones caught, long ones hooked.

FILLED TO overflowing with beautifully garbed women Friday was Petroleum Club when Marian Groshong entertained at a brightly Christmasy, gaily chattery luncheon and bridge.

A few in merry throng of about 60 bidden were Florence McBride, Eleanor Carlson, Lee Hunt, Gladys Furie, Florence Magill, Kay Inman, Mildred Dorsey, Flo Newton, Carol Leggett.

"WE'VE HAD some wonderful experiences, but oh, it's great to be home," said LaVerne Huey. She and husband Arthur, a geologist, just returned from Africa where Art's work took them last spring. They lived in Carthage, Tunisia, in a delightful villa overlooking the Bay of Tunis.

Their daughter, Charlsie, flew over to join them in Carthage after which they toured Europe extensively before flight back here.

La Verne couldn't say enough in praise of the people in the American colony in Carthage who represent U.S. there. "I didn't meet a single American I couldn't be proud of—they're just great."

Carthage is a sightseer's heaven, especially for those who dote on ancient ruins. Just don't go there in the summer, La Verne said. It's so hot that most restaurants and shops just close up. You learn to eat the native food—or else. They did.

Court Marion party planned

Court Marion, 1669, Catholic Daughters of America, will have its annual Christmas party Wednesday, 8 p.m., in W.O.W. Hall, 11 W. Plymouth St.

Ann Blyth is speaker for college series

Actress Ann Blyth McNulty will speak about career and marriage problems with Mount St. Mary's College students Thursday, 1:15 p.m. in the campus Lecture Hall, 12001 Chalon Road, Brentwood.

The lecture, "It's No Easy Task," is third in the "Women in Contemporary Society" series sponsored by the school.

JUST WRAP ME IN MINK, says Alexis Cordona, pretty Wilma Hastings' model. Doing her Christmas prompting early, she tells Santa she prefers this three-quarter length Tourmaline.

'All I want for Christmas is...'

Staff photos by TOM SHAW

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
Director, Women's News

Dear Santa: please make mine mink!

But, if there aren't enough of the little animals to go around, any old thing will do—like a six-foot coffee table . . . with gold leaf top, of course.

Or, if that isn't convenient, just wrap up a leopard-covered chair, a bedroom suite or one of those duplex refrigerators (the kind that turns out ice cubes automatically).

Funny, that transition from mink to refrigerators.

But my physchiatrist tells me it's perfectly normal. It's a trend, he says. He showed me a survey to prove it.

True, women still like to slink in mink. And more do than ever before.

But according to this gift market study, there's been a swing in feminine desires from personal luxuries to furniture, appliances and other household accessories.

In the survey (by Chicago Printed String Co.), 32% of the women interviewed preferred something for the house, while 10% interviewed wanted clothing.

AND WHAT do women give other members of the family?

Last year, hobby gifts were the favored presents for husbands.

It's all part of the trend to buy for and enjoy leisure, say the researchers.

An amazing 80% of those surveyed said they knew exactly how much they plan to spend for each person on their list—the averages were $27.70 for husbands, $27.30 for children, $9.80 for other relatives and $6.70 for friends.

And Santa, that's what I want to talk to you about. Do you have any figures showing what hubbies are spending?

More than wives, I hope. After all, how much mink could you buy for $27.70? A button, maybe?

L.B. women on 'Othello' committee

Mrs. James Kresl and Mrs. George Johnson of Long Beach are among Southland women on a committee which will present a pre-release world premiere of "Othello" on Dec. 15 at Pacific's Pantages Theater, Hollywood.

Starring Sir Laurence Olivier, the movie premier will benefit the Los Angeles chapter of Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

The premiere has been set as a major event in a limited Academy Award qualifying engagement prior to national release in the spring.

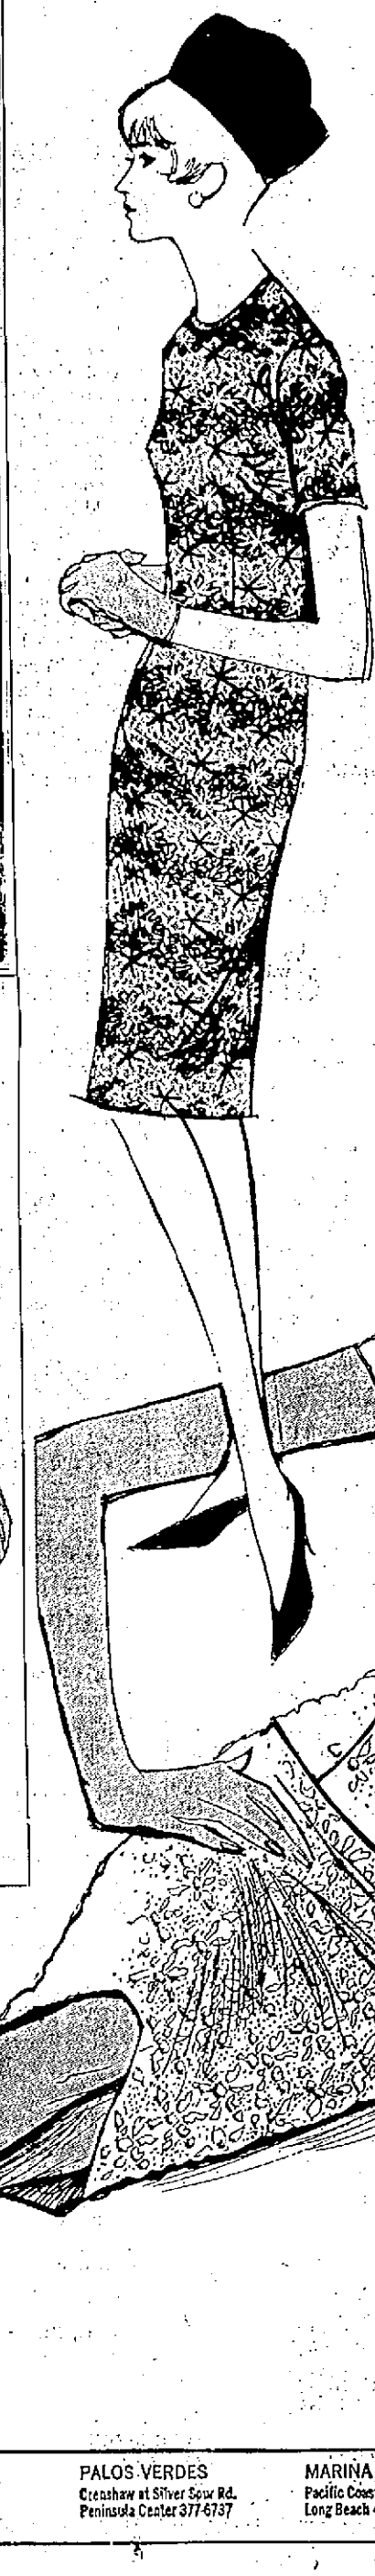

Tickets at $10 and $15 may be purchased from Mmes Kresl or Johnson or from the MDA office, 945 So. Western Ave., Los Angeles.

Petro Wives show 'santas' what they want for Christmas

Staff photos by TOM SHAW

PRETTY CLEVER, those Petroleum Wives! They entertained hubbies . . . wined, dined and treated them to yule music (by Civic Light Opera Chorus). Then came the REAL show: a fashion extravaganza of at-home and going-out-on-the-town clothes that "would make just wonderful Christmas presents!" Commentator and emcee were svelte Wilma Hastings and suave Marvin Cloyd (above, he in tux, from Raymond's, like they'd like hubby to wear). Wilma Hastings' models (like lovely Pam Finley, left) swished down ramp in finery from Parisienne and Hill Furs. Pam's hostess gown, by Virginia Wallace, is pure silk interwoven with 24-carat gold. And like one wife pointed out: "It only costs $186.95!"

Jaunty host for teenager holiday party

Snowman of snowy latex foam rubber provides lively theme for teen-age party. All that is needed: one-fourth inch thick latex foam rubber cut into two larger and smaller connected circles to form head and body. Hat is cut from red blotting paper with eyes, mouth, bow tie cut from black paper and pasted on rubber. Entire snowman is attached to wall with double-faced masking tape which leaves no mark when removed. Placemat of foam rubber encircled with holly leaves holds punch bowl. Bright green table covering is in gay contrast to red and white candy striped wallpaper, napkins. Another color note: punch mugs and plates of bright blue.

Goldenwed Van Tuyls honored at family party

Mr. and Mrs. Ardo Van Tuyl, Bellflower, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at an open house in the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Wanda and Paul Groskopf, Van Nuys.

The Van Tuyls were married Nov. 28, 1915, in Nobby, Mo. He is a retired rig builder.

The open house, attended by more than 50 friends and relatives, was preceded by a family dinner.

Dinner guests included the Groskopfs and the couple's son and wife, the Bob Van Tuyl, Paul V. Groskopf, Lee and Lynn Groskopf, and great-granddaughter Jocelyn.

Gurley-McGrath engagement announced; wedding set April 2

Mr. and Mrs. Jack G. Gurley, Downey, have announced engagement of their daughter, Diane Lee, to William A. McGrath, son of the Donald M. McGraths of Palos Verdes Estates.

Miss Gurley and her fiance attend Long Beach State College, where she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha and he is a graduate student and member of Sigma Pi fraternity.

The wedding will take place April 2.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

He's not ready for altar!

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Danny and I were planning to get married as soon as he paid off some of his bills.

But, darn it all, he hardly gets one bill paid when he makes another. And all of them are for his precious car! He doesn't need half the things he buys for that car and I told him it was beautiful as it is, but he won't listen.

Even when we are alone, instead of telling me the things a girl likes to hear (including marriage), all he can talk about is his CAR.

Molly, can you help me before I lose out to that pile of iron on wheels? SECOND CHOICE

DEAR SECOND CHOICE:

My dear, from all appearances, you have already lost out to that pile of iron.

If you tell him "it's either that car or me," you might get him to the altar but he really isn't ready for the responsibilities of marriage. He's still a little boy playing with toys.

As long as he'd rather spend his time and money on his car, you might as well forget the wedding bells. M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Years ago, I was an alcoholic. My life was miserable and left a great deal to be desired. My wife (bless her!) stuck with me until I came to my senses and stopped drinking, with the help of A.A.

I guess I'm getting my punishment now. I have two grown children (two boys) who are married, have children and are following the same path I did years ago.

Sam's wife left him last week, taking their two children and moving in with a friend. Bill's wife is a nervous wreck, trying to reason with him and trying to keep their home together. I know what they are going through and I'm heartsick.

I have talked with the boys but it's like pouring water on a duck's back (I knew it would be). They won't quit until they've reached a point where they realize they MUST quit, be willing to accept help like I did.

Is this drinking habit something the boys inherit? Or is it a result of my life before I "took the cure"? Am I to blame for my boys' misery? I pity my sons' wives and my poor grandchildren, but what can I do? If there is anything, just anything I can do, I will do it. EX-ALCOHOLIC

DEAR EX-ALCOHOLIC:

You're putting questions to me I can't answer. From what I have seen in various families, drinking habits are not inherited. I've seen children of alcoholic parents who wouldn't touch a drop of the stuff—afraid maybe, I don't know.

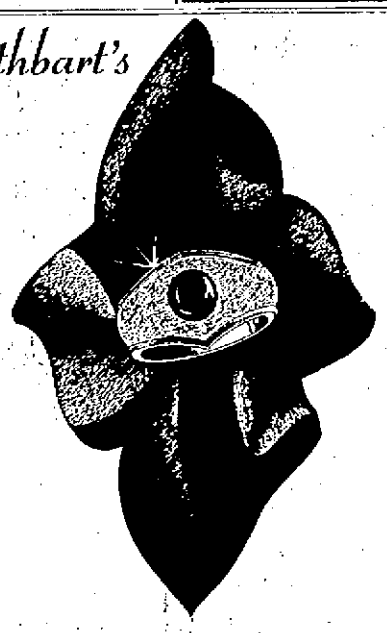

I do have one suggestion for your sons' wives if they would care to use it. Tell them to go to Alnon. Alnon is a group of people (working in conjunction with A.A.) made up of wives and husbands of alcoholics. They don't attempt to cure the alcoholic but rather help their spouses live with the problem. The wives could lose nothing by talking with this group and it may help them.

About all you can do is stand by with what help and comfort you can give to your grandchildren and their mothers. Maybe some of our readers have better suggestions.—M.M.

AT HOME ON THE RANCHO . . . PLENTY OF ROOM TO RAMBLE . . . Kelly Lynch, 3, rides a wild tricycle in front of parents' comfortable rancho tract home

With the city pushing at its borders where do the tracts go from here? Today young couples with small pocketbooks and growing families move into row-on-row housing. Tomorrow there may be no more room for such developments. Then, what will be the trend in family housing?

HOW LONG BEACH LIVES

Tracts attract young homeowners

By MARY NETH

Sixth in a series

The Harold Lynches, 7214 Metz St., live in a type of community that lately has been maligned by everyone from comedians and song writers to city planners and sociologists.

They live in a tract.

And they love it.

They wouldn't trade their small house on its street, shaded by tall sycamore trees, for all the high-rise in the U.S.

To them, suburban living (in the Long Beach bordering Lakewood) is a happy, healthy way of life—the only way for young couples with children.

They scoff at the stories of psyches damaged by tract conformity. They snear at those who spread tales of suburban frustration, frantic socializing, lost purpose.

They laugh at the idea that everyone in a tract is on the same track—that the way of life homogenizes personalities.

"We moved out here three and a half years ago," says Hal, director of campus planning at Long Beach State College.

"We did a lot of looking before we settled on this choice. We were pleased with the price—all the features."

THE FEATURES that attracted the young couple? They liked the rancho styling as executed by architect Cliff May, the wise use of lot space, the quiet neighborhood itself.

"May has a knack with floor plans," explains Hal. "This is a small house (less than 1,200 square feet) but it has a big house feeling and plenty of privacy."

The three-bedroom home is designed with beamed ceilings, lots of glass, a small backyard and two side patios.

"By eliminating the traditional, all but useless, front lawn, we have more space for private outdoor living," points out Lynch.

"We both enjoy working on a house—so problems of maintenance and landscaping aren't chores for us."

And according to Mrs. Lynch, whose days are primarily taken up with care of the little Lynches (ages 4, 3 and 2), the quiet residential block has offered lasting friendships.

FROM 1940 to 1960 more people became homeowners than in all the preceding 150 years of our national history. Today, in fact, more people own their own homes than rent—and they spend, on an average, a smaller percentage of income doing it, than ever before.

"There's a new philosophy about buying," says Lynch. "Today, you don't put a down payment on a home with the idea of paying it off in a few years. You look at the transaction as an investment."

And, as he sees it, buying in California is the best of investments. "Of course, you have to have faith in the national economy—but, no matter what might happen, I can see no way that one can lose out here. Too many people are pouring in. The State can't do anything but grow.

THE LYNCHES plotted their course well before they went house hunting. They decided the best buy would be the "worst of the bunch" in the best of environments.

And that's what they happily settled for.

"We liked the looks of the tree-lined, one-block-long street—we liked the area. So we snapped up this house—which was in extremely rundown condition."

The Lynches have revamped the exterior and interior, have knocked out part of the garage for an extra dining, office area, and now are remodeling the kitchen.

Their investment already has paid off in rising resale value.

BUT, AS MUCH as the Lynches like their tract way-of-life, this type of suburban planning may well have passed its peak.

And there are many community planners who see its demise as a boom to our growing society.

The rancho tract the Lynches live in, built about nine years ago, shies away from many of the most despised features of row-on-row housing.

The absence of front lawns, the use of side patios gives the area less the look of monotony which so many planners find objectionable.

But some of these experts, including famed architectural critic Peter Blake, still would growl over what they term the idiocy of checkerboard planning.

As they see it, and probably rightly so, tracts spread people thin right when the population is getting thicker.

It's estimated that within 20 years the present suburban population of 50 million will double.

If this proves true, there just won't be room for every family to live fenced in on a little square of land.

THE NEW IDEA in community planning? Blake, former managing editor of Architectural Forum and author of "God's Own Junkyard," believes it may well be the cluster approach. Here, homes would be arranged together in bunches instead of lined up like boxcars on a siding.

The result: private front and backyards would be replaced by individual patios and community park areas; fewer streets would be needed and money would be saved on installation of sewers, water mains, gas lines, etc.—and the tax dollars that go with them.

But this type of planning isn't just around the corner. So far, according to Blake, it's been discouraged by government building restrictions, pressures from land speculators (who are cashing in on the suburban sprawl) and by developers who find their standardized package sells—so why change.

Today, many young couples on a budget have little choice but to buy in a tract—but tomorrow there may be no room left for such a decision.

Winter Skin Care

Here is a simple beauty hint that will bring life and a peaches-and-cream radiance to a winter dull skin. Wring out a face cloth in warm water, press it gently on and off your face until it begins to cool. This will stimulate the circulation, bringing the healthy blood cells to the surface to give a glow of beauty to the skin. Now to hold the good of this warm complexion beautifying stimulant smooth on a little Olay oil. For day-long care, always smooth in a film of Olay before making up.

Long Beach home awaits newlyweds

Westminster Community Presbyterian Church was setting for the marriage of Barbara Jeanne Reynolds and Richard Knight Brown Friday evening.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald William Earle, 12171 Ballantine Drive, Los Alamitos, wore a brocade wedding gown with basque waist and flowing chapel train.

JoAnn Earle was maid of honor and Pamela Folsom and Lyn Beresford were bridesmaids.

CORPORATE WIFE SAYS:

Don't be too smart, too sexy

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business News Writer

If you want to help your husband get ahead, you'd better not be too sexy, too beautiful or too smart. If you succeed, though, you could end up with an ulcer.

That is the word from Mrs. J. Robert Fluor of Pasadena, Calif., wife of a business executive and beauteous mother of two sons, aged 18 and 20. She's so attractive you would think she did not take her own advice.

Her husband of 21 years is chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM). He also is president of Fluor Co. Ltd. of Los Angeles, a firm with 6,000 employes that does a $100 million to $200 million a year business building oil, chemical and petrochemical plants around the world.

"We have the perfect husband-wife relationship," said Fluor. "I get the work, and she gets the ulcer."

Less than three months after he was elected last year to a one-year term as president of the NAM, Mrs. Fluor came down with an ulcer.

"I take things quite seriously," she said. "But that ulcer—it wasn't all NAM. It was part Fluor."

She is quite serious about her role as a corporate wife.

"You should be a good listener and a good conversationalist," she said in an interview. "That's one of the biggest things for a good wife."

AT ALL ODDS, you must not attract too much attention or any criticism.

"Any criticism of the boss's wife would be transferred to his company," she said.

"I like to be able to be myself, but I must dress and act in keeping with my husband's position and not overdo."

As for her husband's business, Mrs. Fluor said she knew little about it.

"He's a firm believer in leaving business at the office," she said. "When someone asks me why the stock went up or down, I don't know and I ask. But he always says he doesn't know, either.

EXECUTIVE WIFE, MRS. J. ROBERT FLUOR
. . . looks like she doesn't take her own advice

"I give him an opinion on personnel problems, whether he asks or not."

When your husband gets involved in something, said Mrs. Fluor, you just set aside part of your time, however long it is.

"You try to stick to your normal routine, but don't do the extras. You don't play golf," she sighed. "You postpone decorating the house."

You do start trying to add a personal touch to the business, whatever it is.

For Mrs. Fluor, that has meant things like going over the menus and decorations for quarterly NAM meetings for 200 persons and the annual meeting in New York this week for 1,500.

"I like a personal feeling," she said.

Coar's camera explores new medium

in April, 1964, to show the mechanistic aspect of our culture.

* * * *

HE EXPLAINS, "As the straight line seldom occurs in nature (this mark of civilization is readily visible from the air — in roads, canals, section lines, etc.) it seemed a logical approach to devise a means of emphasizing straight lines. One might, for example, make use of astigmatism to emphasize line in a given plane.

"In the beginning, I was concerned with vertical exaggeration along with removal of 'photographic' detail which tends to impede instant impression by a viewer. Looking back at some previous successes in black and white, I can analyze them in this same respect—they are of form and tone and detail, while it is there, is not a prominent influence to the eye. Working in a color medium, the essence becomes color and form, to the exclusion or underplaying of discrete detail.

* * * *

"IT IS NECESSARY, of course, that I be able to control both form and color; otherwise, I would be at the mercy of the camera, much as any other camera user. The resulting optical system was thus designed to permit those controls; it is variable to the degree demonstrated and is, as well, infinitely variable back to 'normal.'

"Traveling a year ago to Mexico for the first time seemed a perfect opportunity to test the camera against my tourist mind. That is to say there was a feeling that there was something pervasive about Mexico, coupled with fleeting impressions gained as we hurtled through the countryside at maximum speed limit.

"The Mexico series gave so much the 'sense' of Mexico as I had experienced it, that I was compelled to explore a general spectrum of subject matter."

* * * *

THE 29 PICTURES in the museum show range in size from 16 by 20 inches to 40 by 60 inches. All were shot with a 35 mm. camera and processed by Pace Colorprints in Los Angeles on regular sheets of color paper. Mounted on mat board, they are lacquered to protect them from color changes from ultra-violet rays and from moisture.

Coar's work is part of the "f/3: Coar, Heinecken, Rink" exhibit which will hang through Dec. 26.

Robert Heinecken, assistant professor of art at UCLA, has a distinguished record in photography and has been awarded a research grant in creative film-making.

Larry Rink, who also is a painter, is exhibiting his poetic interpretations of natural phenomena.

* * * *

FRIENDS of the Museum will host an opening reception today from 2 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend the informal gathering and to talk with the participating artists.

Coar sums up his feeling for photography thus:

"It is to me basically a means of expression. There is a particular challenge in remaining effective amid the visual bombardment in our lives today. We are constantly assaulted by an ever-growing avalanche of visual material and as the volume increases, indiscriminate taste cannot help but increase.

"The problem is basic and twofold—any expression to be effective must first gain attention. Once that requisite is met it is owed both to its exponent and to the audience that the work be meaningful or, as the phrase goes, 'have something to say.'

"There is no question in my mind about the attention getting quality of these pictures and, although basically explorations in a new medium, there are several which do have something to say as well."

Family dinner for newlyweds

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Rice of Westminster will host a family dinner party in their home next Sunday in honor of her son, Richard Philippi, and his bride, nee Carole Gohr. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Gohr, formerly of Long Beach, now of Swampscott, Mass. The newlyweds were married at Swampscott.

The bride attended Millikan High and her husband attended Westminster High. They will reside at 4655 Bellflower Blvd.

Mary Elaine Frampton engaged; will wed Cal Poly grad next July

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Frampton of Long Beach have announced engagement of their daughter, Mary Elaine, to James B. Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Northrop Ellis, formerly of Santa Barbara, now of Santa Monica.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Poly High and will graduate as an English major in June from Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo. Her fiance is a graduate of Cal Poly with a degree in mechanical engineering. He affiliated with Tau Sigma, honorary engineering fraternity, on the San Luis Obispo campus, and was a member of Blue Key, honorary service fraternity.

The wedding is planned for July 9 of next year.

Thompson banks on chicken cacciatore

D. EDGAR THOMPSON

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

It all began in Downey. They started out as buddies, grew up together as friends—and now are FRIENDLY competitors, both as bankers and "Chefs."

The THEY in this instance are today's Chef of the Week, D. Edgar Thompson, vice-president, manager of the United California Bank, and former "Chef" Leroy H. Showalter, vice-president and manager, Security 1st National Bank. It's a bit confusing, but each credits the other for his having become a banker.

And that, no doubt, took a bit of doing in the case of Thompson, for his ancestors had spent their time GUARDING the bank. They lined up like this: his great-grandfather was captain of the Texas Rangers, his grandfather was the sheriff and his brother is a captain in the Palm Springs Police Department.

THOMPSON got his start in Evansville, Ind., but came with his family to Downey when he was nine. After mastering the Downey school system, he went to the University of Washington School of Banking for his degree.

He joined the United California Bank as messenger, advanced to bookkeeper, savings teller, chief operations officer and assistant manager.

He had managed two branch banks before coming to Long Beach from Covina in 1963. He held the position of vice-president, until being appointed this week as manager, and to the big job of filling the shoes of retiring "Chef," Bob Reid.

A member of the Downtown Lions Club, Thompson also belongs to Virginia Country Club and the Huntington Harbor Beach Club.

AT HOME, Thompson rates as "king of his household." It consists entirely of the feminine gender, even to Heidi, the pooch. He and Mrs. T. (Inez) have three daughters—Judy, now Mrs. James Montgomery, Diane, a senior in high school; and Susan in her freshman year.

As a family, they swim and golf. He shoots to an 18 handicap—and Inez can provide the necessary competition to keep the game interesting.

In the kitchen!—well, our "Chef" likes to supervise there, too! Today his recipe is for Chicken Cacciatore Banker Style.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE BANKER STYLE

- 2 2½-lb. chickens (cut up)
- 3 tblsp. shortening
- Salt and pepper
- ½ cup sliced onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ½ cup chopped carrots
- 2 tblsp. chopped parsley
- 1 cup tomato ketchup
- 1 cup water
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 tsp. salt
- Dash pepper
- 2 tblsp. dry red wine

Brown chicken in shortening. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Remove chicken from skillet. Saute onion and garlic, carrots and parsley in skillet until lightly browned. Stir in ketchup and remaining ingredients. Add chicken. Simmer, covered, 1½ hours, or until tender. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Woman's City Club to celebrate 54th anniversary on Friday

Woman's City Club of Long Beach will mark the 54th anniversary of its founding with past presidents as honored guests on Friday.

Luncheon at noon in the clubhouse, 1309 E. Third St., will feature the honored guests giving highlights from their years with Maybelle Tedro, hospitality chairman, in charge.

Following 1:30 p.m. business session, the program will be given by Ken Delo featuring vocal renditions of musical comedy and semi-classical numbers.

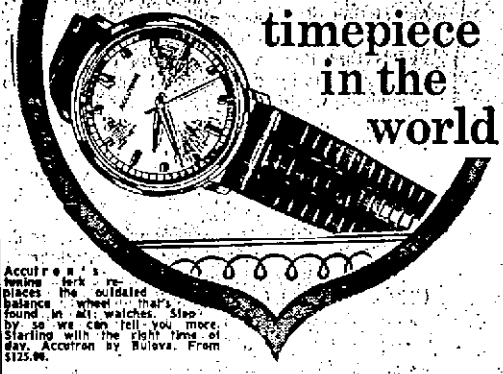

Luncheon reservations may be made with Mrs. Katherine Crandall.

Claretian Guild luncheon is scheduled Wednesday

Students from Dominguez Seminary will present Christmas music at Claretian Guild's dessert luncheon Wednesday noon at 728 Elm Ave. Card play will follow.

ROBYN CROFT, SOLOIST

KARL WELANDER, PRINCIPAL

Fonteyn and Nureyev to dance for benefit

Los Angeles' budding resident ballet company will be given a big boost when the Australian Ballet appears in three benefit performances Jan. 3, 4 and 5 at the Music Center.

Stars of the Australian troupe such as Robyn Croft, soloist and Karl Welander, principal, will share the stage with famous guests Rudolf Nureyev and British ballerina Dame Margot Fonteyn.

Youthful Nureyev, the fiery Russian ballet star, whose dramatic escape from behind the iron curtain made international headlines, will present the American premiere of his re-staged "Raymonda."

* * * *

"RAYMONDA" opened in Paris Nov. 14 to standing ovation for Nureyev. Critics hailed the stars and praised the production as one of the finest.

The two guests are donating their opening night performance as a benefit for the local Western Ballet Association.

Rapid strides have been made in forming this local company which already includes a corps de ballet and a school under direction of Eugene Loring.

Soviet artists to play at center

Two noted Soviet musicians will perform this week with Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in the Music Center.

Wednesday, violinist David Oistrakh will play in the Sibelius "Concerto in D Minor" and Mozart's "Concerto in D Major." Maurice Abravanel, director of the Utah Symphony, will conduct.

Thursday, pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy will make his Los Angeles deput playing Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 3 in D Minor." Zubin Mehta will conduct.

4 organists to be heard in concert

Numbers by four local organists will be presented when Long Beach Chapter, American Guild of Organists, holds an open meeting Tuesday at Immanuel Baptist Church, Third Street and Obispo Avenue.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Presenting the program in the church sanctuary at 8 p.m. will be Sam Posthuma, Elizabeth Vasa, Connie Lu Berg and Donald Palmer. They will play advent and Christmas selections. Guests not wishing to attend the dinner may attend the concert only.

Engagement told

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Wright of Long Beach have announced the engagement of their daughter, Donna Mae, to Thomas Erwin Case, son of the Howard E. Cases, also of this city.

The wedding date has not been set.

'Art for Christmas' on sale

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

"Better than ever!" promise Long Beach Art Association members of their annual "Art for Christmas" sale which opens today in their gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

Artists are displaying a great variety of themes, media and styles, including paintings, sculptures, drawings and prints.

The show is designed to offer works of art at reasonable prices for Christmas giving or for collectors.

Any non-member who visits the gallery during December may register for the free drawing of an oil painting by Marie Bucher. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily except Monday.

* * * *

A RECEPTION in Long Beach City College art gallery from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday will open the "Graphic Design from Denmark" show which includes travel and advertising posters by some of Denmark's foremost graphic designers.

The exhibit will continue weekdays through Dec. 17, will close during the college's Christmas vacation and will resume Jan. 3 through 7. Viewing hours in the gallery at Faculty Avenue and Harvey Way are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. Monday's through Thursdays and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fridays.

JACK H. RUTHERFORD, Long Beach native who is here from his permanent home in Mexico, has some critical comments on this city's culture.

After living three years in Mexico, where he paints, teaches and resides with his wife and four children, he notes a relative lack of growth in the visual arts here.

He received most of his training in Long Beach and exhibited and taught locally.

He says, "I worked at two other jobs beside my art, taught and painted at night, but to do justice to my work I realized one must give himself fully to art. Unfortunately, in the United States a vocational artist with a family is not yet patronized enough to allow this economically. So, selling my home, I headed for Mexico in an attempt to reconcile what one might say is the modern artist's most pressing problem — to meet his responsibilities to his work and yet support himself and family. Mexico provided the solution with its lower cost of living and receptive attitude toward art and artists."

Long Beach is not really encouraging or supporting its few galleries and artists in a dynamic way he asserts and he believes that each individual should accept the challenge of supporting the arts in his community. Considering its growth in other areas, this city has, in Rutherford's opinion, neglected the visual arts.

A reception today from 5 to 8 p.m. will open an exhibit of his work in Atelier 7 Art Gallery, 3316 E. Seventh St. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to midnight, seven days a week.

JOE MUGNAINI, head of the drawing department at Otis Art Institute, will speak at a combined meeting of Bellflower Art Association and Lakewood Art Association Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Kiwanis Hall, 9302 E. Laurel Ave., Bellflower.

Loyce Carhart, juried artist with Long Beach Art Association and Seal Beach Artists League, has a show at Bay Shore Library during December. The 15 paintings may be seen Mondays through Thursdays, and on Saturdays. The library is closed Fridays.

Pots by Faith Banks, paintings by Christine Morgan and mache objects by Edna Montague are on display at the studio of The Designing Woman, Elizabeth Sullivan, 1754 Atlantic Ave.

Impact of sculpture in David Smith show

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"David Smith, A Memorial Exhibit," is a show of tremendous significance. The large steel sculptures are installed in the pools and plazas of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., where they will remain until Jan. 6.

Smith, who died last May in a tragic automobile accident, is highly regarded in the art world. He is revered especially by young sculptors who must struggle for self-expression in the wake of the powerful innovations in the art of our century.

Hilton Kramer, author of the introductory essay in the catalogue for this show states; "His oeuvre (work) is unquestionably the greatest ever produced by an American sculptor" . . . and "was also the most consequential produced anywhere by a sculptor of Smith's own generation."

* * * *

WITH TWO exceptions, the 14 works in the exhibit, ranging in height from 124 inches to 173 inches, are of burnished stainless steel. Smith called them "Cubi"; they are boxes, cubes, long rectangulars, with an occasional cylinder, welded at the seams and together with elegant skill. The burnishing is a free calligraphy, causing the work to shimmer into all planes of space.

* * * *

SOME ARE lone sentinels, others recline in diagonal thrusts, three are huge frames through which to look toward Nature's constructions. While the installation of six works in the pools is effective, the sculptures on the plaza cannot breathe . . . against the mechanical white facades of the building. Smith's work is to be seen best against grass and trees.

Inside the museum is a photographic display of Smith's works in the rolling wooded acres at Boltons Landing, N. Y., where he lived and worked. Seeing the pictures mounted in the Lytton Gallery will help in understanding Smith's particular vision.

The sculptor came from the heartland of America and worked in metal as a laborer before he went to Europe and New York. He absorbed the contributions of the "School of Paris," and according to Kramer, achieved "an authentic American style fully capable of assimilating the European inheritance without remaining hostage to it."

Set audition for opera at LBSC

Auditions for principal roles in Long Beach State College's spring opera production "Don Pasquale" by Gaetano Donizetti will be held at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in Room 127, Music Building. An accompanist will be available.

Required are a soprano, tenor, baritone and bass. Any singer who plans to enroll as a student at LBSC during the spring semester is eligible to audition and should be prepared to sing an aria containing some coloratura passages. Although the opera will be sung in English, the tryout number may be in another language.

"Don Pasquale" will be performed in the campus theater May 19, 20, 21, 26, 27 and 28 under direction of Dr. Hans Lampl, associate professor of music.

* * * *

THE COLLEGE'S new Opera Workshop will have its first presentation Jan. 6, 7 and 8, 8:30 p.m., in the Little Theater. The program will include the one-act opera "Riders to the Sea" by Ralph Vaughan Williams and excerpts from "The Merry Wives of Windsor" by Nikolai; "Cosi fan tutte" and "The Abduction from the Seraglio" by Mozart; "Don Pasquale" by Donizetti; "Suor Angelica" by Puccini and "The Bartered Bride" by Smetana. There is no admission charge.

Popular chorus in free concert

Songs of Christmas will be theme of a program to be presented by 71 members of the Westchester Concert Chorus Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the student-faculty center of Marymount College, Palos Verdes. The concert is free to the public.

In addition to Christmas carols, selections by Randall Thompson, Roger Wagner, Adolphe Adam, Jeffrey Marlowe, Paul Tschesnokov and Jan Pieters Sweelinck will be presented.

Winnipeg Ballet on stage here

Long Beach Community Concert Association will present the Royal Winnipeg Ballet of Canada in Convention Hall of Municipal Auditorium Monday. Doors open at 7:15 p.m. with curtain time scheduled for 8:15. Admission is by season subscription only and no single performance tickets are sold.

L.B. Symphony begins Sunday concert bills

Joseph Schuster, cellist of international renown, will be featured artist at the opening concert of Long Beach Symphony's Sunday Series, 8 o'clock this evening, in Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium. He will play Haydn's "Concerto for Cello."

Schuster was solo cellist with the Berlin Philharmonic until 1934 when he moved to New York and was appointed solo cellist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony. He has concentrated recently on concert work, appearing with major orchestras in the United States, Europe, Central and South America. When not touring he teaches in the Music Department at UCLA.

Tonight's program also will feature the Long Beach Symphony conducted by Lauris Jones in overture to "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner, "Essay for Orchestra" by Barber, "Serenade for Strings" by Tschaikowski and "Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes of von Weber" by Hindesmith.

Single and season tickets will be available at the box office.

Chorale director sets lively pace

By DANIEL CARIAGA

Roger Wagner, that incorrigible musical dynamo, and one of the prime forces in the current renaissance of choral music in America, will conduct the first concert of the Los Angeles Master Chorale's second season Sunday, Dec. 12, in the Pavilion of the Music Center.

This matinee performance, titled, "Noel: Renaissance to Respighi," follows by less than two days the close of Wagner's cross-country tour with the famous choir which bears his name, a tour which began Oct. 4 in Long Beach.

The indefatigable conductor, after tending the home fires of his teaching duties at both UCLA and UC, Irvine, and early preparations for Master Chorale Concerts in April, May and June, will conduct the second concert Jan. 9. It will offer Brahms' "German Requiem."

Undaunted by the cancellation of his 1966 Soviet tour just two weeks ago, Wagner will take his 36 singers and a dozen first-desk instrumentalists to four Middle Eastern countries, Poland, Hungary, Czchoslovakia and Yukoslavia, Austria, France and Italy, for a 10-week tour ending March 25 with a concert in the Vatican.

* * * *

"I'D RATHER not get to Russian anyhow," Wagner laughingly told me by telephone this week, skirting gracefully the obvious. "I happen to like good hotels."

He was in Corvallis, Ore., having just driven the scenic 325 miles from Pendleton; the concert in Oregon State University's Coliseum, the second of eight consecutive appearances this week, was only two hours off.

Wagner, instead of sounding tired, bubbled over with understandable pride in his almost year old Master Chorale, and plans for its future.

The Dec. 12 concert features, besides several 16th and 17th century antiphonal works (and the Pavilion is one of the few halls anywhere where this music becomes overwhelmingly effective), the lyric wonders of Respighi's "Laud to the Nativity."

* * * *

THE THIRD event of this year's seven, brings Robert Shaw back to Los Angeles March 6 for what promises to be a delightful and sophisticated evening of Haydn, Schoenberg, and Bartok.

Major work of Bach, Handel, and Bloch complete the season, for which some 40% of the Music Center's 3185 seats have already been sold on a subscription basis.

Wagner is happy that the L. A. Philharmonic's programs this season include such standard choral offerings as Handel's "Messiah," and Orff's "Carmina Burana."

"This leaves us free to perform neglected masterworks and important contemporary music," he said.

The four separate programs he takes to Europe and the Middle East in January reflect the range and depth of his tastes, and the good fortune of his audiences.

In addition to the standard, yet hardly over-performed, B minor Mass of Bach, the list includes major choral works of Aaron Copland and Roy Harris, George Antheil's "Fragments from Shelley," written for Wagner, and Maurice Durufle's "Requiem."

To show film series in schools

Eric Pavel's "Paris," third program in the current International Film Series, will be presented at 8 p.m. Monday in the Wilson High School auditorium.

The film-lecture will be repeated Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Lakewood, Thursday at Polytechnic and Friday at Millikan High School. Tickets will be available at the door each night.

Next on the Long Beach City College series will be Russ Potter's documentary on Belgium, scheduled the week of January 10-14.

ROGER WAGNER, UNDAUNTED CONDUCTOR

Choir series scheduled

A Cappella Choir, Long Beach State College, will open its fall concert series today at 7 p.m. in Garden Grove Community Church, 12141 Lewis St., Garden Grove.

Two seldom heard works will be presented — "The Spirit Also Helpeth Us," a motet for double choir by J. S. Bach, and "O Savior, Throw the Heavens Wide," a motet by Johannes Brahms. The Bach work will employ an instrumental ensemble and vocal quartet.

Frank Pooler, associate professor of music at LBSC and internationally known as a composer of choral music, will direct.

GRACIOUS LIVING IN A PROUD MANSION

Old Creole days not dead in New Orleans

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

NEW ORLEANS — The dignified charm and gracious living of the aristocratic Creole days of long ago are not dead in "America's Most Interesting City."

You find these yearned-for extras at Lamothe House. Once a home that echoed the gaiety and gallantry of a flamboyant era, Lamothe House has been carefully restored to preserve its heritage. Now, as a hotel whose facade peers down on the famous French Quarter, it remains aglow with the warm traditions of Old New Orleans.

The mere fact that there is only one Lamothe House lies in a parallel fact that there is but one Gertrude Munson.

Mrs. Munson is the chatelaine of this grand old mansion, and has been since 1956. Long before that, she gained renown for her southern graciousness and hospitality as lady of Glenwood Plantation, an immense sugar farm in a nearby bayou; so famous, in fact, that her special way with guests and her sparkling parties were described by Emily Kimbrough in her book, "So Near and Yet So Far."

* * * *

LAMOTHE HOUSE was built about 1800 by Jean Lamothe, a wealthy sugar planter, and it was built to stand the tests of time. All work was done by hand. Great cypress floor and ceiling timbers were hand-hewn and tooled. Hand-carved Corinthian columns graced the entrance. Twin winding stairways had hand-turned mahogany rails. Ornate friezes and medallions decorated the spacious, high-ceilinged rooms.

In the "U" adjoining the main mansion structure on the rear were the slave quarters, between which was a flagstone courtyard where jasmine and sweet olive still fill the air with a heavy fragrance.

It was here that Lamothe brought his family to escape the terrors of a Saint Domingo insurrection and start life anew. It was in this house and with their wealth that the Lamothes fitted ideally into those opulent times.

* * * *

A HUNDRED years later, with the Lamothes gone, the mansion fell into disrepair. When restoration was made, it was so exactingly complete that even Lamothe would have been proud.

Today the facade and the ornate interior hold the enchantment of old, with rich antique furniture and smaller antique treasures of the 1840 period that completely furnish each lovely room.

All of these things, plus the attentions of Mrs. Munson, make a stay at Lamothe House a memorable one.

* * * *

GUESTS look forward to a complimentary petit dejeuner, or continental breakfast, served each morning in the spacious dining room. Lingering about the old banquet table after being served coffee from a 200-year-old Sheffield urn, they listen to Mrs. Munson's tales of Old New Orleans, or her suggestions on what to see in and near the city. On either subject, her knowledge is encyclopedic.

But the most pleasant time of all is the one evening each week when she presides with ceremony over the flaming cafe brulot—a delicious hot, spicy, cognac-and-coffee concoction—just as she did for honeymooners at Glenwood Plantation.

The French Quarter's historic and entertaining attractions, but a stone's throw away, come later.

(The most inexpensive way we know of to visit fascinating New Orleans is via Delta Air Lines—TWA triangular Los Angeles-Chicago-New Orleans-Los Angeles excursion. The New Orleans leg of the flight is included for only one dollar plus roundtrip fare to Chicago.)

THE FACADE OF LAMOTHE HOUSE, with its hand-carved Corinthian columns, peers down on the French Quarter from 621 Esplanade Ave. in New Orleans.

Christmas spectacles top December events

Gorgeous Christmas lighting displays, pageants and parades — including one in Long Beach and another in near-by San Pedro—will take place in various Southland communities this month.

Naples, the canal community of Long Beach, holds its Christmas Water Pageant at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 18 and 19. Boats will be fashioned into Christmas floats that will parade out into the canals into Alamitos Bay. Costumed carolers will ride barges, rubber-suited skin divers swim the route, and Santa rides an easy chair aboard a cruiser.

A parade of light-decorated yachts, taking more than an hour to pass, will traverse the main channel of the Port of Los Angeles; San Pedro, on the evening of Dec. 18.

IN OTHER communities:

A 184-foot "Christmas Tree"—a flagpole decorated with great strands of lights—in Calipatria, in the Imperial Valley, may be seen for miles.

In Santa Monica, 14 churches have constructed Nativity scenes, complete with dressed manikins, and these will be lighted at night beneath the palms of seacliff Palisades Park beginning Monday and continuing through Dec. 31.

Costumes of other countries will be worn by bands and choral groups in the parade of "Christmas in Many Lands" next Saturday at Camarillo. Actor Walter Brennan will be master of ceremonies.

A St. Nick parade, with a Miss St. Nick beauty contest, takes place Dec. 12 at Encinitas, north of San Diego.

ALTADENA again will stage what is probably the most famous of Southern California's outdoor Christmas lighting spectacles—the thousands of lights on 100 giant deodar trees along Santa Rosa Ave. leading down from Mt. Lowe. The spectacle begins Christmas Eve, continues to New Year's Night.

More than 100 costumed men, women and children, and some live animals will move on and off the scene in "The Bethlehem Story" at St. Paul's Church in Lynwood on the evenings of Dec. 25-26.

About 75 members of a surfing club who ride the waves on surfboards all winter, line up beside the pleasure pier at Oceanside at 1 p.m. Christmas day for a swim, later snack on doughnuts and coffee.

STUDY TOUR TO HAWAII ANNOUNCED

The 1966 Summer Travel program to the University of Hawaii Summer Session is now accepting reservations, Dr. Robert E. Cralle, executive director, The Adler University Study Tour to Hawaii, announces.

Special rates for students and teachers for the 43-day program begin as low as $549. This includes round-trip Pan American jet travel from the West Coast, accommodations in deluxe Waikiki Beach hotels, plus a full schedule of 22 planned activities including island sightseeing trips and tours, cruises, dinner dances and beach parties.

Extra credits earned are transferable to most Mainland colleges. A visiting faculty from all over the world offers a wide range of subjects and courses.

Full particulars including a 24-page illustrated bulletin and 1966 application forms are available by writing to Dr. Robert E. Cralle, Executive Director, The Adler University Study Tours to Hawaii, 345 Stockton St., San Francisco 8, Calif.

More jets to Alaska

Pacific Northern Airlines will schedule additional Constellation service between the southeastern Alaska cities of Ketchikan and Juneau and Seattle-Tacoma for the holiday period, Dec. 16 through Dec. 24, according to Harold A. Olsen, PNA vice president - traffic and sales.

In addition, PNA northbound and southbound Jetliner flights between Anchorage and Seattle-Tacoma will make a Juneau stop on specified days during the same period.

The additional flights have been scheduled in order to accommodate the large number of Alaskans planning to visit the Southern 48, as well as for those persons planning to fly to Alaska to visit friends for the holidays.

Canadian rail pass on sale

Canadian National Railways' "Canrailpass," introduced to the European market last year, are now on sale in the United States and will continue to be offered through next April 30.

The pass entitles its owner to 30 consecutive days of travel anywhere in Canada at a cost of $99; children between the ages of 5 and 12, $50. Passes are valid for coach travel any day of the week.

Access by air

There are 39 airfields in the Bahamas, located on 16 islands. Eleven years ago, there were only three airstrips in the colony.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

Traveling with Stan Delaplane

The rum and sugar islands of the Caribbean are getting the big action this winter—probably because they're spending millions on those four-color calypso ads. (You can almost smell the Planter's punch on the table.)

Air travel and cruise ships are quite reasonable. But—

Resort costs are a pirate's ransom. Folders quote $75 and $85 a day for two—and only two meals. The places are elegant—I imagine you can draw champagne from the tap. But they charge.

However, you can shop something reasonable. Not easy. The little guest houses can't afford to advertise in a big way. But try these:

Puerto Rico: Send for a little magazine called "Que Pasa." Lists small hotels there and in some nearby islands. Better send a dollar. Tell them what you are looking for.

Virgin Islands: Something like "Que Pasa" is "Here's How," Box 1795, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. Send a dollar on this too. Address Jeanie Harman and tell her what price range you're looking for.

Bahamas: Write Bahamas Development Board, Nassau, Bahamas. They'll send a free price listing with descriptions.

Jamaica, Trinidad, Martinique—just a letter to the Tourist Board in each island will get some listings.

Thing to remember in all the islands is they ALL have small guests houses—it's a Caribbean custom. Beautiful, nutmeg-smelling islands with wonderful swimming. But piracy in the big hotels.

* * * *

"My husband and I and another couple were sold one gallon of liquor each in Mexico City by two congenial fellows who assured us we could take it back home. At Los Angeles, Customs graciously allowed us to select one bottle each and confiscated sixteen from all of us."

TOO BAD. But that's the new law. You can only bring back a fifth—except from American Samoa and the Virgin Islands. From there it's still one gallon.

* * * *

"I would like to send an electric blanket to a friend in Italy, but will our blankets work on their current?"

PROBABLY. Most of Italy is 110-volt current like ours. (A few places have old current so your friend should check.) But more important, you must find out if this will pass Italian Customs. Or how much it will be.

Americans send a lot of presents overseas without thinking that foreign countries often have complicated laws about imports. Often it costs the persons a lot. Or even isn't worthwhile. Don't surprise friends with gifts. Ask them if the gift can get in.

* * * *

"Can friends of ours in England send us toy soldiers? And how much duty would we pay here?"

HAVE THEM send a few at a time in packages worth less than $10. Mark them "Gift—less than $10 value"

Flights start to Acapulco

Nonstop jet flights between Los Angeles and Acapulco were inaugurated Saturday by Western Air Lines.

The service was authorized when the Mexican government granted Western permission for 12 special flights in December and three in early January (Jan. 1, 2, 3) to accommodate visitors during the usually heavy Christmas, holiday and winter tourist season.

Leaving Los Angeles International Airport at 9 a.m. (PST) each Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Western's 720B fanjet flights will arrive in Acapulco at 2:05 p.m. (CST). Acapulco departures will be at 3:05 p.m., with arrival in Los Angeles at 4:36 p.m.

Free winery tours offered

Free tours of old Brookside Vineyard Co. winery in Guasti, in the Cucamonga district, are now available seven days a week, it is announced by Philo P. Vaine, the firm's president.

Novel self-guided tours are available 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondys through Fridays; winery personnel conduct tours 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

To reach Brookside winery, use the turnoff from the San Bernardino Freeway, at the "Archibald Ave.-Guasti" off-ramp. The winery is just south of the freeway.

They work in straw

Native straw work is one of the most important of the Bahamian craft industries. Resort Island natives bring strips of palm fronds plaited into bands of varied widths to Nassau where the bands are sewn into hats, handbags, slippers, mats, baskets and other articles.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES E. O'CONNOR

Charles E. O'Connors to note golden date

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. O'Connor, will observe their 50th wedding anniversary next Sunday at an open house in their home, 13434 Fairford Ave., Norwalk.

They subsequently will have a reception on Dec. 15 at the Sunset Club, 700 E. Broadway, for Long Beach friends. Mrs. O'Connor is secretary of the Sunset Club and also is a social welfare worker for the Long Beach post, Volunteers of America.

* * * *

THE GOLDENWEDS were married Dec. 15, 1915, in Port Huron, Mich., moving from that city to California in 1956.

O'Connor was employed in Port Huron as a marine reporter for the Great Lakes region for many years. Active members of the Michigan State Society here, the O'Connors were instrumental in founding the annual Port Huron picnic held annually in Bixby Park.

They have a daughter, Mrs. Thomas R. Duprey of La Mirada, a son, Charles R. O'Connor, Los Angeles; also 11 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Donald E. Mrochek

MRS. LEONARD SALONIUS

Mrochek-Kohr

Wearing a floor-length gown of ivory peau de soie with cathedral train, Suzanne Carol Kohr recited nuptial vows with Donald E. Mrochek in St. Matthews Catholic Church Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Pernie Moore Kohr, 2901 Spaulding St., and Harry G. Kohr, 1139 E. Ocean Blvd., are parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Mrochek, 4139 E. 15th St.

The young Mrs. Mrochek, former stewardess for United Airlines, chose Carol Speng as maid of honor. Other attendants were Mmes. Michael Clements, Steven Smith and Richard Newman.

George Marshal served as best man; James Rogers, Jerry Glass and Jerrold Young seated guests.

A reception followed at Long Beach Elks Club.

The newlyweds both graduated from Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. The bride attended the University of Hawaii, her husband a Long Beach fireman, attended Long Beach State College.

The couple will reside in Long Beach, after a honeymoon in Reno, and Lake Tahoe.

Salonius-Rich

Penny Ann Rich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max K. Rich, 2601 Marber Ave., and Leonard Eric Salonius exchanged wedding vows in St. John's Presbyterian Church Saturday during a 3 p.m. ceremony.

In a floor-length sheath gown of peau de sole with empire bodice of lace and styled with long, detachable train, the bride was attended by Julie Jones, maid of honor, and by the Misses Cheryl Campbell and Janis Kirkland, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, of Barstow, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric H. Salonius, Rio Vista. Don Hoskey was his best man. The 150 guests were seated by Roy Fentress and Marc Rich, brother of the bride. Tim Jack Rich, another brother, was ring bearer.

The new Mrs. Salonius is a graduate of Millikan High. Her husband, who received his education in Sacramento, has served four years with the U.S. Coast Guard.

After being feted at a reception in the church the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead. They will make their home in Barstow.

Lady 'hams' tune in for annual Christmas party

Hard play made easy by expert

Charley Solomon of Philadelphia, the president of the International Bridge League, has long been one of our best players.

The strongest feature of Charley's game is that he makes tough plays look easy.

Although Charley does open four-card major suits on occasion, his one club opening was normal. It is always good tactics to choose a club in preference to a major suit with this sort of balanced hand.

South's two diamond effectively ended the bidding and West opened the deuce of clubs. Charley was only looking at two hands but he succeeded in finding a defense to beat the contract. See if you can find it while looking at all the cards!

* * * *

HERE IT is. At trick two Charley led the three of diamonds. South let it ride around to dummy's eight and played the jack of hearts. This did him no good. Charley rose with the ace and played his ace of trumps. Then he continued with jack and another club. West took a trick with the king and led his last club for Charley to ruff.

RAY WHITAKER AT FOUR-IN-ONE KEYBOARD

BY TEDD THOMEY

Unquestionably it is the most spectacular restaurant organ in Southern California. It might even be the most spectacular in the world.

Called a Musicade, it consists of a Hammond organ, a Lowrey organ, a baby grand piano, xylophone, vibraharp, drums and more than 30 other percussion instruments — all combined into one hugely magnificent musical device which can be played by a single musician.

The idea for the first (and only) Musicade took root in 1962 in the lively imagination of Ray Whitaker, a former Long Beach and San Pedro organist who now lives in Santa Ana.

A professional musician for two decades, he was intimately familiar with the percussion effects which could be produced electronically on some organs. He felt, however, that such effects—although excellent in quality—had a certain synthetic feeling.

He decided to invent a device which would enable numerous real, full-size instruments to be played by one person seated before a group of keyboards.

* * * *

WHITAKER spent the next three years entertaining at night in various Long Beach area supper clubs and laboring during the day on his invention. For months organ parts and the bones of disassembled other instruments were strewn through every room of his San Pedro home.

The parts alone cost him $25,000. His investment in planning and labor was incalculable.

A few weeks ago Whitaker saw his dream come true. He spent many days and nights installing his complicated group of instruments in the sunken entertainment lounge of the Mardi Gras supper club, 1835 W. Chapman Ave., Orange. Whitaker is now one of the club's owners, along with vocalist Tony Roberts (who entertains with him), Tom Butler and Jean Fay.

When patrons first step into the lounge and see the Musicade, they often stop as if shocked and exclaim: "What in the hell is THAT?"

* * * *

OCCUPYING the entire former dance floor are the Hammond and Lowrey organs, combined into one unit with four keyboards. The unit is white with ornate gold designs.

Beside it is a baby grand piano, also white with gold decorations. On the walls nearby are fastened nearly 40 other percussion instruments, ranging from a tiny bird whistle to the large xylophone and bass drum. Included are orchestra bells, finger cymbals, crash cymbals, choke cymbals, vibraharp, snare drum, bushes, tempo blocks, Chinese gong, glass wind chimes, an oogah horn (like those on oldtime autos), castinets, maracas, sleigh bells and a police whistle.

Through the use of pipe organ parts, magnets, levers and electronics, all the instruments can be activated by Whitaker as he sits before the four keyboards. Air pressure and vacuums enable everything to work precisely when he depresses the necessary keys.

* * * *

THE DEVICE has a "fast reiteration," which enables him to repeat certain sounds as long as he desires.

Even more intriguing are the lighting effects. Many of the instruments glow with colored light while being played, returning to darkness when their part of the concert is completed.

An accomplished musician, Whitaker plays classical and pop music on the Musicade. Three of his many impressive production numbers are "Clair de Lune" (which uses organ, piano, chimes and vibraharp); a Mozart rondo (organ, piano and xylophone) and "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" (organ, piano, xylophone, police whistle and snare drum).

While playing "Slaughter," he uses the snare drum to reproduce the staccato sound of pistol shots and then calls the gendarmes with the police whistle.

THE MUSICADE was formally introduced to the public on a recent Sunday when the Long Beach Professional Organists Club held a jamboree at the Mardi Gras. More than 35 organists had the thrill of playing the device in a series of individual concerts which started at 2 p.m. and lasted until 11 that night.

An audience of 200 sat enthralled until the final note. One of the professional organists became so exhilarated that he returned to the Mardi Gras six times during the next two days, imploring Whitaker to let him play the marvelous device.

AKIRA ENDO INSTRUCTS CATHY MILLER

Keyboard Skills Unlock New World

His tiny finger presses down a key—and magically there is a singing sound. The piano has answered him!

For most children their earliest musical experience is with the piano, and for many that first striking of a key begins an enduring, lifelong source of joy and fulfillment.

Adults, too, who have missed early musical training, turn to lessons later in life for a new source of pleasure.

At Long Beach City College more than 40 classes in piano and spinet organ, ranging from beginning through intermediate courses, are offered at various locations in the school district.

The importance of music in the school child's life is underscored by a course taught by the college's orchestra director, Akira Endo, titled Music Skills for Elementary School Teachers.

* * * *

Both girls are sophomores and will continue their training at Long Beach State College which has an outstanding and active music department.

Registration for the tuition-free spring music courses at City College will be taken in late January and early February.

* * * *

DUANE GURNEE is chairman of the college music department.

Piano classes in the Music 51 A-B-C-D series are transfer credit courses equivalent to lower division offerings of the typical four-year college or university.

Non-transfer piano courses in the 151 and 751 series are designed primarily for adult students as are spinet organ classes in the Music 771 series.

Enrollment for all classes in the 751 and 771 series will be taken directly in classrooms at the start of the term.

Persons entering the Music 51 or 151 piano courses must enroll during the general registration for day and evening classes.

* * * *

PIANO classes will be offered at the Liberal Arts Campus and the West Adult Center both day and evening, and evenings only at Lakewood, Millikan and Jordan high schools.

Spinet organ classes will be given day and evening at West Adult Center, 1794 Cedar Ave.; and evenings only at Millikan.

Latest addition to the college staff of piano instructors is Paul Belanger, who received his training at the Royal Academy of Music in London and the Paris Conservatoire and formerly was music director of Carnegie Hall and Concert Hall Recordings.

The printed schedule of spring classes will be available during the next few weeks at all City College offices and public library branches.

MTA Chapters Set High Goals

By DANIEL CARIAGA

"Parents of children about to begin piano study should consider the many advantages to be gained by starting with a teacher accredited and recognized by the Music Teachers' Association of California," Lura Soderstrom, president of the Long Beach Branch of MTA from 1963 to 1965, told me recently.

Besides the obvious advantages of study with a dedicated professional who meets the high standards imposed on teacher-members by MTA (roughly equivalent to three years conservatory training with added requirements in psychology and teacher performance), the pupil has also the incentives of annual programs to recognize advancement, participation in recitals and festivals, and a large number of activities designed to stimulate growth and progress.

One of the most outstanding of these activities is the four-year old Southwestern Youth Music Festival, an annual event held each August on the City College campus, which draws young musicians of all ages and stages of advancement.

Begun by the MTA Long Beach Branch, the festival attracts budding musicians from all corners of Southern California.

* * * *

ANOTHER outstanding activity sponsored by the MTA is a Junior Bach Festival in which, again, young musicians of beginning, intermediate, or advanced levels, participate.

The MTA of California was chartered in 1897, but the Long Beach chapter was not formed until 1941, when a group of 11 Long Beach teachers banded together "to raise the standards of music teaching." That number has increased, 24 years later (the charter date was Dec. 7, 1941), to 91 active and accredited members, some 60 of which specialize in piano.

* * * *

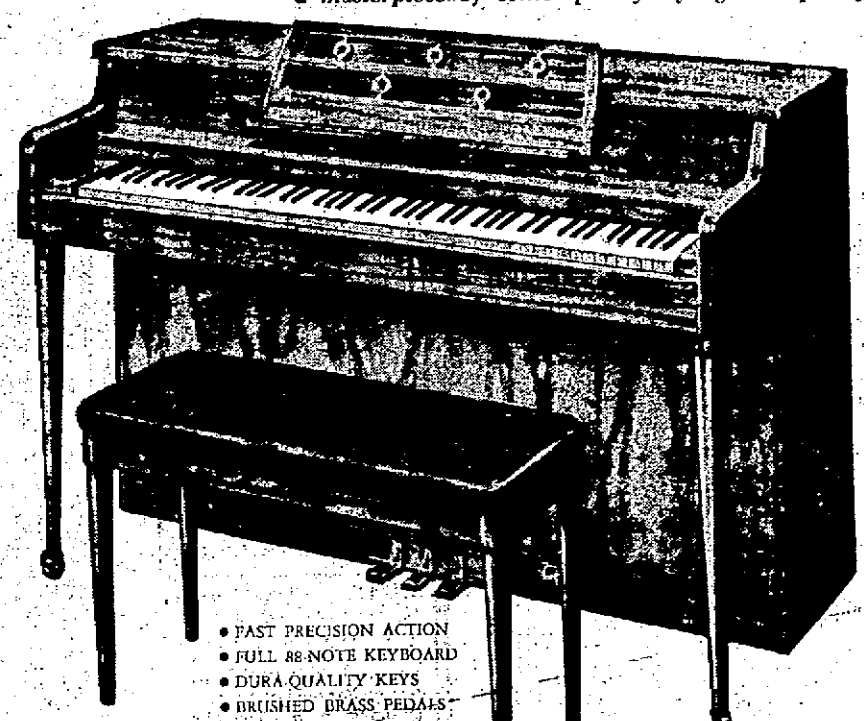

THE STATE BOARD of MTA grants, to members who have completed special studies, three types of in-job diplomas: child specialist, colleague, and fellow. Work toward these diplomas is, of course, in addition to basic requirements for full membership, which must be completed within two years of a teacher's affiliation with the organization.

No Monkey Business —They Share Music

They don't just monkey around with music.

The Organ Grinders, a group of talented women organists — all non-professionals, share their music with shut-ins at home, patients in hospitals and play for numerous civic and charitable organizations. They never accept a cent for their programs.

The club was started in May, 1962, by Mrs. Ray Fosholdt. All 13 members have organs in their own homes where they meet each month to take turns playing.

* * * *

"SINCE we take lessons from eight different teachers, the variations in style lead to discussion even livelier than the music," says Mrs. Fosholdt.

"The name Organ Grinders was chosen before most of us had perfected our keyboard technique — now we can just ripple off our favorite tunes."

* * * *

AMONG THEIR performances have been those for the Christmas party for the epileptic ward of Community Hospital, the recent Chamber of Commerce tribute to the Long Beach Year of Beauty, Long Beach Symphony Juniors fashion show, a fashion show for the benefit of Los Altos YMCA, Allen Center Officers' Wives salute to Long Beach programs, Naples Boat Parade, a fund-raising fashion show at Petroleum Club, Ayuda Club's charity event, and the Lions Club. On Dec. 18 they will perform in the Huntington Harbour Boat Parade.

"An individual or several women may be sent to play —it all depends on who fits the job and the length of the fashion show or program. We all love to play and we ask only that our service be for a worthy cause," Mrs. Fosholdt added.

Piano Sales Reach New 1965 Record

During the past 100 years approximately 5,000 different brands of pianos have been marketed. Although most of these manufacturers have since gone out of business, many of their pianos, although 50 to 75 years old, are still in use.

Today there are 24 piano manufacturers in the United States. They accounted for approximately 214,000 of the 220,000 pianos sold in the U.S. in 1964. The remaining 6,000 were imported mostly from Japan and Europe.

Sales of pianos for 1965 are expected to exceed 230,000 units.

There are four basic types of pianos: spinet, console, studio and grand. The spinet is the smallest and was designed to meet the need for a more compact piano than the old upright. The console piano is similar to the spinet, except that it is slightly taller. The studio piano is larger and is suited for institutional and school use. The grand piano remains what it always has been—the Rolls Royce of the piano world.

Anti-Boredom

In a report of a survey of more than 100 recognized psychologists on the responsibility of schools in preparing students for increasing amounts of leisure time almost 85% felt schools should foster creative leisure-time pursuits, particularly music and art.

Psychologists responding cited boredom and restlessness most frequently as the ill-effects of added leisure. The majority felt that inclusion of fine arts and instrumental music in school curricula provides outlets for creative drives and contributes toward a balanced education.

Music Relaxing

Home organ owners say that the relaxation that comes with playing the musical instrument is one of its greatest advantages. There also is the pleasure of meeting new people with the same interest through organ clubs and other social functions. Many people who were beginners quickly progress to the point of playing for friends, social gatherings, and church activities and even professionally.

Beginners Find They Learn Fast

The electric or electronic organ is generally easy to play. At a first lesson, beginners usually find themselves able to master simple melodies. Learning with a group of beginners can add a whole dimension of enjoyment to the process. To meet the demand for lessons, studios specializing in organ instruction are springing up all over the country.

The organ, once restricted to the church, has evolved into an instrument for home and community use. It is even making inroads into school music programs. Organ lessons are being added to the growing list of music instruction classes in our public schools.

Some models of console organs have electronic attachments that permit the organ to simulate the sounds of almost every instrument in the orchestra. This is especially helpful to elementary school teachers in illustrating orchestral instruments to their pupils.

* * * *

ADVANCEMENTS in the organ over the past 30 years have brought it into the realm of popular music and concert hall as well as the home. Its current use as a solo or featured instrument in jazz arrangements and symphonic compositions shows its adaptability to different musical forms. In the years ahead, further refinements in the organ should make it an even greater technical wonder, capable of an unlimited variety of musical effects and sounds.

Organ Sales Zoomed in Decade

Of all musical instruments, the organ has shown the greatest percentage increase in sales since 1953.

Although the organ is the third most popular instrument in the United States, its percentage increase of 660% during the 10 years since 1953 outstrips the piano and guitar with 38% and 460% increase during the same period. Portable electric chord organs, introduced in 1958, exceeded 185,000 unit sales for 1964.

More than 3,000,000 Americans are playing the organ today, compared with 285,000 as recently as 1954. Almost 3% of our homes have organs, including console and portable electric models. Of all console models purchased for home use, 70% are bought by people in the 30-50 age bracket.

BOB PIERCE TOOK OUT 35% OF KEYS
. . . to create tired businessman's piano

By ELISE EMERY

Bob Pierce's latest book, sixth edition of "Pierce Piano Atlas" published three weeks ago, already is being sold in 32 countries. It is accepted as the definitive work on piano facts.

His 16 mm. film, "Keyboard Experiences," produced by Educational Productions, Hollywood, in 1957 has been used as a teaching device by hundreds of public and parochial schools.

* * * *

ORDERS pour in for his decals from every country where there are pianos—he has no competitor in this field.

"Pianos last forever," says the genial, slender, brown-haired Pierce.

"They have longer lives than cats with their proverbial nine. But when the cases are refinished the names are lost and the decals are needed to restore them."

He's been the subject of front page stories and magazine articles written in almost every language and he gets mail addressed simply to "Mr. Piano."

* * * *

VISITORS flock to Pierce's Mr. Piano store and his adjoining Hammond Organ Studios of Long Beach, 2188 Lakewood Blvd., to see his famous collection of miniature pianos.

* * * *

PIERCE HAS some specific ideas about music.

"It doesn't make any difference whether a person is a sophisticate or an aborigine, his essential needs are the same: something to eat, something to wear, shelter and music. The music may be made on a goatskin stretched over a log or on a complicated instrument, but the need for melody and rhythm exists.

"There's an iron curtain in many adults' minds — they think they can't play an instrument. But there's a big hunger, too, to play ballads and melodies. With simpler notation systems now it really is possible for beginners on piano and organ to enjoy playing—and sometimes we discover unexpected talent. We've had students from 3 years to 92. It's a joy to see people find that their big, stiff, old, tired fingers can still learn."

TO FURTHER simplify learning, Pierce has made what he calls the tired business man's piano, removing 35% of the keys and devising a method of playing so elemental that he says, "I can give it to anyone on the back of a card. Its simplicity borders on parlor magic."

Underlying Pierce's dedication to his field is his belief:

"Music is an international language. It speaks to our hearts and minds. Maybe, someday, if it could reach us all we could understand each other—perhaps even see an end to war."

Famous, Near-Famous Pianists Heard Here

LEONARD PENNARIO

An engrossing chapter of Long Beach musical history is the appearance, on Long Beach stages, of a large number of great and near-great, famous and obscure, eccentric and legendary pianists during the past 42 years.

Which is not to say that many pianists did not visit this city before 1923, the year Leo Ornstein and Olga Steeb demonstrated the wonders of the Knabe-Ampico in separate recitals here. Public records, however, are incomplete before that year, and private memories understandably hazy.

Impresario L. E. Behymer did present, between 1904, and his death in 1945, many pianists here. An old brochure, on file in the Long Beach Public Library, announces, for the 1922-23 season, the appearances of Paderewski, Teresa Carreno, and Moiseiwitsch, appearances which talks with older musicians cannot confirm.

That Paderewski and Moiseiwitsch did play here during the '30s is established; earlier visits cannot be verified. The much-married Careno would have been 70 in 1923; we can only wonder if she continued to travel.

In 1925 both Ernst von Dohnanyi and Josef Lhevinne came to Long Beach. On paper, neither recital seems extraordinary; it is interesting, perhaps, that Dohnanyi played the Chickering.

* * * *

THE DECADE of the '30s was one of great pianistic activity in Long Beach, not only in regular visits by famous performers, but also in increased local participation.

Besides concerts by duo-pianists Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, Josef Hoffmann, Artur Rubinstein, Alfred Cortot, Gimpel, and Paderewski, there were, in the late '30s, many performances by local pianists.

The Long Beach Chamber Music Society, organized in 1935, presented programs of great sophistication, often performed by the members themselves.

One such program, given in March, 1936, featured, among other music, the concerto for piano, violin, and string quartet by Ernest Chausson, in which pianist Alice Coleman Batchelder and violinist Ingwald Wicks were soloists.

Also in 1936 was formation of the Pianists Association of Long Beach by local teachers, led by Jane Stanley.

* * * *

THIS ORGANIZATION, forerunner of the MTA, presented, between 1940 and 1942, a series of piano concerts of wide interest. The association paid full artists' fees, but charged only 25 cents admission to students. Needless to say, the Times Concert Hall at 215 American Ave., was filled for each event.

Appearing on that two-year series were Margaretta Lohmann, John Crown, Frederick Marvin, Lillian Steuber, Emil Danenburg, Kato Mendelssohn Szekely, and Homer Simmons, among others.

Piano soloists with the Long Beach Philharmonic (now the Long Beach Symphony) during those years were Sari Peterfy, Dorothy Judy Klein, Percy Grainger (1942 and 1944), Dorothy Simpson Smith, and duo-pianists Bartlett and Robertson.

* * * *

RUBINSTEIN appeared three times between 1941 and 1946, under the Hurok banner. Jose and Amparo Iturbi, on their first duo-piano tour, played here in 1944.

A long line of famous pianists has visited this city in the 20 years since 1945. For me, three "Emperor" Concertos were particularly memorable: John Crown's with the L.B. Philharmonic in 1946; Eugene Istomin's, with the same orchestra in 1949; and Solomon's, with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in Municipal Auditorium in 1950. KFAC broadcast that performance, the most moving, authoritative reading I have heard of that work.

Pennario's playing of the First Tschaikovsky Concerto, with Resta and the Long Beach Philharmonic in May of 1949, was another unforgettable evening.

Of recent appearances, in the last three years, by Rudolf Serkin, Jorge Bolet, and Gina Bachauer, Bolet's alone stands as proof that the giants of the past have worthy successors.

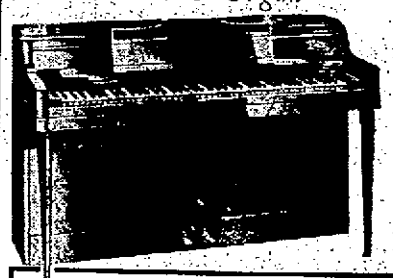

—DANIEL CARIAGA

Traditional Music Celebrations Are Essential to Christmastide

It is said that the birth of Christmas carols took place during the 13th Century in a small Italian village. St. Francis of Assisi and a group of devoted followers honored the birth of Christ by singing simple tunes as they knelt before a crude reproduction of the manger scene.

Singing of Christmas carols soon spread through the Continent, to England and eventually throughout the Christian world.

Audiences Increasing for Organ Concerts

Long Beach has many fine church pipe organs which have enabled the city to attract outstanding organists for concerts and recitals.

Ownership of their own home musical instruments has stimulated the interest of many persons in these programs.

One of the churches with a continuing schedule of recitals is First Congregational at Third Street and Cedar Avenue.

* * * *

JAMES R. WEEKS, minister of music there, is a past dean of the active Long Beach Chapter of American Guild of Organists which also has presented famous musicians here, giving many of the programs at First Congregational. Don Palmer is current dean of the local chapter.

"Our church has a concert mailing list of more than 700," said Weeks. "About 45% live out-of town and many frequently attend our organ recitals. We have people who come from as far away as San Francisco, Santa Barbara and San Diego."

In 1957 eminent organists who played at the church were Pierre Cochereau from Notre Dame in Paris and Fernando Germani from Rome. Karl Richter came from Germany in 1958 and Jean Langlais from Paris in 1959. Others who performed here that year were Alexander Schreiner from Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City and Flor Peeters from Belgium.

* * * *

GERMANI returned in 1960, having been preceded by Claire Coci of New Jersey and Ted Alan Worth of San Francisco.

Organists who performed in 1961 were John Weaver of New York, Garnell Copeland of San Francisco, the famed Richard Ellsasser, presented by AGO, Thomas Murray of Occidental College, and Piet Kee from The Netherlands.

Audiences flocked in 1962 to hear Richard Purvis of San Francisco's Grace Cathedral, Leonore Owsley of Auckland, New Zealand, and AGO sponsored concerts by Carl Weinrich of Princeton, Clarence Ledbetter of St. Louis and, again, Flor Peeters of Belgium.

* * * *

PHILLIP STEINHAUS of Washington, D.C., opened the 1963 season to be followed by George Markey of New York, Ladd Thomas of Pasadena, George Decker of New York and, under AGO auspices, Robert Anderson of Ft. Worth.

An AGO recital by Marie Claire Alain of Paris was first in 1964. She was followed by Claire Coci in her second performance here and Edward Mondello of Chicago.

This year, soloists have been Gerre Hancock of Cincinnati, Peter Hurford of St. Albans Cathedral, England, and Wilma Jensen of Oklahoma City.

As the sale of home organs increases, audience interest in the finest of organ music grows, too.

Orchestra Figures

There are 1,401 symphony orchestras in the United States, excluding the 300 youth symphony orchestras that are a part of the training programs of many adult groups.

RICHARD ELLSASSER

Schools Gain Music Facilities

A study of 12,000 school districts in the United States (97.7% of all pupil enrollment) by School Management Magazines revealed that music room facilities had the most dramatic comparative gain of all special school facilities (language, science, home economics) from 1962 to 1964. Of new secondary schools completed in 1964, 75.1% included facilities for music, compared with only 35% completed in 1962.

MASS MANUSCRIPT, 1450 A.D.

Many Changes Mark Music Notation Style

Music notation is written music—just as script and printed words are written speech.

It's taken man centuries to figure out how to let his fellow musicians—or just the fellows—know how to reproduce the melodies the composer hears in his own ear.

There's no clear record of it, but probably the pre-historic little shepherd boy piping on his reed had a way of leaving a chart for others to follow.

The inventive ancient Greeks, with only unharmonized melodies, used letters of the alphabet in various combinations and the practical Romans gave each letter a place on the scale.

* * * * *

IT WASN'T until the year 900 A.D.—approximately—that an unknown musician drew a red line across a manuscript and called it F. Anything above red was higher pitch and anything below was, of course, lower.

Sometime later another anonymous genius drew a yellow line and called it C. After that a monk, Hucbald, drew lines and used the spaces between to indicate pitch. In the early days color was important in notation but eventually music manuscripts were delineated in black and white.

SOME CONTEMPORARY systems make use of color and other devices with great success.

The manuscript pictured is a leaf from a Mass dated 1450 in Italy. It is part of the Frank V. de Bellis library which includes 12,000 rare volumes and prints in addition to many music manuscripts and recordings.

De Bellis, San Francisco philanthropist, began collecting in 1941 and in 1964 gave his half-million dollar library to the California state colleges, first major gift to be donated to the system.

Long Beach State College was one of the first to display the rare collection.

Claims Music Is Science Aid

Several months ago in a nationwide television interview, one of the United States' first astronauts, Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr. said he felt education is placing too much emphasis on science. The commander, who orbited the earth in a Mercury capsule in 1962, claimed such subjects as music are as important to youngsters' development as any Space Age subject.

Apparently many science educators agree with him. In a survey conducted by the American Music Conference, more than 100 deans and presidents of the nation's college engineering departments and technical universities were contacted. Of those responding, almost 70% stated that music study even helps to aid in laying a foundation for scientific thinking.

Pianos Back for Families

At the turn of the century, almost every home had a family parlor and every parlor had a piano. As a result, music-making occupied a particularly important role in the family's home entertainment, both for themselves and friends.

Music-making is again solidly entrenched in families' self-entertainment plans. And just as in the "piano in every parlor" days, the parents are still the key influences in their children's attitudes toward learning to make their own music, regardless of the instrument involved.

Athletes Also Play Musically

As far as most fans are concerned, the only time professional football and music come together is at half-time.

The players apparently hold a different viewpoint. A survey of National Football League of pro athletes' hobbies revealed that at least 42 players qualify as amateur musicians, undoubtedly the world's most muscular musical ensemble.

Baseball players, the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals rate highest in the musical standings with six amateur instrumentalists each. The Los Angeles Rams, Cleveland Browns and Pittsburgh Steelers are close behind with five musicians each; the Detroit Lions are sole occupants of the four-player spot; the Baltimore Colts list three musicians; the Philadelphia Eagles, Dallas Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings each field a pair of amateur music-makers; and the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers are in a tie for the bottom spot with a single player.

Polish Cabinet

Polish the wood of your piano with a good no-silicone liquid wax and a fine, soft cloth once a week at first, then whenever you do your furniture. Use white, milky no-silicone wax on blond pianos. For Danish walnut use a clean, dry cloth only.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

ALTHOUGH NBC-TV BILLS Patricia Crowley as the star of "Please Don't Eat the Daisies," she looks at herself as sort of a second-fiddler.

That doesn't mean it isn't music to her ears when someone talks about the series.

"Everybody who stops me mentions the dog first, then the children, then the house," said Patricia.

"By that time, they've gone on to something else. I'm just pleased they mentioned the series."

From Patricia's point-of-view, a series has to have "everything" going for it.

"To have four children and a shaggy dog going for you is money in the bank."

For Patricia, in her Tuesday channel 4 role as Jean Nash, the series is something more than money in the bank.

"It's darn challenging."

Part of that challenge comes from the fact that the role calls for more than just a housewife. It allows her to be "gutsy, humorous and I can admit my shortcomings."

Her real-life husband, Atty. Ed Hookstratten, knew when he married her almost nine years ago that she was an actress and hoped to continue her career after marriage.

He's delighted that she's now acting in her first series, according to Patricia.

"He knows I enjoy it and I'm much easier to live with when I'm working."

IT IS WORK which, so far, has had only one temporary drawback. It was the aftermath of a visit of the "Daisies" set by her two children, Jon, 7, and Ann, 4.

Son Jon told her that if any of the boys in the series got sick, he would like to fill in.

And Patricia thought to herself:

"Oh fine. He's been bitten by the bug just like his mother."

Jon's mother — before she was — got nipped by the bug when she was 11 years old.

Holding a bunch of balloons, she had a walk-on in a summer-show production of "Carousel."

"From that time on there was never anything else for me but show-business."

But she wouldn't want it for her son even after he became a man.

ESPECIALLY after he became a man.

"A man kind of loses self-respect — he has only himself to sell — when he becomes an actor," said Patricia.

"He becomes overly concerned with himself, how he sounds, how he looks, what kind of impression he's making.

"There are exceptions, of course, but it is the very nature of a male actor's job that literally forces him into becoming vain."

And actresses aren't vain?

"Of course we are," said Patricia. "But a certain amount of vanity is considered feminine and man has learned to live with that for a long time."

As it turned out, it really wasn't the acting bug that had bitten Patricia's son.

What had intrigued Jon during his visit to the studio was the schoolroom set-up. He wanted to go to the studio school and if it meant he had to do a little acting, well, he wouldn't really mind too much.

Jon returned to his regular school the following day and hasn't mentioned the subject since.

Scratch one temporary drawback.

CRITIC'S

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Programs

Program. "The Dangerous Christmas of Red Riding Hood," aired last Sunday on channel 7.

ABC hopes "The Dangerous Christmas of Red Riding Hood" will be one of those special niches in television's archives where, like a few other special shows, it will be shown annually.

This viewer, a Cyril Ritchard fan, hopes so, for the musical adaptation of the children's story into an adult's delight was lots of sly fun, imaginative and tuneful.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

If this was intended by General Electric as a holiday perennial it'll never make it, even with the help of color. Slotted at 7 p.m. on the Sabbath when the tykes own the sets, it must've left them totally disenchanted. Their mental picture of Red Riding Hood had to be shattered. Not the sweet, dimpled darling of the French fable but a miscast singer, Liza Minnelli, who mugged, grimaced and displayed no fear whatever of the big bad wolf, Cyril Ritchard, who revels in meanie parts dating back to "Peter Pan."

Critic Helm of "Variety"

ABC-TV presented a one-hour original musical comedy version of the tale of Little Red Riding Hood, but from the wolf's point of view—and with Liza Minnelli, Cyril Ritchard and Vic Damone as the stars. All were absolutely splendid in a gay and spoofing show, in which the poor misunderstood wolf (Ritchard) explained he really tried to make friends with Red, but thanked the management for equal time anyway.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

Program: "Julie Andrews Show," aired last Sunday on channel 4.

As safe a bet that the sun will set over the Pacific is the sure thing that Julie Andrews special will be the season's rating topper, and if the odds are right the highest in tv history for an entertainment show. What's more, for originality and pure inventiveness by Bob Finkel, Alan Handley and their production staff the show is an almost sure Emmy. By itself it needed no help but with the inherited audience of "Bonanza," all eyes must've been on the NBC channel.

There should have been a national proclamation of Julie Andrews Night. She is the best thing that has happened to television and gave the medium new stature and a dimension far beyond the abused word of "special." So much talent wrapped in such a dainty package. Yet, it wasn't a one-woman show and Gene Kelly deserves a generous share of the credit.

Critic Helm of "Variety"

NBC-TV presented a one-hour Julie Andrews special, in which the lovely entertainer was joined by Gene Kelly and the New Christy Minstrels in an amiable outing. Miss Andrews sang many of the songs she has made famous, and Kelly and the Minstrels took care of most of the zing, though their hostess also chipped in with a rousing music-hall number. Her dances with Kelly were also tops.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

"The Julie Andrews Show" on NBC was a gay, pleasant and rather low-key hour of singing and dancing in which the talented Miss Andrews had a hefty assist from light-footed Gene Kelly, the New Christy Minstrels—and all those songs from "My Fair Lady" to "The Sound of Music" which are associated with her.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Program: 'Who Shall Live?", aired last Sunday on channel 4.

NBC-TV took up the unglamorous subject of artificial kidney machines and turned out an hour of controlled crusading that ranks with the television medium's most important achievements.

At its core, the subject was, simply, the matter of life and death—and whether it should be decided in terms of dollars in this day and age in a nation that is forever claiming how important each individual is, but spends billions on questionable projects while human problems remain to be solved.

"Who Shall Die?" made you angry. It made television look 10 feet tall. It should rerun in prime time, with much more promotion.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

Program: "The Incredible World of James Bond," aired Nov. 26 on channel 4.

A thinly disguised trailer for the James Bond pix, this spec drew generously on the four Bond films which comprised most of the footage.

Critic Daku of "Variety"

Who says television is killing the movies? NBC-TV presented the year's longest, sexiest and most beautifully mounted commercial, "The Incredible World of James Bond," an hour entertainment documentary billed as a special, and composed primarily of motion picture excerpts.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

The most incredible part about the hour is how the television censor for the network let it slide by with so little blue pencilling.

Apparently highly suggestive scenes and near-nude femmes are permissible on video if they're labeled "Documentary."

I'm not really complaining, mind you, but merely reporting what was—wow! —observed.

Critic Bert Resnik of "Tele-Vues"

Bistro for Odette

Odette Myrtil, actress long prominent in motion pictures and on the stage, has joined "The Secret Storm," daytime drama series on CBS-TV, as proprietress of a Paris bistro.

Good Old Ozzie Nelson Digs Rock-and-Roll

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Ozzie Nelson's weekly candy drop has been on the networks for 14 years now. It might be safe to call him the grand old man of television, except Ed Sullivan would take umbrage. (That's not quite as bad as taking hemlock, of course.)

Anyhow, old Oz keeps a youthful outlook, I'm glad to say. Maybe even too youthful as, for example, when he talks about pop music today.

"Pop music is at its peak today," Ozzie says. I don't know if people like Irving Berlin and Cole Porter and Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey would agree with that estimate, but that's Ozzie's opinion. He likes rock 'n' roll and things like that.

But he does draw the line at Sonny and Cher. "That Sonny—cut his hair and wash him and he's nothing," Ozzie says. (Please note that I'm quoting Ozzie and don't send me all those nasty letters.)

As for the future of the Nelson family on television, Ozzie says it's too soon to tell about next year.

"Sure, I'd like for us to go on," he says. "Anybody who says they wouldn't is kidding himself."

Documentary Probes Watts Riot Causes

In an attempt to probe the causes of the violence, CBS-TV (channel 2) will present an hour documentary at 10 p.m. Tuesday on the Watts riots.

The program will emphasize the national similarities of problems that led to the uprising in Los Angeles.

Narrator for the documentary will be Bill Stout, the CBS news correspondent who covered the riot that started last Aug. 11.

Among those whom he will interview will be Los Angeles Police Chief William H. Parker; former Assistant Secretary of Labor Daniel P. Moynihan, author of a report on the plight of the Negro, and several attorneys.

In addition to the backward look at the causes of the riots, the program will show what steps are being taken to prevent a reoccurrence.

SPECIAL

PRESIDENT'S MEN—Premiere. Paul Niven begins a 9 pt. half-hour series examining the roles and responsibilities of top-ranking officials, cabinet members and special Presidential assistants. Guest for the ch. 28 opener, at both 3 and 7:30 p.m., is Sec. Dean Rusk.

ANDY WILLIAMS—Andy calls in both a doctor and a secret agent, but there's neither illness or trouble — just musical-and-comedy entertainment — when Vince Edwards drops Ben Casey's scalpel for a singing appearance, and Don Adams tackles both his anti-Bond Agent 86 role (solving the case of Edwards' missing watch) and a dissertation on his problems on a non-scheduled flight from Acapulco. In the informal spot of the 9 p.m. color hour, ch. 4, Andy introduces the young wandering minstrel Buddy Bohn, who completed a world tour without spending a dime — strumming his guitar and singing happy songs for his supper.

BUILDING THE BOMB — The development of the atomic bomb, and the decision to use it, are detailed in an hour-long special at 9 p.m., ch. 28. Among those discussing the project are Robert Oppenheimer and Ed-

★ SPECIAL

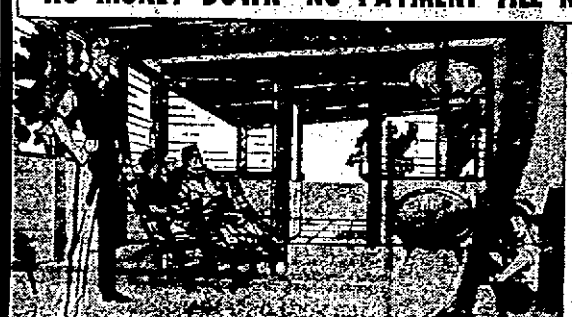

DECEMBER 7: Day of Infamy—David Wolper uses Imperial Japanese Navy films to trace the militarists' master plan for the conquest of Asia and the Pacific, to place in proper historical perspective the attack on Pearl Harbor just 24 years ago. With Richard Basehart narrating at 8 p.m., ch. 11, we see Tojo, Admirals Hamomoto and Monura, special peace envoy Saburo Kurusu, Cordell Hull and FDR.

WATTS: Riot or Revolt?—Another day of infamy, last August 11, that launched six bloody days of the most destructive race riots in recent American history, is examined in detail during a "CBS Reports" hour at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Bill Stout, who covered the riots in the predominantly Negro district both day and night, will be the reporter, probing the causes and underlying meaning, and stressing the many paradoxes in the violence in a city where racial tensions had not been high, and where the neat, one-family homes were a far cry from the slums of our older cities. Hour uses film from more than 70,000 feet taken during the rioting, and interviews former Assistant Secretary of Labor Daniel P. Moynihan, LAPD Chief William H. Parker, an attorney who handled complaints of police brutality, a boy accused of looting, and a Rhodes scholar who has lived most of his life in Watts. (A Viet Nam probe gets this hour next week.)

Sports Today

OLYMPIC WRESTLING, 8 p.m., ch. 5, with Dick Lane calling the ringside action.

RAMS PLAY-BY-PLAY, 9:30 p.m., in color, ch. 13, brings taped action plays of Sunday's St. Louis clash with the Cardinals.

NOTRE DAME highlights, 10:30 p.m., in color, ch. 5, has Ara Parseghian with a review of season highlights.

SPECIAL

L.A.'S MEXICAN-American Story — Bill Johns narrates an hour's probe of a less-discussed racial minority, plagued with discrimination and bigotry, but fiercely proud of his Mexican heritage. Mexican-American leaders, police, educators and teenagers give their views at 8:30 p.m., ch. 13, in color, as cameras record the story of their religion, home-life, social life, schools, poverty belts, gay fiestas, loves and hates.

DANNY THOMAS — Danny tries to re-capture the magic of last year's look at burlesque, which scored the top Nielsen of any show all season, with a second edition guestarring Jerry Lewis, Lucille Ball and Shirley Jones — with cameo appearances by Jimmy Durante and Sheldon Leonard. Highlights of the 9 p.m. color hour, ch. 4, are such old classics as a pair of dead-beats taking a pair of gum-chewing gerties to dinner, a flat broke poker player conning a butcher boy out of some dinner meat, a "butterfly ballet" with wires, and a parody of "White Cargo" with a black-wigged Lucy as the tempestuous Tondelayo. Hour preempts "Chrysler Theatre," which yields also, through Christmas for a Hope comedy special and a color documentary on Michelangelo.

Pan and Fan Mail

I am 11½ years old. Each Thursday my sister and I look forward to watching Daniel Boone on NBC.

Nov. 18 it was preempted because of a special. Nov. 25 it was preempted again. This time, on Daniel Boone, they were supposed to have a Thanksgiving theme. But instead, there was a water conservation documentary.

I hope NBC will be better on their scheduling in the future.

Caren Ruth Corbett, Long Beach

Poor old Daniel is having more trouble with the preemptions than he is with the injuns.

There are so few really good TV shows that are entertaining for the older folks and I am sure that most of your watchers are elderly folks like myself.

Lena A. Blair, Long Beach

I don't believe old folks or elderly folks should be put in a category as TV watchers. Many whom I know are a great deal younger in heart than I am. There's a 93-year-old golfer at Recreation Park who beats me consistently. I wish TV would find something interesting for him to watch so he'd stay at home.

In the "Legend of Jesse James," Chris Jones who plays Jesse James, is he married?

If so, does he have any kids. If not, does he date. I think he's a doll.

How did he get started in the story of Jesse James.

Fredra Woolard, Compton

He married Susan Strasberg a few months ago. He doesn't have any children. He doesn't date. Your doll got started in the Jesse James story by taking a screen-test for the role, then being hired.

I recently watched "The Man With the X-Ray Eyes" and I thought it to be the most gruesome, horrible movie I have ever seen.

I wonder if the people at the studios look at those movies before they show them. If they looked at that movie, they must be absolutely crazy to show such a sickening movie.

I hope in the future, before they show those kind of movies, they will think of people with weak stomachs like mine.

J. B. Bradsten, Long Beach

Assuming your fingers are stronger than your stomach, why don't you get up and turn the dial? Don't fight. Switch.

I would like to know if any one of the Beatles' voices are used in the Beatles' cartoons.

Elise Estes, Long Beach

One and all in the singing portions.

We feel so disappointed that we are going to lose the King Family TV program. It is one of the best clean programs we have on the air.

Edla C. Cotton, Long Beach

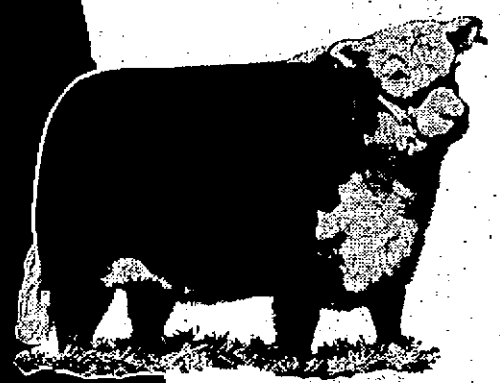

Well, that's how the soap suds.

SPECIAL

A CHARLIE BROWN Christmas—The famous "Peanuts" comic strip characters — Charlie, Lucy, Linus, Schroeder, Frieda, Snoopy and Pigpen—step out from the pages of 750 newspapers (including the Orange County Evening News) for a full-length animated story at 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 2. With an original musical score by Vince Guaraldi, Charlie sets out in search of the real meaning of the Yuletide observance —a spirit he finds usually obscured by the shadow of commercialism and greed. Cartoonist-creator Charles M. Schulz appears at the close of the half-hour special with a holiday message of "Peanuts" fans everywhere.

FOOTSTEPS on the Moon —The challenge and perils of a moon landing, and the men responsible at both the highest and lowest echelons of the Apollo program, are examined in an hour-long special at 7:30 p.m., ch. 9. Taking part are Dr. Wernher von Braun, developer of the 40-stories-high Saturn-5 rocket; Dr. George Mueller, overall director of manned space flights; Cape Kennedy program coordinator Rocco A. Pattrone and the actual Apollo astronauts in training programs at Houston.

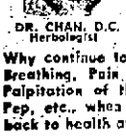

WSports Today

OLYMPIC BOXING, 8:30 p.m., ch. 5, has Dick Enberg ringside for a 10-round heavyweight match between Lars Norling and Manuel Ramos.

Lana Wood New GI Pinup Favorite

Lovely Lana Wood, star of 20th Century-Fox Television's "The Long Hot Summer" series for ABC-TV, is fast emerging as the GI's favorite pinup girl of the Viet Nam conflict.

The shapely young brunette daily receives hundreds of letters from American servicemen stationed throughout the world and in this country, and faithfully sends each one an autographed photo by return mail. Requests are mailed to Lana at PO Box 900, Beverly Hills, Calif.

The whole thing began a few weeks back when three adventuresome servicemen had the initiative to call and ask to speak to their favorite actress, Lana Wood.

To their surprise, they not only got to talk to her, but were invited for a personal tour of the studio. After the tour they asked for a photo and received a pose of Lana in one of next spring's bathing suits.

Lana asked if they thought any of their friends might like a photo. The suggestion met with enthusiastic response.

Soon service newspapers throughout the world were running the pinup photos of Lana and reprinting her offer to personally autograph copies to any serviceman, anywhere, if he would only drop her a line.

"It's a pleasure to send out the photos," Lana explained, "and after all we don't want our guys to forget what American gals look like . . . do we?"

BARNEY PETERSON, Owner

TV Popular Behind Iron Curtain

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television behind the iron curtain is as popular as it is in western Europe and the United States — so popular, in fact, viewers willingly pay a $2 monthly tax for owning a set.

In Bulgaria, Hungary, Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia antennas are sprouting from the tops of even the poorest shacks.

Joseph Roizen, international video consultant for the Ampex Corp., recently returned from seven weeks in Russia and its satelites where he visited the major television studios and talked with viewers. He found a burgeoning young industry everywhere despite the fact that technically eastern Europe is five years behind the West.

"TELEVISION on the other side of the curtain is completely controlled by the various governments," Roizen said. "It encourages TV sales because of the enormous propaganda value.

"They've even adopted the old capitalist credit plan, 25% down and low, easy monthly payments to viewers who buy sets."

During his tour Roizen lectured on American equipment and techniques, finding huge and enthusiastic audiences among technical personnel. There is little or no video tape in most of the countries which rely on filmed and live programming.

* * * *

EVERY country but the Soviet Union has only a single channel. Frequently the programming is haphazard with no specified scheduling. Rumania's station is on the air only 28 hours a week. But in Poland, the single channel beams 270 hours per month.

A breakdown of Polish programs is typical for the other countries. News and information programs gobble up 45% of air time. 5% is given to education, 3% to Russian films and, surprisingly, 5% to American films. The remainder is given over to 1½% for Eurovision and 4% to Intervision (the iron curtain inter-country network).

The most popular shows in all countries involve sports, especially football (soccer to Americans).

American television shows are frequently U. S. Information Agency films with occasional popular U.S. favorites such as "Dr. Kildare" and "Bonanza."

According to Roizen, viewers would like to see more American shows and television bigwigs would be happy to accommodate them but they use the excuse that U. S. shows are too expensive.

Zimbalist Prefers TV Over Movies

EFREM ZIMBALIST JR.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Efrem Zimbalist Jr., your friendly neighborhood FBI agent, had his choice between television and movies and chose the tube over the flickers.

On the face of it, this is no momentous decision. But it is an unusual one. Given the choice, almost all actors would jump for the big screen.

Many leading men consider television only a stepping stone to the bigtime — Steve McQueen and Jim Garner are the best examples.

Zimbalist has twice chosen the small screen. Seven years ago he gave up a promising movie career to play a regular role in "77 Sunset Strip," a hackneyed detective story that died an unmourned death at the end of the 1964 season.

Somewhat disenchanted, Zimbalist returned for a crack at the movies. He was better off, it turned out, in television.

He starred in two eminently forgettable pictures, "The Reward" and the Electrovision version of "Harlow." Zimbalist was good but the films were so bad it apparently cured him forever.

Now starring weekly in ABC-TV's "The FBI Story," Zimbalist believes he has found a home.

"I WAS FED UP with doing a series after '77 Sunset Strip,'" he said. "It was a fairy tale about private eyes that had no connection with reality. But I was also fed up with being out in the movie world.

"I've had an unlimited opportunity to study scripts, directors and attitudes in both mediums, and I think the best brains in the business today are in television.

"It's more competitive. It's more creative. Television must come up with a new show every week. The competition keeps everyone on his toes, sharp and active.

"Sitting around wasting time on movie sets, or waiting for a new picture bored the pants off me. There's no time for boredom in television. You work too hard for that."

ZIMBALIST WAS sitting in his dressing room at the noon hour, eating from a lunch bucket he brings to Warner Bros. every day. It's not through economic necessity, however. The silver lunch bucket exactly matches the color of his Rolls Royce.

"The FBI Story" is among the highest-rated of this year's new shows and as far removed from the half-baked heroics of "77 Sunset Strip" as J. Edgar Hoover from the Green Hornet.

"This show deals with actual cases from the files of the FBI," Zimbalist said. "Before production started, I went to Washington to familiarize myself with the bureau and the agents. I also met Mr. Hoover.

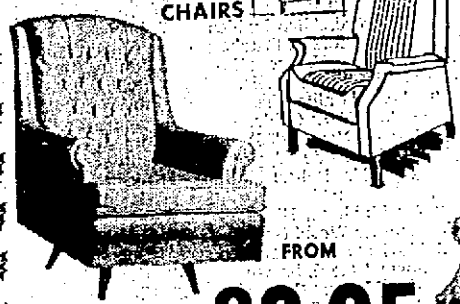

"But the most gratifying thing is hearing from FBI agents who really enjoy the show and remark about its authenticity."

GETTING UP NIGHTS MAKES MANY FEEL OLD BEFORE THEIR TIME

Sufferers Find Quick Help For Kidney & Bladder Irritation & Secondary Backache or Nerve Tension

As we grow older, many men and women suffer from feeling old, tired, worn out and depressed by losing sleep and worrying about getting up nights, due to common irritation of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Tract. This condition, often due to a germ called the colon bacillus, and non-specific germs resulting from colds, bad teeth and minor infections, may cause frequent, urgent and painful urination. These irritations may also cause strong, cloudy urine and sometimes result in secondary backache, headache and nervous tension. Then you should heed the warning from your nerves and try CYSTEX for quick help.

HOW CYSTEX HELPS

New Improved CYSTEX releases a gentle, soothing bacteriostat in acid urine to combat germs which may be causing irritation. This is like a gentle, mildly antiseptic, soothing bath for the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Passages. CYSTEX also contains two of the very best known analgesics for soothing, gentle relaxing relief of discomforting pains due to common Kidney and Bladder irritations.

WORLD WIDE SUCCESS

Formulated by American scientists, CYSTEX has been helping people (in 72 countries) for 40 years to combat the foregoing irritations and thus feel like cleansed and refreshed—and because of less nerve tension able to sleep better and feel more vigorous and cheerful. Get CYSTEX from druggist today. See how fast it can help you.

Charlie Brown and 'Peanuts' Pals in Television Special on Thursday

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Good grief, Charlie Brown and his pals from the "Peanuts" comic strip and books are coming to television for a Christmas season special.

It will mark the television entertainment debut for Snoopy, Lucy, Linus, Schroeder, Pig Pen and that blockhead, Charlie Brown.

The gang has appeared in recent years in commercials for an automobile manufacturer. The characters will remain the same under the direction of Bill Melendez, who does the animation.

But the guy in overall charge of Peanuts is, naturally, Charles Schulz, creator of the comic strip.

The show, "A Charlie Brown Christmas," will be screened Thursday via CBS-TV (channel 2 at 7:30 p.m. in COLOR).

The question is, why did Schulz finally agree to a Peanuts show after turning a deaf ear to producers for years?

"I wouldn't have done the show without Bill Melendez," Schulz explained. "He has a real feeling for the characters and wouldn't do anything outside their realm.

"I also found a producer with whom I could work. He's Lee Mendelson and he knows what Bill and I have in mind for Peanuts."

THE ANIMATED special finds Charlie Brown disenchanted with the commercialization of Christmas. In searching for the true spirit of Yuletide, he asks the misanthropic Lucy for help. She puts him in charge of a Christmas play which, inevitably, is a disaster under Charlie's bumbling direction.

Ultimately good old Charlie Brown is mollified when his bedraggled Christmas tree is decorated by the other Peanuts.

While Schulz favors occasional television specials, he is against a weekly Peanuts series, saying, "It involves so many animators that it might lose the spirit of the comic strip. If we just do a few specials each year we can maintain control of the action.

"We're doing a second show for June or July on baseball, and if the first two are a success we may come up with another for Halloween with Linus and the Great Pumpkin."

LINUS AND SNOOPY WATCH CHARLIE BROWN AND LUCY ON TV

Schulz makes a few sketches for the story line which Melendez follows in bringing the little characters to life on celluloid.

"Charlie Brown always gets a pile of Christmas cards," said Schulz. "Readers feel sorry for him because he's the eternal loser."

Since drawing Peanuts, Schulz has become a persistent winner, and his Christmas show should be one of the big winners of the season.

Good Grief!

Pumpkin Hours

Milt Josefsberg, head writer on "The Lucy Show," says comedy writers compose their silliest jokes between midnight and 4 a.m. "It's a period when we often can't sleep," he says. "We call them the pumpkin hours, but don't ask me why. It's just a tradition in the business."

'House Party'

Among the many items of misinformation supplied by children on CBS-TV's "Art Linkletter's House Party," Linkletter recalls these favorites:

"It may sound strange that Socrates was born in 470 and died in 399, but in those days everybody lived backwards."

"Magellan explored because he was curious. People often said, 'Isn't Magellan a curious person?'"

"The Sulphate of Magnesia ruled the ancient kingdom of Epsom."

City College Instructors on 'Scope'

Lectures and demonstrations by five Long Beach City College instructors will be presented on the Channel 7 "Scope" series at 7 a.m. Monday through Friday this week. The schedule:

Monday: Donald E. Miller, "Retailing Facilities." Tuesday: Duane Gurnee, "The Romantic Musician in Retrospect." Wednesday: Arnold Schroeder, "The Computer in Mathematics." Thursday: George DeWitt, "The Essential and the Existential Poem." Friday: Donald R. Howey, "Electric Meter Operation."

Wednesday's program will demonstrate a new remote unit which permits the use of a central computer installation over a long-distance telephone line.

Examples of 19th century music to be discussed on Tuesday will be performed by Dorothy Judy Klein, Long Beach pianist.

SANTA advises his beaming buddy that the pair will appear at 5:30 p. m. today (Sunday) in "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer" on channel 4 in COLOR. The hour special was first telecast last December. Burl Ives dons the suit of Sam the Snowman in narrating the animated fantasy.

CHAMPIONSHIP BOXING, 9 p.m., in color, ch. 9, has tapes of last night's welterweight title fight between Emile Griffith and Manuel Gonzales, with Don Dunphy mikeside at Madison Square Garden. All pre-fight ceremonies are included.

SPECIAL

JR. ROSE BOWL PARADE—The nation's largest gathering of junior college bands, competing for a coveted trophy, is highlight of the 20th annual Pasadena parade to be described by Robert Paige at 9:30 a.m. ch. 5. (Same station color-tapes today's Fullerton-Henderson (Tex.) game for showing Sunday at 1:30 p.m.)

OUT OF THE ASHES — Part V of a retrospective look at the tragedy of the Watts Riots is slated for "Survey '65" at 7 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Highlight will be the first televised report of the McCone hearings presented Monday afternoon.

BARRY McGUIRE Shindig —The young singer who left the New Christy Minstrels to strike out on his own is starred in a special "Shindig" color presentation at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7. With Jimmy O'Neill hosting, McGuire is backed by two new singing groups — the Mamas and Papas and the Grass Roots.

These Gifts Neighborly

By Ruth C. Ikerman

WHEN picking out gifts for neighbors, what the modern family usually wants is something catchy looking and relatively inexpensive so that it can be given in quantity. Here are some simple suggestions which will help turn the ordinary and usual item into a most welcome gift of unusual beauty, combining the festive and functional.

If you are making a gift of fruit such as persimmons from your own tree, don't just put them into a sack, no matter how elaborately it is decorated. Save foil pie tins, and arrange half a dozen of the orange fruit against this silver plate. Pick a number of the leaves from this or some other tree, and spray them lightly with silver paint so that some of the green still shows through, making a mottled effect. Put the leaves at the edge of the tray, and you have a gift of royal appearance.

BUY AN unusual shade of tissue paper in the range of gold or yellow, and cut this to fit over a paper plate, leaving an extra inch around the circular edge. Put an assortment of cookies made with brown sugar on this harmonizing platter, and place a plain white paper napkin over the top. Instead of the customary ribbon bow, insert a tiny cluster of plastic oranges through the napkin.

Is your gift greenery from your fir tree? You can camouflage a bow by cutting a single piece of heavy foil to look like a tied bow. This involves two triangles cut toward the center with about two inches left straight in the middle between the triangles. At this point attach a plastic poinsettia, or a real or artificial spray of holly. The silver bow, the red flowers contrasting against the green, tied together with dark wire or heavy cord make your gift instantly ready to hang at the doorway of your neighbor.

SAVE THE inexpensive but durable tins which come through the years when the various flour and cake mix companies offer their special premiums. Use these as containers for home made candies, first treating them to special color treatment by applying spray paint.

One year, let your dishes be gold, another year silver, another year blue or red. Then put white lace paper doilies over the inside of the container. When the metal is filled with the candies or cookies, slip the whole container into a plastic bag, and tie the loose end with a simple ribbon bow.

NEXT WEEK

Famed Pike's Peak is not the chief tourist attraction in Colorado. That honor goes to the Cadet Chapel at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs—the most ecumenical church in the world. Next week, in sparkling pictures and story, Southland tells how this glistening, man-made attraction got that way.

SYNONYMOUS WITH CHRISTMAS

The Fruit of the Evergreen

By ELEANOR AVERY PRICE

CONES from evergreen trees are, to most of us, as synonymous with Christmas as the trees that bear them, and with holly, mistletoe, red berries, and Yule logs. One legend tells of Winfred, an English missionary who, on a journey to Germany to spread the teachings of Jesus, found a group of pagan worshipers about to sacrifice young Prince Asult to the god Thor under the Oak of Geismar. Winfred cut down the oak, and as it fell a young fir tree appeared, which, since it was covered with cones, Winfred declared was a tree of life.

So this is the time of year when we get a Christmas tree and when we take out the fruit of the evergreen—cones—stored away from our summer excursions or from last Christmas to touch up with spray and glitter or even use a la naturelle for holiday decorations.

CONES have other uses, of course. When growing healthfully on pine, redwood, cedar, and fir, they tell licensed woodcutters that here is good wood. When a squirrel sees heavy green cones, he knows he can count on eating. If you have ever visited a California national park in summer, you know jolly well you had better not sit directly under hard green cones hanging high overhead if there is a squirrel in the branches, and especially if the squirrel has suddenly stopped his screeching scolding which is his "Timber!" before he nibbles the last bite that lets a cone drop like a bomb.

For the California Department of Conservation, Division of Forestry, cones mean seed for its four nurseries. Each year nearly four million seedlings are grown to help renew state forests, particularly in burned or cut-over areas, for new Christmas trees on private land, and for use in research at the U. S. Department of Agriculture and Interior and at the University of California at Davis.

FORESTRY, and research personnel cannot, of course, depend on squirrels to drop cones for them. Instead, in 13 organized collecting zones in California, where there are ample cedar, redwood, Ponderosa and other pines, and white, red, and Douglas fir, tree climbers are employed. In September and October, at the peak of cone ripeness, the men climb trees with the aid of shoe hooks, ropes and pulleys. Heavy duty pole pruners serve as cone cutters.

Each type of cone is given individual attention. Location and date of harvesting are also noted. Once a tree is stripped of cones, the cones are sacked and hauled to camp where they are dried, reracked, and trucked to Davis or one of the other three nurseries.

CONES are again dried, then put through special equipment that shakes the seed free. Many seeds are needed to make any kind of a showing. Sierra redwood seeds, for one, are very small and many thousand are needed to make a pound. The seeds are cleaned and stored, or they may be

Stately pines are among oldest of tree types descended from forests of geological ages. The cones contain seeds to feed wild life and sustain the species from which they fall. The pine is attractive as yule decoration, and dipping cones in special dye is a project for older children —and one of which even the family cat approves.

One of teeners' unglamorous but very important chores is washing glasses, as Ann Carroll does.

Volunteens and Belles perform vital tasks in Long Beach hospitals

By M. E. EVERETT

"THE KIDS are invaluable."

That flat, unequivocal statement sums up the feeling of hospital administrators and medical personnel alike for the volunteer work of the various junior auxiliary members at local hospitals.

From the Volunteens of Memorial Hospital of Long Beach to the Belles of St. Mary's, the attitude of unselfish service in the teen-aged auxiliary members is a constant source of joy to hospital staff members—as well as to the object of their affections, the patient.

By performing chores and duties that would ordinarily require a staff member, the junior auxiliary members release more staffers to work in the hospitals.

This ultimately results in more attention to the patient, both by the volunteer and the regular hospital staff member.

Susan Ito demonstrates an important auxiliary task, that of pouring media in the laboratory.

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL'S Volunteens and St. Mary's Hospital Belles are typical of the youth groups that are so popular in the hospitals throughout the nation.

The junior auxiliary members are usually boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 18; however, in the case of the Belles of St. Mary's, they are composed of 150 girls only, ages 15 to 17 years.

Favorite job of most of the teen-agers is helping to entertain and feed the children.

They are also to be found transporting patients in wheelchairs and gurneys, delivering mail and flowers and assisting with coffee carts.

They run errands for patients, buying magazines, newspapers and other items. Volunteens and Belles help with clerical work in the office and assist in the medical library by sorting and stacking books.

IN A MORE technical field they assist in the laboratory pouring out media (a base for bacteria), washing glasses and cleaning test tubes.

The youngsters are a big help to the food service department with their work on the tray line and in delivering late trays.

The two favorite seasons for Volunteens and Belles alike are Christmas and Easter.

On Christmas they deliver special Christmas greetings to the patients.

THE VOLUNTONES — a choral group composed of members of the Volunteens — sing Christmas carols for the patients.

The Saturday before Easter is a big day for the Volunteens, too. They deliver Easter baskets to the patients.

The Belles make a big thing of their annual Christmas play which is staged for hospital personnel and ambulatory patients from the pediatrics departments.

Another of their favorites is the bake sale which they conduct every six months.

Hospital administrators are lavish in their praise for the youngsters and their work.

"IN THIS DAY and age when you see and read so much about juvenile delinquency and teen-age crime it is a real pleasure to see such a group of dedicated youngsters who are willing to devote all their energy to a really worthwhile cause," they say.

The administrators point out that the hospital experiences of the teen-agers provide them with a learning process by which their understanding of life is broadened.

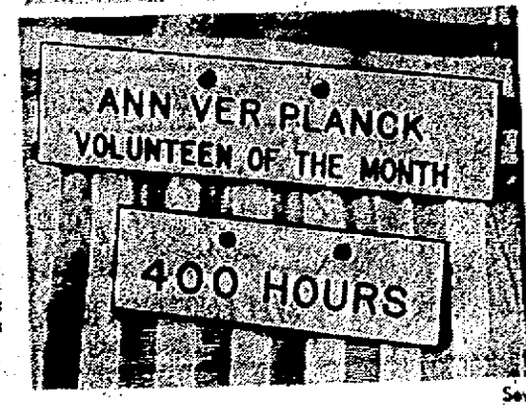

An important by-product of this learning process, as far as the hospitals are concerned, is that their relationship with patients affects their attitude toward people and makes them aware of and very interested in hospital careers where there is a perennial shortage of qualified help.

To point out the amount of service rendered by these youngsters, Alice L. Armour, director of volunteer services for Memorial Hospital, says that last year the Volunteens worked more than 16,553 volunteer service hours.

MISS RULE: Would GRESSLEY be difficult to trace? — J. G., Garden Grove.

GRESSLEY had its English beginning as "Graesley" in the 1200s. This home-location phrase described "owner of the grassy meadow." Gressley ancestors have been recorded in Derbyshire since the mid-11th century. Their armorial shield is covered with a pattern of alternating ermine and red fur pieces. The Gressley motto "Meliore fide quam fortuna" translates from Latin as "Better faith than fortune."

MISS RULE: Please identify MASSARI — J.M., Garden Grove.

MASSARI, also spelled Massaro in Italy, means "steward," referring to an ancestor who was a steward or manager of a manorial nobleman's estate.

MISS RULE: Please publish data on LE JEUNE — E.L., Lakewood; K.S., Long Beach.

LE JEUNE in France during the Middle Ages meant "the youthful one." The Le Jeune armorial shield is silver, crossed by a red stripe engraved with three roses.

MISS RULE: What is the source of GENT — R.G., Artesia.

GENT from Holland Belgium, depicted an ancestor from the famous Belgian city of Ghent. The city-name source was "Gant" meaning "rock." The Dutch Van Gent armorial shield is blue, crossed by a wavy silver chevron.

MISS RULE: May we have information on COLEMAN — J.C., Long Beach; A.C., Norwalk.

COLEMAN is in the Royal English Domesday Book of 1085, the earliest census. Coleman described "dark or victorious warrior." Robert, son of Coleman, was a farmer in Cumberland, England, in 1176. The Coleman shield is silver on the upper half, black on the lower part, decorated with a black and silver cross between four stars. John Coleman of England was an early 17th century New England settler.

The Thunder and the Agony at Pearl Harbor

U.S. Air Force Photos

In memory of brave men who died in Pearl Harbor's sneak attack by forces seeking to destroy the western world, the memorial (left) stands over the sunken battleship Arizona. Above, the holocaust aboard the sinking vessel after the infamous attack.

By EV HOSKING

THE PLACID waters of Pearl Harbor lapping around the base of the beautiful USS Arizona Memorial and, at the same time, covering what remains of the huge battlewagon, are a far cry from the Pearl Harbor of 24 years ago Tuesday.

It was a fairly quiet Sunday morning aboard the Arizona on Dec. 7, 1941, with some of the crew at breakfast and others getting ready for liberty.

Suddenly, thundering explosions jolted the mighty ship as torpedoes ripped into her port side. A large bomb hit the forecastle, penetrated to a powder magazine and the resulting explosion, in turn, exploded the Arizona's main forward battery magazines. The entire forward structure of the battleship was completely wrecked. The two forward turrets and the bridge dropped vertically between 18 and 20 feet and the Arizona sank in less than nine minutes.

As she sank to the bottom of Pearl Harbor, most of the crew went with her, including Rear Adm. Isaac C. Kidd, commander of Battleship Division One, and Capt. Franklin Van Valkenburgh, commanding officer of the Arizona. Of the 1,550 Navy and Marine Corps men aboard the Arizona, only 289 survived.

It is generally believed that more than 1,100 men still remain "aboard" the battlewagon. Those aboard are considered buried at sea.

U.S. Air Force Photo

THEDA JACOBSON JOHN NOBRIGA ELEANOR CARMINES

They knew the fury of the infamous attack on Pearl Harbor 24 years ago.

THE FIRST booms from the explosions ripping the Arizona and Pearl Harbor awakened 12-year-old Theda Jacobson in her home at nearby Hickam Air Force Base. She padded down the stairs to get a comic book to read in bed.

She wasn't sleepy and she figured the Navy was on routine maneuvers.

Then she heard her father, a master sergeant in the Air Force, cry "we're being attacked! I've got to help get the planes out."

This is the way Miss Jacobson, now a resident of Lakewood and a member of the Air Force's Contract Management Division at El Segundo, remembers Pearl Harbor day.

Her most vivid memory today is the awful suspense of waiting for the bombs to fall.

"We could hear them whistle through the air. From the time we heard the first whistle until the explosion was a tense moment. Once they exploded then I knew we were safe until the next one."

There were no orders for them to leave the base. In the confusion families had to make their own decisions. However, once they left the base, military authorities discouraged them from returning until the danger was past.

They drove to Honolulu and then they went to the University of Hawaii where a large ballroom was turned over to the refugees.

All this time Miss Jacobson's mother kept trying to find out what happened to her husband. Later they learned he was killed when dive bombers hit the hangar where he was working to get an airplane ready to fight back.

Miss Jacobson and her mother were taken aboard a troop transport on Christmas Day 1941 to return to the states.

AT TWO IN the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, John Nobriga finished work at Schofield Barracks and had to make a decision. Should he go into Honolulu then or wait until daylight?

He decided to go—and when he returned to the post after the Japanese attack he found the spot where he would have stayed had been riddled with bullets.

Nobriga, now a resident of 13842 Claremont St., Westminster, was ready to go with his family to church when a neighbor cried: "There's something happening at Pearl Harbor!"

They ran outside to see columns of smoke blasting up from the naval base. Then the radio broke with "all military personnel return to your bases. We are being attacked."

He immediately rushed down town and caught a taxi for the ride back to Schofield, the Army post in the center of the island.

The taxi got as far as the highway past Pearl Harbor and had to stop because Japanese strafing fire from the attacking bombers was ripping across the road.

"The boats were tied in rows," he recalled. "Smoke and flames were everywhere. From where I waited it looked like all were afire. The whole harbor seemed burning.

"The Navy was shooting back. The battleship Utah was on its back. I could see the Arizona burning."

During a lull between the first and second attacks, the taxi driver got across the strafed area and they headed back for Schofield.

Nobriga's post was with a replacement depot on the west side of the post. It was in a direct line with Koli-Koli Pass through which the attacking planes came.

They started strafing as they passed over. Fortunately 90% of the replacements were on leave. There were no casualties, but the bullet holes showed definitely that he had made the right decision when he went to Honolulu.

For the balance of the war he worked in the Army finance office and later came to the states to study for a degree under the GI Bill.

EARLY THAT same morning a traffic policeman blew his whistle at Eleanor Car-

Safe That Held History

By Helen L. Gillum

IN A SMALL alcove in the office of Hal McGrew, contractor, at 2951 Long Beach Blvd., stands an old, black, iron safe. It no longer holds valuables of any kind, serving now as a depository for odds and ends of papers and other miscellanea. But if the safe could talk, it would tell interesting stories of Long Beach's growth and development. For it once belonged to Long Beach's first lawyer, Elon Carlton Denio; and through its heavy doors passed countless legal documents pertaining not only to the city's history, but to many business establishments extant even today.

The histories of the safe, Long Beach, and the professional career of Denio are closely related. Denio, who came here in 1887, studied law at Wells & Lee in Los Angeles before establishing a law office in Long Beach in 1891. His first office was a small one-story frame building, 8x10 feet in size, at the northwest corner of Ocean Boulevard and Pine Avenue where the Heartwell Building now stands. A few years later, he moved into a new office at First Street and Pine, the present site of the Security Building, which now houses the law firm of Denio, Hart, Taubman and Simpson. Sometime during this busy period, Denio obtained the safe, made by Hall's Safe Co. of Cincinnati, from Thomas B. Clark in Los Angeles.

Records that made history in Long Beach were safeguarded in this strongbox in past years.

DENIO WAS elected to the city council in 1891 and, in 1896, became chairman of the board and mayor of Long Beach. He also served as city attorney for many years, drafting ordinances, resolutions, franchises and other legal papers for the city.

During Denio's tenure, the first city hall site of a city block was purchased for $3,000, with a rebate of $500! (The city hall was built at a cost of $9,000!) The first municipal pier in Long Beach — and the state, the first municipal auditorium, and the first sidewalks and street paving were attained under Denio's administration.

In 1895, Denio issued to Robert Benzie the first franchise for an "electric lighting plant", and the first water franchise to Bouton Water Co. The first Pacific Telegraph and Telephone Company received its franchise about this time, too. And in 1897, Denio drafted the bill that secured to the city again the property lost when the city was disenfranchised in 1896.

DENIO WAS resident counsel to a number of other local firms, such as the Security Trust & Savings Bank, Pacific Electric Co., Craig Shipbuilding Co. and the Craig Corporations. He also helped organize the Long Beach Bar Association in 1917.

The safe is 43 inches high, 30 inches wide, and 25 inches deep. McGrew, who is no "johnny-come-lately" himself—he arrived here in 1901 — received the safe years ago, when his wife, Mrs. Juliette Denio McGrew and her sister, Mrs. Geraldine Denio Loomis, decided that it should continue to serve the family. He values it as a historical souvenir of the community that grew from seaside marshes and sheep pastures to one of the most beautiful and progressive cities on the Pacific Coast.

Toys are everything to brother of artist Norman Rockwell

This Santa's Too Busy to Grow Old

By JEROME HALL

Jerry Rockwell (above) looks over an assortment of preschool toys that he has recently designed. Rockwell is as prominent in the field of toy development as his brother, the artist Norman Rockwell, is in art. Left, a tot plays with blocks and rods that provide a challenge to preschoolers to use imagination and creative talents. Basic materials for play backed by educators are squares, circles and triangles, all of which may be fitted over wooden dowels. All in colors.

IN THIS, the hunting season for millions of pseudo-Santa Clauses, the hunters are confronted by a myriad of choices, from talking sea monsters to buzz saws for 6-year-olds.

The problem, as anyone who ever has been a pseudo-Santa Claus knows all too well, is to find just the right toy for each little one.

Unfortunately, the end result is that the hunter finds just exactly the toy he/she wants for, not the child, but himself/herself. At least that's the view of a large number of psychologists and the view of one of the foremost toy designers, 73-year-old Jerry Rockwell.

The brother of famed artist Norman Rockwell, Jerry has been designing toys since the 1930s and is renowned himself as probably America's No. 1 designer of playthings for preschoolers.

TOYS FOR the youngest younger set is a subject that has come into a new importance. During hearings in the U. S. Congress on the Educational Act of 1965, psychologists and educators testified that many children failed to learn because of the waste of early childhood years, the peak learning years.

Into the Congressional Record went such statements as "Fifty per cent of the development of the child in a number of areas occurs before the age of 6," and "Children who fail to get (proper educational-value toys) fall behind other children from the beginning of school and continue to fall further and further behind."

Says designer Rockwell: "Children actually know more about selecting toys than their parents do and usually the parent will buy the wrong thing. Then the child will break the toy to get rid of it."

During his 30 years of toy-dreaming Rockwell has come to many conclusions about tiny-tot playthings. "It wasn't easy to introduce educational toys in the 30s," he recalls. "We had to force them into the stores by creating a demand. We did this by door-to-door selling to mothers, explaining their value to the development of mind and talent of their youngsters.

EDUCATIONAL toys are simply wood blocks cut to a wide variety of shapes that can be put together to simulate everyday sights—the mail truck, a train, auto or house. Working with various shapes, children are free to use imagination in building, tearing down and rebuilding.

"The reason we don't have many antique toys," says Rockwell, "is that in earlier days people thought toys were meant to break. Today we realize that a toy becomes, very often, a child's most prized possession. When it breaks he feels a great disappointment if it was a toy that was properly chosen and suited to him in the first place."

Rockwell says there really are no new ideas for preschool toys, just modifications. "We give a toy a new appearance, a new play value," he says. "Until three years ago adults wanted toys to be seen and not heard. Now we have music, bells, rattles and beep-beeps on everything."

Though he's far beyond conventional retirement age, Rockwell has no thoughts of slowing his pace. He reports to his Chicago office of the Playskool Co. research headquarters five days a week and, according to his wife, is on the job seven days a week.

"HE NEVER takes a day off," she says with a trace of impatience. "I've quit nagging him about a day off because he just says 'I can't make an appointment with myself to sit down from 9 until noon and dream up a new toy.' Actually, I think if he got away from toys for even one day he might turn into an old man."

But Rockwell says there is no danger of his growing old. Who ever heard of an old Santa Claus? A little weary once in a while, perhaps. But he's far too busy to grow old.

Above his desk hangs a constant reminder of the importance of designing toys. It is an oil painting of a white bearded gent in a red velvet suit, dozing. It was painted by Rockwell's younger brother.

"How," asks Jerry Rockwell, soon to be a great-grandfather, "can anyone who is surrounded by children and toys ever get old?"

'Don'ts' When Selecting Toys

DON'T CHOOSE toys that are not suited for a child's particular stage of development. A toy should stimulate new interests, create new challenges. A toy that is "too young" or "too old" for a child will leave parents and youngsters soon discouraged.

DON'T SELECT toys that are not soundly constructed and durable enough to take punishment. When a toy is broken, it's more often the fault of the toymaker than of the child.

DON'T FALL into the parent trap of buying "world-in-miniature" toys, so attractive to adults but which have limited play value to children. Battery or electrically-operated toys are fine for older children, but the preschoolers should have toys that stimulate the imagination.

DON'T OVERLOOK the simple, wooden toy that the child can take apart and put together. "Let's pretend" is a child's favorite game up to age 6. Simple blocks of varying shapes, sizes provide widest opportunities to pretend.

DON'T UNDERESTIMATE a child's ability. To the preschooler, the world is a fascinating place and learning is fun. Help him.

DON'T SPEND the entire year's toy funds at Christmastime. To the preschooler, educational toys are nutrition for the imagination. Feed that imagination the year around.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Oriental--Even to a Tea House

By Stella George

ORIENTAL pieces collected over the years have come to their full value in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kaspereit, 3326 Warwood Road. The Kaspereits designed and built the dwelling and Mrs. Kaspereit, who collected the Oriental items, did her own interior decorating.

Beginning with the exterior design, the theme is Oriental throughout, but it is unlikely that a Far Eastern dwelling place could match the livable features of this Lakewood Country Club area residence. Some of the larger details include a large tea house in the rear garden, big enough to accommodate a large number of guests.

Individual pieces of the furnishings are far too numerous to mention and each has a fascinating history.

Terrazo flooring is used in the spacious entrance hall where, on the right, a large mirror-front chest displays Oriental treasures. The living room is to the left. A gold-tinted mirror hangs above a sofa which is upholstered in gold and turquoise made of a silk fabric. Occasional chairs are done in peacock blue silk. Tiered tables are ebony, inlaid with mother-of-pearl. Pictures on the walls were hand made in the Orient, embroidered in minute detail. They are appropriately framed in bamboo. The coffee table is a handsome hand-carved chow table which has a glass top to protect (and display) the carving on the surface. Hand-carved stools, customed to surround the table, seat six guests.

A CURVED BLACK railing separates the step-up dining room from the living room. A long oval table is suited

A black wrought iron railing separates dining and living areas.

Oriental decor of other areas of the house carries on into dining room.

to dinner parties. All furniture of the room is Oriental, as are all the accessories down to the tiniest ornament on the buffet. The lace tablecloth was made for Mrs. Kaspereit by a friend who is 94 years old. The cloth is beautiful and shown to advantage over an undercloth of gold satin.

Wood surfaces in the compact kitchen are finished in Chinese red, carefully crafted to show the grain of the wood.

A service bar leads from the kitchen to the family room, where a large stone fireplace with a built-in planter at one end dominates one side of the room. A colorful lamp hangs over the planter. Built-in cupboards and drawers with bookshelves above are at the side of the fireplace. A sofa and Oriental coffee table is across the way. Handsome paintings, all in the Oriental theme, hang over the TV at the other end of the room.

DONNA and Beverly, the Kaspereits' daughters, share a bedroom done in tones of pink. Son Denny's room is done in autumn shades and features a built-in desk and shelves.

The master bedroom is a fantasy in orchid — carpeting, walls, and accessories. One far wall is "pushed out" with a large mural. The bedspread is in shades of orchid, lavender and lilac. An adjoining bath has a built-in dressing table next to the wash basin and matches the bedroom in color.

Exterior design sets mood for Oriental theme of the interior.

Q. Did the unicorn ever exist? J.W.

A. Many authorities believe that this fabulous beast was not entirely a product of the imagination. In the Muslim world, its prototype most probably was the one-horned rhinoceros of India whose form became distorted in reports of travelers and filtering through popular legend. Stories of unicorns may also trace back to the oryx, a swift antelope with two horns so slender that they seem like one in profile or at a distance. Transplantation of two-horn buds to form a single horn is another possibility. A scientist who created a "unicorn" in this way in 1933 believes that earlier peoples may have commonly practiced this trick.

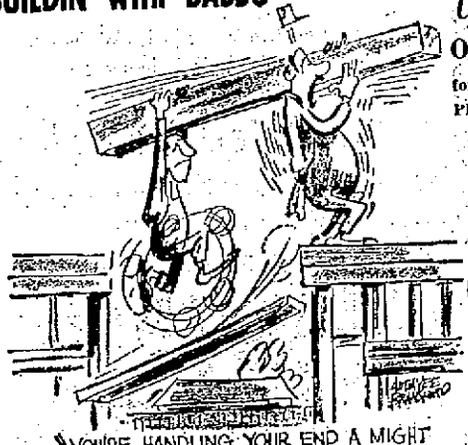

Q. Please provide a list of monuments in the United States which are dedicated to Negroes, or tell me where I can get such a list. R.O.

A. The American Oil Company has published a booklet titled "American Travelers Guide to Negro Monuments." This work describes the meaning, appearance, and location of monuments and memorials dedicated to, and erected for, American citizens of the Negro race. The booklet is available, without charge, from the Public Relations Department, American Oil Company, 910 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Q. Which upsets a human being more—a dark, silent room, or a room with low noises and vague lighting? G. V.

A. While scientists have found that both sets of conditions disturb the human mind, the more prominent disturbance is in a room with low-level, constant, unpatterned noise and light. Two Canadian doctors tested the reaction of students who were restricted in their movements and placed in totally silent and dark isolation chambers. They then tested another group under the conditions of unpatterned noise and light. They found greater disturbances under the second set of conditions, evidence that low-level noise and light are more disturbing to the total functioning of human beings than complete silence and darkness.

The Cliff-Hanger Railway

Snaking along the tortuous roadbed, a train of the cliff-hanger railway traverses Carriso Gorge. A man who knew no "impossible" built the road.

By Enola Chamberlin

THEY said it was impossible, this railroad, when there was talk of its being built across the mountains between San Diego and El Centro shortly after the turn of the century. It was called impossible of operation when, after much sweat and toil and ingenious planning it was finished 12 years later.

And recently other impossibles have shown up; the impossibility of salvaging the impossible beer, 11 cars, 72,000 cans of it which, when the cars went off the track, was spilled down into a rugged, rocky canyon.

It is such canyons with their almost straight up and down rocky sides which made experts say the railroad couldn't be built; that it was impossible.

AND PERHAPS it would have been to any man but John B. Spreckles. But he could see the track built and carrying trains. When he was told he would be throwing his money away on the project, he looked off into space.

"Maybe," he said.

Then he went right ahead and built it.

So it was finished. Spreckles drove a $286 golden spike into the last section at Carriso, Calif., on Dec. 1st, 1919.

"Well, you built it," everyone said, "but you'll never run trains on that winding, cliff-hanging track."

AND YET two trains, one each way, have run over that track every day since the first one sounded it out 45 years ago.

Still, though it grosses $3,000,000 in a year's time, it is an impossible railroad. It leaves San Diego as the SDAE, San Diego and Arizona Eastern. Its train is a freight. It enters and runs through Mexico as the T & T, Tijuana and Tecate. Cars loaded in the United States are sealed at the border by a customs official. A gate has to be opened to let the train cross.

Once in Tijuana the train becomes a passenger as well as a freight. Anyone having the few cents fare can travel the 44.4 miles to where the track crosses the border again at Lindero. The passengers dispose themselves in the train's rear car. They can get off at any of the stations. These are little Mexican towns where everyone stops work to watch the train go by.

Boys run after the train, almost but not quite keeping up with it. For over this stretch it makes but 11 miles an hour.

SO FAR, there seems no reason why the building of the railroad was called impossible. But the mountains soon provide the reason. Piles of bare rock, rugged and sharp, with canyon walls dropping away more than 2,000 feet down to more rock. And no flat acres for a man to walk, let alone lay ties.

So, the railroad hangs on the cliffs. Sometimes the wooden trestles which support it, holding it to the face of a cliff, are set 200 feet below. The turns and twists are continuous. At one place the track spans a gorge where the wooden supports rest 1,000 feet below.

But breathing spaces do come. From the sides of precipices the train plunges into tunnels—17 times in the 11 miles of negotiating the mountains. The most spectacular stretch of road is where it winds along the rock side of Carriso Gorge. The bottom here is 2,350 feet below.

THE INCIDENT of the lost beer occurred in a canyon nearer to San Diego and 1,000 feet deep. The railroad made no effort to salvage the beer, but some adventurous individuals did — only to learn something of impossibilities.

The beer location is inaccessible except by negotiating four miles of track and two one-fourth mile tunnels. Men tried it on foot, in a Jeep and on motorcycles. These last succeeded in saving their lives by getting hurriedly out of tunnels when trains thundered into them.

Some hikers did reach the beer canyon. One, being lowered into the canyon by a rope, received a fractured skull.

And the irony of it all is that the beer once out of the refrigerated cars and warmed, even though chilled again, would not taste good.

The beer spill will be forgotten; an incident which might happen anywhere. But the amazing railroad goes on, proving by its continued existence and its operation, that some men's vocabularies contain no word "impossible."

Come To Our Big Birthday Celebration

Chicken l'Orange

By Mildred K. Flanary

Home Economics Editor Southland Magazine

DELICATE, tender chicken . . . juicy Florida oranges . . . readily combine for a tantalizing dinner-dish sensation that's bound to be remembered with pleasure long after the event.

The recipe for Twin Chicken l'Orange is reminiscent of French cookery. Plump whole broiler-fryers are stuffed with fresh orange chunks and tarragon, rubbed with garlic, and roasted. Half an hour before the end of cooking time, the chickens are basted with a tart-sweet sauce of orange juice, chicken stock and wine vinegar to give them a handsome glaze. Then the cooked birds are removed from the pan and the sauce thickened. Arrange the chicken twins on your prettiest platter, garnish with orange slices and fresh watercress, and serve with the hot sauce.

COIN ROUNDUP

Chapel Coins

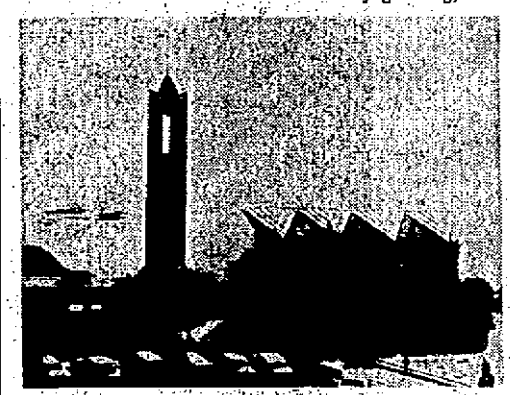

By Maurice Gould

ON A RECENT trip out West, my wife visited a church called The Wayfarers' Chapel in Portuguese Bend, Calif.

This all-glass structure was built on a rocky point overlooking the ocean. Shrubbery and exotic plants circle the building, and in many spots cover the sides and roof, giving the edifice a picturesque and unusual appearance.

There are more than three-quarters of a million visitors from every corner of the world to the Chapel each year, and the offerings they have donated form the nucleus of a coin collection which has been on display since February 1964.

The collection has been continually growing, and every one of the items on display had been left in the offering plates at the Chapel.

Wayfarers' Chapel houses a coin collection of worldwide representation.

As the collection has grown, quite frequently wayfarers will note that certain coins from their homeland are missing and will mail them to the church upon their return home. There are 38 countries represented in the collection, and along with the coins are various pieces of paper money. All the Continents are represented, as well as both sides of the Iron Curtain.

THE PURPOSE of this collection is to show the geographic spread of the visitors to the Wayfarers' Chapel.

The coins are mounted in vinyl coin holders and only one of each denomination is displayed, with dates and mint marks disregarded.

The minister, Rev. Robert Loring Young, a former Bostonian whose parents live only a few miles from my own home, has spent considerable time and effort classifying these coins and currencies, which should prove fascinating to both the public and experienced collector alike.

To order the booklet, "Coins of Special Value," send 50 cents with name and address to Coin Roundup, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801. Allow three weeks for delivery.

Making Pottery by Hand

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

CREATING something useful with your own hands is a basic urge—and the desire to mark into wet, unblemished surfaces is instinctive.

A good many people would like to make pottery pieces especially for Christmas presents, but they hesitate to put out the money for a pottery wheel.

A wheel isn't necessary; hand-created articles have more individuality, insists Carlton Ball, master potter. He and Janice Lovoos, artist and writer, pooled their talents to produce "MAKING POTTERY WITHOUT A WHEEL, Texture and Form in Clay" (Reinhold, $9.95), high on the list of Christmas books.

This comprehensive and well-illustrated book covers every phase of hand-building and decorating clay pieces, working with tools usually found in the home. Finger tips, jar tops, pen knives, saw blades, match books, carpet tacks, bits of string, lengths of burlap, kitchen door springs—the list is endless—can be used to make interesting patterns in clay.

Ball and Mrs. Lovoos then show how clay may be draped into a mold, folded over a newspaper mold, wrapped around a form. Step-by-step instructions and illustrations show how to make pots, bowls, tiles, panels, etc., with suggestions for table tops, patios, floors, gardens and garden walls, playrooms and fireplaces, any area where original ceramics will enhance the decor.

THE 35TH EDITION of "CHRISTMAS, An American Annual of Christmas Literature and Art" edited by Randolph E. Haugan (Augsburg Publishing House, 426 E. Fifth St., Minneapolis, $1.50 and $3.50) captures the joy and reverent spirit of Christmas in art, literature, poetry and music.

Better Homes and Gardens "1965 CHRISTMAS IDEAS" (Meredith, $1.35) offers a variety of ornaments, wreaths, trees, gift wraps, mobiles, toys, bazaar gifts, recipes and creches to inspire the homemaker's creativity.

AN IMAGINATIVE account of the Holy Family's flight to Egypt after the Infant's birth at Bethlehem, the refuge they found in the desert, and events that led to their return to Galilee is given by Louis Untermeyer in "THE SECOND CHRISTMAS" (Hallmark Cards, distributed by Doubleday, $2.50).

GEORGE O'BRIEN, for many years news editor of The New York Times, edited a comprehensive new book on how America lives, "THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK OF INTERIOR DESIGN AND DECORATION" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, $15) He conducts a photographic tour of some of the most attractive and comfortable residences across the country from the east to the west coasts. Homes are not of the very rich; rather they are the homes—houses, apartments and vacation houses—of persons of average means with excellent taste. Incidentally, O'Brien thinks personal taste can be developed by any interested person. He discusses handling difficult spaces, arranging furniture and accessories, displaying art or book collections and color matching. The 240 pages contain 275 illustrations, 27 in full color.

HISTORY'S most fateful decades — the 1930s and 1940s—are retold by Bruce Bliven in "THE WORLD CHANGES" (Day, $6.50) through the lives of eight men who changed the modern world: Roosevelt, Churchill, Ghandi, Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini, Chiang Kai-Shek and Emperor Hirohito. By following the individual careers, Bliven separates the strands of the complex events—the most destructive war of all time, the deepest economic depression, the rise of the welfare state and the death of colonialism.

MUCH HAS been written about the "dirt" archaeologists who discovered the ruins, graves and other artifacts of ancient civilizations in Egypt, Mesopotamia, Central Asia and Mexico. After them came the scholar-adventurers looking for the written records of these civilizations.

"TESTAMENTS OF TIME, The Search for Lost Manuscripts and Records" by Leo Deuel (Knopf, $8.95) in a sense is the "archaeology of books." Deuel tells about the intrepid men who followed faint trails in strange places, discovered unknown or lost texts and then laboriously deciphered them. The story of the Dead Sea Scrolls is one of many.

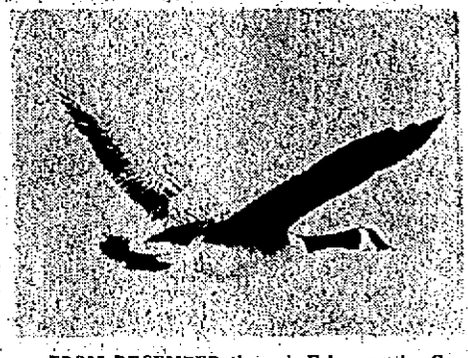

TWO WORLDS compete for the son of an immigrant in Peter Sourian's "THE GATE" (Harcourt, Brace and World, $5.75.) The Old World contends for Paul through his Armenian family, the New World through the sophistication of urban America. Paul's father is an unforgettable character — Sarkis, an architect, self-assured, forged in the toughness of a people long used to suffering and long the victim of cruelty.

Paul and his sister Grace have Sarkis' mercurial emotions, but not his toughness. Her problems are compounded by the demands for adjustment made by her marriage to an idealistic minister of Scandinavian stock.

Armenia colors every page of this at times sad, at times humorous fictional account of the emotional turmoil that has boiled for myriads of families in the American melting pot.

ENGLISH translations of three of the works of master storyteller I. J. Singer, classics in Jewish literature and the Yiddish theater, are being published by Harper & Row. If the acclaim accorded Singer's "Brothers Ashkenazi" is a criterion, the reissues should receive wide acceptance.

"YOSHE KALB" ($4.95), the true story of a saintlike Talmudic scholar whose blunder into bigamous scandal inflamed and divided pious Jewry of eastern Europe, is the first of the reprints. It is translated by Maurice Samuel and carries an introduction by the late author's renowned brother, I. B. Singer.

FROM DECEMBER through February the Canadian goose wings its way across California. It not only migrates to California (clever bird!) but also nests and winters here. Above, one of the 74 photographs in "THE GIANT CANADA GOOSE" by Harold C. Hanson (Southern Illinois University Press, $7.50).

Blueprint for Fun

By Virginia Clark

IT'S MAGIC! A scraggly old weed or a plain leaf can be turned into a beautiful blue picture in no time, and mothers can help their children have fun too. They can make magic prints with leaves and weeds, and perhaps incidentally learn about nature. Materials are inexpensive and even a small child can make the pictures easily. Those of the cub scout age will spend happy hours gathering nature materials, printing and developing their leaf art.

When you know how, this trick of photography is simple. Place a leaf on a white piece of blueprint paper which is held in place with a piece of window glass, hold in the bright sun several minutes, remove the paper, wash in a potash rinse and presto-chango, you have a picture of a dainty white leaf on a blue background.

Blueprinted leaves and flowers, framed with tape, provide an attractive wall decoration.

LIKE ALL well organized magicians, you must have everything ready before the show starts. Buy the print paper at a blueprint shop. It sells for 25 cents a yard which makes about a dozen or more sheets. At the same store purchase the necessary amount of potash for the rinse, at 10 cents a quarter pound. Put masking tape around the edge of a piece of glass approximately six by nine inches. Hinge the glass with tape to a cardboard the same size, using the same masking tape. Make several of these if you plan a group activity. Several hours before using the blueprint paper, reroll it the other way. It will be easier to handle. Keep out of the sun while cutting the blueprint paper into pieces slightly smaller than the glass. If you plan to let the children frame their pictures, cut cardboards to the right size; have photographer's tape, and glue-on picture hooks at hand. Now it's time for the children to gather their weeds, flowers and fern-like leaves. If they are young, one leaf may suffice, but if they're older, they could plan an arrangement of several leaves or weeds. Provide two pans of water (two rinses are necessary) and one of the orange colored potash solution. (Mix the latter, one tablespoon to a quart of water).

THE CHILDREN roll up their sleeves, fold back the hinged glass, place the light-blue-colored print paper on the cardboard and on it quickly arrange leaf or leaves. Put the glass down firmly and hold in bright sun, or until the blue color fades—about three minutes. Remove paper, rinse in clear water a second, then place in orange potash solution till it turns blue, about one minute. Wash off in the second water, and the magic picture is done! In addition to having fun with photography, children can learn about leaves, and this will be more meaningful if the adult helper is well informed. The children's section of the Public Library recommends "Leaves" by Bertha Morris Parker and "Discovering Design" by Marion Downer, as excellent books for background.

Finally, the children will have a great feeling of satisfaction if their pictures are hung. So when the prints are dry (dry between small turkish towels on flat surface) have the youngsters glue them to the same size cardboard, frame neatly as possible with photographer's tape, and fasten a picture hanger on the back.

Parents will be happy to have their walls decorated with a row of their child's attractive blooms in blueprint!

Intimate Mural to Fit Decor

By Steve Ellingson

MANY PERSONS think of murals only on a grand scale, requiring large rooms with large walls, but this is not true.

Murals can be intimate and in small limited areas should be of a size for enjoyment at close quarters. Breakfast nooks, bathrooms, hallways and all small rooms call for a mural of moderate proportions. The one pictured at left with Leona Irwin, of the CBS Red Skelton show, fits this category. It is three feet tall and 28 inches wide. Any amateur can paint it when the full size pattern is used. Just trace the pattern on the wall, then paint over the tracings.

The pattern clearly shows what colors go where and gives different color combinations to match mural with decor of a particular room. Directions are included with each pattern.

To obtain the full size Flower Bouquet pattern No. 317, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

THEY HAVE worked more than 65,000 volunteer service hours since the organization was formed in 1960.

The Belles are sponsored by the St. Mary's Hospital Guild and their red and white striped uniforms are a welcome sight around the Long Beach hospital where last year they put in a total of 6661 volunteer hours.

The St. Mary's youth group is now four years old. The Volunteens are sponsored by the Volunteens Committee which is composed of adult members of the hospital's volunteer auxiliary.

"If the hospital was sending out report cards, these kids would get straight 'A's'," says Ted Krec, director of public relations for Memorial Hospital.

"As it is all we can do is say thanks, from the bottom of our hearts."

The statement is echoed wholeheartedly by staff members of St. Mary's Hospital.

etched and scratched to help germination. In some cases, seeds are chilled in moist vermiculite for a few hours, then refrigerated at 33 to 35 degrees Fahrenheit. Time spent in the refrigerator depends on seed specie.

Good seeds do not occur regularly. Sometimes it takes several years for quality renewal. And good tree climbers are hard to come by, for the turnover is great. This may be due in part to the fact that other work during the rest of the year is not satisfying.

Bombs Over Hawaii

mines in downtown Honolulu. She wondered what she had done. Then she heard him shout:

"Get under cover! Don't you know we are being attacked?"

"I couldn't believe it," she recalls at her present day home, 311 E. 44th St., Long Beach.

"I'd heard the bombs while I was still in the shower before leaving home, but like almost everyone else in Honolulu, I thought it was a Navy maneuver."

"I remember thinking that this must be the roughest maneuver they ever had."

She hurried to her office. From a top-floor window she could see the entire panorama of Pearl Harbor under attack. She worked for the Army Corps of Engineers and was scheduled to work Sunday.

The Rising Sun was clearly visible on the attacking planes as they swooped down to blast the ships lined up on "battleship row."

Her view of the battle came to an abrupt end when an Army antiaircraft shell looped over the city and exploded in the building across the street. At the time the engineers did not know the shell's source. They thought their headquarters was under attack because they had all the plans for military construction in the Pacific islands, including those as far away as Guam.

They fled taking with them the construction plans.

"We went down on the waterfront in the Hawaiian Tuna Packing Company's plant, Mrs. Carmines recalled. "The tuna pressure cookers, large enough for a man to walk upright in, made wonderful air raid shelters for us."

She spent the rest of the day making sandwiches for those detailed to dig foxholes. They then moved to Punahow School where she spent the first night after the attack typing orders for transport of the wounded and for graves for the dead —giving her a graphic picture of how much damage the attack had done.

Later in the month she was given the opportunity to return to the states. "But I felt I had lived through the worst and might as well stay around for the finish," she said.

FAR REMOVED from the scene of the Arizona burning, in the mess hall on Midway Island, Allan Hall was eating breakfast when the communications network blared:

"Japanese planes are bombing Pearl Harbor!"

He dropped his fork and ran to his position in the communications section of a gun battery and waited for the expected attack on Midway.

This is the way that Hall, now of 4581 W. 129th St., Hawthorne, recalled how he heard of the Pearl Harbor attack.

"We were ready," he said. "We had been on alert for a week and had changed the old ammunition in our ready magazines."

But the attack was delayed until after dark. They were finally hit by a Japanese cruiser and two destroyers.

"The cruiser had eight-inch guns. We couldn't come close to it," he said. "Then a destroyer got overbold. We ripped off his superstructure with our three-inchers. He turned west and ran into our five-inch guns."

After this they were harassed each afternoon by submarines that would surface in the sun and shell the island.

"They seemed to always catch us in the showers," he said.

THE ONLY news they got was pickup from censured commercial newscasts. They could not find out what had happened to Pearl Harbor, but did hear that Wake Island had fallen.

"We heard President Roosevelt's broadcast in which he said loss of Midway was expected."

There were 600 of them on Midway and Hall recalls that all 600 were in complete disagreement with their commander-in-chief. "We did not intend to lose the island."

They didn't. The Japanese push was halted by the historic battle of Midway. The first planes off the Japanese carriers came right over his gun position. They hit the hangar back of the guns. He rushed to help get the planes out of the burning hangar. The gooney birds kept getting in the way.

"You had to kick them out of your path. Then they would bite you like a bunch of geese."

Following the successful defense of Midway, Hall followed the Marine-Navy push through the Pacific for 52 months.

NOW, 24 years later, all four of these who know the day of infamy close up are comfortably settled in the Southland.

But they all have one thing in common—whether or not it was based on their Pearl Harbor experiences they don't know. But they all still work for the United States government — the U.S. Air Force.

And while they enjoy recalling the day of excitement in their lives they pray fervently that it will never happen again.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Antiviral Need Told

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

A NEW antibiotic, vivomycin, is effective against influenza virus in mice, British researchers report.

Research so far is only preliminary.

Meanwhile, Polish scientists have found that an old drug, p-NBP, inhibits the activity of a certain virus in animal experiments.

Research pertaining to the compounds is reported in Antibiotic News and in the English scientific magazine Nature.

There's a big push in science now to develop drugs that will be as effective against viruses as antibiotics are against bacteria, fungi and other micro-organisms. At present there are only a very few effective antiviral drugs used in clinical medicine, and these are used only for limited situations. What is needed is a drug that will knock out a wide range of viruses in the human system.

CHRONIC pulmonary disease now constitutes the greatest single medical problem in northern Europe, says famed researcher Dr. Rene J. Dubos.

Meanwhile, he says, pulmonary ailments are increasing at "an alarming rate" in North America and will likely spread to all areas undergoing industrialization.

THE BRITISH Ministry of Aviation has warned pilots of the hazards of certain medications.

For instance, says the ministry, tranquilizers and sedative drugs depress fear, which is an effective alerting system. Such drugs have contributed to fatal aircraft accidents, says the ministry's report.

Pilots are urged not to take any medicines before or during flight unless they are familiar with the effects of the medications on themselves.

CALIFORNIA State Health Department is concerned about the bad habits of automobile seat-belt owners.

A study conducted by the department's Family Research Center discloses:

Although about two-thirds of belt owners wear them regularly for highway driving, only half this number use them regularly around town.

This failure to use seat belts regularly for local driving is alarming because of the following fact:

Two-thirds of all auto fatalities occur within 25 miles of home. And more than half of the accidents causing injury or death involve speeds of less than 40 miles an hour.

A NEW pamphlet dealing with allergies may be had for the asking. Send a business-size envelope, stamped and self-addressed, to: Allergy Foundation of America, P. O. Box 1005, New York, N. Y. 10017. Ask for: "Asthma, Hay Fever and Other Allergies."

WOMEN appear to be more susceptible to canker sores than men, and this common infection seems to run in families, the U. S. Public Health Service reports.

An estimated 20 to 50% of the U. S. population is afflicted at some time during their lives with canker sores—painful recurrent ulcerations of the mouth.

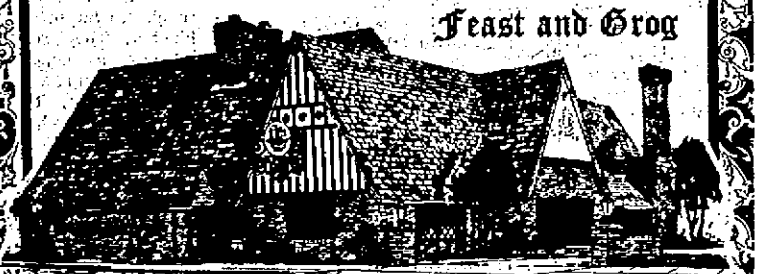

A new publication, prepared by the National Institute of Dental Research, discusses four types of oral ulcerations. Single copies are free. Write: Public Health Service, Washington, D. C. 20201. Ask for: "Canker Sores and Other Oral Ulcerations" (PHS Publication No. 1329).

Susan and the School With a Heart

By Norman Perkins and Jennie Rotherham

"GOD gave me His love and kindness when He brought me to Carl Harvey School," so, the young redhead types on the electric typewriter. "Without this chance, I would be totally helpless and unable to push my own wheelchair or walk on my crutches."

Eighteen-year-old Susan Kading, and 115 other physically handicapped persons attend Carl Harvey School, 1325 E. 4th St., Santa Ana.

Each morning, promptly at 9, Susan arrives on a bus provided by Taylor School Bus Service. She is lowered to her wheelchair in a special hydraulic lift in the rear of the bus, while others go carefully down the steps, with crutches and braces, or are carried to wheelchairs.

They are looking forward to another day of learning, exercising and fun. Susan takes herself to class, pushing the chair with her right arm and giving a little more power with her left foot. She even manages to go up a 35 degree ramp.

SOMETIME during the day, she goes to physical therapy. The present school director, Dr. Ray Moudy, tells the importance of the therapy program. "We must remember what the cerebral palsy child would be like without treatment or care. Two-thirds of our pupils have this handicap. Susan was almost completely helpless, but now she moves about in her chair, has learned to stand, and then walk on crutches."

As he continues, a serious expression comes over his face. "Cerebral palsy is not a disease," he says, "but results from an accident before, during, or after birth. It cannot be inherited. Certain areas of the brain are damaged, causing paralysis, poor coordination, and many muscular difficulties. The condition cannot be cured, but it can be improved, just as can our other disabilities like muscular dystrophy and spina bifida."

Susan's fighting determination to succeed has carried her through many trying times. About five years ago, she underwent surgery to lengthen the ligaments in the back of her legs, with the hope it might enable her to stand. For six months, her legs remained stationary in two full-length plaster casts. She had to endure the frequent pain of muscle spasms.

AFTER THIS, she was fitted with heavy steel correction braces. She began standing in a standing table, a large wooden device used by many of the Carl Harvey students. It surrounds the individual, giving essential security against falling.

Finally, the day came when Susan graduated to a cerebral palsy walker. Hours were spent, endeavoring to learn the fundamentals of taking steps one by one.

Something much better followed this. Susan rose up on special crutches. Except for physical therapist Ruth B. Smith and Susan, no one thought this ever possible. "When I know I can do something," Susan spells on her talking board, "it can be done."

This talking board is the young girl's communication line. Because of her severe speech difficulty, she spells out words or points to one of the words in the lists of commonly used verbs, adjectives, and conjunctions. Examples are "and", "to", "go", "from", and so on. Speech therapist Barbara McDonald devised this rectangular cardboard and its valuable printed contents. It has meant a new life for Susan. She carries on quite involved conversations with her classmates, neighborhood friends, church group, and the personnel at Disneyland. She is an avid fan of the Magic Kingdom.

OCCUPATIONAL therapy is also provided for Susan and her classmates. Susan has been taught to feed herself and perform many of the usual activities of daily life.

To back up therapists and teachers are the clinic doctors, an orthopedist and pediatrician. All children and their parents are seen in clinic once or twice a year, according to individual needs. They work together to decide the best way to carry on the treatment and training at home.

Carl Harvey School is a result of a project begun in 1938. Mrs. Harvey Sigrid Brown taught a small group of cerebral palsy children in a room in John Muir Elementary School, Santa Ana. The woman had barely any money for the project and spent hours after school, making her own teaching aids, games, charts and books.

In 1945, Mrs. Marjorie Dudley became principal of John Muir. She immediately began a campaign for better equipment. Then Carl Harvey, the new assistant superintendent of schools, was persuaded to attend some meetings in Los Angeles, concerning information on cerebral palsy. He became converted to the cause and put the matter of lack of funds before the school board. They appropriated $9,200 to be used that year. That summer, Harvey died, unexpectedly, after an operation. Plans for a new school came to a standstill.

Then, in 1947, the school board asked Mrs. Dudley to sketch a plan. Donations poured in. New bungalows were opened in May of that same year.

THESE BUNGALOWS are still in use, containing a primary and special class. Susan attends classes in the newer annexation. In the morning, Mrs. Geri Keys instructs her and others in typing mathematics and other subjects.

In the afternoon Susan goes to Brown's workshop. Here, the projects are varied. At Christmas, the young people make glittering corsages.

Each teacher has an invaluable assistant to help see to everyone's wants and needs. Three of these assistants are Mrs. Ruth Luman, Mrs. Edna Harris, and Mrs. Gertrude Kuikahi.

Susan is one of the lucky ones, for Carl Harvey has a long waiting list. Cost is kept at a minimum of about $1,800 per year, with most of the special equipment being purchased with donations from service organizations and individuals.

The attitude toward the handicapped has changed, thanks to Susan and others like her. They are accepted, by most, as being fully capable of making a decent life for themselves. They go to parties and church activities, have basketball teams, and have even devised their own way of dancing. Wheel chair dancing and listening to music are two of Susan's favorite activities.

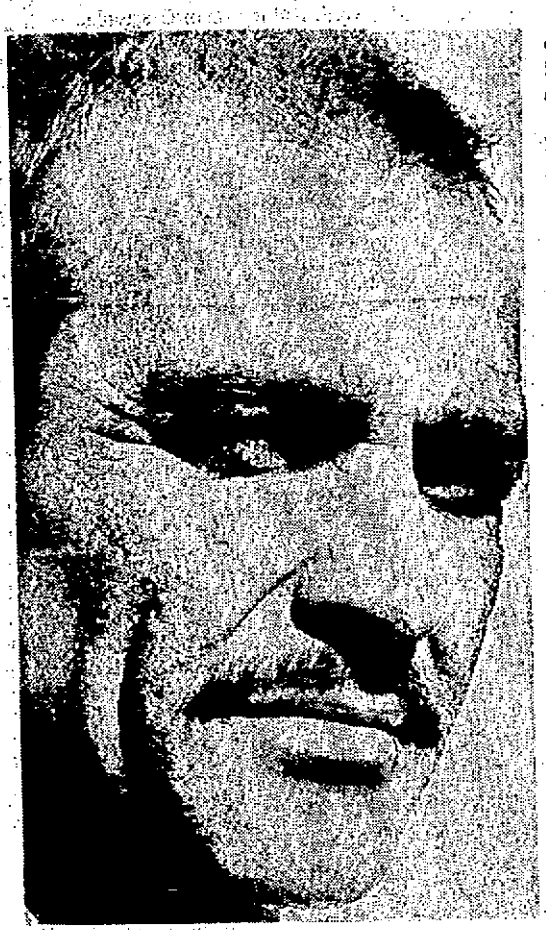

The school works for constant improvement. The goal is enormous: to bring the handicapped to full capacity of their potential abilities. Carl Harvey is a school with a heart, filling Susan's heart with hope for the future.

Because of a school with a heart, Susan Kading is learning achievements toward a useful life.

007 Deserts for 'The Hill'

Sean Connery does an abrupt departure from his usual parts for gruelling role in "The Hill."

IS THAT Sean Connery on the screen? THE Sean Connery? A prisoner? Needing a shave?

Yes, that's THE Sean Connery, unshaven, a prisoner, troublemaker, maybe even a coward.

In "The Hill," an MGM-Seven Arts Presentation, the handsome broad-shouldered Scotsman makes an abrupt and striking departure from his dashing James Bond characterization. He stars as British Warrant Officer Joe Roberts, who has been court martialed for striking a commissioned officer for alleged cowardice under fire.

And every bit as dramatic as the character change for Sean Connery is the change in setting. Gone are the gambling tables, the posh hotels and the posher women. Gone is the out-of-this-world science fiction derringdo.

IN "THE HILL," produced by Kenneth Hyman and directed by the talented Sidney Lumet, the scene is a grimly realistic British military stockade in North Africa during World War II, where the chief torture instrument is a man-made hill of sand, 35-feet high, shooting upward at a 60-degree angle.

With full packs, under a blazing sun, the prisoners must climb the hill, again and again, on the double. And from the start, Joe Roberts is singled out for special attention.

If your knowledge of Sean Connery, BTH (Before "The Hill"), begins and ends with the Bond series, you'll be surprised to learn that the rugged 6-foot-2-inch 190-pounder began his theatrical career as a chorus boy in a touring British company of the musical "South Pacific."

AND BEFORE that — another surprise in view of his cinematic enlistment in Her Majesty's Secret Service as 007 and in the British army in "The Hill" — he actually served in the Navy for three years, on battleships, an aircraft carrier and at gunnery school.

Then came the odd jobs without which no actor's biography would be complete: cement mixer, bricklayer, steel bender, coffin polisher, lifeguard.

All the muscle-building occupations came in handy for "The Hill," with its gruelling action filmed on location in the blazing 115-degree heat of a sandy wasteland near the southern Spanish port of Almeria.

In the first four days of shooting, Connery and three other leading actors were injured. While double-timing up "the hill" with a 65-pound pack on his back, Connery severely pulled a leg muscle, and spent the rest of the day in a chair, with his thigh strapped.

ADD TO THIS a bad case of sunburned legs—the British army wears shorts, 4 inches above the knee, in warm climates. The star, calling it "the worst attack of sunburn" he'd ever had, said ruefully, "If you've ever had sunburn behind the knees, you'll know what I mean!"

None of this could ever happen to 007, of course, but then Warrant Officer Joe Roberts, of "The Hill," is a totally different—but in his way, equally memorable—character. Which is just what Sean Connery, determined not to be eclipsed by James Bond, wants.

60 Million Years to Make a Park

By Bill Stephens

Trail, lower right, is one of many that take weekend visitors into "Devil's Punchbowl."

WHEN Nature sets out to make herself a masterpiece, it sometimes takes her 60 million years.

But when she's finished, as in the case of the Devil's Punchbowl in the Angeles National Forest, she can even outdo herself.

Families looking for unusual places to visit on weekends might drive a lot farther than the 75 miles from Los Angeles Civic Center to the Punchbowl to find something which equals this natural outdoor wonder, but it's not likely they'll find anything to surpass it.

This deep Grand Canyon-like depression in the Angeles National Forest, located in a 1,270-acre nature reservation park operated by the County Parks and Recreation Department, has much to delight, and more to amaze, the casual weekend spectator.

TRIALS WINDING down into the Punchbowl take visitors past towering rocks pushed hundreds of feet into the air by gigantic forces exerted by the nearby San Andreas earthquake fault, which actually passes through the park.

The San Andreas Fault, which extends from San Francisco to the Gulf of California, can be recognized by the great "earthquake crack" apparent in the area. The crack resulted from the Fort Tejon quake of 1857, which is said to have dwarfed the San Francisco cataclysm by comparison.

This fault has contributed to the character of the Punchbowl over the past 63 million years, compressing, folding, breaking, faulting and uplifting rocks until they stand in a topsy-turvey, awe-inspiring fashion.

REMAINS of prehistoric animals are still being identified in the Punchbowl, including recent discoveries of Miocene Age (13-25 million years B.C.) creatures such as a three-toed horse, a primitive camel and an ancient skunk-like animal.

"Waterfalls and creeks, a wide variety of trees and vegetation, and most of all —an unearthly silence— in the park infect every visitor with a profound revery," says Supervisor Warren M. Dorn.

A picnic area at the lip of the Punchbowl offers the visiting family with a chance to lunch in the shade of the San Garbriel Mountains. Cooking stoves are being thoughtfully installed for the convenience of nature habitues.

For all its splendor, the Punchbowl does have drawbacks. It's big enough for hikers to get lost there, and some do. County Parks officials recommend visitors stick to the trails to avoid the unpleasant situation of getting lost overnight — many a night there are sub-freezing temperatures in the area.

AS STATED, the Punchbowl is a nature reservation. Nature took a long time to create her masterpiece, and County Parks and Angeles National Forest people are determined to keep it the way it is. If visitors take the same point of view, weekenders will find it looking just the way it does now, 30,000 years from now.

Weekenders of this century can reach the Punchbowl in Antelope Valley by driving north on the San Diego or Santa Ana Freeway to the Golden State Freeway, north to Highway 6, north to Highway 138, east to 131st Street-East (Pearblossom), South to Tumblewood Road, and left on Tumblewood Road to the Punchbowl parking lot.

Recipe of the Week

CASSEROLE cooking has many advantages and a casserole recipe wins this week's $5 prize for Gail V. Medick, 259½ Grand Ave., Long Beach 90803. The recipe:

Macaroni, Kidney Bean Casserole

1 De Luxe macaroni dinner
1 lg. can red kidney beans, undrained
1 lg. can meat sauce
1 lg. can mushroom gravy
1 onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tblsp. cooking oil
2 lbs. ground round

Prepare macaroni dinner as directed on package and place in greased casserole. Sautee onion and green pepper then add meat and brown in the 2 tablespoons of cooking oil. Combine the macaroni dinner, kidney beans, 2 sauces, and meat mixture. Mix well and bake in 350° oven for 1 hour, stirring twice. Serves 8.

Twin Chickens l'Orange

2 whole broiler-fryer chickens
1 tsp. salt, divided
6 Florida oranges, divided
3 sprigs of tarragon, divided
1 garlic clove, sliced in half
4 tblsp. sugar
¼ cup red wine vinegar
2 cups chicken stock
4 peppercorns
1 tblsp. cornstarch
Watercress

Sprinkle cavity of each chicken with ½ teaspoon salt. Hook wing tips into back. Remove peel of 1 orange with vegetable peeler. Cut peel into long strips and reserve for sauce. Squeeze juice from this and 3 other oranges and reserve juice for sauce. Cut 2 of the squeezed oranges into small chunks. Fill body cavities with orange chunks and one sprig of tarragon each. Tie legs together with strings, then tie legs and tail together. Rub each chicken with garlic clove. Place chickens in shallow open roasting pan. Roast in 375° F. oven 30 minutes per pound.

Meanwhile, prepare sauce. Stir sugar and vinegar together in saucepan; bring to boiling, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Reduce heat and simmer about 5 minutes or until mixture thickens slightly. Add stock, remaining sprig of tarragon, peppercorns and salt to taste. Bring to boil; let simmer about 10 minutes. Add reserved orange juice. Strain sauce into bowl; add reserved orange peel. Pour sauce over chickens during the last ½ hour of roasting, basting frequently. Remove chickens from pan onto heated serving platter; remove cavity filling. Stir a little water into cornstarch and stir mixture into orange sauce in pan. Heat sauce to boiling, stirring until smooth, clear and thickened. Garnish with slices of remaining 2 orange and watercress. YIELD: 8 servings.

Orange Glazed Chicken

1 can (6 ozs.) Florida orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted
¼ cup water
2 tblsp. soy sauce
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. salt
1 garlic clove, crushed
2 tblsp. slivered candied ginger
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces

Combine undiluted orange concentrate, water, soy sauce, pepper, salt, garlic clove and candied ginger. Pour over chicken pieces in shallow dish, let marinate in refrigerator about 3 hours or overnight, turning occasionally. Remove chicken from orange sauce and place in baking pan. Bake in 375° F. oven, brushing frequently with orange sauce until tender, about 45 minutes. If desired, heat any leftover orange sauce and serve hot with chicken. YIELD: 4 servings.

Make Your Own Pinata

The devil himself would enjoy taking a whack at this rakish-looking item.

Bag, stuffed with good things and shaped like pirate, makes a pinata.

By Betty Lois Eckgren

A POPULAR import from Mexico, the pinata adds merriment to a Christmas party. Often it is an earthenware jug filled with nuts and candy, raised and lowered on a rope while blindfolded contestants take turns whacking at it with a stick until it crashes to the floor, spilling good things to eat on all sides.

But it need not be earthenware, which packs a wallop if it swings into the blindfolded whacker or unwary spectator. Safer pinatas can be made out of strong paper bags, crepe or tissue paper, and a few simple classroom or household supplies.

It's easy to make a pinata:

1. SELECT a sturdy paper bag with a bottom approximately 6 inches x 8 inches. If you want an especially strong pinata, place one bag inside another.

2. Fill bag (bags) about half full of hard-shelled nuts and wrapped candy, which make a neat and sanitary cascade when the pinata spills its load.

3. Tie the bag closed with strong cord, allowing enough cord so that the ends can make a two or three-foot loop and join again in a strong knot above the top of the bag, for suspending the pinata.

4. Most bags are divided into two parts: the big heavy base (containing the goodies) and a smaller bulge to form a head. Stuff the upper part (parts) with wadded newspaper and tie bag tightly above stuffing. Folded strips of additional newspaper may need to be tied around the outside to obtain desired shape. If string doesn't hold paper in place adequately, use staples, brads, or curved needle and thread.

5. SUSPEND pinata from looped cord to determine center of gravity. Cord may have to be adjusted for better balance if the bag is to be held on its side.

6. Now that the basic shape is right, and proper balance obtained, cover the surface of the pinata with a layer of appropriately colored tissue or crepe paper, pasted down with any soft, abundant paste (flour and water mixture is excellent). The color of the bag can be allied to the theme. The natural tan of the paper bag is a good skin color for a pirate figure.

7. Cut long strips of crepe or tissue paper about three inches wide, fold lengthwise, and fringe with a scissors. These will make the basic covering for such designs as a rooster, turkey, owls, or devil.

8. Rest the pinata upside down and paste strips of fringe around it, beginning at the bottom of the sack and working toward the top (downwards), with fringe hanging down. When dry, turn pinata right side up, and fringe will curl downward to afford a fluffy, feathery effect.

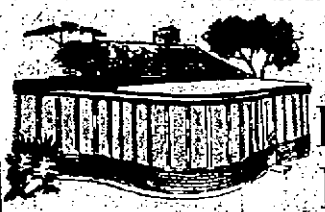

Details vary with each pinata. A devil pinata's horns and collar are made of aluminum foil. A pirate's eye, eye patch, mustache, lips, hair and beard are fashioned from construction paper.

An antique car pinata is made from a shoe box swung from four strings laced together through the bottom of the box and reinforced by plastic stripping stapled along the sides of the car where the string is. Red construction paper covers the back of the car and upper sides. Toy wheels, film reels, cellophane tape cans, or jar lids may be used for wheels. The headlights are tops from plastic squeeze bottles. The license is an identification tag made by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Candy and nuts are stuffed under the hood and seats. The seats are folded cardboard stapled or stitched into position. A car pinata permits of endless elaboration, but you would do well to remember its inevitable end and allot the time and effort accordingly.

Shoe box, fashioned into antique car form and filled with goodies, makes interesting pinata.

Interest in Specialties

By Eleanor Avery Price

MISCELLANEOUS classes at dog shows provide additional interest to the standard activities, featuring mostly Akitas and Shih Tzus.

The Akita has had numerous names. He has been referred to as Japanese deerhound, Shika Inu, Japanese spitz, among others. And there is some confusion as to his weight. Most of the dogs we see must weigh close to 100 pounds, which is large. Yet in an older English book it reads the Akita weighs about 50 pounds. The Akita is supposed to be the standard representative of three Spitz varieties of Japanese dogs. The three are called Large Nippon Inu, the Medium Nippon Inu, and the Small Nippon Inu. If the Akita actually is the medium, it would be interesting to see the large.

* * * *

IN ANY EVENT, the Akita is not a common breed because it was on the verge of extinction from the end of the last century up until 1928 when a group of fanciers led by Hiroshi Saito and Ichiro Hata carefully fostered the breed and brought it to the attention of the public. The society was called Nippon Inu Hozonkai.

Centuries ago, the Japanese shooting men and woodsmen took the Akita with them into back country when hunting deer, sable, wild boar, and bear. The breed had an excellent scenting nose, so he served as pointer, setter, and retriever. Since his appearance resembles northern sled dogs, and because he can work like one, serve suitably as a police and army dog, and guard his home extremely well, his present-day fanciers are striving to have him recognized by the American Kennel Club as a working dog. This big moment should not be far off. He was imported from Japan into England in 1937, and undoubtedly would have been well established in America before now had not the Second World War affected his importation from the Orient. It is fortunate that returning American servicemen were able to bring fine progeny of British breeding stock to our country.

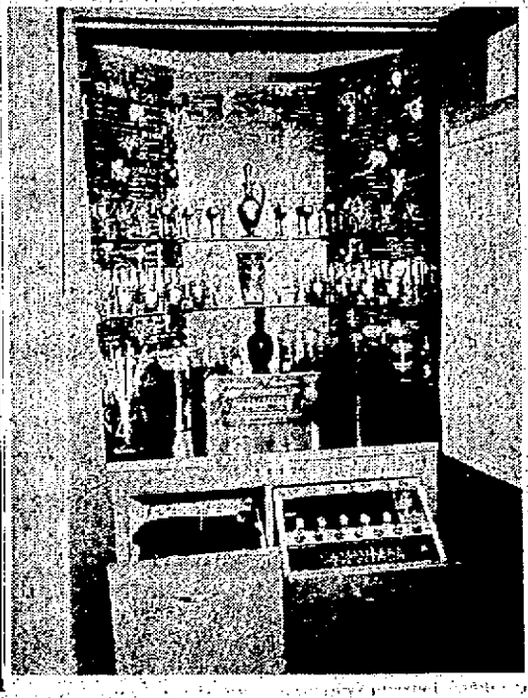

Orange County Shorthair Cat Club has scheduled a show Dec. 11-12 at the Fairgrounds, Costa Mesa.

Handsome Akita, property of Anita Powell of 1723 Canal Ave., poses with a pretty model.

Stereo Bar

IN THE "Pilot Room" of the home of Mr. H. G. Appleton, 25 Laguna Place, there is a built-in bar with stereo beneath that is as attractive as it is functional. The bar is lined with black wallpaper featuring dozens of cocktail recipes as the design. Glass shelves hold an assortment of rare and treasured (and usable) glasses. Necessary bar equipment is on the wide bar shelf below. Above, indirect lighting adds its own decorative effect. Inner sides of the doors reveal a display of photos and memoirs of the owner's many world tours. Below the bar, doors open to show a fine stereo ready for instant use.—STELLA GEORGE.

Science for You

By Bob Brown

PROBLEM: A test for vitamin C.

NEEDED: Cornstarch, water, tincture of iodine, orange or lemon juice, a heat source and containers.

DO THIS: Boil a teaspoon of cornstarch in a cup of water. This dissolves some of the starch. Put ten drops of this mixture and one drop of tincture of iodine into half a glass of water. Add food containing vitamin C, such as orange or lemon juice, drop by drop, until the blue color disappears.

Try fresh orange juice, then test some that has been boiled for five minutes. This will show that cooking destroys the vitamin C.

WHAT HAPPENS: Starch and free iodine unite to form a substance of unknown composition called starch-iodide. This delicate blue-purple color is removed by heating or adding enough fruit juices containing vitamin C.

Boiling citrus fruit destroys vitamin C, at least in part.

(Suggested by the State of Illinois, Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction.)

A collection of the "Science for You" experiments is in book form and sold in better bookstores. It is called Science Circus.

YOUR GARDEN

The Soil's the Thing With Roses

By Joe Littlefield

American Heritage, a 1966 AARS winner, like all roses, does best if planted in good soil.

IT'S THE SOIL "down under" more than what you put on top of the soil that counts most in getting roses away to a good start and a long life of high productivity.

Prepare the soil in advance of planting, and you give a new rose a fine send-off, because the organic matter you work into the soil "leavens" it. This stimulates beneficial bacterial action, invites angle worms to work there, holds the moisture longer and aids in breakdown of fertilizers so that the roots benefit from all of it.

THERE are two schools of thought pertaining to rose soil preparation. Some firmly believe it is best to prepare the whole flower bed, others just as sincerely believe in preparing the individual large holes for the roses. Personally, I prepare the holes, later mulch the whole rose bed surface, and have good results. The consensus probably would be individual for rose hole soil preparation.

Then, too, there are a number of organic type materials one may use. Premoistened peat moss, leaf mold, well rotted manure, or compost soil are most used. The prepared mulches are better balanced.

GENERALLY, one-third to one-half of the planting hole is filled with organic material, a heaping cupful of bone meal and a handful of soil sulphur are scattered over the material, the rest of the hole is filled with soil. The materials and soil are dug over together to mix it, then slowly and thoroughly soaked down. A week later, the soil should be dug over again, then soaked. The soil is ready for planting several weeks later.

Modern, improved roses yield better, larger, more fragrant blooms. AMERICAN HERITAGE, 1966 All-America Rose Selections Award winner, is an attractive ivory yellow with suffusions of scarlet and vermillion, throughout the perfect full-flowered blossoms.

Dorothy Digs

Most of us have a few house plants and they are a real source of enjoyment if we cannot work in our outdoor gardens because of the weather.

In planting new or repotting old plants, it is best to sterilize your pots and use all new planting mix.

There are so many good planting mixes on the market these days that it is usually cheaper to buy one or two bags already prepared than to buy the many ingredients to make your own.

Do not over water your indoor plants and do feed them monthly with an all fish fertilizer.

About twice yearly I like to give them a feeding of a fertilizer with chelated trace elements.

By using these precautions you should have good healthy plants.

There are two sprays on the market that are very good for your house plants—one is a spray especially made for the bugs that attack tender leaves and the other is a Kelthane produce for mites.

Garden Clubs

Christmas decorations of her own creation will be shown by Alice Martin at a meeting of Garden Grove Branch, California National Fuchsia Society, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Iva Meairs School, Newland Street and Trask Avenue, Garden Grove. A plant table will be a feature. Public invited.

Long Beach Fuchsia Society will have a Christmas program and installation of officers Thursday evening at Machinist Hall, 728 Elm Ave. A potluck ham dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

"Orchid Odyssey in the Americas," a travel talk illustrated with color slides, will be given by Jack A. Fowlie at 7:30 p.m. Thursday before members of the Southern California Horticultural Institute in Plummer Park, Hollywood.

Wheel Control

One of the basic fundamentals of sound driving is keeping two hands on the wheel. This necessitates a firm grasp—hands placed at "10 and 2 o'clock" or "9 and 3 o'clock" on the steering wheel. This allows a driver to turn quickly to the right or left as unexpected situations arise.

Remember, if you reach to the right there is an automatic pulling downward by the left hand so that the car is steered, sometimes drastically, to the left. Use your head and your hands to drive safely.

Stay Alert

At least five cars in addition to your own concern you while driving. They are the one ahead, the one behind, the one approaching in the opposite lane, the one ready to enter from a side street, and the one parked at the curb.

You also must watch cars moving parallel with yours. Be prepared for any one of them to do anything without warning.

Think First

Before you start to aim your camera, think of what you want the picture to say. Then, take several shots of the subject from various angles. Employ archways, leaves or branches as a frame for the picture. By using some imagination, the most standard, often-snapped scenes can be made into prize winning photos.

Camera Tip

Here's a tip for making photos of houses and tall buildings: Shoot them head-on, holding your camera level. If you tip the camera up, the lines will converge near the top, giving the structures a distorted, pyramid shape. Hold the camera level, with the edges of the buildings lined up with the edges of the viewfinder.

Garden Tips

Garden tips for the week . . . A native ground cover that can be planted now is the attractive, pink-flowered Point Reyes Manzanita. Leather leaves, shiny red stems and a spreading, prostrate habit make it an appropriate all-year ornament for hillsides or informal gardens. Manzanitas are slow to start, but once established will survive under the most adverse conditions.

Continue garden cleanup. Rake and dispose of leaves; spray as necessary. Cut back spent perennials and remove annuals that have finished blooming. Move tender potted plants to a protected spot to avoid damage from frost.

If you're a camellia connoisseur (or if you're just beginning to grow them) this is the time to collect them. C.A.N. nurseries are receiving large shipments of camellias in bud and in bloom, among which you can find scarce varieties and new introductions. Give them good drainage, rich acid soil and filtered shade.

Deciduous magnolias should be planted now. The Star magnolia is a small tree with starry white, sweetly scented flowers in early spring. All magnolias thrive in rich, moist, well-drained soil.

This is an ideal time to feed lawns. Dress bulb beds with bone meal and water in. Add manure and other organic matter to your soil at this time to replenish nutrients and help it stand up to the winter rains without packing.

Whirls of Color

GARDNERS can plant a carousel of color with the new Whirligig zinnias. The brilliant whirls of color that typify these large-flowered, fully double blooms are borne in a Joseph's-coat of bicolor and combinations. The rich carmine inherent in Whirligig combines and contrasts with gold, soft pink, white and scarlet and some exotic and startling combinations with gold, scarlet and carmine all appearing in the same flower. The flowers grow up to 4½ in. across and are borne on plants 20 in. tall, reaching a spread of 24 to 30 in. Whirligig is a sparkling subject for gay bouquets and for intricate and unusual arrangements and effects.

A Bit of Magic in a Den

ONE WALL of the den in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Gordon, 11622 Martha Ann Drive, is painted bright red. Double doors open to reveal an exciting array of treasured knickknacks with the television set placed in the center shelf. The doors are particularly interesting because Mrs. Gordon cut two ovals out of each door and then lined the ovals with sheer black chiffon. The effect is dramatic and eye-catching, and the area is as functional as it is attractive.—STELLA GEORGE.

lect term meaning "King," refers to the forefather's annual participation in a village pageant. After decades of enacting the part of a king in the ceremony, the ancestor assumed this title as his name. The Koenig armorial shield is red, emblazoned with a large blue "X"-shaped cross.

MISS RULE: Please inform us on WHORLOW.—M. W., Long Beach; P. W., Santa Monica.

WHORLOW is a variation of the English town name Wardlow in Derbyshire. In the 1100s Wardlow, then "Weard-hloew," referred to "place of the lookout hill."

MISS RULE: What is the source of PALOMBA.—L. P., Lakewood.

PALOMBA is a form of the Spanish surname Palombar designating "At the dove-cote" where the family home was located in a village. The Palombar armorial shield is blue, decorated with a silver dove.

MISS RULE: Please give genealogy data on JUDD.—R. J., S. B., Long Beach; J. J., Santa Ana; L. J., Garden Grove.

JUDD was adopted as a surname in honor of Saint Jude, one of the Twelve Apostles. Jude deciphers as "man who is praised." Judde and Judd were the early English forms of Jude. One Jude ancestor was Lord Mayor of London in 1550. The Judd armorial shield is red, decorated with three silver boar heads.

Gourmet's Guide

by Todd Thomey

Southland Dining at its Finest in the Long Beach and Orange County Area

A COUPLE of months ago, John T. Webster — thinking man's proprietor of the Corsican Room, 5430 E. Second St. — decided to prove something to the Long Beach area's dining out public.

"People have been conditioned," he said, "into believing a couple can no longer dine in a top-class restaurant for less than $5. But that conclusion is completely false."

To support his statement, Webster began emphasizing an unusual entree on his epicurean menu. It is Icelandic catfish, which the Corsican's chefs prepare in batter and pan-fry. Sweeter in flavor than bass, the fish is rich, boneless, flaky—and utterly delectable. The restaurant charges merely $2.35 for this delicacy and serves it in elegant surroundings on linen-covered tables. Moreover, the entree is accompanied by a host of side dishes, making it a truly remarkable dining out value. Included are chilled relishes, soup du jour, superb large salad, warm dark and light sourdough breads, beverage and dessert of ice cream or sherbet.

Webster, former president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, has been rewarded by seeing his theory embraced enthusiastically by scads of discriminating diners. The catfish, caught in icy waters off Iceland, has become one of the Corsican's most popular entrees. A beautiful establishment, Mediterranean in decor, the restaurant is also noted for the quality of its luscious, charcoal-broiled steaks, from $4.35, and its gourmet prime rib au jus, $4.50.

Now open seven days a week, the Corsican serves dinners from about 4:30 p.m. on. Composer-pianist Franz Steininger, a personable Viennese with a great following of fans, entertains in the lounge.

Q. Can you tell me how much money our government gives to Cuban refugees arriving in Miami?—F.T.L., Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Each family is given $100 per month until relocated. Relocation costs are also paid for by the U.S.A.

Q. Mme. Hervé Alphand, the great hostess, wife of the former French ambassador, who was her husband before Alphand? — D. E., Washington, D.C.

A. She was first married to Etienne Bunau-Varilla, son of the owner of the famous Paris wartime newspaper, Le Matin.

Q. How many children does Jayne Mansfield have?—Judy Johnson, Frankfort, Ky.

A. Five children.

Q. I understand that birth control pills are on sale in drugstores within 500 yards of the Vatican in Rome. Is this so?—J. T. Prince, Boston, Mass.

A. Yes, but only on prescription.

Q. How much did Vince Edwards' quickie marriage cost him?—G. T. Lombardi, Cleveland, Ohio.

A. Edwards of Ben Casey fame was married to Kathy Kersh in June 1965, separated in August the same year. The court ordered him to pay $1500 alimony per month for one year, $300 per month child support and medical costs for the expected baby.

Q. I know singer Barbra Streisand is very anxious for her husband Elliott Gould to make it big as an actor. How much did she invest in the flop play, Drat the Cat? —Ida Gold, Newark, N.J.

A. $100,000.

Q. Who said: "A friend in power is a friend lost."?—George Findley, Moline, Ill.

A. Henry Brooks Adams.

Q. I understand the leading writer in France at the moment is a female ex-convict named Albertine Sarrazin, that she will run off with all the literary awards for 1965. Can you tell us anything about her? — Diane Lefcourt, Cambridge, Mass.

A. Albertine Sarrazin, was born in Algeria and abandoned. Her stepparents brought her to France in 1947. She was raised in the south, went to Paris as an adolescent, supported herself by prostitution. She helped masterminid an armed holdup, was caught, sentenced to jail for eight years, married a fellow convict in prison in 1959, then began to write autobiographical novels, two of which now head the best-seller list in France.

Q. Is it true that Evita Perón, late wife of the Argentine dictator, once ran a brothel in Buenos Aires, kept a card catalog on all officer customers? Is it true that Perón's present wife, Maria Martinez, was a cabaret dancer in Panama before Perón picked her up?—Carlos Lopez, Miami Beach, Fla.

A. Evita Perón's reputation in Buenos Aires was not of the highest. The present Señora Perón (above) is a former cabaret dancer.

Q. How old are Frankie Avalon and Fabian? How has each managed to stay out of the army?—Tony Fiore, Jersey City, N.J.

A. Avalon is 25, Fabian is 22. Avalon is married and a father. Fabian has been deferred, expects a call-up in the near future.

Q. I would like to know who is making Anne Ford's wedding dress. She's Henry Ford's daughter and will marry Giancarlo Uzielli on December 28th. Also are these two Roman Catholics?—Francis Ingels, Chicago, Ill.

A. The wedding gown will be made by Oscar de La Renta. Anne Ford and her husband-to-be are both Roman Catholics.

Q. All the children of Franklin D. and Eleanor Roosevelt, all five of them have been divorced. Is this because their parents arranged all their marriages?—V. T., Miami, Fla.

A. Franklin D. and Eleanor Roosevelt arranged none of their children's marriages.

Q. What is the full name of the leader of Herman's Hermits? How old? Where does he come from?—Ann Rafferty, Piedmont, Calif.

A. His full name is Peter Denis Bernard Noone. He is 18, was born in Manchester, England, is the vocalist and leader of the Hermits.

Q. A novel called The Consort was suppressed in Great Britain. What is it about, and why was it suppressed?—Ian McCleod, Princeton, N.J.

A. It was suppressed in England on the advice of lawyers who thought some people might see a resemblance between the consort and Prince Philip. In the book a prince consort deserts his queen for a dusky girl in the "Backward Islands." He is escorted home by paratroopers where plans are made to hang him for his infidelity.

Q. How many U.S. troops in Japan?—Xavier O'Connor, Brooklyn, N.Y.

A. As of this writing 36,000.

Q. Is the U.S. using mercenaries in Vietnam to fight the Viet Cong?—Frank Gillespie, Vero Beach, Fla.

A. We are.

Q. Recently I read in the Wall Street Journal: "Of the nine justices now sitting on the Supreme Court of the United States only two can be fairly said to have had any real judicial experience prior to being named to our highest court." To which justices does the paper refer?—L. T. Allen, New York, N.Y.

A. William J. Brennan, Jr. (above), formerly justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, and Potter Stewart, formerly judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

HOW OUR LAWS DISCRIMINATE AGAINST CHILDREN:

CRIMES FOR KIDS ONLY

by SID ROSS and WILLIAM KILPATRICK

Smoking a cigarette, having a beer, shooting a game of pool, leaving home or even "idling away time" are not crimes in the United States. Not for adults, anyway.

But for any one of these "offenses" and many more—some so vague as to defy definition—kids in this country can be and often are picked up by police, brought before a judge, found delinquent and packed off to correctional schools and detention homes, sometimes for years during the course of which they become hardened criminals.

These juveniles, mostly from underprivileged families, are often denied legal counsel, inadequately advised as to the specific charges against them, tried without jury by what at times are little more than kangaroo courts and are deprived of their liberty—without benefit of many of the legal safeguards guaranteed citizens by the Constitution.

To get the facts behind this disquieting story of legal subcitizenship for juveniles, PARADE talked to attorneys, judges, officials of institutions and organizations concerned with the welfare of families and children and to the juveniles themselves. What PARADE learned is that how kids are handled by the law often depends on how much money the parents have and what and who they know. For less fortunate minors, the cherished "due process of law" can be an empty phrase.

Many authorities feel that laws originally drawn to protect the welfare of youngsters are now being employed punitively as social controls, not as social remedies.

ROPEWALKERS BEWARE

Some "crimes" for which kids can be arrested are ludicrous.

In New York, for example, a child under 16 being trained as a rope- or wire-walker can be deemed delinquent, apprehended and brought before a juvenile court.

In South Dakota, spooning juvenile couples can't take a stroll down Lovers' Lane after dark.

In Michigan, a juvenile can be picked up and detained for "idling away time."

None of these "crimes" pertains to adults. Yet for youngsters violation of such obviously outmoded laws can lead directly to barred windows and—despite protestations that juvenile court proceedings are not "criminal"—a permanent record.

According to William H. Sheridan, assistant director, Division of Juvenile Delinquency Service of the U.S. Children's Bureau in Washington, about 27 per cent of the cases brought before juvenile courts are for violations of "ordinances or regulatory laws applicable only to children." These include curfew violation, truancy, illegal use of tobacco and alcohol, incorrigibility, waywardness, being a runaway or ungovernable or a person "in need of supervision."

A Children's Bureau review of the inmates of 15 training schools shows that between 25 and 30 per cent are being detained for violations of laws that, had the violators been adults, simply wouldn't exist. For violating these laws kids can be unfairly victimized.

For example, in Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love and the birthplace of our Constitution, 15-year-old Peter is confined to the Youth Development Center, a collection of grim, fortress-like brick buildings right out of Gaslight. He has been there since February of this year, committed for "an indefinite period." His crime? School truancy and "absenting himself from home." His parents are both drunks. Is it any wonder Peter chooses to stay away from home?

At the same institution 13-year-old Charles has been confined since July, also for truancy and running away.

"I've done a lot of running away," Charles told PARADE. "I don't like to go to school. The kids tease me."

Because Charles doesn't like to be teased at school and because Peter would rather not face the ugly spectacle of two drunken parents, both are in jail.

At present most state and federal laws pertaining to children give juvenile courts the widest possible latitude. And—tragically—in many instances such courts simply pack a kid off just to get rid of what is in actuality a social problem, not a legal one.

"Many of these situations don't belong in the area of law," claims Sol Rubin, legal counsel for the National Council on Crime and Delinquency. "Many come under the heading of neglect and should be handled as social problems."

Rubin says communities should have proper services and facilities to aid children in trouble and their families. He thinks the police and courts should not become involved unless a law applicable to all ages within a society is violated.

"I don't see," argues Rubin, "how courts can deal soundly with, say, truancy on a delinquency basis. How does society 'solve' the problem of a habitual truant by committing him?"

A number of lawyers, legal scholars, judges, the Civil Liberties Union and various child welfare organizations agree with Rubin and are working to have archaic statutes overhauled, or at least interpreted differently.

"If we examine Indiana's catch-all delinquency statute," declares Frederick E. Rakestraw, judge of the state's Fulton County Circuit Court, "it is evident many provisions that serve for a determination of delinquency could just as well serve for a determination of neglect. And perhaps a finding of neglect would have a better effect on the community than a finding of delinquency."

WHAT A COURT IS NOT

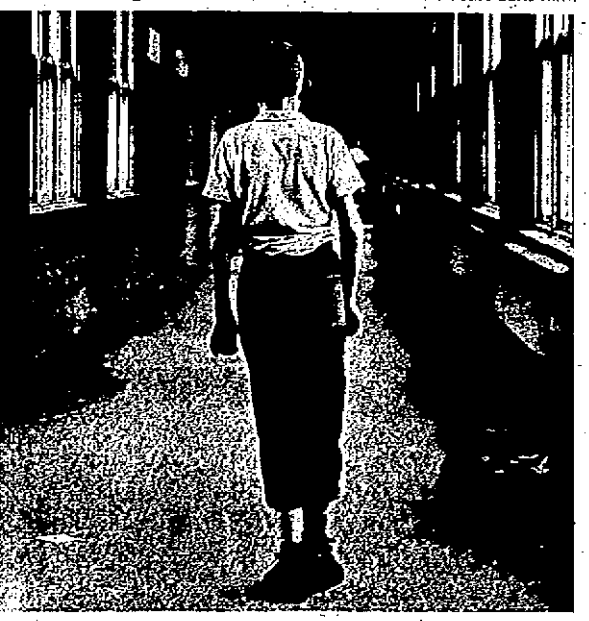

Judge Rakestraw says a juvenile court is not "a social worker, a psychiatrist, a family counselor or a kindly old philosopher."

There are of course many who feel that juvenile laws should be made tougher. Still others are for leaving things as they are.

Most police and court officials claim that juvenile courts act as protectors of children, that such court proceedings are hearings and not trials, that commitment to an institution is "treatment" rather than punishment. They say that since the laws are designed to help children, there is no need for the usual Constitutional protections. Finally, they claim that it is right and proper to term "delinquent" chronic truants and children schools and parents cannot control.

The assumption is that both schools and parents care. But too often nobody cares, and a correctional school or detention home is a poor substitute.

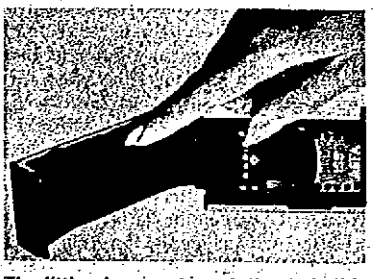

13-year-old Kevin is a chronic truant needing psychiatric help he doesn't get at Philadelphia "school" to which court sent him.

This Christmas be a nice Santa Claus and give the AGFA ISOFLASH-RAPID, the instant-loading camera that gives you really sharp pictures.

Rapid loading is a snap. And a pleasure. Just plop in a roll of Agfa-Rapid film (black & white, color print or color slide). Flip the advance wheel and click the shutter a couple of times. Shoot. And say good-bye to fumbling, threading and rewinding.

The little gizmo we're pointing to in this picture is a pressure plate. It puts the pressure on your film. Makes sure it rolls out flat as a pancake, and stays in just the right alignment for sharp pictures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 times.

But there's more to this camera than 16 sharp exposures and rapid loading. Examples: A nice big viewfinder. A fixed-focus lens. A flash unit that zips up and down right out of the camera. An easy-to-squeeze shutter. Even an honest-to-goodness one-year guarantee.

Price? $17.45 complete. By complete, we mean you get the whole shooting match: camera, case, long-lasting Mallory battery, bulbs, and Agfa-Rapid film. (We even have a smaller shooting match for $14.95.)

So, what are you waiting for? Hop on your sleigh and jingle on down to your nearest camera, department or drug store. Stick our sharp little outfit in your sack. And make a rapid hit with your whole family this Christmas.

OUR MEN IN GERMANY

260,000 strong, ready for action—and keeping one eye on Vietnam

AN ON-THE-SPOT REPORT by ED KIESTER

On the town, GI's Harvey Peterson and John George strike up acquaintance with German girls in Bad Nauheim.

FRIEDBERG, GERMANY.

Where, outside its own borders, does the U.S. keep the greatest number of troops today?

If you asked that question of the average American housewife, the chances are nine in ten she would answer "Vietnam." Through build-up after build-up, so the headlines remind us daily, the ugly war in that unhappy Asian nation now claims more than 100,000 of our best fighting men. Included are some of the Army's top divisions.

The fact is, however, that a far larger force is concentrated in a different part of the world. Here in the shadow of the Iron Curtain, more than a quarter of a million men are braced for another kind of war —one few expect will ever break out. They are the American forces facing the main Communist threat from the Soviet Union. And today, as the upcoming anniversary of Pearl Harbor once more focuses attention on the Pacific, the GI's on the front line in Germany are the forgotten men of world events.

What are 260,000 GI's doing in Germany today? What occupies them 20 years after the U.S. arrived as conqueror after World War II? How ready are they to fight, how likely is it they will ever have to, how long might they have to remain here, why isn't more of the load shared by our European allies? And what do these GI's think of Vietnam and of their own mission in Europe?

I have just spent time asking these questions—here, where I myself was a GI 20 years ago. I have talked to the men and watched them in action. And the answers I got were both surprising and reassuring.

To begin with, the Germany of today is not the Germany of my time. There are scenes that would be familiar to anyone who lived through—or watched newsreels of—the postwar occupation. Crewcut young men still eye blonde girls on street corners. OD-painted tanks lumber down country lanes. Troops in fatigues and helmet liners stand in formation in old SS kasernes while Germans watch through the fence. But where the countryside was wan and sickly in 1945, it is fat and lush today. And the Americans are here not as conquerors but as allies. They have moved in with families, schools, special housing, commissaries, and they give every impression of being here to stay —yet somehow they are less in evidence than they were 20 years ago.

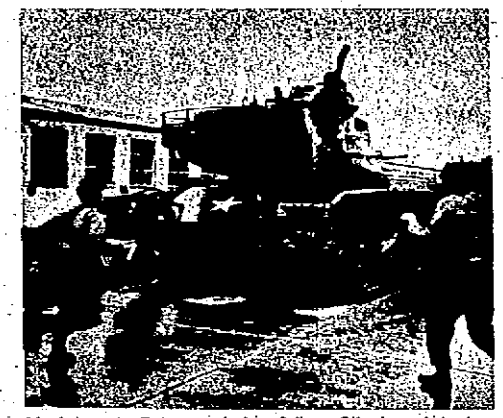

"The United States Army, Europe," proclaims a folder produced by the local command, "is the keystone of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization [NATO] land defenses in Europe." E/4 Harvey Peterson, of Beach, N. Dak., a Third Armored Division soldier whose routine is depicted in these photos, puts it differently. "We are the shield the rest of the Troops of the Third Armored Division on parade.

On the go, Capt. Walter Kidwell reviews company as Peterson drives. Special radio keeps unit in contact.

Moving out, Peterson helps fellow GI's board tanks. Troops keep packs ready, can roll at moment's notice.

In classroom, troops get refresher in firing. They are given lectures on global mission, relations with Germans.

free world would hide behind," he says.

That shield is a formidable one. Against a Red threat consisting of 66 Soviet divisions in Eastern Europe, plus 60 satellite divisions in support, NATO has a Northern Army group of British, Canadian, Belgian, Dutch and German troops and a Central Army group of U.S., French and German. The U.S. Seventh Army makes up about a quarter of this central group. It consists of five full-strength divisions and three armored cavalry regiments deployed in depth along 300 miles of the Iron Curtain. It is equipped with both conventional and nuclear weapons, and officers like to say that a single battalion today has more firepower than General Eisenhower could muster in all Europe in World War II.

A key element in this mission is the Third Armored. An outfit with an enviable combat record going back to the Normandy Campaign, it is ranged across the Fulda Gap, traditional invasion route into western Germany, and it keeps tuned up as if it expected that route to be used tomorrow. The division consists of six tank battalions and five battalions of mechanized infantry; it has 325 of America's most modern tanks, some of them (see cover) equipped with special xenon infrared and white searchlights for night firing and with ten 105-mm. flat trajectory guns.

Following around a youth like Peterson, you find that the units here mean business. Each division is required to assemble half its personnel in 30 minutes and to be able to move out to prepared positions, ready for war, with 85 per cent strength within two hours. Peterson's unit, C Company of the First Battalion of the 32nd Armored Brigade, has a daily "stand-to" in which all personnel and vehicles are checked for combat readiness, and there is an unannounced alert (which usually comes about 4 A.M.) once a month which requires that the entire company be off-post and at battle stations in two hours. The division also has regular weapons firing, tank maneuvers and annual combat exercise.

You get a real taste of the division's readiness when you watch a spot alert. The men keep their gear ready and their packs rolled, and even in a pre-dawn alert can be out of the barracks and on the tanks in what seems like split seconds. Peterson is usually first man out. As training aids noncom and jeep driver for the company commander, Capt. Walter Kidwell, it is his job to get to the CO's home, five miles away, and bring him back to the base speedily so the unit can move out. Peterson has zippers in his boots so he can be on the move faster. The last alert he was there and back and had C Company moving in 21 minutes.

Peterson, a blond 23-year-old, is one of those conscientious modern soldiers the division is proud of. "He can do any job you give him," Captain Kidwell says. A student at North Dakota State College, Fargo, before his enlistment, he plans to go back there next fall—hopefully with the help of the Third Armored scholarship fund. Last year he was one of six soldiers nominated for the Doyle Hickey award, a $100 bond given in honor of a former divisional commander to the man with the best knowledge of his job, the division and the Army history. Peterson finished second.

The life Peterson and his buddies live is military all the way. It starts in winter at 5:30 A.M., progresses through reveille and a 6 A.M. breakfast to a workday beginning at 8 A.M. The company spends its mornings in classes, learning tank identification, tactics, psychological warfare. In the afternoon there is cleaning and maintenance of weapons and upkeep of the company vehicles. On a regular basis they receive troop information lectures and talks on why they are in Europe and what they mean to the cold war.

GIRL FRIENDS & GASTHAUSES

Off duty, however, the men could well imagine they were not in service at all. Friedberg, in the rolling Hessian countryside north of Frankfurt, is a pleasant, castle-dominated little village of trees and timbered cottages. The GI's can go to a gasthaus (restaurant) or to visit girl friends every night, and there are sight-seeing tours to points of interest—like Rhine castles and Heidelberg. Married personnel have comfortable apartments as well as schools and commissaries. Although relations with the Germans are good—there is even a German-American soccer league—the two communities generally don't mingle.

Peterson, good soldier that he is, takes part in unit athletics, goes on trips, saves money for school and recently took an evening course in German—"so if I was lost out in the field, I would be able to ask directions." He has no girl friend here, spends most of his evenings with a buddy, Corp. John George. Occasionally the two go to town for beer or rowing on the lake. More often they loll around the barracks and shoot the breeze.

"Why are we here—that's generally the topic," Peterson says. "There are about six to ten guys that argue about this all the time. One group says, well, we're just numbers, we don't stand a chance if the Russians really want to move in. Another says we have to be here—Europe couldn't keep from being overrun if we weren't. We can hold territory until reinforcements come in behind us. Others say, heck, this is the safest place in the world; the Russians obviously aren't going to attack us. Why don't they pull us out of here and send us to Vietnam where we're really needed, and let some reserves do this?"

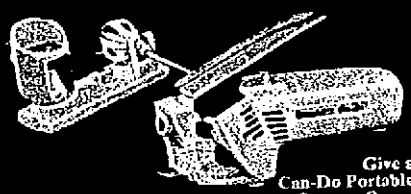

Peterson has a brother in Vietnam, Don Peterson, and so he is very conscious of the fighting there. It is possible now for GI's to volunteer for direct transfer to that theater, and some have done so (although, says the Pentagon, not all have been accepted because certain specialties are overloaded). Peterson has not volunteered and doesn't plan to, and recognizes that it is very unlikely that his unit will be transferred. "Armor is effective in Europe, but not in Asia," he says.

Besides, Peterson recognizes that the mission here in Germany is part of a global one, part of a national stance to stop the forward push of Communism anywhere. And he believes that he and his buddies, though out of the headlines at the moment, serve an important purpose. In this he is supported by the No. Two man in the U.S. Army Europe Command, Maj. Gen. Francis Drachler. "They are good men, good troops with the best equipment," says the chief of staff. "They could give a good account of themselves against any threat anywhere."

THE BIG SURPLUS FOOD BUNGLE

Egypt's Abdel Nasser fills his pockets with U.S. aid yet continues reviling American "imperialists."

It is noble in principle to help the world's needy, but should Uncle Sam give handouts to hands that are only too quick to pick his pockets?

Since World War II we have displayed a generosity unequaled by any other victors in history. We have been concerned neither with revenge nor with spoils. Our concern has been to get the world going again.

Not unnaturally, we hoped our generosity would be recognized and would win friends. But all too often, thanks to our own bungling and to cynicism on the part of governments we have helped, our food-for-peace programs have brought neither food to the hungry nor peace to the world. As for friendship, it seems to progress in reverse proportion to the amount of food we dish out.

Nowhere has this been truer than in the Middle East. And no one has been more adept than Egypt's President Nasser in turning Uncle Sam into Uncle Sucker.

Thousands of tons of food have been shipped to Nasser. In fact, his people depend for almost a quarter of their diet on American food shipments. Without those shipments the Egyptian masses might be harder to control; Nasser might even find himself with a revolt on his hands. Yet no one this side of the Iron Curtain is more critical of the United States.

Our economic aid helps him buy arms to fulfill his dream of vanquishing Israel. We have to compensate for this by providing the Israelis in turn with arms. In effect, we pay twice for the same machine gun.

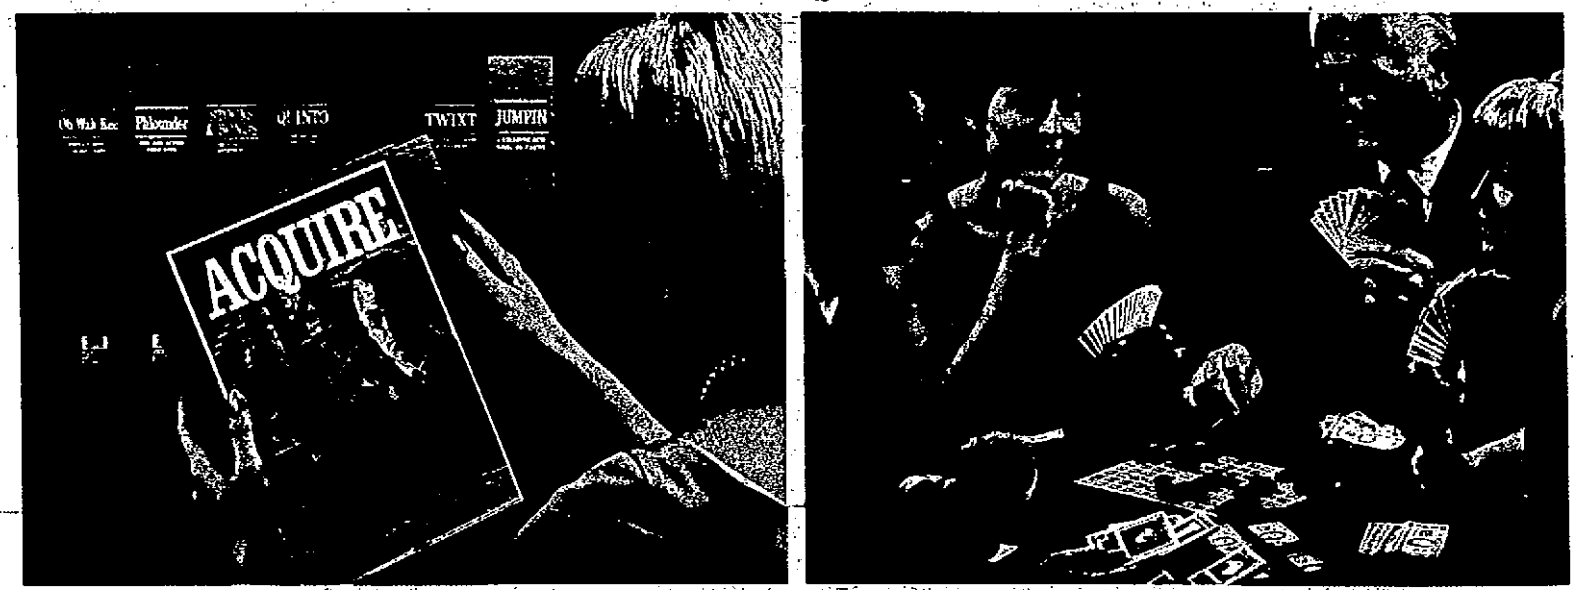

Only this year, government auditors completed their investigation of the great Egyptian corn scandal, which cost American taxpayers a whopping $23.7 million. The story began four years ago, when Nasser pleaded for emergency corn shipments to save his country from famine.

ONE CONDITION

In response the U.S. rushed 186,000 tons of corn to Egypt. They made only one stipulation—that the corn be distributed free of charge to impoverished Egyptian farmers.

U. S. officials made no effort, apparently, to check the Egyptian claim of crop failure. They accepted the latest Arabian Nights story that floods and insects had devastated both the corn and cotton crops. Yet even as ships were steaming out with American corn, Egyptian farmers were harvesting near-record crops.

What happened to the gift corn? Instead of giving it away to the starving fellaheen, Nasser sold it to raise more money for arms. When we discovered belatedly what he was doing, he changed his policy—but not before he had managed to sell 80,000 tons of corn.

At least four shiploads of corn weren't even unloaded for several weeks because Nasser had black-listed the ships for calling at Israeli ports. If the Egyptians felt the corn had been tainted by its brief exposure to Israel, they found it had also been infested by weevils while waiting in port.

President Nasser and his 40 thieves also worked a fast deal in a most unglamorous substance—tallow. Egypt normally buys its tallow from the United States. The inedible tallow goes into soap, the edible into oleomargarine.

Our law stipulates that foreign aid must not interfere with commercial sales, but the Egyptions hated to pay scarce dollars for anything they could cuchre out of the U.S. They begged for tallow as economic aid, which would permit them to pay for it in local currency. The United States already has $500 million worth of Egyptian pounds—more than can be spent in Nasserland in 50 years. Since local currency must be spent inside the country, the chances were that any payments in Egyptian pounds would remain unspent—thus making the tallow, in effect, a free gift.

The State Department's alibi is that the political bonus was worth the dollar loss. But if the tallow and the corn deals have modified Nasser's attitude toward the United States, he has yet to show it.

Another secret report, classified in order to hide the embarrassing details, has to do with a Middle East wheat deal. The Iranian government suddenly ran short of foreign exchange, and for "political reasons" Uncle Sam cheerfully filled the shah's coffers. A cool $39 million of the American taxpayers' money was turned over to him.

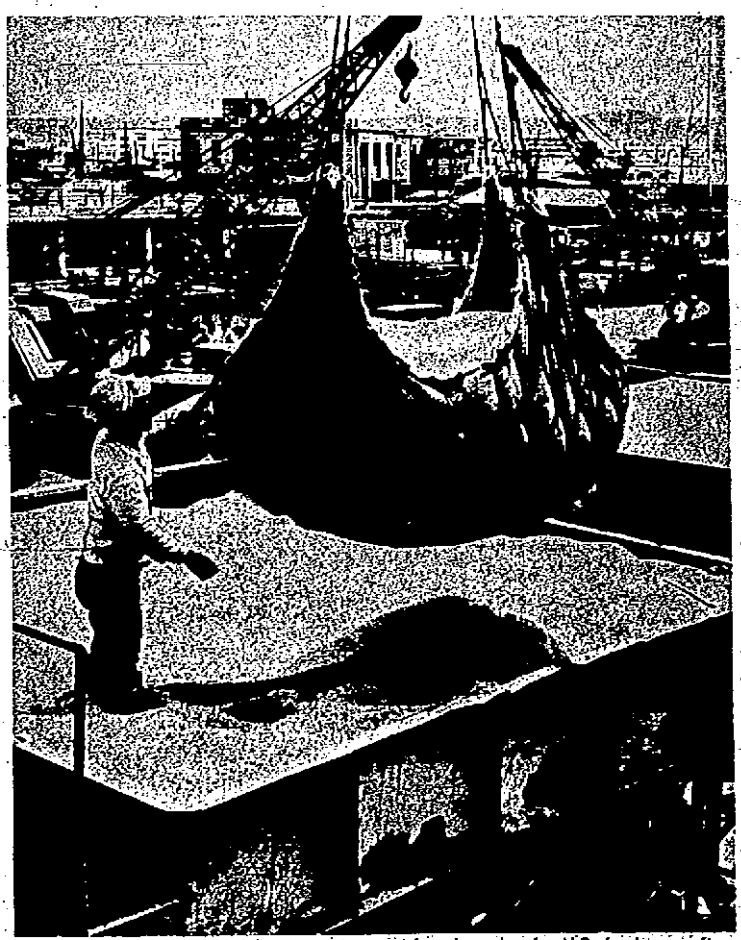

IRANIAN DUPLICITY

Later, Uncle Sam discovered that Iran had spent $12.5 million of this jackpot for wheat from Australia, though there was plenty of surplus wheat for sale in the United States.

Egypt and Iran are only two countries in which Uncle Sam has proved to be Uncle Sucker. There are many more.

American surpluses, as a result of giveaways and sales, are approaching the level this country needs for its own security. Wheat is only in "modest excess." Another big wheat giveaway could put us below the safety margin. Dairy products, once so abundant, have been so sharply reduced that some giveaways have had to be curtailed.

This is not an argument against generosity. But the American people never meant their bounty to be squandered.

Shipments like these—to so-called needy countries clamoring for U.S. food—are often misused or not used at all. The loser: American taxpayers, who fork over millions.

Holiday Fruitcake

Now's the time to make that Christmas fruitcake. These two beautiful and unusual cakes can be made ahead of time and stored, undecorated, until the holidays are here. One is for you and the other to give—if you can bear to part with it. Most unusual feature of these cakes is that they are two-toned—two layers of dark cake with a layer of white between. The white cake is studded with brilliant red and green candied fruits. It's just right to serve with eggnog or punch at yuletide.

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Dark Cake Batter

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, divided
2 cups seedless raisins
1¼ cups mixed, diced fruits and peels
½ cup thinly sliced preserved pineapple
½ cup halved candied cherries
½ cup pecan halves
½ cup blanched, slivered almonds
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup soft butter or margarine
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
3 eggs, separated
1 envelope (1 oz.) no-melt chocolate
2 tablespoons each lemon and orange juice

Combine ½ cup flour with next 6 ingredients; mix until fruits and nuts are well coated. Mix and sift remaining ½ cup flour with spices and baking soda. Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Then add egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Blend in chocolate. Add flour, spice mixture and fruit juices alternately, stirring just until smooth. Stir this mixture into fruit-nut mixture. Beat egg whites stiff; fold in. Chill until light cake batter is ready.

Light Cake Batter

¾ cup blanched, slivered almonds
½ cup thinly sliced green preserved pineapple
½ cup quartered candied cherries
2 tablespoons flour
1 package (1 lb. 1 oz.) pound cake mix

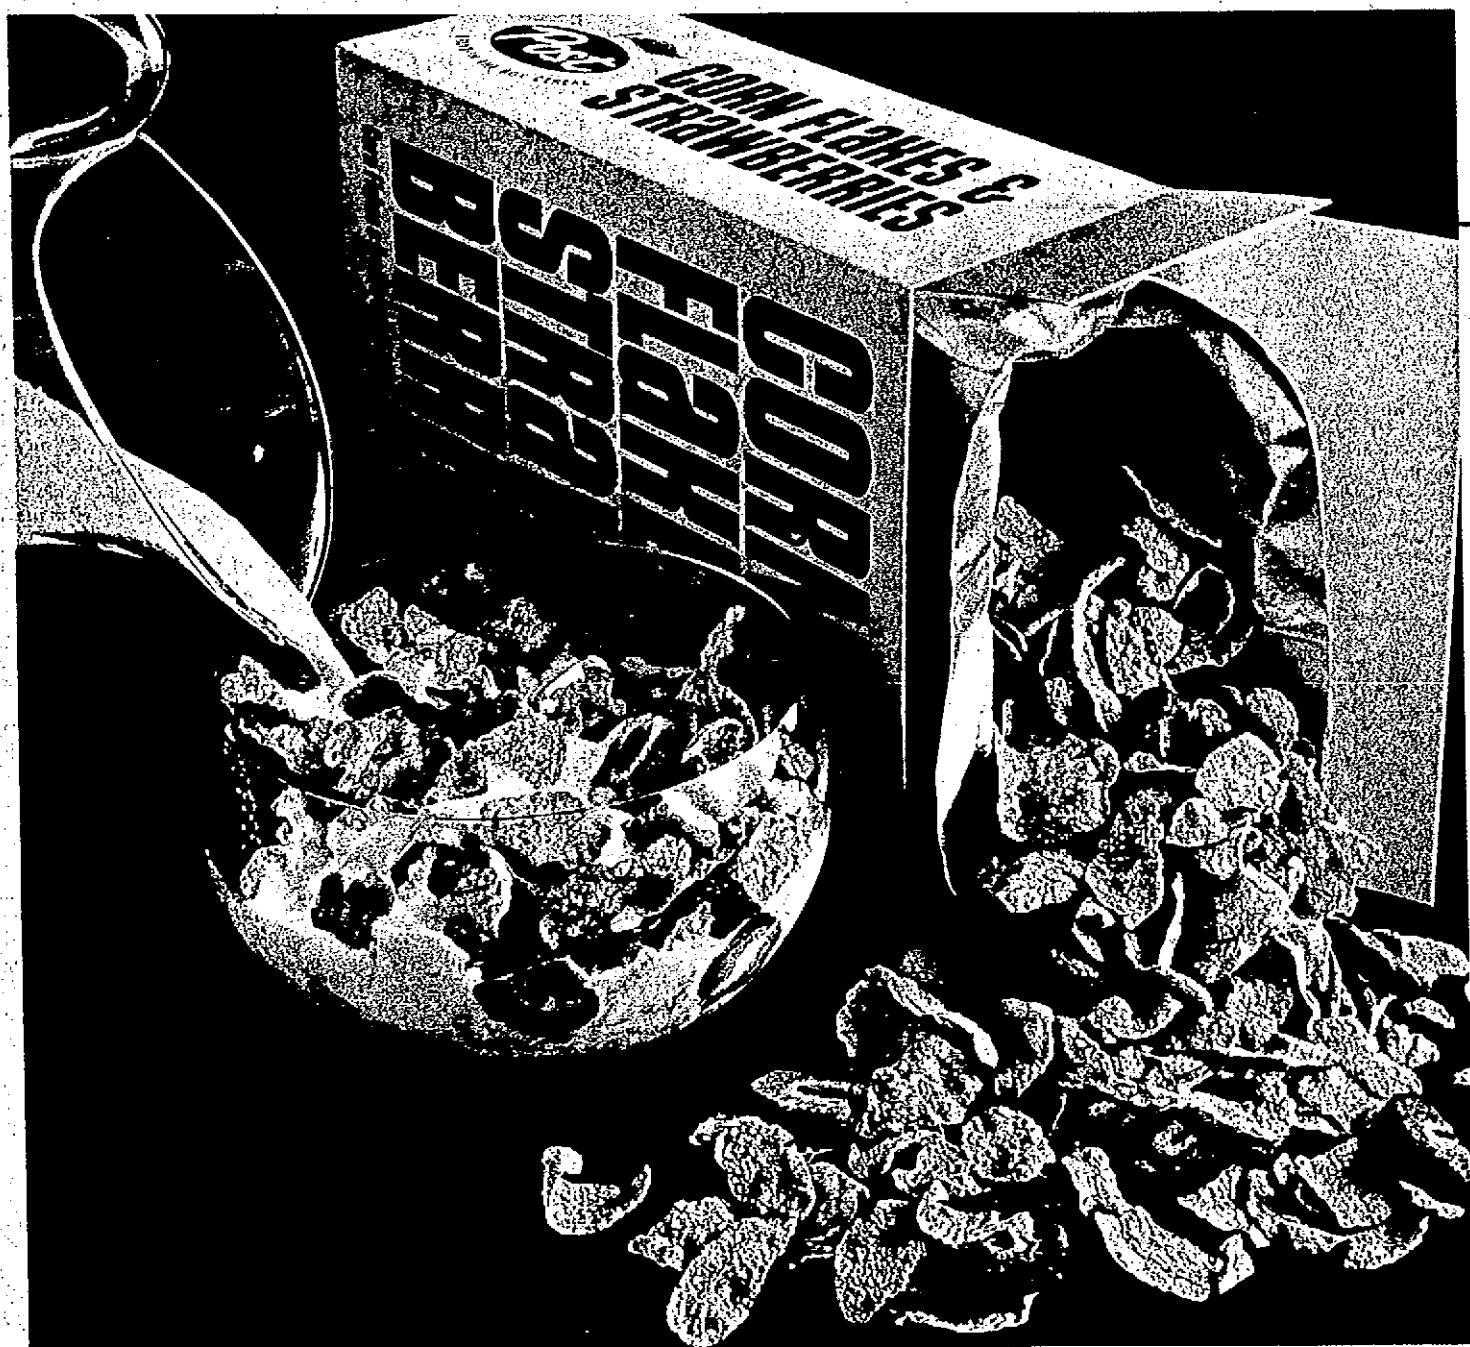

Combine first 4 ingredients; mix until fruits and nuts are well coated. Prepare pound cake mix as directed on package; stir into fruit mixture.

To combine:

Grease 2 loaf pans 8 x 5 x 3 inches. Line bottoms with wax paper. Grease paper. Divide dark batter in fourths. Put one fourth in each pan. Top with half the light batter. Finish with layer of dark batter. Bake at 325° about 1½ hours or until cake tester comes out clean. Cool in pans on wire rack ½ hour. Loosen edges, remove loaves, peel off wax paper; cool completely on racks. Wrap tightly in foil, refrigerate until ready to use or freezer wrap and freeze. Decorate with confectioners' sugar icing and preserved or candied fruits and nutmeats. Makes 2 loaves.

SHE'S SAVING A VANISHING SPECIES

Minnie McFarland nurses delicate trout to adult size.

by TOM FOUST

FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.

It looks as if the battle to save one of America's scrappiest and most beautiful species of trout from extinction is being won. And the person responsible for it is an unusual Arizona woman who is applying her motherly instincts to a man's job.

Wearing a work jacket, trousers and rubber boots, Minnie McFarland works for the Arizona Game and Fish Department. She oversees the hatching of trout that are stocked in Arizona waters. Mostly she tends hearty, easy-to-catch rainbows. But for the last three years she's watched over some wild survivors of another species—the olive green and gold dark-spotted Arizona trout, which has been within a fin's breadth of joining some 75 species of wildlife that have disappeared from the face of the earth.

As more and more fishermen began to demand more and more fish, the highly desirable rainbow was stocked heavily in Arizona streams. It invaded the habitat of the native trout, and the pure strain of native soon gave way to a rainbow hybrid.

The prospect of the disappearance of the Arizona trout was a tragic one to sportsmen, naturalists and the staff of the Game and Fish Department. From one of the last remaining habitats, Ord Creek on the Ft. Apache Indian Reservation in east-central Arizona, the department obtained 78 wild, stunted brooders. In ten-gallon milk cans, the trout were transported by pack horse and truck to the small state hatchery at Sterling Springs, just south of here, and turned over to Minnie McFarland.

A LOVE FOR LIVING THINGS

Diminutive, widowed Mrs. McFarland is a quiet woman with a rare love for the out-of-doors and for all living things. She accepted without hesitation the task of keeping them alive.

The natives were slipped into a covered "raceway" at Sterling Springs and for a starter refused to eat the prepared hatchery food. When all else failed, Minnie McFarland dug some worms out of her own yard and tossed them into the raceway. This natural food disappeared in a swirl of darting fish.

Mrs. McFarland knew she could never provide a steady diet of worms on that scale. She began mixing worms with chopped liver. As soon as the trout were accepting the liver, she mixed it with the hatchery food and slowly withdrew the liver.

Seventy-four trout survived all this. When the time came, they were milked and the spawn of 300 eggs placed in an incubator. Then a construction blast rocked the area, and all but 109 of the eggs were ruined.

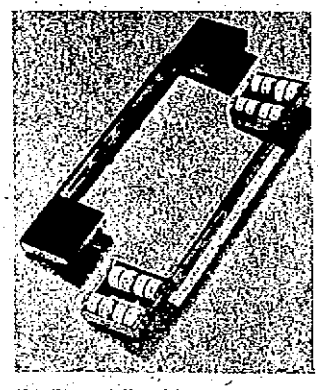

For about a month Mrs. McFarland worried over the baby trout 18 hours a day. They had to be fed every hour. When problems developed in the water system, she sat up with them all night.

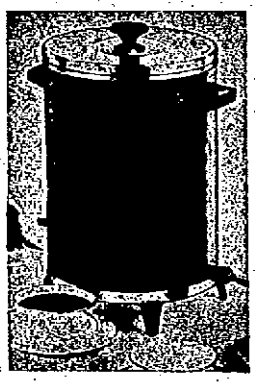

But only 11 were lost. At the end of a year the population was up to 200. When the brooders were milked again, 1000 fine fingerlings were produced.

To Minnie McFarland, saving a species is all in a day's work. Nobody knows her age. She's been with the department 11 years and for 20 before that worked with her late husband as a fishing guide on the Colorado River. And she wants nothing more than to be left alone, out in the open by her fish tanks.

TAKE A LOOK AT THESE NEW IDEAS FOR YOUR HOME AND FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

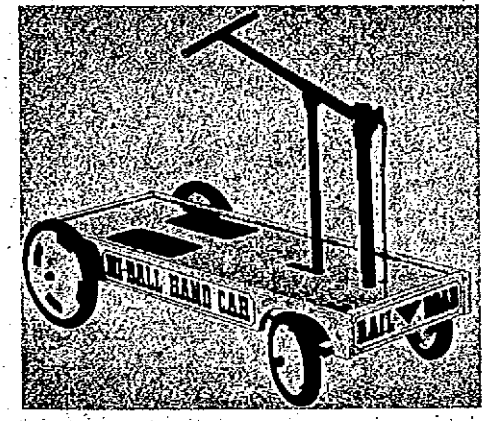

Appliance dolly: If you'd like to be able to move heavy appliances easily for cleaning or retrieving lost items, you can mount this adjustable dolly (above, left) permanently under any free-standing refrigerator, freezer or range. It raises the appliance only 1½", keeps it in balance, and the nylon wheels can roll up to 650 lbs. without marking your kitchen floor covering. $9.95 per pair. Delta, Dept. PP, 1404 E. California Ave., Glendale, Calif. 91206.

Party percolator: This automatic one (above, right) brews 30 cups and is insulated to keep coffee hot without being plugged in. Use it also to keep iced beverages cold for hours. Copper-glo enamel finish. About $20 in stores. West Bend Co., Dept. PP, Box 278, West Bend, Wis. 53095.

For your car: Easy way to keep it shining is with a new waxer-polisher you can plug into the cigarette lighter socket. It has a long cord that lets you reach all around the car—and a long handle that makes it easy for you to reach the middle of the roof. It quickly buffs to brilliant finish without running down the battery. $9.95. Dynamic Classics, Dept. PP, 220 E. 23, New York, N. Y. 10010.

Hand car: Here's fun for kids (above)—a hand car for sidewalk use similar to the kind used on railroads. It steers and pumps with the same handle, has chain drive, nonslip foot pads, semi-pneumatic tires, weighs 30 lbs., measures 40" x 20". Yellow with green trim. $24.95, express collect. Hobi, Dept. PP, Flushing, N.Y. 11352

Fire smother: Handy to have in your kitchen, basement, garage, a new 3' x 4' asbestos blanket can be dropped over accidental small fires and quickly helps smother flames. It cannot burn, smoke or char. $1.59. Midland Trading Dept. PP, 316 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

My Favorite Jokes

by David Ketchum

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dave Ketchum, star of the comedy TV show, Camp Runamuck, literally "fell" into show business as a student at San Diego High School. This was in 1941 when Red Skelton was plugging war bonds up and down the country. Ketchum noticed that Red broke up the student body when he drove up in a jeep, stepped out, and promptly fell flat on his face. "I decided right then and there," he says, "that I could make a living with pratfalls." This began the Ketchum show business career. A program of his own, Ketchum Capers, numerous night club appearances, 12 overseas tours entertaining servicemen, and Dave was ready for the big time. He made his Broadway debut in the Billy Barnes Revue, his film debut in Good Neighbor Sam, became a regular on the TV program, I'm Dickens . . . He's Fenster. Ketchum lives in North Hollywood with his wife, folk-singer Louise Bryant, and a 1-year-old daughter, Nicole. Herewith some of his favorite funnies:

In the war on poverty I was the first person captured.

The wonder of Italy. How one country could turn out such small cars and such big women!

It's so cold in Wyoming that the other day I saw a copy of Playboy magazine on a newsstand in Cheyenne; the magazine was shivering.

The Beatles have a new record called The End of the World. They don't say exactly when. But I notice the tune is made on a short-playing record.

If Bell Telephone can fix Telstar while it's 3500 miles in space, how come the repairman always has to take my set to the shop?

A modern teacher is one who gets panic-stricken if the movie projector doesn't show up.

My wife has served me so many TV dinners, it's like a conditioned reflex. I see a piece of aluminum foil and right away I get hungry.

If you really want to have an exciting Christmas holiday, make an agreement with your wife that you won't exchange gifts for Christmas . . . Then don't.

I finally got tickets to Hello, Dolly! They cost me plenty. I didn't mind giving up the car . . . But I sure am going to miss the children.

Letter from a fan: "Dear Mr. Ketchum, when your TV show is on the air my husband sits by the set and I can't pull him away from it. He's afraid somebody will turn it on."

TEFLON® FINISHED MIRRO NO-STICK COOKING
NO-SCOUR CLEANUP

All that glitters is not gold. And all that says "non-stick" is not MIRRO.

Du Pont TEFLON® is truly a miracle. Nothing sticks to it, even burned-on foods. And it rinses clean, without soaking or scouring. But, to provide this miracle, month after month, TEFLON must be properly applied, on a properly prepared surface.

Some materials won't take a TEFLON finish at all. Fortunately, the finest cooking material of all . . . even-heating aluminum . . . acts like it was made for it. And MIRRO, the finest aluminum, earned the first Seal of Approval that Du Pont awarded, for doing the job right.

Certainly you want no-stick cooking and no-scour clean-up. To be sure you get it, make extra-sure you get TEFLON-Finished MIRRO. There's a complete selection of range-top utensils, ovenware and electric fry pans, wherever the finest aluminum is sold. They're the finest to give . . . finest to own.

Anecdote of the Week

■ Audrey Hepburn and Peter O'Toole are filming a movie at Boulogne Studios in Paris, entitled How to Steal a Million Dollars and Live Happily Ever After. Over the weekend a safe was broken into at the studio. Robbers escaped with $14,000 in pay for extras. When the robbery was reported to the Paris police, they made several wisecracks about publicity and the title of the film, and the wiles of American press agents. Finally persuaded that the robbery was genuine, they sent men to investigate. When the police walked onto the set, director William Wyler grew furious. "Get those extras," he yelled, "the hell out of this scene." ■

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

BRITISH DOCTORS LEAVING. Medical doctors in the U.S. earn more money than any other occupational group. So claims the Department of Labor in analyzing the earnings of men in 321 occupations, using 1960 census data. Overseas, however, doctors are not nearly so fortunate. In Europe they average less than $10,000 a year, largely because all of Europe offers its people socialized medicine. In England doctors carry such a tremendous work load in return for the limited sum the government pays them that one in four new doctors is now quitting the United Kingdom. Most are coming to the U.S., Canada, other nations of the British Commonwealth.

GHOST WRITER DE GAULLE. Charles de Gaulle believes in the grandeur of France and the glory of Charles de Gaulle. The French President has just authorized the republication of a military tract he wrote in the middle 1930's. Its title: France and Its Army. Originally this work was conceived by the late Marshal Pétain. No writer himself he assigned the job to a Captain de Gaulle who labored on it long and hard before he turned it over to his superior. Pétain thought it excellent but insisted upon "revisions in my own style." After several years de Gaulle grew impatient, published the book in 1938 under his own name. From that point on relations between Pétain and de Gaulle deteriorated. When World War II broke out the following year, the breach between these two was irreparable. De Gaulle castigated Pétain for his old-fashioned tactics, and Pétain ignored de Gaulle. Next year when the book is published again, the original dedication to Pétain will be omitted. In 1938 the dedication read: "To Marshal Pétain who wished this book to be written...."

ITALY AND DIVORCE. One of Italy's major social problems is how to legalize divorce. Italy is the only Common Market country and one of less than a dozen in the world that does not permit divorce. Now a bill to recognize divorce is being sponsored by the Socialists in the Italian coalition government. The Socialists claim that there are 50,000 broken marriages in Italy each year, that the couples from these broken marriages cannot remarry, that many of them live in sin, that Italy's high illegitimacy rate, 6% of all births, is in part a result of the antiquated divorce prohibition. Loris Fortuna who is sponsoring the bill claims it would not clash with the Roman Catholic Church which does not recognize divorce. Fortuna points out that civil divorce is permitted in other Catholic countries such as France and Belgium. In the last 80 years there have been ten attempts to introduce a legal divorce law in Italy, and each has been killed. This time, Fortuna hopes, his bill will pass.

WAR AIMS. We are fighting a war in Vietnam to help the Vietnamese help themselves. Consider the tragic history of these tragic people. The French occupied their land for 100 years, exploited the people and the resources. In 1940 the Japanese moved into Vietnam, occupied the country.

When World War II ended the French returned to restore their colonial regime. The Communist Party under Ho Chi Minh formed a guerrilla army called the Vietminh to throw them out.

The Vietminh fought the French for ten years. They employed the same guerrilla tactics they are now using against us. The French threw everything they had, including their famed Foreign Legion, against the Vietminh. Victory still escaped them.

Bitter and frustrated the French stupidly decided to lock forces with the Vietminh in a decisive battle at Dien Bien Phu, believing that their army would demolish the guerrillas once they came out of the jungle. In 1954 the French Army of Indochina under brave but stupid generalship was itself demolished on the blood-soaked battlefield of Dien Bien Phu.

Vietnam was then divided. The Communists took control of North Vietnam above the 17th parallel. Below the 17th the Free Republic of Vietnam was formed with a population of 14 million, 80% of them industrious but illiterate peasants with no background in self-government.

The Viet Cong, the Communist party, then attempted to take over the Republic of Vietnam by force, infiltration, deception, tyranny, revolution, any possible means. The South Vietnamese fought back, and we came to their aid.

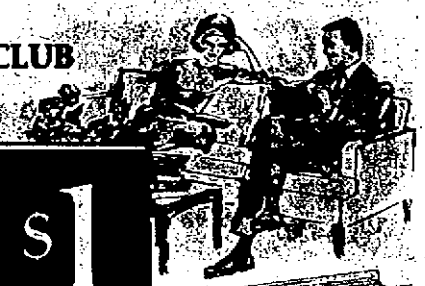

In time we will defeat the Viet Cong, but we cannot win the war. The only people who can win it are the South Vietnamese. To help them we must somehow build for them a genuinely popular and representative regime in South Vietnam which they will be willing and anxious to defend and preserve. At the moment they are not. Their present government is a military dictatorship, ostensibly headed by Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky who takes his orders from the real power behind the scenes, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu. The South Vietnamese have never yet had a stable, cohesive government. The peasants have never known a sizeable voice in government. The power blocs which have controlled the government are loyal first to themselves, then to their clans, then to their religions and lastly to their government, riddled by graft, corruption, inefficiency.

What we are faced with in Vietnam is the tremendous problem of native education. It has been suggested in many quarters that after our soldiers win the battles, they be transferred to the Peace Corps so they can truly help the South Vietnamese win the war. The times call not only for American military might but for mighty American statesmanship.

THE MOST ECONOMICAL LIBRARY-BUILDING SYSTEM EVER DEVISED: BOOK-DIVIDENDS

THE EXPERIMENTAL MEMBERSHIP suggested here will not only prove, by your own actual experience, how effectually membership in the Book-of-the-Month Club can keep you from missing, through oversight or overbusyness, books you fully intend to read; it will also demonstrate another equally important advantage enjoyed by members: Book-Dividends. Through this unique profit-sharing system Book-of-the-Month Club members can regularly receive valuable library volumes —at a small fraction of their price—simply by buying books they would buy anyway if they were not members.

IF YOU CONTINUE AFTER THIS EXPERIMENTAL MEMBERSHIP, you will receive, with every Club choice you buy, a Book-Dividend Certificate. Each Certificate, together with a nominal sum, usually $1.00 or $1.50 —occasionally more for unusually expensive volumes — can be redeemed for a valuable Book-Dividend which you may choose from more than a hundred fine library volumes whose retail prices now average $7. Since its inauguration the almost incredible sum of over $330,000,000 worth of books (retail value) has been earned and received by members through this unique plan.

DO YOU WANT ME TO HELP WITH THE CHRISTMAS CARDS?

NO, THANKS, I'D BETTER DO THEM... EVERYBODY ON THE LIST DOESN'T GET A CARD!

THEN WHY AREN'T THEY SCRATCHED OFF?

BECAUSE WE DON'T WANT TO FORGET THEM ALTOGETHER!

WHY?

IT'S A VERY SIMPLE WAY OF MAINTAINING CONTACT!

THAT SOUNDS NICE AND CONFUSING... TELL ME MORE!

ALL OUR FRIENDS, PAST AND PRESENT, ARE LISTED IN THIS BOOK!

SO?

WE SEND A CARD EACH YEAR TO EVERY NAME THAT DOESN'T HAVE A DATE BEHIND IT... THAT'S OUR REGULAR LIST!

AND THE OTHERS?

THEY ARE OUR "SKIP YEAR" FRIENDS!

SKIP YEAR? I DON'T GET IT!

TAKE THE SMITHS, FOR INSTANCE... THE LAST DATE BEHIND THEIR NAME IS 1964...

THAT MEANS WE RECEIVED A CARD FROM THEM LAST YEAR, BUT WE DIDN'T SEND THEM ONE BECAUSE THEY DIDN'T SEND US A CARD THE YEAR BEFORE...

SO WE'LL BE OFF THEIR LIST THIS YEAR, BUT WE HAVE TO SEND THEM A CARD BECAUSE WE OWE THEM ONE FROM LAST YEAR!

NEVER MIND! I'LL LICK THE STAMPS!

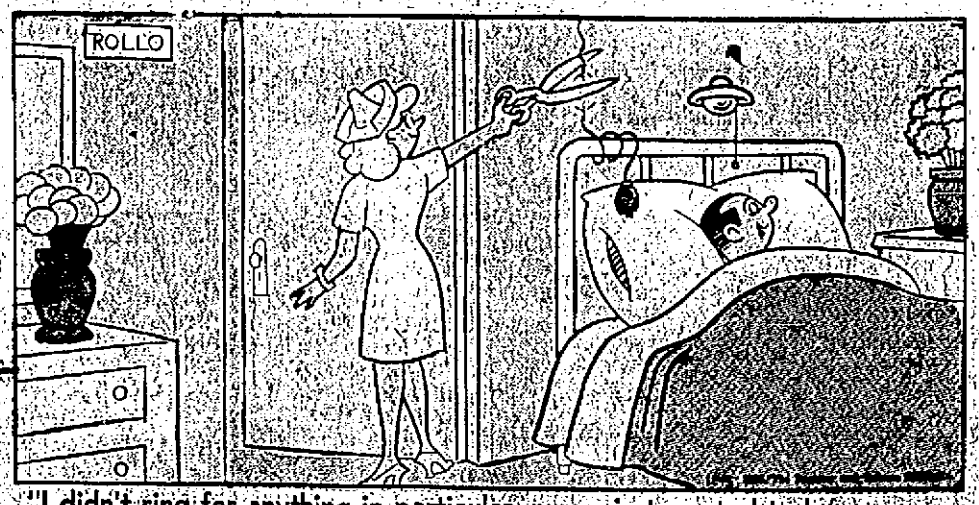

OFF THE RECORD

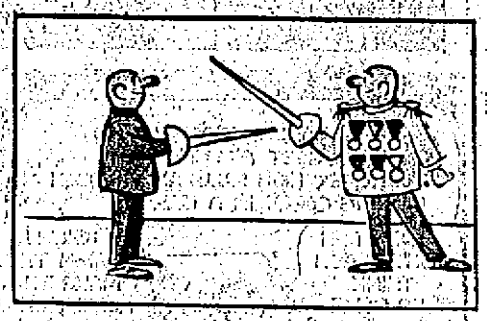

"How can I ever thank you for curing me, doctor—I no longer think I am Napoleon."

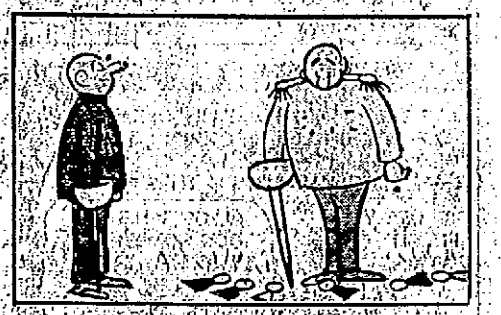

"Dad, you're wanted at the door—and, Mom, YOU'D better come, too."

"I didn't ring for anything in particular, nurse—just wanted to be sure you were on your toes."
